A PSALM OF THE UNION.

God of the Free! upon thy breath
Our Flag is for the Right enrolled;
Still broad and brave as when its stars
First crowned the hallowed time of old;
For Honor still its folds shall fly,
For Duty still their glories burn,
Where Truth, Religion, Freedom guard
The patriot's sword and martyr's urn.

Then shout beside thine oak, O North,
O South, wave answer with thy palm,
And in our Union's heritage
Together lift the Nation's psalm!

[illegible] is our mission here!
[illegible] world are we;
[illegible] lightnings tame
[illegible] rocky ridges and roaring sea;
[illegible] glants own
[illegible] of our mighty cars;

Is [illegible] beneath the Stripes and [illegible]!

Then shout beside thine oak, O North,
O South, wave answer with thy palm,
[illegible] our Union's heritage
[illegible] lift the Nation's psalm!

[illegible] is ours;
[illegible] on [illegible] rolled;
[illegible] a starry sky,
[illegible] fold!
[illegible] life,
[illegible] hurled;
[illegible] world is here,

[illegible] States have but [illegible] of the vast [illegible] tract of coun- [illegible] liar and not [illegible] of Texas. It [illegible] as little [illegible] Africa and bard- [illegible]. Only [illegible] world was [illegible] double [illegible] mal- [illegible] the depot [illegible] wood [illegible]

to have said: "You don't want a revolver a great many times; and then you do want it all at once powerful bad." I have before me a copy of a paper of that State which sums up its State news in a weekly column. Out of ten items seven are murders, or such like. It is so every week, and it is so every day. As a judge of the United States Court said to me, whose circuit includes that State: "I think Texas is best described by a saying current there. A husband, sitting at his fire, says to his wife: "Wife, I reckon I'll go to prayer-meeting. Bring me my revolver.'"

Their papers are full of confessions of this sort. One can hardly take up a daily that he does not read a deprecation of the murderous events constantly going forward. Some of these deeds have a curiosa felicitas of murder that would gratify the taste of a De Quincey. Thus: an oldish man and his wife, living in the country, go to visit a neighbor and his wife—an old-fashioned country-side visit. That night they are attacked. The two men and one of the women are murdered, and the other woman nearly killed. This happened while I was in the State, and was told the next day without any especial horror. A few days after, a man and his son-in-law are murdered; supposed to be the assassins of the two men and their wives. A daughter is reconciled to her husband, who had left her. As he is coming up to the house and she is standing in the door to greet him, her father and brother shoot him dead before her face. The reconciliation had not gone deep enough to save his life. Two men are hitching their horses to the rear of an emigrant wagon. They differ about the forage. Knives and pistols fly forth, and one lies prone on the ground. A marshal stands in the door of a saloon, and an enemy puts a bullet through his heart. A man was fined for carrying unlawful weapons, and when the officers attempted to take it away, his son, a lad of seventeen, drew a Derringer, and when they tried to take it from the boy he "made every effort to range the weapon on the marshal; but, as he was thrown down, he fired, and the ball entered the pocket only of the officer." So states the paper. A man cracks a joke at the postoffice on an acquaintance. He sees that his friend is offended, and takes it back. No use. The friend draws the revolver and shoots him through his heart. No arrests. Two cattle-traders had been riding together all day, good friends. As one of them rode off at nightfall, the other shot him in the back. Two neighbors had a horse-race for a saddle. The saddle not forthcoming, as they were plowing, they exchanged shots, one being killed. Two children awoke at night, and saw their father walking about with his throat cut. His sister-in-law is the murderess. All these are in a single weekly column, of whose ten items, six are murders. No arrests, or attempts at arrest. The papers cry out: "Are our laws a mockery?" They call the governor, as we have already quoted, "an infamous old imbecile," and say Sam Houston called him "an infernal old fool." They say: "Our State is indeed become a by-word and a reproach through all the land. Crime increases, and criminals are unpunished. The streets of the capital have time and again been stained with human blood. Crime holds high carnival in our midst, and no steps are taken to put a stop to this terrible and disgraceful state of affairs." The [illegible] correspondent of the San Antonio Express urges legislation [illegible] secure the administration of justice, that "the darkness of the awful shadow may be lifted from our [illegible] State, and its fair name be [illegible] a by-word and a hissing." [illegible] that "here in Texas [illegible] and else guilty have [illegible] and might have added [illegible] is innocent is hung. [illegible] Austin Statesman, fiercely [illegible] admission, called at- [illegible] to this fact, and lamented [illegible] and its injury to [illegible] bloody encoun- [illegible] but more [illegible] read in the daily [illegible]. The daughter [illegible] father objected to [illegible] the estate; [illegible] of the ad- [illegible] companion [illegible] house, rode [illegible] reflecting on his administration of her own property.

This black list is put at the head of this article because it must come in somewhere, and it had better be where it can be offset with better facts. Some of the papers of that State, Democratic and secession, (for these words are one and the same in the South,) whether religious or secular (for they, too, are one and the same in this non-national feeling,) will perhaps complain of this arraignment. Let them also acknowledge the words that follow. The terrible murder of Porter is only one of numberless like events that have made that fair land the darkest and bloodiest of all the sections of the American continent.

Yet there is hope for Texas. Nay, more; it is the hope of the country. Through that grand region shall we yet redeem all the rest of the late and still rebellious section.

It should be said in defense or in palliation of this violence that Texas has a frontier population; and, like all such, is liable to these atrocities. What occurred at Cheyenne and what occurs at Deadwood is occurring in this vast domain. It should also be said that the magnitude of the State makes its criminal record appear larger in proportion to other States than it deserves. If the crimes in a like territory elsewhere are all brought together, they may be as numerous as those in Texas; though for variety and novelty of murder we think this region must bear the palm. Even the Jesse Pomeroys and Bishops can hardly equal the short, sharp, decisive campaigns of assassination in which the murderous Texan delights. Look, then, at the other side of this picture. That State has a bright side; very bright, very hopeful.

The area of Texas is larger than that of all the other rebellious states this side of the Mississippi, except Florida. Take the whole territory from the Potomac to the Mississippi, and leave out Kentucky and West Virginia, which two sections maintained their official connection with the Union, and you have a territory smaller than Texas. If you add Florida, it will only lack 25,000 square miles of covering an equal tract with all the rebellious states. According to the latest surveys, the number of square miles in Texas is 274.365. If put at 300,000 miles, as it formerly was, it would include Florida in its area. It is bounded by eleven degrees of latitude and thirteen and one-half of longitude. It contains the enormous number of one hundred and seventy-five millions of acres, or four acres to every man, woman, and child in all the United States. The cis-Mississippi states, except Florida, are embraced within ten degrees of latitude and twelve and a half of longitude. So that practically Texas is equal in area to all the states in rebellion this side of the Mississippi.

Its measurements with Northern areas is hardly less startling. The area of all the Eastern and Middle States, include Maryland and Delaware, is a hundred thousand square miles less than Texas. You must add to New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and all the Middle States, Ohio and Indiana, to make up its sum. Take a few other figures. From Denison, three miles from the northern line, to Galveston, on the Gulf of Mexico, is about the same distance as from Boston to Washington; while from Texarkana, the most eastern town, to the extreme western point on the Rio Grande is over six hundred miles—as far as from New York to Cincinnati. The territory of this empire can be set forth in still another form. Massachusetts contains 7,800 square miles; Texas 275,000 nearly, or thirty-five times the area of Massachusetts. It is six times as large as New York; seven times as large as Ohio; four times as large as all New England. Two hundred Rhode Islands could be placed within its limits, and have room for a dozen more. The "Great West" we have had dinged into our ears for half a century, meaning thereby the Western States this side of the Mississippi —Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Their bountiful area falls short of the area of Texas by some forty thousand square miles, or another state as big as Ohio. If you cross the Mississippi, you must put Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Minnesota together to catch up with Texas. Thus it will be seen that this single state is more than half the whole old slave territory; more than half the old free territory east of the Missouri; or almost a fourth the rest of the United States, as they were organized at the beginning of the war, east of the rocky mountains; more than one-fourth, if you subtract Nebraska and Kansas from the group. If we lay Texas five times over, it will more than cover all the rest of the United States from Dakota and Colorado to the Atlantic shore.

This estimate of territory may be re-enforced by another estimate still more startling. The population of Ohio at the last census was two million six hundred and sixty-six thousand. Texas, at the same ratio, could contain over eighteen millions. New York had a population above four millions four hundred thousand. At that ratio Texas could contain over twenty-six millions. Massachusetts had nearly a million and a half. Texas would have, at the same rate, over fifty-one millions. That is, had Texas been as populous as Massachusetts, it would have had ten millions more inhabitants at the last census than were in all the United States, and itself increased our population to almost a hundred millions.

But one may ask: To what purport are these figures? Suppose it has such capacity for population. So has any other tract of land—Sahara, the Great America Desert, the mountains of Nevada. They are mere cipherings, and their results a cipher. Not so. Texas is to be the ransomer of America. It is to be the future fighting-ground of union and disunion, of Northern and Southern ideas. It is to be the field where the rebellious and slavery-loving and feudal-holding systems are to meet freedom and equality in stirring, if not bloody conflict. It is to be the coming Kansas in our coming war.

The Divine Ministry.

It is a fundamental postulate in Methodism that the Great Head of the Church has, from among the body of believers, chosen certain individuals to the special office and work of the ministry of the Gospel—so constituting of these a distinct order in the church—and of course dividing the whole body of the church into two classes: the "ministry" and the "brethren," or, in ecclesiastical parlance, "clergy" and "laity." It is accepted that the ministry of the Gospel is a divinely ordained function, having its own special duties,—though it need not be denied that every function of that order still inheres essentially in the body of believers—and those who are endowed with these special functions and charged with their corresponding duties, when joined together for mutual labor and effectual working constitute a special order in the Church of God. Accordingly every candidate for a place in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church is met at the threshold with the question, whether he finds himself "inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon [himself] the office of the ministry in the Church of God;" and none are accepted that cannot give an affirmative answer to that question; nor can they be accepted as duly clothed with the sacred authority of Christ's ministers unless they renew their declaration of their hearty persuasion of the reality of their divine call to this work. But in all this there is a steady and manifest assumption and consent that the Christian ministry is one, in kind, purpose, and divine ordination. This, too, is a fundamental postulate in universal Methodism. Any duly recognized minister of the Gospel is the peer of any and every other, and it has become a feature in its administration, that nothing shall be required of any one beyond his proper recognition as a minister of the Gospel to entitle him to all the rights and functions of that ministry, though for prudential reasons some may temporarily remain unused.—National Repository for July.

A Lesson from History.

The following extracts from a recent publication of Mr. Froude are very instructive. History repeats itself. The future of a country is never assured unless based upon pure, practical religion and intelligence. We say pure practical religion, for we see that a religion merely nominal and outward may flourish while the body politic is running riot and rapidly rushing to ruin.

Mr. Froude very rightly thinks that to the student of natural history, and to the English student above all others, the conversion of the Roman Republic into a military empire commands a peculiar interest. "Notwithstanding many differences, the English and the Romans essentially resemble one another. The early Romans possessed the faculty of self government beyond any people of whom we have historical knowledge, with the one exception of ourselves. In virtue of their temporal freedom, they became the most powerful nation in the known world; and their liberties perished only when Rome became mistress of conquered races, to whom she was unable or unwilling to extend her privileges. If England was similarly supreme, if all rival powers were eclipsed by her or laid under her feet, the Imperial tendencies, which are as strongly marked in us as our love of liberty, might lead us over the same course to the same end. If there be one lesson which history clearly teaches, it is this, that free nations cannot govern subject provinces. If they are unable or unwilling to admit their dependencies to share their own constitution, the constitution itself will fall in pieces from mere incompetence for its duties." The chapter from which we cite these opening sentences is full of suggestions of warning and instruction. Mr. Froude shows how the age of which his history treats, is in many ways the counterpart of our own "the blossoming period of the old civilization, when the intellect was trained to the highest point which it could reach, and on the great subjects of human interest, on morals and politics, on poetry and art, even on religion itself and the speculative problems of life, men thought as we think, doubted where we doubt, argued as we argue, aspired and struggled after the same objects. It was an age of material progress and material civilization; an age of civil liberty and intellectual culture; an age of phamphlets and epigrams; of salons and dinner parties, of senatorial majorities and electoral corruption. The highest offices in the State were open in theory to the meanest citizen; they were confined, in fact, to those who had the longest purses, and the most ready use of the tongue on popular platforms. Distinction of birth had been exchanged for distinction of wealth. The struggles between plebeians and patricians for equality of privilege were over, and a new division had been formed between the party of property and the party who desired a change in the structure of society. The free cultivators were disappearing from the soil. Italy was being absorbed into vast estates, held by a few favored families. The rich were extravagant, for life had ceased to have a practical interest, except for its material pleasures; the occupation of the higher classes was to obtain money without labor, and to spend it in idle enjoyment. Patriotism survived on the lips, but patriotism meant the ascendancy of the party which would maintain the existing order of things, or would overthrow it for a more equal distribution of the good things which alone were valued.

"Religion, once the foundation of the laws and rule of personal conduct, had subsided into opinion. The educated, in their hearts, disbelieved it. Temples were still built with increasing splendour; the established forms were scrupulously observed. Public men spoke conventionally of Providence, that they might throw on their opponents the odium of impiety; but the genuine belief that life had any serious meaning, there was none remaining beyond the circle of silent, patient, ignorant multitude. The whole spiritual atmosphere was saturated with cant—cant moral, cant political, cant religious; an affectation of high principle which had ceased to touch the conduct, and flowed on in an increasing volume of insincere and unreal speech. The truest thinkers were those who, like Lucretius, spoke frankly out their real convictions, declared that Providence was a dream, and that man, and the world he lived in, were material phenomena, generated by natural forces out of cosmic atoms and into atoms to be again resolved. Tendencies now in operation may a few generations hence land modern society in similar conclusions, unless other convictions revive meanwhile, and get the mastery of them; of which possibility no more need be said than this—that, unless there be such a revival in some shape or other, the forces, whatever they be, which control the forms in which human things adjust themselves, will make an end again, as they made an end before, of what are called free institutions."

Neglect of Rest a Cause of Drunkenness.

In the opinion of Dr. Jackson, "the refusal to take proper physical rest, when tired from labor, is one of the most important and powerful causes inducing a love for an indulgence in the use of ardent spirits. Men work till they get so tired that they cannot wait to feel sensibly rested by processes of change going on in their systems from suspension of labor. They either want to work more hours than they are able to do; or when they have done as much as they feel themselves at liberty to do, they are so tired that they cannot rest. They get rest, therefore, in artificial ways, by resorting to eating and drinking. Some get rested by drinking tea, others by drinking coffee, others by chewing and smoking tobacco; but the great majority of tired people in this country—and the larger share of our people are tired—drink ardent spirits in some other of its forms or preparations. They fall back on stimulants instead of the intrinsic vitalities of their bodies. They therefore are lifted up into false conditions. Accepting these as true, they keep on working till they become so functionally impaired as to induce positive inability to work longer, or they become so constitutionally depreciated as to be smitten with incurable disease."

There can be no doubt that the neglect of physicial rest is, as Dr. Jackson asserts, the occasion of much over frequent restoring to alcholic or other stimulants; but it is not by any means apparent that too long-continued work is the only or the main cause of the deficient rest which results so disastrously. Whether workers or not, those who stimulate too much do so not because they have no opportunity to rest, but because they spend in dissipation the hours they should and could devote to sleep.—Scientific American.

Lost Immigration.

It is useless to attempt to conceal the fact that there has been a great falling off in immigration. Not that the restless tide of humanity is not rolling onward the same as ever, but because it has turned from the Lone Stare state to Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and the territories. We have conversed with a number of passengers and railroad agents in regard to the matter and the testimony of all is about the same. They are all agreed that the falling off is very heavy and that one of the principal causes is too much "pocket on the hip." In other words, immigration has been shut out of the state. A few papers have been idiotic enough to suppose that this red handed business could be covered up and outsiders never hear of it. But you might as well try to cover the tops of the Rocky mountain range. This is an age of newspapers and every thing that transpires is flashed over the world in the twinkling of an eye.

The general expression however, seems to be that the crimes themselves would not impure the state so much if there was only a more prompt and vigorous enforcement of law. A leading railroad man put it thus: "You hurry horse thieves and robbers right off to the penitentiary, but murderers lie in jail until their cases are worn out or the public forgets all about it. The remedy is plain. You must enforce the law vigorously against man-slayers and immigration will come again."

The want of a good school system has also had a bad effect. Western people believe in public education and they are loth to go where their children will not be sure of a good education.—Dallas Texas Commercial.

Gov. St. John on the Exodus.

An affecting incident was related by the Governor, as follows:

One old man landed at Wyandotte some eight weeks ago,—nearly one hundred years old, too old to work,—was there without a penny, without a crust of bread, almost destitute of clothing. Some one said to him, "Old man, what do you expect to do here in Kansas? You have no money, you are out of bread, you are poorly clad, too old to work." The old fellow replied, "Bress the Lord, Massa, I kin die here in free Kansas."

The Governor thinks that if the means could be obtained to form small colonies not to exceed thirty families in a group, colonization would be the best plan for settling the colored people. Some three or four colonies have been established in Kansas by colored people and are successful.

In reply to a question concerning the results of the exodus, Governor St. John said he thought this migration would continue to flow to the North for many years. It is not a small matter, as he says, to transfer two millions of colored men to Kansas from the South. But it will be done unless the South wakes up to a sense of justice and gives the colored man protection for his life and property, and guarantees to him full, free and complete exercise of his political rights under the law.

The American negro in the South is as well educated as other races which have successfully escaped burden. The ignorant Hebrews thirty-four hundred years ago could not master the idea of one God, but they created a State, began civilization, and carried it through the world. The escape of of the wild Germans into the Adriatic marshes founded civic institutions as they were prolonged, like a line of light, from the Mediterranean to London. The Moors of Spain, more enlightened than their expellers, knew all that was known of the manual arts and scientific agriculture. The flight of the Huguenots from France, invigorating at once England, Prussia and Switzerland, was the last of wholesale migrations. All these races were despised, but all were the poor toilers in their respective realms. The city of New York was settled by the paupers of Amsterdam. The parent races of the Middle States were wild Scotch rebels, slow Palatines of unlearned Irish. The bogs of Louisiana were peopled with women from the French slums; the towns of Georgia from English alms-houses; the coasts of Florida from the Balearic Isles. Ignorance poured its desperate levies into every part of the New World to become school-masters of a better century, and among the mongrel races of Brazil the Crown of Portugal sought refuge at last. There is a high average knowledge of books and the world among the American blacks of to-day as among the white emigrants to America in the sixteenth century —"Gath," in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. Collyer's personal resemblance to Mr. Beecher is striking. The size, figure and gait, the well-shaved head, flowing gray hair, and smooth and florid face, are alike in both men.

In referring to this resemblance, Collyer said: "On my way from Chicago East this time, I got off to walk about the platform at one of the stations. I noticed several persons put their hands to their mouth sideways and whisper to those next to them. A young man from Chicago, whom I knew, came up to me and said, "Mr. Collyer, do you know what the people here are saying?' 'Oh, yes,' I replied, 'they are saying that I am Beecher.'"

"Well," continued Mr. Collyer, after a hearty laugh, "we are both from blacksmith stock. Beecher's grandfather, I believe, was a blacksmith, and my father was a blacksmith, and so was I."

In contests involving great principles he is not the victor who secures a triumph of the wrong. The majority may applaud his act, but he is not self-approved. The real conqueror is he who, having maintained the right, carries away a consciousness of the smile of God and of his own conscience—a truth finely expressed in the following lines:—

"One self-approving hour whole world outweighs
Of stupid starers and of loud huzzahs,
And more true joy Marcellus exiled feels,
Than Cæsar with a senate at his heel."

This school was organized in September, 1877, with twenty-three students. It has had many obstacles thrown in its way by opposing parties, but its progress has not been retarded, for, as true Methodists, the patrons have held firmly together, having but one object in view, viz: the establishing and perpetuating of a good school at this place. We were late commencing the present year, owing to the yellow fever. We opened with but 15 students, 7 males, and 8 females. Unceasingly have we toiled to the close with an enrollment of 99. All things being considered, the school has done well. As a general thing, the students have labored hard, evincing a lively interest in their studies, and a fixed determination to prepare themselves for future usefulness. Besides the resident students we have quite a number of boarders from a distance. Many of your readers know the opposition against which we have struggled, the cowardly assault upon the teachers, mentioned in a late issue of your paper, being the last and crowning act of our enemies for the year. Through all, we feel that God has brought us safely, and instead of being disheartened, we feel greatly encouraged. Our school is firmly established, with a good and growing reputation, and from the interest manifested at home and abroad, we expect a large increase of students next year. We would like to tell you just what we have been doing here. In the first place we have bought and paid for the four lots on which we intend erecting our new building, the corner-stone of which was laid on the 8th of May last. The grounds are fenced and planted in shade trees. In addition to this we have purchased and paid for a handsome Mason & Hamlin organ for our Sunday-school, costing $188, and a set of singing books for $10.60. During the present year we have raised [illegible]. Our annual sermon was preached on the 22d of June by Prof. Adkinson, president of the Methodist Female College of Meridian and a member of the M. resolution relative to the proposed monument of the late Dr. A. C. McDonald. The friends of Dr. McDonald soon after his death raised about $50 to erect a monument to his memory. This amount was raised in Holly Springs, with a small exception, and the monument would have been erected ere this time had they been let alone. It was thought by some that it was the business of the annual conference alone to say when and how the monument should be erected, so we stopped, and waited for the conference to convene at Oxford. That conference did appoint a committee of six, who were instructed to take the money already collected by his friends, and they were to collect more and have the monument erected. We had not heard any more about it until we saw an article in the SOUTHWESTERN June 12, from the pen of Elder Bradford. He says, "Mrs. McDonald desires to get the $50 that was raised by his friends, for the purpose of erecting a monument to his memory, and add more to it herself, and put up a plain stone at his grave." In reply to this we will say that the money is here, and in the hands of a man of wealth and highly esteemed, Edward McGowan, Esq., who will turn over the money whenever asked for by the proper authority. Elder Bradford also says: "I hope the parties holding the $50 mentioned will turn it over to her immediately." We think that Elder Bradford is a member of said committee which was appointed by the conference. Does he represent the wishes of the committee? If so, the Holly Springs Quarterly Conference and the friends of Dr. McDonald do not agree with them. We think there should be a suitable monument erected by the friends of the deceased, and not at this late date transfer the matter into the hands of the widow. The resolution passed by Asbury Chapel Quarterly Conference, in substance was that the friends of the deceased should go forward and erect the monument. And we earnestly ask all the preachers holding appointments in the Mississippi to raise the sum of $1 50 and send the same to Holly Springs by the first of August. All money received here will be acknowledged through the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN.

Now, brethren of the Mississippi Conference, (being one of the number,) I hope we will not let this matter go by default. The heroic and self-sacrificing labors of Dr. McDonald in building up Methodism in Mississippi, should not, and cannot be forgotten by the church, and to show our appreciation, let us erect a respectable monument to mark the place where he lies. Please, brethren and friends, let us hear from you immediately. Fraternally yours,

J. M. SHUMPERT.

Letter from Van Buren.

VAN BUREN, Ark., July 9, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Please allow me space in your columns to speak of the condition of my work at present. Immediately after the session of the Little Rock Conference, which was held in this place, I was compelled to go east after my children, a distance of about 200 miles. My financial condition was of such a nature that I did not get back until the first of May. It seemed to me that one half of the year had passed, but I promised God when I did return, if He would help me, I would try to make up the lost time. Now I am in the midst of a glorious revival. Accessions to the church about 25, and conversions about 17. A revival is stirring the entire church. The spiritual interest of the church in this place is higher now than at any time previous, notwithstanding we have had much opposition. I have always made it my chief object to try to save and prevent from falling those whom [illegible] given, through my ministry to the church; to save them from the wolf that seeks to devour, but I find that the Baptist church is the greatest wolf among Methodist converts. They are trying all the time to proselyte, so while I am trying to save them from the wolf, I must try to save them from the Baptist [illegible]. Sabbath-school is good [illegible] is still on the increase.

July 20, 1879.—CHRISTIAN LOVE.

SCRIPTURE—1 Cor. 13: 1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."—13.

TOPIC.—The Essentialness of Love.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher]

Preliminary—In this letter, Paul's effort not only was to correct the abuses and immortalities that had crept into the church at Corinth, but, specially, to bring about Christian unity. To this end, he rebukes them for their divisions, showing that the men whose names the different factions had adopted to indicate their spiritual leadership were essentially one, teaching the same gospel, having the same object, and succeeding only as they were blessed by the Lord, who had commissioned them all. All of the epistle so far is a good introduction to the chapter given us for study, for that exalts that grace—Christian love—which is the bond of all real brotherhood.

The Need of Charity (1 3).—Many people give for the reputation that they get by so doing. Their almsgiving really is just so much spent in a personal advertisement of themselves. For such gifts no credit is entered up on the books of heaven. The two mites of the poor widow outweighed all that the rich man cast into the treasury the day that Christ was looking on; for her coins were weighed with love. And, too, gifts to the poor may be presented in such a way as to be positive insults.

"Charity suffereth long and is kind." It is one of the characteristics of love patiently to bear with provocations. It is not quickly resentful. It does not soon fly into a rage. Love can keep its temper even when it has good reason for an outburst of wrath. The good fortune of others excites no hateful feelings in its own bosom. Rather, it rejoices in their happiness. That man has attained to a high state of grace who is never envious of his neighbors. Envy is the important desire to wrest from them the blessings which they enjoy in order that one may have them for himself. It cares nothing what might become of them so that its wish were gratified. Love has no such feeling as that. It rejoices at all the good which falls to the lot of its neighbors, and does not repine that it does not fall to its own. Love, which continually is thinking of others, has a good control of its temper. It is forbearing with offenders because it is well-disposed toward them. Where there is little patience there is little love. A great affection approximates in its patience to that which is shown by the Lord himself for us all. These, so far, are the outward manifestations of love. Now the apostle gives its inward distinctive qualities. What a mother will endure for her husband, is a marvel to those who know the bodily weakness with which she has to contend. Love seems to stand her in the place of food. How much she will endure for—and from too frequently—her loved ones, no fathom line has yet been long enough to determine. When it comes to the endurance of suffering, love develops heroisms that are surprising. Love of God has made weak women, and tender children, meet death at the stake, and torture on the rack, without the least flinching. Indeed, they rejoiced that "they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name." "Love endureth all things."

The Permanence of Charity (8-13).—But one of the main proofs of the superiority of love over all other gifts is in this—that love never "faileth." The apostle has not enumerated faith as being one of the gifts that should pass away. But faith will remain as an undoubting belief in God, strengthened by the realization of all of the promises that cheer the Christian now, and hope will live in the continued expectation of new revelations of the goodness and the character of God. "And now abideth faith, hope, and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." That is a small number to which to reduce all of the qualities which excite the admiration of men! And the greatest of these is love. That is not the estimate generally accorded to it by men. But it is the quality which give a perfume to life, which brings the atmosphere of heaven down to earth, and which is the most like God himself. The three graces almost always go hand in hand, and, though all three are beautiful, the one with the sweetest face and the most winning manner is Love.

Holman's Ague and Liver Pad is certified to by hundreds who have used it, as an admirable medical appliance. The complaints of spring and summer especially are said to yield under it. Marriages.

At M. E. Church, Oxford, Miss., July 9, Mr. Oceola Delbridge and Miss Annie Wiley were joined in matrimony by Rev. Samuel Cowan.

At St. John the Baptist M. E. Church, Louisiana, July 5, by Rev. Wm. Murrell, Mr. A. J. Davis to Miss Josephine Quinee.

At Alcorn University, Claiborne Co., Miss., July 2d, 1879, by Rev. H. R. Revels, father of the bride, Miss Emma R. Revels to Benjamin Garrett, of Canton, Miss.

At Durant, Miss., July 3, by Rev H. Heslup, Mr. Richard Mims to Miss Alice Anderson; also on the 5th, Mr. Henry Louis, formerly of New Orleans, to Miss Maggie Williams.

Deaths.

Sister Mary Harvey was a member of the church and a preacher for several years. Whenever she preached the people crowded the church to hear her. When she was ready to change worlds there were a great many at her bedside, and she bid them all good by; some of these had been converted by her. We wish the Lord would send more Marys like her. She died happy.

L. R. BROWN.

Kosciusko, Miss., July 4, 1879.

Richard Boston died at his residence in Thibodaux, La., June, 1879, aged 70 years. "If a man die shall he live again?" Our Savior says, "I go to prepare a place that where I am, there ye may be also." Bro. Richard Boston was altogether a good man; hated by some, but beloved by many. He is not missed and mourned by his bereft widow and children alone, but by those with whom he has lived since his arrival in this State and by his former owners. Having lived his three score years and ten, amid the rough scenes of life witnessed in this world of ours, he fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. To his sorrow-stricken companion and mourning children we would say: "Weep not; ere long we too must cross Jordan's dark and turbid waves." May we, like Bro. Boston, be able to exclaim; "I see Jesus coming."

A FRIEND.

Died in the Lord, at her afflicted father's residence in the town of Thibodaux, on June 27, 1879, Mary Beulah Davis, daughter of Rev. Wm. Davis and Mrs. Annie Young, his consort, aged three months and ten days. "I am the resurrection and the life," saith the comforter of those who are distressed and most particularly he says it to those who are weighed down by the loss of those little blossoms in whom they see themselves revived. The fond father and the devoted mother of the dear little bird whom they thought to rear in the way of the kind Father above, these loving parents, who have already been severely tried by many similar afflictions, to-day bow down to the will of a merciful Creator, humbly saying: "The Lord hath given, the Lord taketh away; the name of the Lord be praised." But two of the pledges of their mutual love remain to them, but no more heartfelt, no more sincere sympathies can go out from a human breast than those we now offer to the bereaved father and to the tear-stricken mother. Dear friends, grieve not; shall we not meet above where parting is no more? To our beloved pastor, who has already had to consign to mother earth the remains of seven blooming shoots of the parent tree, we can only say: "Thy faith has saved thee." In the Gospel you teach, there is consolation. While but two of your little flock remain to your parental care, in a better and purer world you will again find your loved ones—untainted by worldly passions.

"Where the wicked cease from troubling,
And the weary are at rest."

With two blooming and loving children yet left to cheer him on, with a fond and devoted wife, with a large and affectionately attached congregation, Rev. Wm. Davis may truly say that before he rejoins his loved ones, his Master has yet work for him below.

The Princeton Review for July (37 Park Row, New York, $2 a year) contains these practical articles: "Labor and Wages in England;" "Nemesis in the Court Room;" "Local Government, At Home and Abroad." The first of these strives to point out how the economical condition of England has been the result of a number of insulated but co-ordinate causes and how the existing state of labor and wages in England and the relations of operative and employer have been evolved from a long chain of historical facts. The second argues in favor of allowing defendants in criminal trials to testify in their own behalf. The third article undertakes to show the true position of our local government by comparing it with the systems of other nations. Philosophy and religion have very able discussions in "The Origin of Mind;" "Christ and the Doctrine of Immortality;" "Reason, Conscience and Authority;" "Philosophy and Apologetics;" "Music and Worship;" "Aim and Influence of Modern Biblical Criticism." The richness, variety and ability of its contents put this Review in the forefront of the many that claim our regard.

To those who are so unfortunate as to become prematurely gray, or whose hair exhibits a tendency to fall off, we recommend a trial of Hall's Hair Renewer. We do so with the utmost confidence because it is everywhere received with marked favor, and has built upon its own merits such a sure foundation that it is known and used in all civilized countries.—*Addison (N. New Books.

THE GOSPEL IN THE TREES, with opinions on common things, and Fraternal Methodism, by Alexander Clark: Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, and Phillips & Hunt, New York. 422 pages.

Dr. Clark has for several years been a prominent and popular writer in this country. As editor of the Methodist Protestant of Pittsburgh, he has gained a wide reputation as a judicious and fraternal writer. His spirit was always kind and with his keen intellect his editorials had point and power. His sudden death a few days since at Atlanta, Ga., has called forth expressions of grief and sympathy from all parts of the country. He has published several books, the last before this being Summer Rambles in Europe. The Gospel in the Trees contains chapters on the following subjects: 1. Apple, 2 Cedar, 3 Olive, 4. Myrtle, 5. Willow, 6. Palm. Under the head of Common Things, we have chapters on: 1. Rain, 2. Snow, 3. Hail, 4. Dress. 5. Every day Glory, 6. Once and Forever, 7. Two worlds made one. Under the head of Fraternal Methodism we have Dr. Clark's addresses given at various General Conferences and Assemblies of Methodist Bodies in America and England where he represented the Methodist Protestant Church, in which he was a chief leader. This is a book full of instruction, drawn from every day life, so stated that none can fail to be delighted while reading. On every page God's word is interwoven, and thus many of the truths of revelation are brought out more clearly and forcibly by the teachings of nature about us. We have read the book with delight, and commend it to all who want a book at hand which will enable them to spend a leisure hour pleasantly and profitably.

It Seems Impossible

That a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, etc., should make so many and such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do, but when old and young, rich and poor, Pastor and Doctor, Lawyer and Editor all testify to having been cured by them, you must believe and try them yourself, and doubt no longer. See another column.

A Mystery Explained.

Parlor scene: Mrs. Brown, who has spent the summer among the White Mountains in search of health, and who seems to have searched the whole mountain side without being able to find a pair of blooming cheeks or an inch of healthful skin: Mrs. White, who has remained at home because her husband could not afford to go, but whose fresh complexion and bright eyes seem to have caught their bloom and brightness from mountain breezes.

Mrs. B—Dear me, Mrs. White, how well you are looking! If you will not think me impertinent, let me ask how you can keep so healthy in this dreadful city? I have been to the White Mountains, go there every summer, in fact, and I can't keep off the doctor's list at that.

Mrs. W. (smiling).—I'll tell you the whole secret, Mrs. Brown. You remember how poorly I was last spring, some days being even confined to my bed. Dr. ——— told Mr. White to send me to the mountains, but I knew he couldn't afford it, and I tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Its effects were so marvellous that I also tried his Golden Medical Discovery, to cleanse my system. In my opinion, one bottle of the Prescription and the Discovery is better than six weeks of the White Mountains for a sick woman. I have only been out of the city a week during the whole summer; then my husband and myself went to Buffalo and stopped at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' and Tourists' Hotel. The baths and mechanical apparatus for treating patients were alone worth going to see. Besides, our accommodations were better than we had at Long Branch last year, and the drives and scenery are superb. Let me advise you to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and try the Invalids' and Tourists' Hotel next summer instead of the White Mountains.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates,

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

HOLMAN'S AGUE AND LIVER PAD

Is marvelous in its prompt and radical cure for every species of Liver and Stomach difficulties. It contains only harmless vegetable compounds, and is worn EXACTLY WHERE NEEDED, over the vitals, the Liver and Stomach. It removes torpidity of the liver, and arouses the stomach from its dormant state, arresting fermentation, torpor and pain, by giving it the natural quantity of bile and gastric juice. It also vitalizes the entire system with Nature's true tonic. It arrests all deteriorated and poisonous fluids in the stomach, and thus prevents their entering the system by way of circulation. It absorbs from the body every particle of BLOOD POISON, whether bilious, malarial or medicinal, and leaves the wearer in perfect health. The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

OH, LITTLE FEET.

Oh, little feet, that such long years
Must wander on through doubts and fears,
Must ache and bleed beneath your load!
I, nearer to the wayside inn
Where toil shall cease and rest begin,
Am weary, thinking of your road.

Oh little hands, that weak or strong
Have still to serve or rule so long,
Have still so long to give or ask!
I, who so much, with book and pen,
Have toiled among my fellow-men,
Am weary thinking of your task.

Oh, little hearts, that throb and beat
With such impatient, feverish heat,
Such limitless and strong desires!
Mine, that so long has glowed and burned
With passions into ashes turned,
Now covers and conceals its fires.

—Longfellow.

A Truthful Hero.

Master Walters had been much annoyed by some one of his school boys whistling in school. Whenever he called a boy to account for such a disturbance, he would plead that it was unintentional—"he forgot all about where he was." This became so frequent that the master threatened a severe punishment to the next offender.

The next day, when the room was unusually quiet, a loud, sharp whistle broke the stillness. Every one asserted that it was a certain boy, who had the reputation of a mischief-maker and a liar. He was called up, and, though with a somewhat stubborn look he denied it again and again, was commanded to hold out his hand. At this instant a slender little fellow, not more than seven years old, came [illegible], and with a very pale but deformed face, held out his hand, saying as he did so, with the clear and [illegible] tone of a hero:

"Mr. Walters, sir, do not punish [illegible]; I whistled. I was doing a [illegible] hard sum, and, in rubbing [illegible] mother, I rubbed it out by mistake, and spoiled it all, and, before I thought, whistled right out, sir. I was very much afraid, but I could not sit there and act a lie when I knew who was to blame. You may [illegible] me, sir, as you said you should." And, with all the firmness he could command, he again held out the little hand, never for a [illegible] doubting that he was to be punished.

Mr. Walters was much affected. [illegible]," said he, looking at the [illegible] form of the delicate child, [illegible] had made such a conquest [illegible] his natural timidity, "I would [illegible] you a blow for the world. [illegible] here doubts that you spoke [illegible]. You did not mean to [illegible]. You have been a truthful [illegible]."

[illegible] boy went back to his seat [illegible] a flushed face, and quietly [illegible] with his sums. He must [illegible] that every eye was upon [illegible] admiration, for the smallest [illegible] could appreciate the moral [illegible] of such an action.

A Correction.

Dear Editor—I saw the advertisement for my brother Calvin, for which I am thankful, but please correct one mistake. The place is Shreveport, Texas.

D. D. Alston.

The Greensboro (N. C.) North State says: "It is a sad fact for this worn-out and famished State that of the thousands of men who came thither, invested their means, and attempted to make homes under Republican rule, but few remain. At the loss of their all they have wandered away to seek a home where they can speak their sentiments and vote as they deem best, without subjection to insult, abuse and villification of such men as Governor Vance. Immigrants from all countries and all States pass North Carolina by; the "carpet baggers" lose all rather than remain, and many of her own sons seek in States—where schools, the polls and speech are free—a new home."

The Christian Neighbor, in its plea for animals, says: "See that your working stock, in this dry and hot weather, do not suffer for good water. See that they are rightly fed in time, place, quantity and quality. See that they are well brushed, rubbed and bedded. For mercy's sake do not let them stand for hours in the hot sun. See that their harness is in good case, and well fitted to these obedient dumb servants. See that your working stock are not over-loaded, over driven or otherwise abused. Let no cruel or foolish man have charge of your stock. See to these things, ye farmers and owners of dumb creatures. As far as possible see to these things yourselves; when you cannot do so in person, get a person of sense and humanity to do it for you.

Conjugal felicity depends largely upon mutual confidence. "I make it a rule," said a wiseacre to his friend, "to tell my wife everything that happens. In that way we manage to avoid any misunderstanding." Not to be outdone in generosity the friend replied, "Well, sir, you are not as open and frank as I am, for I tell my wife a great many things that never happen."

A vinegar hearted old bachelor says he always looks under the head of marriages for the news of the week.

Miserableness.

The most wonderful and marvelous success, in cases where persons [illegible] or pining away from a condition of miserableness, that no [illegible] what ails them, (profitable [illegible] for doctors,) is obtained [illegible] of Hop Bitters. RENT PAID TWO YEARS AND A HALF BUYS AN ORGAN.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co

154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 E. 14th St., NEW YORK; 250 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

Whose cabinet or parlor organs are acknowledged to be UNEQUALED IN EXCELLENCE, having received the HIGHEST HONORS at EVERY WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION FOR THIRTEEN YEARS, and being the ONLY American organs which have received such at ANY, now offer them, not only for cash, but also on the following VERY EASY TERMS OF PAYMENT.

They will rent an organ with the agreement that when the whole amount of rent paid equals the value of the organ it shall become the property of the party hiring it, without further payment. The rent per quarter, payable in advance, is one-tenth of the value of the organ, so that ten quarterly payments complete its purchase. Or, payments may be made monthly, if preferred.

This plan presents two very important advantages:

1. An organ can be obtained on very easy terms, viz: payment of $5 or upward, according to size, per month; or $4.30 or upward, every three months, until paid for.

2. One can thus have an organ on trial for six months, or longer, for a reasonable rent only, and so thoroughly test it and see if he values it, before concluding the purchase; having all rent which has been paid applied upon the purchase, whenever made.

Only makers of VERY BEST ORGANS, which can be depended upon to give satisfaction in all cases, could afford to offer such terms.

Organs are furnished on these terms, not only in the immediate vicinity of our warerooms, but in any part of the country which is readily accessible.

PRICES OF MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are but little more than those of the very poorest organs made. On above easy terms of payment they are furnished for $11.50, $12.50, $6.50 to $50 and upward. Reasonable deductions are made from these prices when all cash is paid.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES, PRICE LISTS and Circulars, describing fifty-eight different styles, with much useful information about organs, sent free to any address.

It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give Ayer's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

ANTI-FAT

Allan's Anti-Fat is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week. In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen:—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to Ackerman's drug-store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from 129 pounds to 192 pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, Smith, Doolittle & Smith, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. Powell & Plimpton, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "To the Proprietors of Allan's Anti-Fat: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. 'It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost.'" Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp. WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.

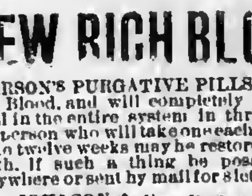
GOSSAMER HAMMOCKS.



Every one should own a good Hammock. There is no other one article that will give one half so much enjoyment in warm weather as a hammock stretched in the shade, and anyone who does not own one misses much of the pleasure to be obtained in the summer months. If you are going on a vacation into the woods or to the seashore, take a Hammock with you; it will repay its cost hundreds of times. The most common Hammock in the country is the imported Mexican Grass Hammock; this is made of vegetable fibre and soon rots and unravels. The Hammock we offer is the Union [illegible] Hammock, made of doubled and twisted cotton cord, knotted at every mesh. It can be cut almost to pieces, yet it will not unravel, and it will never rot. They weigh almost nothing and can be carried in the pocket. They are handsomely trimmed in red and blue, with nickel rings. The regular price is $2.50; we will send a Gossamer Hammock, to any address, for $1.50; by mail, postpaid, 30 cents extra. SPAULDING & CO., Gen'l Agents, 43 Washington St., Boston, Mass. [illegible] HAVEN.

[illegible] white Southerner. The latter wants no schools at all. The former wants them separated from their children. Though there are noble exceptions to this rule, as a whole, it powerfully exists. If he came in heavily as an emigrant, the black man, so-called, would be crowded closer to the wall. He is kept out, that the land may yet belong to this oppressed and despised people; they are its only tillers; they will be its only owners. They are rapidly acquiring possession of the choicest sections. I have seen not a few heavy land-owners. Three I met lately—one in Texas, one in Georgia, one in South Carolina—each the possessor severally of four hundred and fifty, five hundred and sixty, and six hundred and eighty acres. One of them told me he would this year put one hundred acres down to cotton. There are samples of less wealthy land-holders; samples also of the future control of the South by the men who have been so cruelly despoiled and maltreated by their white brothers and fathers. "They shall take them captive whose captives they were, and they shall rule over their oppressors." God has shut up that land to them and to their oppressors. The seething pot will continue to seethe. The caldron of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana containing almost equal proportions of white and colored, will boil and bubble until the right comes uppermost and the Lord God Almighty gives to his now accursed children their equal rights and honors. The exodus now going forward will not affect the millions that must remain and that will yet possess that land. That caldron is kept apart by Him, for this purpose, from any foreign ingredients. Struggle ever so fiercely as the white brother may to bring in population from Europe, or even China, to break this chain that binds him to his own flesh and blood, he struggles in vain. All keep aloof, all will, all must, while the struggle goes forward that shall ultimate in liberty, equality, fraternity, undistinguished and undistinguishable, to all that land and all the inhabitants thereof.

But there is a Southland to which the Northern man can go—a land lovelier than any other portion of that latitude, a land of better atmosphere, of better soil. It is open to-day. Of the hundred and seventy-five millions of acres probably not twenty-five millions are under cultivation. The immense cattle-ranges cover tracts of hundreds of square miles. I visited the ranch of Col. King, a cattle king. A fence, well made of sawed boards, enclosed the home-lot. That fence was seventy-five miles round—eighteen miles and three-quarters to a side. It enclosed an area of three hundred and thirty-seven square miles. Within that home-lot ranged a hundred thousand head of cattle and ten thousand horses and mules. A few other cattle kings are equally eminent; but most of the lands yet are without fence. Most of the cattle still wander as they please, known to their owner by their mark. You ride through [illegible] of miles, even on the [illegible], untouched by plow, where [illegible] the cattle grazing—a thousand "feeding as one." You ride through the open post-oak forests: [illegible] magnificent live oaks—that [illegible] of trees; by the side of [illegible] river-bottoms; across breezy [illegible]; over every sort of soil, [illegible] and rich, for hours and days.

[illegible] all this is yet practically [illegible] settlement. The population [illegible] over two millions, while [illegible] is fifty. It had only [illegible] thousand in 1870 [illegible] It has more than [illegible] since. Such is the vast [illegible] of Texas. Shall [illegible]

The deer and the buffalo yet remain to allure the hunter, and the Indian is still near enough to give the necessary tonic of fear and courage, though one will have to go far from the cities and railroads to find deer, buffalo, or Indians.

This magnificent land is rapidly filling up with Northern emigrants At the close of the war not a few, both of the white and the colored people of the South, went to Texas. Poverty and ruin of fortunes and the love of change set each party afloat. There was an increase in its population between 1860 and 1870 of thirty-five per cent. It was not, however, at all comparable to the increase of the decade before. Then Texas opened its rich fields to the planter and his slave, and added over a hundred and eighty per cent. to its population. It went up from 200,000 in 1850 to 600,000 in 1860. The years of and immediately following the war sent it up to over 800,000. Since 1875 the Southerner has stopped emigrating, has in many instances returned home, while the emigrants from the North are pouring in. The roads are choked with travel. At Palestine, in the grand lumber region on the eastern side of the State, at midnight, where we were compelled to change cars, I saw more emigrants than I have ever seen in any, in fact than in all the depots of the old South. They were from Missouri and the North. The emigrant-wagon dots all the prairies, the emigrant-train debouches a great multitude at every chief center.

These are almost exclusively from the North. The Kentuckian and Tennesseean are returning home, as well as the Georgian and Carolinian. In Virginia I heard of Virginians thus returning. But the Northwestern emigrant, who finds the winters of Minnesota and Wisconsin too severe, is seeking a resting-place in this genial clime. Cities are springing up or growing with great rapidity. Denison, the head town of the State in position, in ambition and in character, is full of activity. It is Kansas thrown across the Indian Territory. Its ten-footers rent at high prices; its churches and school buildings evince Northern taste and purpose. Not less smart and pushing is Waco—as fine a town as any in the North, and in a magnificent region. Larger and as ambitious is Dallas, which is getting rid of its old rebel spirit, and welcoming the Northern settler to equal rights and privileges. It is likely to be, ere many years, the capital of the State of North Texas. Austin is a handsome and active city, beautifully located, full of enterprise, with some of the bravest and most loyal citizens in America. San Antonio is the favorite resort of health-seekers and curiosity-seekers. It unites old Mexico and new America in a bizarre combination. It is the center of a vast domain, larger than the State of New York, of which it may yet be the capital, when it establishes itself as the State of West Texas. Thence to the Rio Grande is two hundred miles of fertility; and thence northward some five hundred miles, ere you leave the State for New Mexico.

But one is bewildered as soon as he touches this theme. It is like Cowper's dancing-floor, that compels every one to move to its music when his feet stand upon it. The enthusiasm of the Yankee Texan is inspiring in the highest degree. The Kansas or Nebraska settler is tame in his utterances to him of Texas. The air is intoxicating. Dr. Ox would have hardly needed to have made his experiment here. The people live on oxygen all the time. Perhaps that accounts for the extraordinary character of the crimes to which we have referred. But it also accounts for the extraordinary stimulus to enterprise. The crimes are few, if strange, compared with the non-criminality. Multitudes live as peaceably as elsewhere; and the pistol, so "powerfully" needed at the supreme moment, does not often see that moment of its need.

As to its grazing properties, a book on Texas says of its sheep-raising capacity: "A sheep can be raised as cheaply in Texas as a pullet in New England." This is not overstated. The climate is so genial that sheep need hardly a shepherd, and multiply with unexampled rapidity. Cotton, too, grows here to a height and delicacy that is seen nowhere else in the South, except on the islands of [illegible] and Georgia. The stalk grows tall and the boll is silky and of high grade and value. The multitudes of bales that come into all the chief towns is startling. Denison, Sherman, Dallas, Waco are full of teams and bales from November well into spring. One sees nowhere else in the South more activity in this article than in these new and western towns of Texas.

Here, then, ye men of the colder North, set up your penates. Don't fancy it is too depressing an atmosphere. The northers that sweep with such ferocity across the plains bear healthful tonic on their wings. The winters are severe enough to freeze the fever-germs out of the air and soil. The Texan style—a fire at one end of the room and the open door at the other—is sometimes varied to the Northern style of a shut door and a stove. You will find it cold enough for health; and not too cold, as is the upper country. You will find it, however, opening so early to the spring as to give you command of the Northern markets over all competitors. And you will find in all the upper half of the country your own church and school privileges awaiting your coming.

It is the great and effectual door opening for the crowded population of the East. Enter it. Occupy the land. Make freedom and union its universal law and life. Bind it to the nation. Surround our still unrepentant States with this cordon of love. Thus will you free America from the fear of the reoccupancy of the seats of national authority with its unreconstructed enemies. As England is emancipated from her fear of Ireland by development of her arms and empire elsewhere, so this American nation will be released from its fear of being brought into captivity again to its unsubdued foes by extending its Union-loving dominion into the regions beyond. Texas is the first of these regions to be conquered by settlement. Its immense territory—equal to that contending against the Union on the hither side of the Mississippi—will, when filled with this Union emigration, overcome that section and restore the balance of power where it justly belongs. Its half dozen States will give us loyal representation, and its dozen millions equal all its former allies in population and surpass them in power.

Turn your eyes, therefore, ye who are seeking new homes, to this highly favored land. Turn your feet thither. There is our new and greater Kansas, where the battle for human rights must be peacefully, politically and successfully waged. Here are ample acres and an "ampler air." Bought first from Mexico by one of Boston origin (Stephen Austin), let it be peopled by those of New England birth or descent. Thus shall the nation be clasped in loving arms on its south, no less than on its north, and the whole continent abide in one universal, peaceful Union!

Mr. Edison has perfected an improvements on his telephone, which, it is said, will be likely to cause it to take the place of the telephones now in use. The chief thing in the new invention is that it dispenses with the magnet used to transform sound waves into telegraphic waves and vice versa. The principal change consists in a small revolving cylinder of chalk, moistened with certain chemicals. The sound is transmitted through the chalk, and the peculiarity of the telephone as compared with any other is that it is not necessary to put the receiver to the ear to hear the message. When the crank is turned the voice of the distant speaker is distinctly heard all over a large room or hall.

Rev. G. B. Atwell, an aged Baptist clergyman of Pleasant Valley, Conn., who died recently, was as well known for his original epigrammatic speech as for his goodness. Once, when asked for a blessing at a public dinner, he said: "Adam sinned by eating and Noah by drinking. Save us Lord, from the sin of the one and the folly of the other. Amen."

We join in the hope that patriotism rather than state pride may spring up at the South and grow into a broad shadowing tree as it exists at the North. When that day comes the jealous and sectional hates and race prejudices which now rule will die out and we all may hope again to see eye to eye. —Northwestern Advocate.

Faith.

BY REV. JOSEPH ALDEN, LL.D.

A bridge is thrown over a chasm. The engineer is skillful. He is well acquainted with the nature of the materials used in the structure He has estimated with scientific accuracy the strength of his work. He crossed on it with perfect confidence. If he is asked whether he has faith in his bridge, he will promptly answer yes. He will illustrate his faith by his works.

A man has been in the service of another for many years. He has been intimately acquainted with the business transactions of his employer. All those transactions were in accordance with the strictest principles of integrity. He has perfect confidence in his employer's honesty. If asked whether he has faith in his honesty, he will say yes. He will not say, I think I have; I hope I have; my mind is not always clear on the subject.

A man learns from observation some general truths in regard to nature. He learns, for example, that all bodies have gravity. He learns that this and other laws of nature are uniform in their operation. If a leaden bullet is thrown into the water, he is sure it will sink. He has faith in the law of gravitation. There is nothing misty or uncertain about that faith.

A man studies the evidences of revelation, and becomes satisfied that the Bible is the word of God; that it contains the testimony of God. He is sure that God's testimony must be true. What God tells him about the creation of the world and of man, he believes. When God declares, "The soul that sinneth it shall die," he believes the declaration. He has perfect confidence in God's veracity and holiness; he has faith in God.

A man is convinced that he is a sinner; that he has done nothing but sin all his days; that he cannot atone for the sins of the past, nor render obedience for the future. He sees that he is under sentence of condemnation—that he is a helpless, lost sinner.

In the Bible, which he believes to be the word of God, he learns that Christ, in effect, says: "I have atoned for your sins; I have wrought out a perfect righteousness for you; cease from your efforts to save yourself, and trust in me to save you." For the truth of these utterances the veracity of God is pledged. Should not the sinner believe them, trust them, have faith in them? Should there be any mistiness or uncertainty of mind in the case?—New York Advocate.

Have you not seen often how jealous a father can be of the privileges of his own love? Would not any of you be angry if a child of yours went about asking other people for the bread which it was your place to provide for him, begging at other men's doors when your table was spread with his dinner? This is just the feeling with which, all through the Bible, God is always chiding men for going to ask, or for seeking in themselves the refuge and peace which it is the prerogative of His Fatherhood to bestow. It is one of the most touching presentations of the Deity. It is the one which Christ, the God incarnate, made most manifest.—Phillips Brooks.

M. de Pressensé, in France, has been appointed a member of the commission of popular libraries, and President Grévy lately said that he considered the Protestant Church the mother of democracy in modern times.

False Sentiment as to Work for Young Ladies.

A false sentiment has rendered it derogatory for a woman to be a business woman, for a girl to earn or appreciate dollars and cents, if she can possibly find a father, brother, or uncle to support her. The noble army of working women, who of all women best demonstrate their raisom d'etre is in general a despised army; and while society applauds the woman who is an artist, an editor, an author, it does so by calling her a genius, and setting her out of that grand corps where she legitimately belongs. Families with three, four or five daughters, whether there are sons or not, if the father can possibly support them, are brought up to do nothing but help mother a little! This helping is not generally really learning housekeeping and seamstress work in all its varieties but skimming the surface of things making cake, dusting a room, trimming a gown, and leaving those weightier matters of the law, as shirt-making, ironing, bread-making and beef-cooking to some one else Girls speak of it as a hardship, if they are obliged by stress of circumstances to earn a support. "Anna thinks it so hard; all her friends have their time to themselves, and she is forced to teach, poor child!" The whole training of the girl is aside from knowing anything about business; she reads stories and fashion magazines, not newspapers, and works on science and architecture, and practical every day life. She does not learn telegraphy or carving, or furniture decorating, or gardening, or book-keeping, nor does she go into her father's business and learn it as her brother would if she had one; bless you, it would make her a working woman! Thus out of this army of working women are kept, so far as possible, all women of education, means, refinement cultured taste. These organized into a society make no end of builders in business, and regard them as creditable rather than otherwise, as a Chinese lady cherishes the deformity of a cramped foot. If they read common law and medicine so as to be as well informed on these points as ordinary men, bless you, 'they are very odd,' at the least. These good ladies with the very best intentions undertake to handle the working-women question; they are thrown in contact with the poor, and knowing absolutely nothing of what it is to earn a living, or what it costs to earn a dollar, or what a dollar can be made to bring, they have only the most general and no particular sympathies; on the one hand, they will be deceived and kill by over kindness, on the other, they will misunderstand and kill by hardness. It needs working women to understand and help working women; then they know that being bread-winners does not forfeit for them their position of wives and mothers that while they earn daily wages they have the affections of the hearth; that the poor mother, left a widow, wants to keep her children in a home, not to sow them broadcast in orphan asylums; that the poor couple who have passed their married fifty years, unhonored it is true by a golden wedding, do not want to be thrust one into an Old Men's Home, the other into Old Woman's Home, or put in the separate wards of an almshouse, or one go to one Blind Asylum and the other to another. There is a fine kind of charity in England, where endowments have been left so that decent destitute old couples, or single people, can have a nice three-roomed cottage, with fuel, water and lights, and a certain number of shillings weekly on which to subsist; and they can take in an orphan grandchild, or feeble child, living as in their own home, subject only to certain regulations of sobriety, cleanliness, and good order.—Sunday Afternoon for July.

The colored covention at Houston, Texas, last week adopted an address to the colored people of that State in which the negroes are urged to favorably consider schemes for emigration to a State where the right of every citizen are recognized, accorded, and respected; are advised to practice the strictest economy and save their earnings, so that it becomes absolutely necessary to migrate, they may do so with expediency, and advise the appointment of commissioners in each county to look after the welfare of colored people seeking new homes. The convention favored emigration on a well-considered and well-organized plan.

The Two Souths.

Dr. J. G. Holland, conductor of Scribner's Monthly, has the following penchant and truthful words on public opinion in the South:

We are perfectly aware that however much of a unit the South may be politically, there are socially two Souths. These is a law-loving and law-abiding South, and there is a South that is neither the one nor the other. We understand perfectly that to a great number of Southern people such a beastly murder as that of Judge Chisholm and his family is horrible. We understand that to these people such notable murders as have taken place all over the South during the last three months are a great shock and a great sorrow. The feeling finds expression in some of their best newspapers, but the trouble is that this South is utterly overawed by the other South, so that no man dares to move for the maintenance of the law and the punishment of crime. Murder is committed, and the murderer shakes his bloody hands at the law everywhere and walks the streets with entire freedom and impunity. Human life is accounted of no sacredness whatever, and law and the executors of law are held in perfect contempt. The judge upon his bench is not safe. Even the lawyer that tries a case that involves any serious personal relations takes his life in his hands when he does so. The most trivial causes seem sufficient to awaken the brutal instincts of men and to induce the extrems of violence. Fighting weapons seem to be in every man's pocket, as if he lived in a state of war, and he does not hesitate to use them on the smallest provocation. * * * * * * *

We warn this better South of which we have spoken that it must arouse itself and assert itself, if it would save the section of the country which it so enthusiastically loves from irredeemable disgrace. The thing has gone too far already, and unless these people are willing to pass the South into the undisputed possession of men who despise the law and propose to take its administration into their own violent hands, they must arouse themselves, and become the sworn and devoted vindicators of the law.

The Adventures of a Fenian.

McCarthy, the recently captured chief of the Umzuzi tribe, a tributary to the great Gwazi people, was a draper's clerk in Limerick in the year of the Fenian rising. He had a relative, a constable of police, who warned him that his name was on the Castle books, and that if he wanted to preserve his liberty he had better leave the country. McCarthy fled to the South African diamond fields, where he prospered, making two profitable investments in London. He also contributed some readable sketches of the diamond fields to the London Globe. Somehow or other he picked up with the natives, and being of a bold, adventurous disposition, and already reduced to a half savage state by his occupation, he ended by joining the Umzuzis. When the chief of that tribe died, McCarthy was elected to the position, which he secured by killing, in single combat, half a dozen pretenders He made an effort to introduce Christianity, but failed. He has a white wife, daughter of a rich Boer, who eloped with him some time ago. The lady's father would be glad to receive his son-in-law, but the Irish Kaffir refused to desert his adopted people. It is feared it will go hard with him on court martial, for McCarthy, as a combination of Fenian and Zulu, can hardly enlist the friendly admiration of his captors.

Unless a man has some fixed, clear convictions, he drifts helplessly through the world. He has no force in himself. He can do nothing. The skeptic is a cipher in action because he is a cipher in conviction. The tree which, at any rate, stands for a thousand years, is nobler than he. Pity him, however, and help him. He is in a morbid state. He is a sick man; be tender to him. Do not despise the skeptic; but if you have any faith, help him to it. Sympathize with him; for some of his disease is in us all. We all of us are obliged to pray, "Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief."—James Freeman Clarke.

A Christian should aim to make every place the better for him, sowing the seed of the kingdom beside all waters.

Faith and Dogma.

There must certainly be a wide difference between the facts of Christianity and the philosophy of those facts. The moment men begin to theorize upon its facts, that moment there begins a divergence more or less wide. They enter then upon the region of speculation and each one will build up his own system or creed. Faith, happily, rests upon the facts, and these facts are within the grasp of the humblest mind no less than of the most intellectual and learned. Take for instance the death of Jesus Christ. That Jesus Christ suffered under Pontius Pilate; that he was crucified and died and was buried; that His ignominious death was an essential part of the work done by Christ, whereby He redeems sinners from the guilt and power of sin; that it is through the merits of His atonement and by faith therein we are saved—is and will always be an article of the Christian faith held by all branches of the Christian church, and by the most learned as well as by the most illiterate. But how many and various are the theories of the atonement. How widely divergent if not contradictory, the attempts to explain its relations and connections as regards God and man!

John, the illiterate fisherman, had a faith in Jesus of Nazareth as true, lively and powerful as Saul of Tarsus, the learned disciple of Gamaliel! The giant minds who have studied and endeavored to fathom the most difficult problems of Christianity have at last to come down in life's extremity to the simple truths which they learned from a pious mother's lips in their earliest days. Faith in Christ and His redeeming work is awakened in the hearts of men by Christ Himself revealing Himself to them through the agency of His spirit. He makes Himself felt in the depths of the human spirit, and faith in Him will be in exact proportion to the clearness with which He is apprehended in His true character and claims. This is independent of all questions within the sphere of scientific theology. It is personal. It takes hold of the heart and conscience. It controls the life. Speculative theology seeking ever the adjustment of its truths and the reasons and the relations which connect and bind them into a science, revolves in the orbit of the intellect, and may leave the soul bare of spiritual influence and the life without the directing force of an energetic faith.

The verities, the facts, the fundamental truths of the Gospel never change, they are always the same. This cannot be said of scientific theology. The accepted dogma of one period gives way to the dogma of a succeeding period, and this to another, varying with the changes that occur in the habits of thought among Christian scholars of different ages. Here is the sphere of change and here the sphere of progress. So long as the facts of the Gospel are firmly held, so long as no hypothesis comes in to contradict and set them aside, who shall undertake to say that the speculation which undertakes to harmonize, unite and explain them is necessarily any more heterodox than another which aims at the same thing?

It is as true in theology as in astronomy, or in natural philosophy, that continued investigation may make the facts and relations so much clearer at one time than at another, that one theory must give place to another that explains them more satisfactorily. But it is a matter for deepest gratitude that faith stands in the power of God, not in the wisdom of man: that it is within the reach of all who seek to be taught by the Holy Ghost; and that the brightest intellects as well as the lowliest have, at last, to rest upon the simple facts of the Gospel. These are the granite strata underlying all other strata which the accumulations of ages have superimposed upon them.

The Exodus Again.

Months ago the SOUTHWESTERN said: "The exodus has come to be a tremendous fact, and that it would prove a much more serious matter for the white people of the South than for the colored people.

Since that time we have published such facts concerning this movement as we deemed best to be published. We have watched with no little interest the course pursued by the Southern press, especially the Southern religious press. It has seemed impossible to resist the conviction that there was a united determination on the part of editors in the South to suppress the truth, when everybody knew or ought to have known, that the exodus of colored people was every day assuming larger proportions, and threatening to paralyze the planting interests of whole sections. We have been told by the daily and weekly press of this city and the whole South that the exodus was only a temporary excitement brought on by lying land agents, politicians and fanatics. The Democrat of this city sent a correspondent to Kansas who professed to have written the whole truth on the matter, and concluded his labors by assuring the nation that the exodus was over. The Democrat called on the people to thank it for the valuable services it had rendered, when at that very time there were more people leaving New Orleans alone every week or two, than had returned from Kansas in three months.

As specimens of sentiment among our Southern religious papers we quote the following from the St. Louis Presbyterian of July 17. That paper says on the negro in Kansas:

> Politicians and money-making philanthropists encouraged the exodus of the blacks from the South to Kansas. The former saw in it "great Republican gains," and the latter, "a very good thing," even a "bonanza." The exodus, we are sorry to say, has about fizzled out. We pitied the poor negro who was victimized by the deep-laid, rascally scheme; but we felt that the translation of that people to the North would be a righteous infliction and retribution, while the South, substituting more intelligent and faithful, and less expensive labor, would soon regain her old-time prosperity.

As another specimen we quote from the New Orleans Christian Advocate (Southern Methodist), of July 10. That paper says:

> About the exodus we hear but little. A good many of the Kansas emigrants have returned; a few are still going. We should not be surprised if the movement settled down into a gradual and continuous emigration of the negroes. Families, squads and individuals will probably go from time to time. There will also be a returning tide. We hear many people in the country speaking of it as the "blessed exodus." This, we believe, is coming to be the conviction of the whole people of the South. The immediate effects may be injurious to large planters; there will be less cotton and sugar made, but attention will be turned to stock, to manufactures, and to a diversified agriculture. There will be an end of race conflicts, socially and politically, and after the negro goes there will be peace, and after a while prosperity. The Northern philanthropists and politicians ought to take their share of the negro, and we hope they may get him to their hearts' content.

These two extracts fairly illustrate the editorial comments in the religious papers of the South. On the other hand the secular press is waking up to the magnitude of this movement and is ceasing to publish the stale lies about the so-called causes of the exodus—which no sensible man ever believed—and are seeking to arouse the people of the South to action in the work of stopping the exodus.

The Democrat of July 15 said editorially:

> It was generally thought until very recently that the emigration mania among the negroes of Louisiana and Mississippi had subsided, and that the laboring population along the river had settled down to regular work, while those among them who were determined to go to Kansas had postponed carrying out their intentions till next fall, when their crops should have been gathered and sold, and their contracts expired.
> The general opinion, too, was to the effect that the exodus fever would not reach the sugar parishes of the State, where the highest wages are paid, and at shorter intervals than they are elsewhere. It appears, however, that in neither of these cases was general opinion well founded, for within the past few weeks symptoms of the emigration insanity have, according to various reports, been manifested in different degrees in the parishes of Pointe Coupee, West Feliciana, the two Baton Rouges and St. James. The authenticity and reliability of these reports seem to have been confirmed by the telegraphic dispatch from our special correspondent at Bayou Sara, published in Monday's Democrat, which conveys the strange information that the steamboat City of Alton passed up the river Sunday morning with three hundred negroes for "the promised land," which, we take it, of course means Kansas.

And the New Orleans Times of the 16th said editorially:

> The truth is, we confidently expect history will record it, that the exodus was originally a spontaneous movement among the blacks. That it originated in what were termed, in the political parlance, the bulldozed regions. That the real and true cause of the "mania" if you so choose to term it, was as we said months ago, that the negroes were filled with a spirit of dissatisfaction with their surroundings, and with a sense of insecurity—an apprehension that their civil and political rights were in danger; a belief that they cannot have justice in the land of their birth. * * *
> We now speak deliberately and after full and due consideration when we say that in our judgment the exodus was not originated by and has not been influenced, to any appreciable degree, by political or self-styled humanitarian emissaries from the Northern States. * * * * * * * *
> Show the colored people that the Constitution now being framed is so devised as to protect them so far as the law can protect. After this, and there is much after this, let the planters assure them that with their own good right hands they will secure them in the possession of all the rights of freemen and citizens here in the sunny land of their birth.
> If this were done the exodus would cease. Until this is done the migration will continue.

There is hope when prominent papers like the Democrat and Times [illegible] to acknowledge the truth re[illegible] [illegible] the exodus and begin to suggest the right remedy.

Rev. Dr. Rust and His Work.

Rev. Dr. Rust, corresponding secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society has contracted for the erection of a building to be occupied by the Meharry Medical school as a department of the Central Tennessee College at Nashville, Tenn., and also for the erection of Chrisman Hall, the first of the permanent buildings for Clarke University at Atlanta, Ga. These contracts indicate that in spite of hard times this society is pushing its work, and that its work is permanent in the South. In a note to this office Dr. Rust says: "The New Orleans University will open in October, under the supervision of a competent board of instructors, and we anticipate the best year the University has experienced."

At a late meeting of the Board of Trustees of the New Orleans University, the following resolution, offered by Rev. Dr. Braun, and Capt. C. W. Boothby, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Board hereby expresses its appreciation of the educational work being accomplished by the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church throughout the South, and that we hereby express our high esteem of the efficiency of the corresponding secretary of the society, Rev. R. S. Rust, D. D., and that we heartily commend his management of the schools of the society.

An Open Confession.

In the Patriot Democrat, of Clinton, parish of East Feliciana, La., June 14, was published an article nearly two columns in length, entitled "Murder," and signed "One of Us." It begins:

We, as a people, are placing too light an estimate on human life. Some one has offended us, or we are afraid of some one; and often as the first thought is that he deserves punishment, we take the whip into our own hands, but the whipped would live to tell, and to revenge the insult, and aided by the robber's proverb, that "Dead men tell no tales," we draw the ever present, fiendish revolver, and send our victim suddenly into the presence of his Maker, without warning or any time for preparation.

We know that the late war accustomed our people to the shedding of blood, but should we never cease shedding it? Should we not try to stifle this thirst for human life? And should we not come back to former and better habits and principles? Are we forever to be a set of cut-throats? Are our communities more quiet and peaceful and happy for this personal, individual vengeance?

And then, do we forget that the God who made us all, requires blood for blood?

And it closes:

The time has been, since the war, when law in our parish could not be resorted to for the redress of wrongs, or for the obtaining of justice, with any hope of obtaining either, that is, if our faces were white. As soon as the face was seen, judge, jury and sheriff knew precisely how to decide the case. Regulators, or Bulldozers were then necessary, for "having no law, (or what was worse, no proper administration of law,) we had to be a law unto ourselves," starve, or leave the State. But now the country is in an infinitely better condition for the administration of justice, and it seems to us, that it is time to desist from all illegal violence, and having returned to civilization, it is infinitely better that we appeal to our legal tribunals for the redress of our wrongs, and the protection of our persons and property.

Let us then, no more take the law into our own hands, as individuals, but submit all to our courts on earth, and to the God above us, and see if we do not fall upon better times.

The general reader has become familiar with the deeds of violence, which for many years have disgraced the parish of East Feliciana; and will recognize in the above open confession the motives governing the class that now holds and retains the power acquired by the methods described. It will be a happy day, indeed, for the majority of the people of that parish when law and justice, in form and practice, shall become popular. Then the broad prairies of Kansas would cease to invite the dusky laborer from one of the richest agricultural regions of this State, and honest men could stand erect in the sight of their God. Let confession be followed by fruits meet for repentance, and East Feliciana return to the ways of civilization.

On next Sunday the 27th, the first Presbyterian Church among the colored people of New Orleans will be organized in the Presbyterian chapel on Third street between Saronne and Dryades. The committee from the Presbytery to effect the organization consists of Rev. Dr. Palmer, Rev. J. W. Flinn and Rev. C. Hunt, and elders W. F. Ogden and C. C. Lyons. We congratulate our Presbyterian friends on this advance movement in church work, and wish the organization to be effected abundant success.

Let Duelists be Denounced.

There is going on, between the editors of two of our city papers and the President of the New Orleans Board of Health, a bitter controversy, in which as harsh things as words can be made to say are publicly charged. We know but little of the merits of the points involved in the controversy and do not refer to it to speak of them. We want, however, to commend one thing most heartily, and that is the dignified and manly position taken by Col. Bigney, editor of the City Item, in his refusal to consider himself bound by the so-called "code of honor," by which he would be compelled to fight with deadly weapons to test his "honor" as a "gentleman." Col. Bigney says editorially in his paper:

> It has been too long the rule in this community that public officials should not be subjected to the just criticism which their public acts call for. Public officials have too long been public bullies, who never attempt to justify their course, but who attempt to bulldoze opinion into silence by high cockalorum talk about their "standing as gentlemen" and "insults" and duels.
> The duelist is in nine cases out ten a coward as well as a criminal, a ruffian as well as a rascal, whose only argument is a blow and whose only justification is murder.
> We laugh to scorn all such people; and all public officials who attempt to keep themselves armed against criticism by a free display of revolvers or knives, and who expend a great deal of empty wind in cowardly threats.

Nothing can be truer than that duelists as a rule are cowards, and that the sentiment of the community which tolerates and encourages duelling is barbarous. Col. Bigney, in this bold stand against duelling, deserves and should receive the commendation and support of every true friend to the moral wellbeing of this community.

True Godliness.

True and perfect godliness is full of infinite details of prayer, faith, striving, defeat, victory, blessing and glory.—New York Methodist.

That makes hard work of it, brother. That is not the kind that Jesus spoke of, when he said, "For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." It does not attract them that labor and are heavy laden with sin. The poor penitent seeker wants rest, not infinite details of prayer, faith and striving and defeat. But, it will be inquired,—Do you know of any of these easy going Christians? Yes. Up in Central Illinois, about Bloomington, where we once sojourned, we knew a company of happy, triumphant disciples, who had "overcome" and lived and walked daily with Jesus. They possessed a perfect Godliness of another kind than that described above. They had a religion that kept 'em sweet at the railroad station, when their baggage had gone astray. Those joyous, faithful souls were burning and shining lights, that gave light unto all that were in the house. How sweet their memory still! Thank God their witness and those like them are now in all the churches.

Last week we announced the death of N. P. Van Luvance, who for many years was a great sufferer, being confined to his chair and bed. He was a mature Christian, and wrote much on religious topics. He had published a small book entitled "Christian Experiences and Reflections of N. P. Van Luvance." The price is twenty-five cents. We have the book, and it is well worth the price. Address Geo. Van Luvance, Moline, Ill.

The People's Record is a new weekly, published by a stock company, and managed by W. R. Saffold, 645 Camp street. It is neat in appearance.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

LOUISIANA.

Rev. W. P. Forest, Simpson Chapel: "On the 6th of July we held our children's meeting. We failed to get the speakers we expected. The meeting was not large, and the collection was $1.55."

Rev. F. G. Montgomery, Rosedale, writes that his people have built a nice church worth $500, and that eight members and fifteen probationers have been received during the past quarter, and four infants baptized.

A. Jackson, Clinton: "Our Union meeting last Sunday was a success. The following brethren were present with their congregations: Rev. P. Yarborough, G. Lacy and Z. T. Gayden. Collection was $5.05. Many embarrassments have been removed."

Wm. Murrell, Hahnville: "Our second quarterly conference was held at Hahnville church, Saturday, July 12. We are happy to say that we are encouraged, having faith to believe that Providence will bless our work in this part of the vineyard. On Sunday we had a crowded house, to witness the administration of the Lord's Supper. We are more than happy to state that our Sunday-school, under the superintendency of Bro. A. G. Davis, is advancing intellectually and spiritually. Everybody is looking for success in securing money to pay the church debt. Then all will be well. Pray for Zion, that God may protect her."

Rev. Henry Green, pastor First Street Church, New Orleans reports his second quarterly conference as being held July 18, Dr. Hartzell in the chair and Bro. Anderson, secretary. Andrew Jackson was confirmed as Sunday-school superintendent, and assisted by Z. H. Campbell. One hundred and fifty scholars attend. During the quarter 30 probationers have been received, 29 children baptized and six have taken their letters and gone to Kansas. The stewards and trustees reported having raised $514 40. The pastor had received $234.45. Insurance, gas, sexton, etc., had been provided for with the balance. The times are hard financially, but congregations are good.

Rev. Stephen Duncan, New Orleans reports the holding of his second quarterly meeting at Clinton and Plum Streets. The Presiding Elder was present. The two Sunday-schools have one hundred and fifty scholars and an average attendance of one hundred. During the quarter four adults have been baptized, fourteen full members and nine probationers received. A glorious revival has been enjoyed at Plum street, and the church is being ceiled throughout. In Clinton street the altar has been refitted and handsomely carpeted. The congregation are large at both churches. The new parsonage is nearly paid for. During the quarter $341.25 had been raised and expended.

MISSISSIPPI.

C. W. Ivey, Shuqulak: "All of the churches are doing well. One Baptist brother has joined the church at Prairie; he in 60 years old."

R. Anderson, Evergreen circuit: "I have just closed a six week's meeting with six children and one adult baptized, and fifteen accessions to the church."

A. C. Campbell, Enterprise: "New Hope Sabbath-school, with 48 pupils enrolled, is faithfully at work. 2389 verses have been recited this year."

C. P. Head, Edwards circuit: "Accessions 11, conversions 4, baptisms 4, children baptized 10. We are laboring hard to get our church completed before winter sets in. The exodus to Kansas has drawn heavily upon our churches."

Jas. Ellis, Roebuck: "My work is in a good condition. Elder Bradford was with me on the 22d and 23d of June and held the second quarterly conference. On Sunday the Lord's supper was admistered to 52. The elder is loved by the people and is a good preacher. Nine dollars were taken up for him. The Sunday-schools are organized at last."

L. O. Crowder, Walthall circuit: "Our beloved Elder McLachlan was with us on the 12th and 13th. We had a good time. Conference was well attended. The elder is looking finely. The occasion was made more attractive by being graced with the presence of his kind lady, who is making us a visit. Our work is going on. Though we are poor, our father is rich."

TEXAS.

C. Maya, Gonzales: "We will have a fine house of worship when finished, worth $500. I have added 25 members to the church."

T. Woods, Dover: "Our protracted meeting has closed. It resulted in 15 conversions, 17 additions, 7 baptized. Elder Pickett was with us last quarterly and preached in an acceptable manner."

Samuel Allen, Huntsville: "My camp meeting will begin on the 8th of August. All who will are invited to come and aid us in the work of the Lord. It will be about four miles west of Huntsville, at a fountain spring on the Huntsville circuit."

J. M. Holland, Navasota: "A nice Sunday-school picnic was attended by over 100; we had a basket dinner, ice cream and lemonade. Bro. Bookman, of Anderson, addressed us. Exercises took place in the church. The parents were on hand to care for the children."

Rev. A. Adair, Lovelady: "I was assigned to Lovelady circuit December, 1878, and found the work in a gloomy condition. I have taken my Bible and paper and went from house to house and prayed and taught the people the word of God. The cloud is about to move. The people are beginning to love our church, both white and colored. We ask the prayers of the ministers and people for our success."

Letter from Murfreesboro.

The corner stone of our new church was laid on the 4th inst. The ceremonial services were conducted by Rev. J. Braden, assisted by D. W. Hays, Rev. B. B. Manson, R. B. James and the writer. We raised $70. His honor, the mayor, gave $10 on the occasion, and other white citizens who were present were very liberal. We deposited in the corner stone a copy of the Bible, the last edition of the Discipline and Hymns of the M. E. Church, the last copy of the minutes of the Tennessee Conference, a catalogue of the Central Tennessee College, a list of the trustees and stewards and building committee. The names of senior members of the church, male and female, and a list of the names of the bishops of the M. E. Church, a copy of the SOUTHWESTERN, a copy of the Nashville Weekly Pilot and a copy of the Daily American of Nashville, Tenn., and the names of the following pastors: J. Braden, D. D., H. W. Key, P. C., B. B. Manson, P. E., of the Murfreesboro district, D. W. Hays, former pastor of James Chapel, Wm. Butler, Eli Provine, C. S. Smith and J. S. Harris. The masons are at work on the basement, and expect to complete it in two weeks, and be ready for the brickwork. The basement will cost $600. We are paying up as we go, or nearly so, and if we can only collect our subscription we will be able to pay the entire cost of the basement as soon as completed, and then if we can raise $1000 more we will be able to build the walls of the main building and cover it, which I trust to do between now and conference. I received a check from Bishop Gilbert Haven for $25. The whole church joins me in many thanks to the Bishop for his liberal donation. The State teachers' institute was held here on the 7th, 8th and 9th of this month by Prof. Burrus and Prof. Bennet, of Fisk University and Dr. Hubbard, of Central Tennessee College. Their lectures were very interesting and instructive. Each evening was spent in delivering addresses by Dr. Hubbard and Profs. Burrus and Bennett, and also by the following named citizens of Murfreesboro: Rev. Warren, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Murfreesboro, Mr. John Wilson, postmaster, and Mr. Wm. Elliott. All of the addresses were listened to with intense interest. There are two colored men to be hanged here on the 8th of August, and five others committed to the penitentiary for 41 years—four colored and one white. The only important witness against them is an accomplice, and his testimony don't agree with others; but still those men are to go to the penitentiary simply because the jury did not see cause to give them justice—colored prisoner and white jury.

Letter from Tupelo.

TUPELO, Miss., July 12, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR AND BRETHREN—This letter is to inform you that Rev. A. Gladney died Thursday, at about 8:30. p. m. surrounded by kind friends, who much regretted and lamented his death. Brother Gladney was highly thought of in this community by all. During his illness Rev. D. D. Patern, pastor of the Presbyterian church, preached several sermons for us at our church, which were very acceptable. Bro. G. said he wanted to die at his post like Revs. A. C. McDonald and John Shumpert did. He was born in the year 1840, made a profession and joined the M. E. Church south in 1865; was received in the M. E. Church in 1871, was admitted into the traveling connection; ordained a deacon at Jackson by Bishop Janes in the same year; and appointed pastor in charge at Greenwood under elder Dunn. Here he preached three years. The conference of 1875 sent him to Corinth; and in 1876 he was assigned to Union Grove circuit. At Oxford conference he was ordained an elder by Bishop Harris. He did not attend the last conference on account of ill health but was appointed to his his last charge on earth by Bishop Andrew.

Bro. Gladney was a faithful and successful minister, and made many friends, though he was here but a short time. He loved the itinerant ministry of the M. E. Church. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. At his death bed the scriptures were read and a hymn sung. He fell to sleep in Christ to wake no more, till the sound of the trumpet of God.

Letter from Fayetteville.

FAYETTEVILLE, Texas, July 4, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—My church at this time is greatly revived. I attended to my work the best I could since my appointment to this place. It suffered at first because of my bad luck. In the first of the year I lost my horses, and on the first of May I got my shoulder broken by being thrown from a horse, from which I was not able to walk for six weeks. But after all the Lord raised me up. My people were greatly discouraged. Since that time I have held meetings and tried to preach, which has resulted in great good. At one of my points I found only 31 members; it has since increased to 55. I have now a Sunday-school numbering about 50. At Smyrna my people are trying to build a house of worship.

Let me say something to discourage the use of tobacco among our people. On last Saturday morning on my way to my appointment, I passed a lady's house (Mrs. Coleman). She was well and hearty, but when I came back she was dead and buried. Her death was caused by lightning Saturday night, the 28th. The lady, I was informed by her mother, was sitting in the house—it was raining—filling her pipe with tobacco. The lamp was burning on the mantle piece. Mrs. Coleman walked to the lamp, took it down, and sticking it to her pipe began to smoke, when the lightning came down the chimney and struck her in the head, instantly breaking her skull and neck, bursting the lamp and setting her afire. Had she not gone to light her pipe she probably would not thus have died.

Letter from Houma.

DEAR EDITOR—Our belfry has just been completed, costing in all about $110. Rev. Wm. Davis, of Calvary Church, Thibodaux, was with us Sunday, and our people, having heard him, were glad to exonerate him from previous disappointments. Our protracted effort commences next week and as we have been blessed in the building of our church we hope to achieve a life victory—the salvation of many souls. Pray for us.

Our temperance work, too, is steadily increasing and exerting a powerful influence in this community. New additions to our number is the theme of every meeting. The Good Templars and the different temperances societies, numbering seven in all, will give a grand parade on the first Saturday in August. Bro. T. H. Jones, our amiable P. G. W. C. T., is expected to be with us. Bro. Jones, several months ago, presented us with a frame for our charter, and a postal from him yesterday announced that he had ordered us a banner. Words cannot describe the amiable feelings toward Bro. J. for this his brotherly kindness. The Thibodeaux band expects to be with us and, of course, give sweet music. Our pastor, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, is at his post and always ready to work for the moral and intellectual development of his race. He has been re-appointed D.D. R. W. G. T. and all communications addressed to him for the institution of new lodges, or anything for the promotion of the order will be thankfully received and meet his prompt and immediate attention.

Meridian Camp Meeting.

Our annual camp meeting will convene August 21–31. We will be glad to have as many of our people to attend the meeting as can. We expect several ministers to be present. The people must prepare to have a good time, bringing provisions enough to last several days. Pray that we may have a good time and that sinners may be converted to Christ.

A Preacher Fired Upon in Texas.

EAST WACO CIRCUIT, }
Dallas District, Texas, July 12, '79. }

DEAR EDITOR—This being my first letter concerning my work this year, it would seem that I had something to write. The work is moving along slowly. Results to date as follows: Baptized 30, received into connection 30, by letter 2. I have preached 58 sermons this year. Two growing Sabbath-schools are organized as missionary schools. Children's day was observed all over the work. Benevolent collections are attended to according to the discipline.

A church building is being erected at Spring Hill, ten miles east of Waco, 34x21, a box house of pine lumber. I expect to have it ready for dedication by second conference.

The circuit has paid me about [illegible] dollars this year, and I support wife, myself and five children [illegible] teaching public free school. Yesterday (June 3d) I was assaulted by two unknown white men on the Fort Graham road, near where I [illegible] in teaching, about 16 miles northwest of Waco. In the [illegible] of a little creek, between 11 a. m. and 12 m., two white men met [illegible]. Calling me to halt, I did so. [illegible] asked, "Where are you from?" [illegible] Waco. They then asked me [if] I was the school-teacher boarding at Isaac Wills'. I told them I [illegible]. They then pulled out their [six]-shooters and told me to "dis[mount]; you are the man we want." July 27, 1879.—VICTORY OVER DEATH.

SCRIPTURE—1 Cor. 15 : 50–58.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." John 11 : 25.

TOPIC.—"Death is Swallowed up in Victory."—54.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Precursory.— It appears from verse 12 that there were some in Corinth who denied the resurrection of the dead. The course of the apostle's argument is as follows: 1. He proved the resurrection of Christ. 1–10. In at least five different instances he refers to the appearances of the Saviour after his death. He makes it impossible to doubt the fact of his resurrection. The main repulsion to the idea of a resurrection had been the supposition that it was meant to be declared that the identical body inhabited here should continue to be one's tenement for all time. Paul had shown them that, as in all other resurrections, the body would undergo a great change. It would no longer be a natural, but a spiritual body. Now he effectually does away with their objections by specifically declaring that, "flesh and blood can not inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption." A body made of flesh and blood, with its constantly recurring wants, that are hints of the dissolution and of the corruption that finally await it, can have no inheritance of immortality.

So far, the reference had been to that which was to take place with regard to the dead. But the very natural question presented itself to the apostle for answer: What of those who are living at the time of Christ's second coming? Having declared that "flesh and blood can not inherit the kingdom of heaven," the inference from that might be that those who then should be living could be not be made partakers of his kingdom. His reply to this is: "Behold, I show you a mystery: we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." He has made revelation, but has not explained it. He has given us the reasons why it must take place, but has not made plain how it is to transpire. And that, doubtless, was hid from him as much as it is hid from us.

A Great Victory (54–57).—And now the apostle breaks into a song of triumph. "So when this incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality," then shall come to pass the saying that is written. "Death shall be swallowed up in victory." The quotation is from Isaiah 25 : 8, with probably a reference, also, to Hosea 13 : 14. There is a natural dread of dissolution, but the main dread of dying is the fear of meeting what is beyond. The consciousness of guilt makes men afraid to meet an offended God. It is that which plants the dying pillow with thorns. "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." For the believer there is no ground for fear—for him death has no sting. It is the joyful, concluding conflict that ushers him into immortality. It is not in vain with reference to the harvest for which we labor, nor is it in vain with regard to the reward. God will see that we have an ingathering of souls, and that the recompense is according to the greatness of the work, and as royal as is his own nature. And those facts ought to make all of his servants "abound" in his work.

Miss Maggie has been a faithful member of our Sunday-school and church, and since she has moved to Mashulaville she is missed much. Her marriage was witnessed by a large number of friends who regretted to see her leave Macon. She has been a teacher both in the Sabbath and public school, and was loved by all who knew her. May happiness and prosperity ever crown her pathway.

New Publications.

Nan, the Newsboy has well earned his share of popular admiration, and now St. Nicholas is to tell his interesting history to the girls and boys, in its August number, and to give Nan's portrait, and pictures of stirring incidents in his career of life-saving.

Harper's Magazine for August will pleasantly surprise even those readers who from long experience have come to expect in each successive number a new revelation of the possibilities of wood egraving. An excellent series of landscape engravings illustrate Mr. Benjamin's paper on Lake George. Of equal excellence, are the engravings illustrating Mr. Gibson's paper, "Snug Hamlet and Hometown." Mr. Roger's illustrations for "The Nautical School 'St. Mary's," are very striking. This paper is one of unusual interest. The "St. Marys" is a sloop of war loaned by the Government to New York, "for the instruction of youths in navigation, seamanship, marine enginery," etc. Among the illustrated papers in this Number is one entiled "Chautauqua," giving an interesting review of the peculiar educational features which have been developed in connection with the Chatauqua Sunday-school Association. A fine portrait is given of Dr. Vincent, the founder of the institution. A paper contributed by Willard Brown, on "The Foreign Indebtedness of the United States," is of national interest.

Three illustrated articles grace the August number of the National Repository, the first being a series of selections entitled, "Summer with the Poets;" the second an historical description of "Prague," by Prof. J. H. Worman; and the third an account of "Lady Jane Grey," by Mrs. E. S. Martin. Prof. Wm. Wells writer of "Catholicism at the Bar of France;" Rev. T. H. Pearne, D. D., furnishes a sketch of "Jamaica;" and D. C. Macdonald gives an interesting picture of the "Bodleian Library." The story of "My Land of Beulah" is continued, and one or two other selected articles are included in the number. The "Silhouetts," by Henry Gillman, is a little poem of striking beauty. The Miscellany is, as usual, full of good things. Published monthly at Three Dollars a Year, post-paid. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, Chicago, or St. Louis, Phillips & Hunt, New York.

The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending July 12 and 19 contain French Novels, Blackwood; The Revival of the Warlike Power of China, Fraseer; Origen and the Beginnings of Christian Philosophy Part II, and The Origin of the Week, Contemporary; The Critic on the Hearth, Nineteenth Century; Village Life in the Apennines, Cornhill; Waterloo Waifs, Temple Bar; Suspended Animation, Nature; George Eliot's Ideal Ethics, and Conservative Democracy in Switzerland, Spectator; Mrs Montague, and a London Caravanserai, Saturday Review; A Japanese View of Co-operation and Confidence, Choya Shinbun; with the continuation of Jean Ingelow's "Sarah de Beranger" and Miss Keary's "Doubting Heart;" the conclusion of "The Professor's Nice" and the usual amount of Poetry. For fifty-two such numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low. Little & Co., publishers.

With the "Midsummer Holiday" Number, Scribner will put aside pro tem. two of its serials—the Edison and Brazil papers—to make way for material more directly adapted to the season, or to current events. This year the subjects are especially likely to fall in with public interest. A distinctively holiday character attaches to 'Summer Eotomology" (with Marsh's celebrated engravings of grasshoppers, beetles, etc.); "Our Archery Club," by Stockton; "The Cascarone Ball," by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote; "Out of the World" (the Shakers), by C. D. Warner; "Over the Narrowest Narrow Gauge;" "The Man with a Hobby" and "Lalage" (stories); Henry James's new novel, "Confidence," "A Peep into Antwerp and Holland," "Lincoln's Imagination," "Lawn Tennis," "Anecdotes of Whistler," "Comming Home from School," "A Summer Idyl," "The Cook of the Confederate Army." "Dr. Holland's new Ballad," "Jacob Hurd's Child," the tenth installment of "Haworth's," etc., etc. Recent events have given a timely interest to the paper on Whittier (with Mr. Eaton's portrait as a frontispiece), to Mr. Brownell's "Whistler in Painting and Etching" (beautifully illustrated), and to the two poems by Bayard Taylor now first published.

"Practical Science."

Under the above heading, the St. Croix Courier, of St. Stephen, N. B., in referring to the analysis of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Sage's Catarrh Remedy, recently made by Prof. Chandler, of New York, and others, say: "Nothing was discovered which we think objectionable, and the published analysis should increase, rather than retard, their sale. To us, it seems a little unjust to call a man a quack, simply because he seeks to reap as much pecuniary reward as other classes of inventors." The English Press is conservative, yet after a careful examination of all the evidence, it not only endorses but recommends the Family Medicines manufactured by Dr. Pierce. No remedies ever offered the afflicted give such perfect satisfaction as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

It Seems Impossible

That a remedy made of such common, simple plants as Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion, etc., should make so many and such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do, but when old and young, rich and poor, Pastor and Doctor, Lawyer and Editor all testify to having been cured by them, you must believe and try them yourself, and doubt no longer. See another column.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

TROY, O., Jan. 2, 1878. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

Ecclesiastical Law

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

Lectures on Preaching

Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D,

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price $1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics, delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly, forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workmen who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

This book will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Address,

"...THE LITTLE ONES ... COME UNTO ME."

...en I read that sweet story of old,
... Jesus was here among men,
... called little children as lambs to
... fold,
... like to have been with them then.

... His hands had been placed on ... head,
... arms had been thrown around me:
... might have seen His kind look when

REBECCA LORD.

One of the best ways of aiding the poor negroes in Kansas, or any where else, has been devised by Mr. Montgomery, a colored planter in Mississippi. Visiting Kansas, he bought a section of land in Wabaunsee county. Four other sections have been divided into forty-acre tracts, and a colony of about fifty families will be established upon them. Until the colonists get their little farms in order, they will be given employment upon Mr. Montgomery's 640 acres, and will thus be able to earn enough for their support. The settlers agree to pay $2.65 an acre for their land with 7 per cent. interest. Could there be a simpler or better way devised of helping poor immigrants or poor citizens to help themselves?—American Missionary.

Those who neglect the habit of regular prayer soon find that nothing so quickly affects the sweetness and the strength of the Christian life, or its nearness to a right spiritual condition. As a recent German writer expresses this idea: The lark goes up singing towards heaven; but if she stops the motion of her wings, then straightway she falls. So it is with him who prays not. Prayer is the movement of the wings of the soul; it bears one heavenwards; but without prayer, he sinks in the filth of earthly impulses."—S. S. Times.

Know and improve every talent to the utmost, whether in preaching, writing, speaking, or acting. I feel convinced that every man has given him of God much more than he has any idea of, and that he can help on the world's work more than he knows of. What we want is the single eye that will see what our work is, the humility to accept it, however lowly, the faith to do it for God, the perseverance to go on till death.—Norman Macleod.

If we would only bear in mind, when each new perplexity is upon us, that, judging by our past experience, the trouble cannot be so great as it seems, we should be ... ready to look and wait for the bright light which is in the clouds, ... which will surely be made clear when the wind passeth and cleanseth them. "Here is the patience and the faith of the saints"—S. S. Times.

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

RENT PAID TWO YEARS AND A HALF BUYS AN ORGAN.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co

154 Tremont St., BOSTON; 46 E 14th St., NEW YORK; 250 Wabash Ave., CHICAGO.

Whose cabinet or parlor organs are acknowledged to be UNEQUALED IN EXCELLENCE, having received the HIGHEST HONORS at EVERY WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION FOR THIRTEEN YEARS, and being the ONLY AMERICAN ORGANS WHICH HAVE RECEIVED SUCH AT ANY, now offer them, not only for cash, but also on the following VERY EASY TERMS OF PAYMENT.

They will rent an organ with the agreement that when the whole amount of rent paid equals the value of the organ it shall become the property of the party hiring it, without further payment. The rent per quarter, payable in advance, is one-tenth of the value of the organ, so that ten quarterly payments complete its purchase. Or, payments may be made monthly, if preferred.

This plan presents two very important advantages:

1. An organ can be obtained on very easy terms, viz.: payment of $5 or upward, according to size, per month; or $6.75 or upward, every three months; until paid for.

2. One can thus have an organ on trial for six months, or longer, for a reasonable rent only, and so thoroughly test it and see if he values it, before concluding the purchase; having all rent which has been paid applied upon the purchase, whenever made.

Only makers of VERY BEST ORGANS, which can be depended upon to give satisfaction in all cases, could afford to offer such terms.

Organs are furnished on these terms, not only in the immediate vicinity of our warerooms, but in any part of the country which is readily accessible.

PRICES OF MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS are but little more than those of the very poorest organs made. On above easy terms of payment they are furnished for $57.50, $93.50, $7.50 to $500 and upward. Reasonable deductions are made from these prices when all cash is paid.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES, PRICE LISTS and Circulars, describing FIFTY-EIGHT DIFFERENT STYLES, with much useful information about organs, sent free to any address.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. In this way the badness of the entire State finds its way into its daily issues, and next morning is sent all over the world. A little later, these correspondents and others weave the account of these crimes, etc, into the form of a little correspondence, with all the details necessary to a full understanding of them severally.

In this way the record of crime is fearfully elaborated (and repeated) until the sum of it does seem truly awful. Now to read this account without understanding how it is gotten up, is to any extent misleading, and any judgment of Texas society formed in this way is necessarily exceedingly erroneous. Admit that there was the account of seven homicides in one week—that is to say, that seven cases found their way into a single weekly issue of a certain paper, it will by no means follow that there are seven homicides "every week," and "every day" in the State of Texas. And the fact that daily papers deprecate these things ought not to be adduced, or received as proof that the matter is as bad as the Bishop says, or even as these papers say in their confessions and deprecations. For they confess them in their very worst possible aspect, in order to get advantage ground whereon to stand and urge reform, and to stimulate law officers in the faithful discharge of their duties. Besides, the Bishop fails to tell us that these same papers comparing Texas with Massachusetts and New York, find that, bad as Texas is, she is not as bad as these States are. And then we have the remark added for emphasis, "No arrests, and no attempts at arrest." Does Bishop Haven wish to be understood to say that men are never arrested for the commission of crime in Texas? It does seem so, for he quotes some newspaper—no name given—as saying, "Crime increases and criminals go unpunished," and quite a number of similar expressions.

But are these things true? I say, most emphatically, they are not true. That there is much crime, and that many criminals escape is most true, but that this is peculiar to Texas is untrue. I cannot, at the moment, say how many criminals have been hanged within a year, but I think that it will not fall far short of a score. And a great many are in the jails all over the country; and perhaps an equal number are out on bond. Add to this that the penitentiary is full, many of the convicts being in for a life term, and what becomes of the statement that crime goes unpunished, and that criminals are not even arrested, nor is an attempt made to arrest them?

It is easy to see that the publication of such things in a Christian journal, by a bishop, is exceedingly damaging to the State, and well calculated to prevent immigration. And it has all the appearance of a refinement upon cruelty to quote, seriously, in a Christian journal, the slanders of the "Austin correspondent of the San Antonio Express." But, alas for us! The bishop was not content to have this unknown enemy say that "the [illegible] guilty have escaped," for he [illegible] "and he might have added the one that is innocent is hung." What has my poor adopted State done to provoke the cruel wrath [illegible] Christian brother?

And then those officials, who [illegible] ejected the rightful incumbents from their offices. What does all this mean? I live in the State, and have so lived for more [illegible] quarter of a century, and [illegible] heard such a charge [illegible] against a few Re- [illegible] who were said to have [illegible] of the sort just [illegible] of the war, when [illegible] very unsettled [illegible] knew anything [illegible] charge. I take [illegible] and two weekly [illegible] the State, and I [illegible] a discussion of [illegible] And as to the [illegible] Roberts, it is [illegible] that our [illegible] of as what given, and it should not be mixed with an account in "a journal of the State," before the bishop at the time of the writing of his communication. One would be led to think that the statement published in the Texas Christian Advocate was of what occurred at the same time with that referred to the journal—not named—and that the latter had at least some of the reliableness of the former, which is not at all probable. The judge of the United States Court doubtless meant to be facetious when he said that Texas is described by "a saying current there," wherein a husband is made to say, "Wife, I reckon I'll go to prayer-meeting. Bring me my revolver." I have traveled over much of Texas, and it so happened that I heard of this saying first in Bishop Haven's writings. I do not think that that saying has much currency in Texas. And I know, that so far from it being a custom of the church people of Texas to carry revolvers, the thing is almost if not wholly unknown. On the frontier, in times of excitement incident to frontier life, such a thing may sometimes occur—I cannot tell. I do know that the citizens of the country live even carelessly, without so much as a door-lock or bolt, except in the towns and cities, where strangers commit burglary sometimes.

In our itinerant life, we Methodist preachers travel at all times of the day and night, and in almost all portions of the country where there are white settlers, and we do not carry revolvers or any other weapon of offense or defense. I myself have ridden night after night for a week the distance of sixteen miles, after the close of a meeting where I had preached and remained laboring in the altar until eleven o'clock p. m., arriving at home about three o'clock next day, and never once carried any kind of a weapon, nor needed one. And I know a man in the ministry of my church and conference, who has long been noted as a traveler of immense distances, often employing the whole night in reaching his appointment as presiding elder, and when, as was sometimes the case, he came to his designated place in the night, instead of arousing the family, he would quietly lie down by a tree in the yard and sleep until daylight. I refer to Rev. J. W. Whipple, a Northern man and still an itinerant after the lapse of about forty years in Texas.

No, my dear brother, Bishop Haven ought to let Texas alone. There is not a nobler, truer, braver, or more Christian citizenhood in any State, than the great body of the people of Texas.

It is impossible in the very nature of things, in a sparsely settled country, with such frontiers as those of Texas, that as much certainty will attend the administration of criminal law as in a more dense population differently circumstanced. Besides the bad men, who escape from all the States east and north, find Texas suited to the purposes of concealment, and accordingly turn their course hither.

A truly noble man will be just to an enemy; what ought to be the course of one Christian towards another? H. V. PHILPOTT.

Bryan, Texas, July 19, 1879.

Character and its Influence Upon Society.

BY GEO. B. LYNCH.

In treating such a subject as character and its influence upon society it may not be out of place to first thoroughly understand what constitutes character. It is a too frequent error of the present age to mistake reputation for character. By this term, character, we understand that which expresses just what a man is, and not what the world represents him to be. The latter may be considered rather as an expression of what is commonly meant by the term reputation.

Character may be said to be one among the greatest motive powers acting in the world in which we live, whereas character is found to exist in its noblest embodiments; it certainly exemplifies human nature, and presents man to the observing eye of a watchful community in the highest, purest and best [illegible] possible. Deny it as we [illegible] it is nevertheless a fact that [illegible] who possess genuine excellence in the traits of character, [illegible] industry, integrity, princi- [illegible] honor, command the re- [illegible] ay, more than that, a [illegible] degree of homage from those with whom the individual may come in contact. Character, then, may be defined, first, as the subjugation of the passions and the proper training and culture of the virtues found to exist in man in his complete and perfect state.

Every individual is the creator of his own character. He is ever forging it on the anvil of life, and through life he molds his various traits of character. True character is something that to the end of time will never cease to be the pride and admiration of the world and make the utterance of the poet a verity when he says:

"To live in the hearts we leave behind
Is not to die."

Again, character may be said to be the cultivating and harmonizing of all the powers that tend to produce the perfected man. The result of that cultivation and harmony in man will be as certain as the germation of the seed properly planted and matured in mother earth. The germ is not the tree, nor is the acorn the mighty oak. God gives to man the mind, and man, from the mind, or in accordance with its laws, forms the character. Hence we may say that the mind is but the garden, while character is the fruit raised from the cultivation of the garden. Character may also be said to be one of those elements in the formation of society that will make itself manifest and apparent in every position. A man of excellent character in the workshop gives tone and help to his fellow workman. Thus it is said of Franklin while be was a workman in London, he, by his nobleness of character, did reform the manners of the entire workshop. Communication with good must be productive of good. Like begets like and good produces good.

The fact that character is indeed what the individual is, while reputation is only what others pronounce him to be, makes the correct reading of character a study in which each and every individual should be deeply interested. Again, as character is personal property, and reputation public domain, all should know how to properly read and estimate character that reputation owned by public expression may be correct. Man and woman are not what they appear to be, to the unpracticed eye of the community in which they live, hence in many instances an individual reputation may differ very materially from his character. It is too true that while men learn to read books, cattle markets, nature and signs of the times, they utterly fail or entirely neglect the reading of the language of character. To thoroughly and understandingly read character the student must first know that character is formed from a variety of circumstances, more or less under the control and regulation of the individual. There is no act, however trivial, but has its train of consequences, as there is no hair so small but it casts its shadow. Every action, every thought, every feeling, contributes to the education of the temper, the habits and understanding. Thus character is undergoing constant change for better or for worse.

The mechanical law that action and reaction are equal, holds true in all formation of character, good deeds act and react. Character exhibits in the conduct when guarded and inspired by principle, integrity and practical wisdom. In its highest sense it is the individual will, acting energetically under the influence of religion, morality and reason.

Character has well been pronounced the noblest possession of a man constituting a rank in itself, and estate in the general will, dignifying every station and exalting every position in society. It exercises a greater power than wealth. It carries with it an influence which always leads to honor, rectitude, and those qualities which command the general confidence and respect of mankind. Character is human nature in its best form. Men of character are not only the conscience of society, but in every well-governed State they are in the best motive power that rules the world. The strength, the industry and the civilization of nations all depend upon individual characters, and the very foundations of civil society rest upon it.

As it is not putting on a gown that makes the scholar, but the inward habits of the mind, so it is not putting on an outward walk of profession that makes a Christian, but the inward grace of the heart.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

KANSAS.

What Presiding Elder Lynch Says—Come Meaning Business—Don't Give Away Stock—Good Advice.

DEAR EDITOR—As it is impossible for me to answer all the letters coming in daily seeking information concerning Kansas and the exodus of the colored people from the South, please allow me space in your columns to speak a word to those looking toward the State of Kansas with a view of emigrating here to better their condition. I came here from the South about two months ago, have gathered all the information that I could from all quarters of the State, and now I am prepared to furnish information as far as I have gone. The people here mean business. They come from different parts of the country for that purpose. Here is not one class of people sitting back bleeching themselves in the shade without paying for it, while the other class is at hard work for nothing. Once in a while you may see a loafer or a tramp at hand, but he has such a poor show that he finds it best to pass on elsewhere. Therefore it is better for none to come here except those who mean business—that class which is not contented to live in the world without something, but upon their own merits, and not as fugitives and vagabonds in the earth. Let those come with all the money and education they have, and not stop around the towns and cities, but go out into these rich vacant counties and help build them with farms, towns and cities of their own, in which they may have some interest in coming days.

There have been thousands of industrious colored men who have labored in those Southern cities to establish some interests, and because of the spirit of proscription, they soon became the objects of public suspicion. As a consequence, their success was kicked out on every side. We should be convinced that we can never be a people of any note in the South, without our rights—as any other citizens of the United States of America. We would rather live South if we could demand our rights. Not that we are so naturally unfit to live in any other part of the country, as some have intimated. We believe the colored people can live any place other races of men can. There may be a great many deaths among them for a while, as the change of climate would effect any other race. There is a great uneasyness among many people about the colored people dying in the North and West if they should go there from the South. It would be well if they should make less noise about that, and make more noise about their being killed by the K. K. K. in the South, while they are in their homes of rest in the dark hours of night. There is a great deal of pretention carried on over this exodus of the colored people from the South. Let us live where we please, North or South, East or West, what we want is pay for our labor. We are not as much afraid of dying as many people are for us. Many of our people have died sooner by their exodus to this State than if they had remained South, but what of that? But laying a foundation for their children, which should be the object of every man and woman of our race, to make their children's condition better than what their's had been. Relative to my own ambition on this subject, I have made up the programme of my life under God, and that is to spend and be spent for my children, my race, and my country, working up temperance, conversion and education, believing that all necessary good will follow.

Now then, concerning the State of Kansas. This is a good State. The climate is healthy. Good, pure air all the time by reason of its remoteness from the large water coasts, by looking at the map of the United States you may see that the State of Kansas is about midway of the Union. As far from the Atlantic as from the Pacific ocean, and as far from Lake Superior as the Gulf of Mexico. The waters are good and cool all summer. Stone is used for building purposes. Lumber is shipped here from foreign markets. Plenty of coal to burn instead of wood. The chief production of the State of Kansas is grain of all kinds and stock-raising. Corn has not sold for more than 35 cents this year. Everybody anticipates a grand harvest this year. Have had plenty of rain. Let every one who expects to come here come prepared to take up land and prepare a home. Let none come with the purpose of being servants all their lives, but to serve long enough to earn money to prepare homes for the happiness of their families, and for usefulness in the church and State.

Plenty of public lands here can be purchased for a very small amount to be paid down on contract and the balance due to be paid by yearly installments on from seven to eleven years credit. There are seven districts of land for sale—more than 2,941,560 acres. A large amount of rail-road lands are for sale also. Four districts of school lands, just any amount they want, is here waiting for occupants. Several thousand acres have been taken up by the people who have come here this year. They are doing very well, all things considered. The colored refugees have met with a good many friends while coming here in their destitution. More than three thousand have come into this State this year, yet many of them were unable to take up land and go to work upon it, but all have found something to do for a living. Throughout the State letters have come in asking for hands, cooks and house servants. Many have gone to work on the rail-road. There may be more suffering among the last crowds that came here than any that came sooner, as there is not such a demand for labor now as there was a few weeks ago. The governor and other officials of this State have done well by our people—not for political gains, as some have said, but for humanity's sake—in this great time of need. The good people of the North and East have done well also. Many have made remarks and laughed at the colored people—those who thought they would get forty acres of land and a mule. I think if there ever were any who thought they could get forty acres and a mule, so much so that they would leave where they were trained under foot and go out and hunt for it, it shows that they are not willing to loaf around, but want to go to work with something of their own.

I think the white people South ought to give the colored people something, and not wait for white people North to do everything. The whites in the South have lived upon the colored people's rights for a good long time. Yet we know that our labor in the production of cotton and sugar, tobacco and rice has made this country rich. O, may our friends see to it that we have our rights somewhere and somehow, for many of our people belong to God and what our friends are doing for us now is more than a cup of cold water. The day is coming when we shall be called upon for our charity in return, and we shall remember these.

In conclusion let me say to all my people, come to Kansas or some other western State if you want to, but don't come depending upon charity. Come prepared to depend upon yourselves. Don't give your stock away. If in large numbers and you cannot charter a boat or car to Kansas, take the common roads for it and bring your wagons, teams and everything you have. Early in the fall or early spring is the best time to come. Pay your debts and then you will be at liberty to go where you please. But as I have said before, I repeat: let no one come here who don't mean business for himself. If he don't want to purchase a home for himself and family, but just merely to job around, he had better stay where he is, for everybody works here and don't need to hire as they do down South. Brethren, pray for us. W. O. LYNCH.

Topeka, Kansas, July 16, 1879.

Trustees' and Stewards' Duties.

In the early history of the Louisiana Conference when a church was to be organized one member would be elected to two or three and sometimes four officers. For example: a brother would be a local preacher, a trustee, steward and a leader. This was on account of the lack of men, so one man held many offices. But these offices call for different duties and responsibilities. Thus, when a brother came to the quarterly conference he had many responsibilities on his shoulders. One would have to give a steward's report, a leader's report and a trustee's report. Some times the preacher in charge was a trustee and this would compell him to make two reports. Sometimes he answered all necessary questions to the presiding elder. In many cases, as above mentioned, the stewards did the trustees' work in paying debts and receiving rent, looking after the church property, and were only responsible to themselves and the quarterly conference for money raised. But wonderful has been the growth of our Methodist Church in the South. The work has spread. Young men are gathered into the church, and there is no need to place so much responsibility on one man. Yet in electing brethren to separate offices, there will be or has been some misunderstanding about who has the right to receive the rent and grant the privilege to organize bodies to meet in the churches or church property. The trustees should hold the fees of the land and are the proper ones to take up subscriptions and collections for the purpose of creating church property for the payment of debts, and repairing or improving churches, and are only responsible to the quarterly conference. The preacher in charge is the chairman of all trustee meetings and has the right to a vote. Trustees receive money pay for work on lands and buildings.

Stewards receive money to pay the preachers for their work. Debts are delayed sometimes because trustees say they get no money from the stewards, when it is the business of the trustees to make arrangements with the stewards and raise the moneys to pay the bills of the church. These brethren occupy different positions, but the cause is one and they all center in the quarterly conference. The leaders for the classes; the stewards for the preacher, poor and sick; the trustees for the property; and the preacher for the great field of labor; and all must work together in harmony. STEPHEN PRIESTLEY.

Bishop Haven.

Bishop Haven presides over the Columbia River Conference at Walla Walla, commencing Aug 7, and over the Oregon Conference at Portland, commencing Aug. 20. A reporter of the Boston Traveller caught him before his departure for the Pacific cost and by diligent pumping got a short interview out of him on the South, especially the social and religious condition of the colored people. After giving a summary of the work being done by the various churches, among the colored people, the Traveller reports the following questions and answers:

Reporter—Does the exodus which is attracting so much attention promise to solve the promise of the freedman's future?

Bishop Haven—I have no idea that the exodus is going to be universal. The negro population is one that leaves its homes unwillingly. No doubt a good many people will leave, and they will not go to Kansas exclusively. I had a letter recently from a presiding elder, in which he wants New Mexico to be appropriated to them. My advice to them is to scatter through all the North from New England to the Pacific; to scatter among the people. I have advised a good many of them in this way privately, to go wherever they could get labor.

FUTURE OF THE NEGRO.

Reporter—Then the questions touching the colored race in the South will still remain unsettled?

Bishop Haven—I think there is a more powerful agency at work to to settle the matter. I think the farms and plantations will gradually go to the colored men under the necessities of the bankruptcy and poverty of their present holders. I know of four colored men, one in South Carolina, one in North Carolina, one in Georgia, that now own farms of from 400 to 600 acres in extent. These are examples of cases which are growing more frequent, year by year. I thing the race is going to settle there finally. It is to be remembered that the poor colored people are going to school more than the poor white people. Among the whites the same custom rules that ruled before the war. The higher classes are educated, but not the masses of the white population. Among the colored masses, a large proportion of them are obtaining an education. Of the rising generation, there are but few boys and girls that cannot read and write. On the plantations I suppose this is not so much so, but it is a good deal more so than you would think. The schools are very little supported by the State, but they have subscription schools, and many of the colored scholars spend their summer in teaching in the South mostly in subscription schools.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We have just closed up the accounts of the SOUTHWESTERN for the year ending June 30, 1879, and the showing is truly gratifying. Our circulation is largely in advance of last year. Our weekly issue is by printers' count 4000 and by actual count 3770. These papers go to 673 post-offices, to actual subscribers, except the usual exchange list common to all papers.

The cash receipts at this office for the year just closed have been nearly fifty per cent, or one half more, than during the previous year ending June 30, 1878. Considering the epidemic last fall, which interferred with the canvass, this is especially gratifying.

The friends of the SOUTHWESTERN have rallied grandly to its support in every part of the Southwest. The popularity of the paper is seen in the large number of communications from the field every week, and is also evident because scarcely a mail comes in without bringing new subscribers for the balance of the year. The accounts of all our agents are being sent out, giving their subscribers, how much has been paid and how much is due. The brethren will please at once collect as much as possible of the amounts due, and send it in. Do not wait till conference; this is now the work to be done. Remember, the engraving of John Wesley is sent to every $2 subscriber as soon as the money is received.

Please, brethren, collect and report.

Rev. J. H. McCarty, of Syracuse, has made a brief visit to the Sandwich Islands.

MR. EDITOR—The death of a truly good pastor is no unimportant event in the history of any church and congregation. It is an event that deserves more than a mere passing notice. A good pastor ought not to be permitted to drop out of the march of humanity with the simple and yet solemn announcement, "He is dead." Rev. Wilson Haywood, preacher in charge of Houston circuit, and a probationer in the Texas Conference, departed this life June 16, aged 28 years. Bro. Haywood was a Methodist, devoted to the doctrine, rules and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was faithful in all matters of Christian duty so far as he understood them. He secured the confidence and respect of those who knew him. No spot tarnished his fair Christian and ministerial character. To his wife he said: "I know that it is hard to part, but we shall meet again." The last time I saw him his testimony was: "The Lord Jesus saves me." Life has its conflicts. Many die defeated. Bro. Haywood was more than conqueror "through Jesus Christ our Lord." We miss him from our midst, but we believe that he has joined the congregation of the redeemed, who are without fault before the throne of God." The watchman dies, but the general work of the district moves on. Hockley has completed and paid for a new chapel at Piney Grove. The first church in Houston has in good earnest entered upon the erection of a new church. The foundation is now built, and the corner-stone was laid in due form June 17th. Houston has a number of very tasty churches, but it is the design of the trustees that this shall not be second to any. Connected with this church is one of the best Sabbath-schools I have ever seen. Men that are well prepared to judge tell me that it is the best Sunday-school in the city.

It will not do for those who have for years fought the beasts at Ephesus to be frightened by the fangs of any of these modern catamounts. So far as it relates to Texas this exodus talk reminds me of that leg of mutton served on the road from London to Oxford, which Dr. Johnson described as bad as bad could be, as ill-fed, ill-killed, ill-kept, ill-dressed and ill-cooked. This talk that is calculated to induce the colored man to leave Texas for Kansas is as bad as bad can be.

L. P. CUSHMAN.

Notes from the Greenwood District.

GRENADA, Miss., July 17, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Last Sabbath I held my last quarterly meeting, second round. I have been over the district twice, and with but one exception have held two quarterly meetings on every circuit. I have found all the ministers at their post and faithfully at work. There have been some accessions to the church, yet there is not that prosperity which there ought to be. May God pour out his Spirit on the churches! The people are much embarrassed financially. The cause of this in part is last year's epidemic and poor crops. The prospect for good crops and consequently better times were very flattering two months ago, but six weeks without rain has blighted them in many places. The Kansas fever is raging in many places on the district. Some have gone and others are making ready to go in the fall. I have helped to organize the Sunday-schools into Missionary Societies all over the district. The monthly missionary concerts have been held in many of the Sunday-schools with cheering results. I gave my receipt for $2.75 to the superintendent of the Coparle City Sunday-school, which amount had been taken up at two concerts. Several other schools had done as well, but I did not receive the money, and so I cannot report them.

I have brought the subject of missions before the people at all the appointments nearly, and more than four hundred have given me their names and pledged themselves to pay one dollar for benevolent purposes. I expect to swell this number to six hundred at least, and then with the hearty co-operation of the pastors, shall try to get every dollar of it. You see, Mr. Editor, this is the "Banner District," and we must, with the help of God, raise one thousand dollars for benevolent purposes this year. I have taken especial pains to look after the schools. There are several good ones, and material to make many more. What we need is several good teachers, well educated Christian young men, who will brave hardships and work up and keep a school for several years, and labor in the Sabbath school. At Yazoo City we have an excellent school with four teachers. Prof. Oakes, of Shaw University, is the principal. Another at Holly Grove, taught by Mr. Jackson and his wife, both from Fisk University. Mr. Jackson has taught the school for ten years, and has organized a temperance society which has over 150 members, I believe. At Martinsville, on the same circuit, is another good school, taught by Mr. Granbury and Miss Dixon, Tugaloo students. Space forbids my mentioning others in detail, except one. This is at Good Hope, on the New Midway and Good Hope circuit. The teacher, Mrs. Clark, is an excellent lady, a graduate of the Hernando Female College, Mississippi, and for thirty years a [illegible] of Mississippi.

The SOUTHWESTERN is more and more appreciated, and many would [illegible] gladly, but for want of the [illegible]. They are especially delighted with the news in regard to [illegible]. Fraternally yours,

A Shocking Death.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make known to the many readers of the SOUTHWESTERN the death of Miss Mary McLeod, on the 5th inst., aged 15 years and 6 months. She was going from the field after an earnest day's labor, accompanied by her elder sister. On the way they met a young man of their acquaintance, and during some lively play, Mary's mule was frightened and ran away with her. She became tangled in the harness, and the mule ran about 150 yards, turned around at each end of the rows and ran back to the others rapidly. This it did three or four times with great speed. Mary at one time asked her father to save her. Finding his efforts to catch the mule to be in vain, he said, "Daughter, call on the Lord, I cannot do you any good." She cried in agony, "Lord, save me, I pray." Her voice grew weaker and weaker, and her spirit soon passed to a world unknown.

August 3, 1879.—THE MINISTRY OF RECONCILIATION.
SCRIPTURE.—2 Cor. 5 : 14-21.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"We pray you, in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."—2 Cor. 5 : 20.
TOPIC.—Christ's Ambassadors.
Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.

Preparatory.—Our lesson is part of an explanation and defense of the Christian ministry, particularly with reference to Paul himself. In the first chapter, he tells of the consolation in suffering that he has as an apostle of Christ, and explains that as such a representative he did not claim to have dominion over their faith, but was a helper of their joy. In the second chapter, he narrates how he came to preach the gospel in Macedonia, and holds up to view the responsibilities of the Christian minister. In the next chapter, the apostle shows from whence the sufficiency of such an ambassador comes—he is not sufficient in himself, but in God. In chapter 4, he enumerates the consequences of having received the ministry. 1. He faints not. 2. He does not handle the Words of God deceitfully. He speaks the truth as he understands it, no matter what the consequences may be. 3. He preaches not himself, but Christ. 4. He is upheld under all circumstances. In chapter 5, he shows how this latter assertion is true; for he says, "If our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

Constrained by Christ (14, 15).—Whether, as in the preceding verse, he was to be looked upon as too fanatical, or whether he was to be regarded as sober and discreet, in either case, he was anxious only for the glory of God and the good of the church. That which constrained him at times to act with what appeared to be intemperate zeal, and at others with what seemed to be too much caution, was the love of Christ. Why did the love of Christ compel him to such arduous labor? He himself states the reasons. Because we thus judge, or rather, have judged: 1. That if one died for all, then were all dead. If the atonement does not apply to any one, it is because he will not accept it. God does not force a man to be reconciled with him whether he will or not. The ground upon which the apostle places the reasonableness of living for Christ, and crucifying the flesh, is that he died for us, and rose again. He died for our sins, but he rose again for our justification. His death purchased our redemption, but by means of his living Spirit we are fashioned into the likeness of his glorious image.

New Creature in Christ (16, 17).—His argument was that inasmuch as Christ made no distinction in his atoning death, but gave his blood freely a ransom for all, so no minister of his, in living for him, has any right to make any discriminations in offering to men the atonement. He must not "know men after the flesh. He must not regard the Jew more favorably than the Gentile. He must not seek the salvation of the rich any more than of the poor. The lowly are to be his care just as much as the high. He should not judge by externals, but look into the heart. To cease to know Christ after the flesh, and to apprehend him with the spirit, is a new birth. There are "new creatures" to be found wherever the gospel is preached and accepted. "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me."

Ambassadors for Christ (18-21).—The first qualification of a Christian minister, then, is, that he shall be reconciled to God. No man should take it up as a mere business. It should be much more to him than so many dollars and cents, or so much influence and position. The call of duty, which is the voice of God, is the only call that he should hear. So believing, he declared, "We are ambassadors for Christ." An ambassador is one who is simply a messenger. His message is the thing of importance—not himself. "As though God did beseech you by us," is the way that Paul preached. Christ has taken the sinner's place—therefore the sinner ought to have a grateful affection for him.

Important Telegram to Travelers.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 21, 1879.
Geo. L. Cross, Esq., Southern Passenger Agent Louisville & Great Southern Route, New Orleans, La.:

There is nothing to hinder or endanger in any way travel from New Orleans to the North and East via Louisville. The trains that connect with the Jackson Route have been discontinued to and from Memphis, and have no connection at all with that or any infected point, but run to and from Milan only—a perfectly healthy place. There are no quarantine regulations at Louisville or Cincinnati against these trains. C. P. ATMORE,

Holly Springs, Miss., July 20, 1879.

There is Perfect Safety

In taking the Jackson Route, as there is no fever anywhere on the line, and no connection with any infected points, all trains to and from Memphis, with which this route is connected, have been discontinued. The train for Louisville connecting with the Jackson Route, runs from and to Milan only, a perfectly healthy place, and so strictly quarantined against Memphis that no trains from or to that city are allowed to stop there at all. To Cairo, for St. Louis and Chicago there is equal freedom from detention and danger to health. The many friends of this route are assured that they need have no fears in taking it, and will enjoy every comfort of traveling.

New Publications.

Since the publication of the first "Midsummer Number" in 1876, Scribner for August, prepared with special reference to summer reading, has become the Literary feature of the summer. The sales of the magazine have increased to such an extent during the past eight months, that the publishers are warranted in printing a first edition of 100,000 copies of the issue for August, 1878.

St. Nicholas for August, has seventy-two pages—eight more than usual—with contents adapting it for children's summer reading. "Nan, the Newsboy's" story is told; and his portrait and those of his two chief helpers are given, together with pictures and anecdotes of stirring episodes in Nan's extraordinary career of life-saving. A Fish Fairy-tale comes next. Then we have a short illustrated account of the most interesting occurrences in the child-life of Goethe followed by nine pages of concentrated delights for the Very Little Folk, for "Jack-in-the-Pulpit's" congregation.

There is no publication in this country that equals or in our opinion, makes a very close approach in excellence as regards educational matters to the New England Journal of Education, published in Boston. Its varied articles from the pens of the best Educators; its firm and independent tone; its rich summary of school news; and its whole spirit and character commend it to the warmest regard and the fullest patronage of teachers everywhere. We hope it will receive the attention it deserves from teachers in this section.

Sunday Afternoon ($3.00 a year; Springfield, Mass.,) for August is a hot-weather number, the articles being mostly brief and the stories numerous. Prof. Borden P. Bowne writes on The "As If" of Atheism. There are also The Election of College Studies, Some Opinions About Opinion, and contributions by Rose Terry Cooke, Susan Coolidge, and Mrs. Edward Ashley Walker. The poems are many and seasonable. The Editor's Table has these articles:—Rebels and Reprobates, The Colleges and Public Morals, Studying Scripture by Samples. The name of the magazine will be changed with an early issue.

The August Wide Awake will prove a rich vacation treat to its hosts of readers, young and old. It opens with a cool-looking frontispiece of some bare-footed boys angling over the mill dam, and is followed by the poem which it illustrates, "Willy's Mishap," by Elizabeth W. Dennison. There is a funny negro "Story of a Hoe-Cake." Capital installments of the three serials, St. Olave's" (an exciting base-ball chapter), "The Dogberry Bunch," and "Don Quixote Jr.; besides No. VIII. of our "American Artists," relative to T. W. Wood, with portrait and studio drawn by the artist himself. $2 00 a year. 20 cents a number. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston. Mass.

The International Review for August contains "Current Politics and Literature in France," a very valuable paper from the pen of E. De Pressensé. That singular character "George Sand; her life and writings" has a second entertaining article by Leopold Katscbe. I. A. Farrer's account of the "Zulus" will be read with particular interest in view of the events in South Africa. "Cabinet Government in the United States," by Thomas W. Wilson and "Some Political Notes and Queries" throw out important thoughts and suggestions as to government and the course of political parties. "The Thoroughbred Race Horse," and "The Capture of Chief Joseph and the Nez Perces," are, in their lines of thought and information, worthy of special note. This Review maintains steadily its high character and deserved patronage. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.

Hon. Daniel F. Beatty.

Daniel F. Beatty, the newly elected Mayor of Washington, New Jersey, the famous piano and organ manufacturer comes out this year with his annual Mid-Summer Holiday Offer. It is by far the best offer of its kind yet made by this successful business man. Those of our readers who really wish to purchase a first-class piano or organ should not fail to read his advertisement in another column, and avail themselves of his magnificent offer at once.

The Forgetfulness of People.

The Oxford Professor who, to avoid the wind when taking snuff, turned around, but forgot to turn back, and walked six miles into the country, was no more forgetful than those who still use the huge, drastic, cathartic pills, forgetting that Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, which are sugar-coated, and little larger than mustard seeds, are a positive and reliable cathartic, readily correcting all irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold by druggists.

It is Worth a Trial.

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Complaint, Gravel. &c.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about, and was an old worn out man all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood and kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72, and I have no doubt it will do as well for others of my age. It is worth a trial."—(Father.)

Ecclesiastical Law
—AND—
Rules of Evidence:
With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
—BY—
HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,
—AND—
WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.
8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.
In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.
In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

MAKE HENS LAY.
An English Veterinary Surgeon and Chemist, now travelling in this country, says that most of the Horse and Cattle Powders sold here are worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are absolutely pure and immensely valuable. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Dose one teaspoonful to one pint food. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for eight letter stamps.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC
Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.
Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.
Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.
The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:
Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

PRAISE.

BY CHARLES F. RICHARDSON.

I praise Thee, God the Father, for this good gift of life,
Else I had never known the joy that brightens Christian strife.

I praise Thee, Christ the Savior, for all thine earthly woe;
Hadst Thou not grieved and died for me, I had not loved Thee so.

I praise Thee, Holy Spirit, thy grace hath entered in;
Until Thy light fell on my heart, I could not see my sin.

I praise Thee, blessed Trinity, Creator,
Savior, Guide;
O let the thanks that fill my soul forever
there abide!
—Sunday Afternoon for August.

A Boy Among Robbers.

How simply and beautifully has Abdel Kader, of Ghilon, impressed us with a love of truth in a story of his childhood. After stating the vision which made him entreat of his mother to go to Bagdad, and devote herself to God, he thus proceeds: I informed her of what I had seen, and she wept; then, taking out eighty dinars, she told me, as I had a brother, half of that was all of my inheritance; and she made me swear, when she gave it to me, never to tell a lie, and afterward bade me farewell, exclaiming, "Go, my son; I consign you to God; we shall not meet till the day of judgment."

I went on till I came near Hamadan, when our kafilah was plundered by sixty horsemen. One fellow asked me what I had got.

"Forty dinars," said I "are sewed under my garments."

The fellow laughed, thinking, no doubt, I was joking with him.

"What have you got?" said another.

I gave him the same answer. When they were dividing the spoil, I was called to an eminence where the chief stood.

"What property have you got, my little fellow?" said he.

"I have told two of your people already," said I. "I have forty dinars sewed in my garments."

He ordered them to be ripped open, and found my money.

"And how came you," said he, in surprise, "to declare so openly what had been so carefully concealed?"

"Because," I replied, "I will not be false to my mother, to whom I have promised I never will tell a lie."

"Child," said the robber, "hast thou such a sense of duty to thy mother at thy years, and I am insensible at my age of the duty I owe to my God? Give me thy hand, innocent boy," he continued, "that I may swear repentance upon it." He did so. His followers were all alike struck with the scene.

"You have been our leader in guilt," said they to their chief, "be the same in the path of virtue." And they instantly, at his order, made restitution of the spoil, and vowed repentance on his hand.

DEAR EDITOR—I hope that you can be of assistance to me in looking up my relations whom I left in South Carolina in the year 1856. I came from York City, S. C. My master's name was Bob McCloy. He died and I was sold at public sale with my entire family, consisting of father, mother, brothers and sisters. Mrs. Wm. Robinson bought father and mother. Father's name was Jason and mother's Rosa. My eldest brother, Jim, was a shoemaker. A man by the name of Hearn bought him. Hearn kept a tan yard. My other brothers' names are George, Jake, Sam, Bill, Jack and Dan: sisters', Morgaret and Jane. I left a wife with five children; her name was Martha and belonged to Edward Burse. Brothers Dan, Bill and Sam were sold to traders; the rest of the family were bought by the citizens. I am very anxious to hear from my family. My address is Anderson, Grimes Co., Texas. JASON McCLOUD.

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article is made up of common valuable remedies known to all, and that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

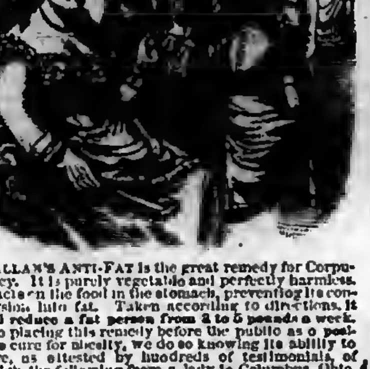
ANTI-FAT



ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week. In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN's drug store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from 180 pounds to 102 pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. POWELL & PLIMPTON, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "TO THE PROPRIETORS OF ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. 'It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost.'" Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp.

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.
To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)
The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.
Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.
Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.

A Relief Committee.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., July 26, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—At a meeting of the official board of Asbury Chapel on the 21st inst. the subject of yellow fever was discussed, as we had a fearful epidemic here last year, and many of our people suffered; and as the yellow fever now prevails in Memphis—a distance of only 50 miles—we apprehend the breaking out of the fever in our midst at any time. It was thought that in view of this fact precautionary steps should be taken, that in time of health we may be prepared for the possibilities of coming diseases; a meeting was called for the purpose of selecting a Relief Committee. On the following night the committee was selected as follows: Rev. J. M. Shumpert, chairman; J. Ogleaby, vice chairman; H. B. Brothers, secretary; Logan Gorman, treasurer; Henry Henderson and A. Burns; superintendents nurse department, Geo. Hill and Edward McGowan. This committee, having had the fever last year, have pledged themselves—should the fever break out this summer and fall—to stay in the city and do all in their power to relieve all who may need help. A great many, both white and colored, have already left the city. Congregations at all the churches are comparatively small, and times are extremely hard, especially to the laboring class—scarcely anything to do at all—yet we are cheerful, and thank God that it is no worse.

J. M. SHUMPERT.

The Business of the Preacher.

The business of the preacher is to save dying men, to induce them to renounce sin, and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ for salvation. This is declared in the very terms of his commission, to preach the Gospel that men may believe and be saved; and this result is to be sought in every sermon he preaches. He is not to wait to refute the errors of skepticism, or build a system of theology before he comes to the real point and purpose of his work to persuade men to be reconciled to God; but should go right to the mark and plead for, and expect, the salvation of souls. Mr. Spurgeon tells of a jail chaplain who preached on sin, and divided his discussion into two sermons: one Sunday the disease, and the second its cure. Between the two Sundays several of the prisoners were hanged. They had heard what they already knew, but failed to hear what they especially needed. That jail chaplain was not the only preacher who spends too much time on unessentials [illegible] before coming to [illegible] of his message. How [illegible] sermons do we hear that [illegible] the true end of preaching [illegible] the Lamb of God that taketh away the [illegible] and urging them [illegible] from the wrath to [illegible] preachers waste [illegible] be pleading [illegible] as a man [illegible]

Communion.

The following is the substance of a tract on Communion, issued by our Tract Society, New York:

There is no difference between communion and fellowship. They are both renderings of the same word in the Greek Testament. All the saints have fellowship with God, through Christ Jesus, by the Holy Ghost. In the same way they have communion with one another. They have, and shall forever have, a joint participation in the blessings of redemption. No Christian has any exclusive or superior right to approach God in the exercises of devotion or the privileges of the sanctuary.

Because the Lord's Supper is a high privilege and a delightful mode of expressing our love to Christ and our union with his people, that feast has been not inaptly called the communion. This mode of speaking seems to be authorized by the Scripture itself. "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" 1 Cor. x, 16. The apostle seems clearly to refer to the Lord's Supper, and he at once adds: "For we, being many, are one bread and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread."

It is a delightful fact that the Christian world seems to be coming more and more to the belief and practice of right principles on this subject. Some do still tenaciously adhere to narrow views, and will admit to the Lord's Supper none but those who adopt their sectional or denominational views. But the relative number of such is happily not on the increase. Large bodies of believers who once held to close communion now hold more scriptural views. In the days of Dr. John M. Mason the great body of the Associate Reformed Church in this country became enlightened on this matter, and have never gone back. In England it is said that two-thirds of all the Baptists agree with Bunyan, Robert Hall, and Spurgeon, in regarding questions of baptism as no bar to communion. This last named servant of Christ, in his sermon on the text, "These are they which separate themselves," (Jude 19.) says: "There is not a Christian beneath the scope of God's heaven from whom I am separated. At the Lord's table I always invite all Christians to come and sit down and commune with us. If any man were to tell me that I am separated from the Episcopalian, the Presbyterian, or the Methodist, I would tell him he did not know me, for I loved them with a pure heart fervently, and I am not separated from them.

"The pulse of Christ is communion, and woe to the Christian that seeks to cure the ills of Christ's Church by stopping its pulse. I think it a sin to refuse to commune with any one who is a member of the Church of our Lord Jesus Christ. I should think myself grossly in fault if, at the foot of these stairs, I should meet a truly converted child of God, who called himself a Primative Methodist, or a Wesleyan or a Churchman, or a Independent, and I should say: 'No, sir; you do not agree with me on certain points; I believe you are a child of God, but I will have nothing to do with you.' I should then think the text would bear very hard on me: 'These are they which separate themselves.'"

It is truly refreshing to find such sentiments openly avowed by this great preacher. It is devoutly desired that the day will soon come in this and in every land, when all ministers and Churches will heartily welcome to the Lord's table all who make a credible profession of faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. I do not doubt that that day is certainly coming.

The doctrine of the communion of saints is based on the broadest and clearest statements of God's word. There is no respectable body of Christians who deny that the Church of God is one. If this is so, let no friend of the Redeemer act as if Christ had two or more Churches on earth. Christ's people are his one body. There is one family of God named in heaven and earth. The Lamb has but one wife. The Beloved has but one spouse. There are not two Jerusalems, one of which is the mother of some of God's people, and another the mother of the residue of God's children.

The testimony of the Holy Ghost, given by Paul, is clear, and ought forever to settle this matter. "As the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body; so, also, is Christ. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit. For the body is not one member, but many." 1 Cor. xii, 12-14.

These words, in their connection and scope, ought forever to settle the question of visible and cordial recognition and fellowship between all the members of Christ's Church. The eye ought not to say. "I will owe the ear." The hand ought not to say to the foot, "I disown thee." Even the lame foot may need the hand the more on that account. There is no sound and logical argument for close communion.

Ripening for Glory.

Some of the planets finish their rotations in much less time than others. The nearer they are to the sun, the more speedily they revolve. Mercury, for instance, is not quite eighty eight days in accomplishing his year, while Saturn takes up considerably more than twenty-nine of our years in circuiting the same common center. Thus, some of God's converted people are soon matured for glory, by their nearness to and intimate communion with the Sun of righteousness. These are frequently known to outrun their brethern, and (like John at the tomb of our Lord) to reach the sepulchre, finish their course, and ascend to their Master's joy at a very early period; while other saints, who do not ripen so fast, or who have a large field of usefulness to occupy while on earth, are detained from their crown until they are full of years and good works. Each of these is gathered as a shock of corn in its season. O believer! if thy God summon thee away betimes, his Spirit will perfect that which concerneth thee; nor will Providence apply the sickle until grace has made thee white for the harvest. Or, if he lengthens thy thread, having much for thee to do, and much to suffer, he will show himself the God of thy old age, and not forsake thee when thou art grayheaded; for he hath invariably declared, "Even to your old, I and he; and even to hoar hairs will I carry you," Isa. xlvi: 5—Toplady.

Miscegenation.

The most monstrous legacy of the dark spirit of slavery and caste is the Marriage law of the Southern States, which forbids the marriage of a so-called white man or woman, however dark, with a colored woman or man, however fair, and punishes such a marriage, as is now done in poor dark Virginia, with imprisonment. The object of this law is professedly to prevent miscegenation, or the mingling of the blood of the African and Caucasian races; and there would be some show of sincerity in the law, though no justification of it, if it extended to all connection between these races—if it made prostitution of colored women by white men equally criminal with marriage. But whilst Southern law and custom have permitted the most unlimited miscegenation by old and young "massas" without marriage, it steps in and actually punishes the only Scriptural and proper way in which the mixture of races could take place. Such marriages, which, if everything were left free, would not occur once for a thousand cases of concubinage or fornication, are punished, whilst the latter are left free. The one case which is unobjectionable according to the law of God is punished by the pro-slavery laws of man in the South, whilst the thousand cases of connection condemned by the laws of God are passed over. And yet the pretence of the law, at which the devil must laugh his loudest, is to prevent miscegenation!—New York Witness.

John Milton.

Dean Stanley recently delivered a lecture at Westminister Chapel on John Milton. The body of the chapel was fully occupied by a deeply interested and appreciative audience and the lecture was in the Dean's happiest vein, abounding in felicitous allusion and illustration, and marked by exquisite literary taste, high moral and religious purpose, philosophic breadth and Christian charity. We propose to cull a few of the many rich statements of the lecturer and those only that relate to Milton as a poet.

With regard to the outward structure of Milton's works, as they were generally given to the public, there was one great drawback, which every educated man ought to correct for himself—namely, the neglect of the true chronological order. This was a misfortune which Milton's poems shared in common with the Bible. In the study of the Scriptures the recovery of the true chronological order of the books, where possible, as in the case of St. Paul's Epistles, had been found to be of astonishing advantage. In Milton's works the order was of importance, and so far as the poems were concerned might be stated as follows.—1, Comus, Lycidias, and several of the smaller poems, were written first, when he was quite young; 2, the Sonnets were written in middle life, mostly during his residence in York street; 3, Paradise Lost was written during a time of adversity, in the fullness of his powers, but in the decline of his fortunes; 4, Samson Agonistes was written in the decline of his life and powers. The Dean proceeded to give a few special instances of how the poems refer to scenes in Milton's life. In Paradise Lost there was an allusion to the late discoveries in the surface of the moon by Galileo. When a young man Milton had traveled in Italy and had seen Galileo, who was then blind, and had been greatly impressed by his interview with the philosopher and by the idea of the great importance of physical science. The scenes of Italy were frequently alluded to, and the allusions showed the accuracy of Milton's observations and the care with which he had treasured his remembrances. A striking example of this was afforded by the reference in Paradise Lost to the legions of lost spirits—

> "Who lay entranced
> Thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks
> In Vallombrosa."

Those who had visited Vallombrosa knew that there in the autumn the brooks were laden with leaves beaten from the branches of the adjacent trees. The well-known lines—

> "Ye mists and exhalations! that now rise
> From hill or steaming lake, dusky or grey,
> Till the sun paint your fleecy skirts with gold."

doubtless alluded to recollections of the Italian lakes, for at that time the English lakes were quite unknown. Milton afforded a fine example of the value of treasuring up the remembrances of objects seen in youth and in days of brightness and prosperity; these memories cheered and refreshed him in times of darkness and adversity.

In one respect we might use Milton's poems as we used the Bible. If we opened the Bible at random, or read it regularly, words fell upon our ear which we could carry away with us, and which would be of benefit to us. So with Milton. Atterbury, one of Dean Stanley's predecessors at the Abbey, was one of the first to appreciate the great merit of Milton's poetry. He was sent to the Tower as a political offender, and during his imprisonment there begged, as a special favor, that the scholars who were leaving Westminster School for the University might be permitted to visit him, as Dean of Westminster, according to a custom observed to this day. The request was granted; the scholars waited upon the imprisoned Dean, who took leave of them, quoting the closing words of Paradise Lost—

> "The world was all before them, where to choose > Their place of rest, and Providence their guide."

Among other instances of apt quotation from Milton, Dean Stanley mentioned the touching incident related of the son of Burke, who, lying upon his death-bed, attended by his afflicted father, caught the sound of the rustling of the night-wind outside the chamber window. The dying youth, turning his eyes upon his father, repeated the lines:

> "His praise, ye Winds, that from four quarters blow,
> Breathe soft or loud, and wave your tops, ye Pines,
> With every plant in sign of worship wave."

The repetition of those noble words was not felt to be alien to the feeling of that solemn hour.

Turning to a few of the more general characteristics of Milton's poetry, Dean Stanley said that, with regard to one great controversy of the day—behind which he could not but think that there was something hollow—the controversy between what was called, in barbarous terms which he did not like to use, "denominational and undenominational education," he would like to know what is the position of the works of Milton in relation to the upholders of either side. He did not know what that relation was, but if Milton might be included as a school-book, we had all we could want. For Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained, especially Paradise Lost, had colored all English theology from top to bottom. It would be very curious if Paradise Lost were admitted to the school by "denominational and undenominational" controversialists! But it was of more importance to remember the number of passages which impressed moral and religious truth in such a way that, once heard, they never could be forgotten. One noble characteristic of Milton was his remarkable purity of thought and word. This was the more remarkable from a comparison with most other poets of that time, who were licentious both in word and act. His own words (in Comus) were a striking exemplification of his spirit, and supplied a safeguard against all defiling, sensual, miserable thoughts—

> "So dear to Heaven is saintly chastity,
> That, when a soul is found sincerely so,
> A thousand liveried angels lackey her,
> Driving far off each thing of sin and guilt:
> And, in clear dream and solemn vision,
> Tell her of things that no gross ears can hear;
> Till oft converse with heavenly habitants
> Begin to cast a beam on th' outward shape,
> The unpolluted temple of the mind,
> And turn it by degrees to the soul's essence,
> Till all be made immortal."

As a specimen of the solemnity, seriousness, and loftiness of Milton's view of life, and of the importance of taking the right step in the choice of a profession, the Dean quoted part of Milton's Sonnet written on arriving at the age of 23:—

> "Yet be it less or more, or soon or slow,
> It shall be still in strictest measure even
> To that same lot, however mean or high,
> Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heaven;
> All is, if I have grace to use it so,
> As ever in my great Task-Master's eye."

It was impossible to put more finely the thought of the responsibility of choosing our walk of life. Another very striking characteristic of Milton's poetry was the stress placed upon the nobleness and value of independent, undaunted, moral courage. The representative of this spirit was the angel Abdiel, described in Paradise Lost—

> "Faithful found
> Among the faithless, faithful only he;
> Among innumerable false, unmoved,
> Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified;
> His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal;
> Nor number, nor example, with him wrought
> To swerve from truth, or change his constant mind,
> Though single.
> * * * * * * *
> Servant of God! well done; well hast thou fought
> The better fight, who single hast maintain'd
> Against revolted multitudes the cause
> Of truth, in word mightier than they in arms;
> And for the testimony of truth hast borne
> Universal reproach, far worse to bear
> Than violence; for this was all thy care
> To stand approved in sight of God, though worlds
> Judged thee perverse."

Can the English language, asked the Dean, can the Christian religion, can the teachings of morality go higher than this? or express in more fitting or harmonious words the sense of man's supreme obligation to his Maker? One other characteristic of Milton's teaching—his power of suggesting consolatory thought to the suffering—might be illustrated by reference to the well-remembered sonnet on his blindness—

> "When I consider how my light is spent,
> Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
> And that one talent, which is death to hide,
> Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent
> To serve therewith my Maker, and present
> My true account, lest He, returning, chide;
> 'Doth God exact day-labor, light denied?'
> I fondly ask. But Patience, to prevent
> That murmur, soon replies, "God doth not need
> Either man's work, or His own gifts; who best
> Bear His mild yoke, they serve him best; His state
> Is kingly; thousands at his bidding speed,
> And post o'er land and ocean without rest;
> They also serve who only stand and wait."

Such were the high thoughts which sustained him when that great affliction overtook him, so that, although the world was dark to him, "the celestial light shown inwardly." The last lines of Samson Agonistes might be regarded as summing the experience of that changeful, eventful, lofty, and steadfast life:—

> "All is best, though we oft doubt
> What the Unsearchable dispose
> Of highest Wisdom brings about,
> And ever best found in the close.
> Oft He seems to hide His face,
> But unexpectedly returns,
> And to His faithful champion hath in place
> Bore witness gloriously; whence Gaza mourns,
> And all that band them to resist
> His incontrollable intent.
> His servants He, with new acquist
> Of true experience, from this great event
> With peace and consolation hath dismiss'd,
> And calm of mind, all passion spent."

Learning in the Ministry.

No learning ever comes amiss to one who has to interpret, expound, and illustrate the Word of God. The preacher who would instruct and edify the flock, and win men to the knowledge of the truth, must be a well-read and intelligent as well as a devout man. He must subsidize all literature, and science and art, so far as possible, for the purpose of enriching his discourse and illustrating and simplifying the truth. True learning will make sermons more simple and plain and easy to be understood, and not less so. It is half-educated preachers who involve their meaning in a cloud of crude phrases and ill-chosen words, and astonish their hearers by loud-sounding adjectives. "How much learning it needs," said Archbishop Usher, "to make these things plain." Hence the necessity of wide reading and observation on the part of the preacher. McCheyne was noted as a minister of great devoutness and spirituality, and a great winner of souls. But he did not undervalue learning. His biography tells us that "in his days of most successful preaching, when, next to his own soul, his parish and his flock were his only care, he had been known to express a regret that he had not laid up in former days more stores of all useful knowledge; for he found himself able to use the jewels of the Egyptians in the service of Christ. His provious studies would sometimes flash into his mind some happy illustration of divine truth at the very moment when he was most solemnly applying the glorious gospel to the most ignorant and vile."

Learning in the ministry must never be preferred to piety; that was the grevious mistake in New England in the Standing Order, a century ago—a mistake which led to disastrous results. Better is piety without learning than learning without piety. But far better than either is piety conjoined with learning. The pulpit has suffered and may suffer from an excess of intellectualism, but it may also suffer from the lack of it. The religion that will meet the wants and do the work of the age, must be an intelligent one. Especially must those who assume to be teachers of others have somewhat to teach. The care of the heart with students for the ministry, and with ministers themselves, must ever be the first thing; next to this, they should seek, as Lord Bacon did, to make all knowledge their portion. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—Watchman.

Escaping from a Roman Catholic Prison.

According to the Court Circular, a nun has just effected her escape from the Convent of Clarisses, at Cambrai. She took the veil twenty-six years ago, but after a brief novitiate she found that she had mistaken her vocation, and for twenty-five years she has been imploring the Lady Superior to permit her to return to her family; but the doors were barred, she was carefully immured, and for a quarter of a century she has been planning her escape, which she at last effected by creeping through a breach made in a wall which some masons were repairing.

Patagonia is a vast country which forms the southern limit of the American Continent. Its area is about 350,000 square miles, nearly one and a half times the size of France. It was discovered in 1520, and in the days of Spanish domination nominally formed part of the viceroyalty of Buenos Ayres. The territory was afterward disputed by the Chilians and Argentines, but finally the former were allowed to occupy the whole of the Pacific coast region. Patagonia is sparsely peopled, the efforts to found colonies there having invariably failed.

An Ohio correspondent writes to the mission rooms: "Every member of the church shall be personally solicited by the pastor to contribute to each of the benevolent causes of the church. There is such an enthusiasm in these causes that we expect to go beyond our assessment in every cause."

A correspondent writes from Houma, La.: "The whole parish is pervaded by a spirit of restlessness in consequence of the Kansas movement. Colored people are saving their money, none are investing in real estate, no substantial improvements are being made by those who own property, for they live in doubt as to what the near future will demand."

Last year, says a correspondent himself a liberal giver and old pastor, there had been but $38 given and he brought it up next year to $125, and was disappointed that he did not get $200. He says of his work: "I usually do much preparatory work before Missionary day, then follow it with gleaning. I often say to men of means on a country circuit: 'I want for missions $5, $10, $20, and not unfrequently bring them up to that, when they had been giving but 50 cents, or a single dollar."

Shall Our Organic Law Establish Vice?

To the People of Louisiana:

As a long-time member of this commonwealth, who has labored much—though, perhaps, vainly—for her advantage; has paid tens of thousands of dollars into her treasury, and never sought for or received favors, I beg leave to protest most earnestly against the action of the Convention on this subject.

In article 171 of the new Constitution, "gambling is declared to be a VICE," while article 167 provides that as many companies as choose to pay a certain sum may carry on the worst and most pernicious form of gambling for fifteen years! This is something for the people to rectify, and the moral duty of it rests now upon the voters.

The fifty-two delegates who voted against the clause, with the absentee who agreed with them, constituted a large majority of the Conservatives of the Convention, and an overwhelming preponderance of the moral and intellectual force. But the "solid" Radicals held the balance of power, and it was they that foisted on us this curse.

I beg leave to ask why the Convention should decide this question as to the lottery and destroy the case, which is made up in the United States Court, between the Commonwealth and the Company, and thereby prevent the Federal Supreme Court from passing on it, when that court has actually reserved for us the vital question involved.

In "Boyd vs. Alabama," [4 Otto], the Court say: "We are not prepared to admit that it is competent for one Legislature, by any contract with an individual, to restrain the power of a subsequent legislature to legislate for the public welfare, and, to that end, to suppress any and all practices tending to corrupt the public morals. 48 Miss., 147; 34 N. Y., 663."

Other most respectable courts have either reserved this great question, or decided in the negative.

Now there is but little fear of the Federal Supreme Court deciding against us, for, in doing so, they must declare that the sovereignty's legislative power, which is charged with the defence and welfare of the people and the protection of public order, safety, morality and health, can charter a big groggery, a big [illegible], or a gambling establishment, and put the business of it out of the [illegible] control for [illegible]. The very idea is [illegible] the power to do im[illegible] do, and is always [illegible] to do, when nec[illegible]

[illegible]

Convention is by management made to do the contrary! When the State tries to relieve herself of the curse, and is actually on the judicial way to the highest tribunal under God, the Convention, (which possesses no power whatever except to plan and propose), stops her, and says: "You shall have no decision; and your legislature shall let the lottery alone. Nay, more; you shall have no new constitution, unless you take with it not only this lottery company, but as many others as can flock here for fifteen years! You shall either swallow this pill, gilded with $40,000, even though it be poison, or you shall have no medicine for your maladies!"

I beg leave to urge, then, that the Convention should not be allowed to prevent the courts from decision, or the legislature from lawful repeal.

AS TO THE POWERS OF REPEAL,

I will venture to say a few words, as it is another point seemingly misunderstood. Unremitting vigilance and care over men and things are required of her rulers by the State as a general rule. Exemption from such control, under charters, is necessarily exceptional, and must be strictly construed. And these charter exemptions can only be presumed to be intended for business that is unquestionably promotive of the public good. In Angell and Ames on Corporations is set forth the principle of public policy to be kept in view: "The public benefit is deemed a sufficient consideration of a grant of corporate privileges; and hence when a grant of such privileges is made (being in the nature of an executed contract), it cannot, in case of a private corporation, which involves private rights, be revoked. The object of creating a corporation is * * * the successful promotion of some design of general utility. * * * The principle is, as Domat says, 'that the design of a corporation is to provide for some good that is useful to the public.'" (See Dartmouth col. case)

And this was precisely the view of our wise and provident legislators of 1825, in recognizing the possibility that a seeming good might prove to be a blistering curse, and providing for legislative remedy. So they put in article 447, C. C., the legal condition upon which all subsequent charters (including the Lottery Company's) have been granted, that they are repealable on indemnification—thus establishing, in these cases, a mode of expropriation—so to speak—a sort of taking of private property, with previous compensation, for public use. In view of this, I ventured to forewarn the last Legislature to PROVIDE INDEMNIFICATION IN ITS ACT OF REPEAL, but, like bad boys, repudiators, or tyrants, they said: "We can, and therefore we will, do this thing." Article 447, C. C., reads as follows: "A corporation, legally established, may be dissolved: 1. By act of the Legislature, if they deem it necessary and convenient to the public interest; provided that when the act of incorporation imports a contract, on the faith of which individuals have advanced money or engaged their property, it cannot be repealed without providing for the reimbursement of the advances made, or making full indemnity to such individuals. * * *"

Our legislators remembered the man who put on the shirt of Nessus—clean, well starched, buttons all right—but who afterwards wanted to shuck himself and—couldn't! and they provided the above article. Why should this Convention virtually change itself into a Legislature and nullify it?

Is it not astonishing that when just judicial action, and wise legislation, were ready and willing to attack this monster, the Convention—mighty to save—should rush and DECLARE GAMBLING TO BE A "VICE" (Article 171), AND IN THE SAME BREATH MAKE IT INSTITUTIONAL FOR FIFTEEN YEARS! (Article 167.)

To put it as mildly as I can, I beg leave with due deference to [illegible], that the establishment of [illegible] an article as the one in question, among the many legitimate [illegible] excellent ones that make up [illegible] prospective organic law, seems [illegible] case of an artisan, employed to make a chain of gold, who puts [illegible] brazen and cankering, [illegible] gilded links.

[illegible] AND PRETENSES.

[illegible] said "THE MONOPOLY [illegible] DONE AWAY [illegible] and it makes Louisiana [illegible] par excellence, [illegible] of the world [illegible] proletarians, [illegible]—all in short [illegible] without care [illegible] increase that [illegible] people, [illegible] be out in [illegible] of men as a [illegible] said "THE [illegible] AND [illegible] has the ingenious delegate did not say that the company will demoralize our people, corrupt our politics, and become most potent, (as it has been already) in our city and State affairs. For fifteen years we are to have a Frankenstein monster, above the Legislature, above the law, and above even the commonwealth!

Finally, it is said: "THIS IS AN IRREPRESSIBLE EVIL, AND THE EFFORTS TO PREVENT IT HAVE BEEN VAIN; THEREFORE WE RECOGNIZE IT AND MAKE IT PAY." All the vices and crimes of society are "irrepressible evils," therefore let us recognize all of them and make them pay. I beg leave to say I have never seen or heard anything like this in the writings, speeches or talk of any statesman or jurist. We certainly should base all our policy on principle, and aim at promoting the welfare of the States, the people, and coming generations. The line between good and evil, virtue and vice, honor and dishonor, is plain; and there can be no doubt on which side all public men and acts should be.

In conclusion, I beg leave to press upon our people immediate reflection on the idea of VOTING FOR THE CONSTITUTION EXCEPT SUCH AND SUCH ARTICLES; so that they will not be obliged to vote down a great blessing in order to get rid of an ensconsed curse.

Respectfully, B. J. SAGE.

Temperance Notes.

A school-teacher, in a locality where drinking water is somewhat scarce, called his scholars to bring their bottles of water to him. Upon inspection, he discovered that out of sixty-five bottles, all but three were labeled with the following significant labels: "Old Tom Gin," "Old Bourbon," "Old Rye," etc. Mark those scholars, unless they be surrounded in the near future by a decided temperance sentiment their end will be awful. "The way of the transgressor is hard."

A wreck of a man is sojourning in Houma. He came all the way from Pointe Coupee with what is called a "wheel of fortune," but from his appearance you would judge that he came with a half dozen wheels of misfortune. He has been drinking very hard, has had two or three spells of the blue devils and looks generally shattered. He appears to have been of some culture. Gambling and strong drink conquered him.

The Constitutional Convention, after a most disgraceful backdown, declared the Liquor Traffic a police ordinance. Brethren in the glorious cause of temperance will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly. Get ready to pound your police juries. Bring facts and figures to them—backed by strong petitions.

Rev. A. E. Albert, of Houma, La., writes that he is teaching, preaching and spreading temperance; has seven temperance societies in flourishing condition, aggregating 300 members; has traveled 1300 hundred miles on horseback, about 400 miles on cars and in buggy within limits of his circuit since conference. Last Saturday it was expected to have a grand demonstration of societies on parade in full regalia, headed by the Thibodaux brass band. Thos. H. Jones, P. W. G. T., and other officers were to deliver orations.

The First Victim.

Rev. B. F. Tillar, pastor of our St. John's Chapel, Memphis, Tenn., died of yellow fever May 26. On the 19th Bro. T. spent part of the day with the writer en route to his family who were sick at Shelbyville. He said: "I shall return shortly to Memphis and do all I can for the people and God." He reached home Saturday at midnight: one hour afterwards was a victim of fever, and one week after was in his grave. A noble, true, earnest minister has fallen—a hero who fell at a trying post. He leaves a wife and children, who, with a host of friends, will feel the loss. He loved the Methodist Church as he loved his life. Four years of his life was spent in the ministry of our church—years full of success. He is the first pastor of our church to lose his life in the Memphis epidemic. R.

August 10, 1879.—THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT.

SCRIPTURE.—Gal. 5: 22-26; 6: 1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."—6: 6.

TOPIC.—The Two Harvests.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher]

Introductory.—The key-note to the Epistle to the Galatians is: "Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made you free." He declares that if they are circumcised the death of Christ will profit them nothing; for the reason that then they would be depending upon the works of the law, and not upon the efficacy of his atonement. Then he shows them, that to walk after the Spirit really is to fulfil the law—for love is the fulfilment of the law.

Walking in the Spirit (24-26).—"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." In other words, the life should correspond with the profession. And "if" we live in the Spirit, we will walk in the Spirit. The inward revolution will show itself in outward fruit. A change in heart will always exhibit itself in a change in life. Many men are virtuous simply because they never have been tempted. They do not know the struggles that other men daily experience. It is easy for one whose table is always well supplied to condemn a man who for hunger steals a loaf of bread. Those who are the loudest to condemn usually are those who themselves have never been tried. Those who have fought the battle and come off victorious, know how hard it is, are always compassionate and pitiful. The apostle deduces the general truth: "Bear ye one another's burdens." "Burdens" refer not merely to guilt, but to any weights that are hard to bear. Poverty, sickness, affliction, bereavement—anything that sympathy and aid may remove or alleviate. "And so fulfil the law," or, rather, "thus shall ye fulfil the law of Christ." One who does not thus "fulfil the law of Christ" has no right to consider himself as belonging to Christ's disciples. "But let every man prove his own work." It is a terrible thing to be mistaken. In a matter so momentous he needs to be sure that he is right. And he is to prove, not his own opinion—but his work. He is to test his Christian profession by what he has done. Whose burdens has he borne? Whose trials has he made lighter? What brother has he reclaimed? And, when he has done this, if he has found instances of which his conscience approves, "Then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another." "Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things." It is an injunction that the [illegible] should support the pulpit.

Sowing to the Spirit (7-7).—"Be not deceived; God is not mocked." The idea meant to be conveyed is, that excuse for not giving may seem good and valid unto men, but God can not be deceived with them. The proof that he does so is exhibited in the fact that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." There are two kinds of soil—the flesh and the Spirit. Every husbandman knows that some sorts of soil are adapted to one kind of seed, and others to kinds totally different. He must not only sow good seed, but sow it where it will best come up. Just so in spiritual husbandry. The flesh is the proper soil for all evil desires and passions. Those who "sow unto the flesh" sow with reference to gratifying them. And they of the flesh reap corruption—for that is the final result of all that pertains to the flesh. The sinner's death, be it noticed, is not any arbitrary decree, but the natural and inevitable consequence of his own act. It is the legitimate consequence of his own sowing. "But he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Deaths.

Sister Susan Drayton, wife of Rev. James Drayton, died July 10. Sister Charlotte Green, May 22.

D. D. G.

Vicksburg, July 29, 1879.

Sister Louise Williams, a member of the First St. M. E. Church, died on the 18th of July 1879, one of the happiest deaths a Christian could die. She had her senses until the last moment. She said she was waiting until the moment when the ship of Zion would come along and take her home. She often spoke of sister Ambrose, her sister in the Lord. She leaves one son and daughter to mourn her loss. REV. HENRY GREEN. Pastor.

M. H. Powells departed this life on the 18th of July, 1879, in the full triumph of faith, after an illness of nine months. He was converted to the Lord, and a visitor of the First Street M. E. Church. His last words to his mother were, "I am going home to rest from my suffering," to tell his sister goodbye and meet him in heaven. He leaves his mother and sister to mourn his loss. Rev. H. Green visited him frequently during his illness. A FRIEND.

Sister Kate Smith departed this life July 21, six months after her husband's decease. Sister Smith, after suffering from consumption for 10 months and 21 days, passed from suffering to her reward. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for 8 years, was patient and resigned to the will of God. She often said, "I am just waiting on the Lord." One week before she died she said she viewed heaven, and saw her little children there. Just before she died she said, "All is well, don't grieve after me." She leaves three daughters to mourn her loss. "Servant of God, well done." P. BLUE, P. C.

NIJNE NOVGOROD FAIR. The great market of the eastern world has been held at this junction of the Volga and Olga Rivers in Russia, every summer for hundreds of years. Here the nations of Europe and Asia meet with their products for trade. Cossack, Chinese, Turk and Persian meet the German and the Greek with every variety of merchandise that mankind employs, from sapphires to grindstones, tea, opium, fur, food, tools and fabrics, and last but not least, medicines. J. C. Ayer & Co.'s celebrated remedies from America were displayed in an elegant Bazaar, where the Doctor himself might sometimes be seen. They are known and taken on steppes of Asia as well as the prairies of the West, and are an effectual antidote for the diseases that prevail in the yaourts of the North as well as the huts and cabins of the western continent.—Lincoln (Ill.) Times.

The body of Joseph Standing a Mormon elder, recently shot in Georgia, was received by a large concourse of people at Ogden and Salt Lake city.

New Books.

SOUTHERN STUDENT'S HAND BOOK of selections for Reading and Oratory. By John O. James, superintendent of Military Institute, Austin, Texas. A. S. Barnes & Co., New York, Chicago and New Orleans. Price $1.50.

About one fourth the selections of prose and poetry in this book of over 400 pages are excellent, but of the balance the majority are very common-place. The authors from which all the quotations are made are selected from the Southern States. And not only are all the authors Southern as to residence, but also extremely Southern as to sentiment, on whatever points they are quoted, touching any political question. Henry Clay and Southerners of his type have no place in this book. Only men who believed in secession and the confederacy, etc., can, according to the judgment of the author, rightly put words into the mouths of Southern youth. All the selections on subjects which could at all touch political issues present or past, present the extreme Southern views. Robert Toombs is quoted on "The Territories Common Property of the People;" and, in one sentence he declares the duty of the United States to be "to remove all impediments to their free enjoyment by all sections and people of the Union, and slave-holder and the non-slave-holder." In another quotation from Toombs we have this: "These people of the Southern colonies are much more strongly, and with a higher and much more stubborn spirit, attached to liberty than those of the northward. Such were all the ancient commonwealths, such were our Gothic ancestors, and such, in our day, were the Poles; such will be all the masters of slaves who are not themselves slaves." One selection depicts "Federal despotism in Maryland," others give the Southern views on slavery, reconstruction, State rights, etc. The United States government in its unity and greatness, the Declaration of Independence which gave birth to the Republic, and other like topics which it would be supposed American youths should be instructed upon, find no place in this Southern Hand Book. This is the very worst type of a book to put in the hands of Southern youth. Sectionalism plunged the South into the war and curses it to-day. How supreme the folly of putting thoughts and arguments into the mouths of the school-boys of the South by which to perpetuate this sectionalism! And yet this book is but a specimen of the school-books that are being put in to the public and private schools all over the South!!

MARRIAGE. By Joseph Cook. Published by Houghton, Osgood & Co., Boston. $1.50.

This volume contains ten lectures and as many preludes on current events by Joseph Cook, whose fame as a lecturer on scientific and practical topics has become world wide. The subjects of the lectures are: 1. Infidel Attacks on the Family. 2. A Supreme Affection Between Two. 3. The Leper's Theory and Practice. 4. Marriage Without Love. 5. Obstacles to Marriage. 6. Love Without Marriage. 7. Elective Affinities; or, Who Should Marry Whom? 8. Goethe and Shakspeare on Marriage. 9. Inherited Educational Forces. 10. Hereditary Taints in Blood. The discussions on current events, one of which precedes each lecture, are on the following topics: 1. The Reformation of Romanism. 2. American Bondage to the Uneducated. 3. Ruskin's Charter and Writings. 4. Falstaff and Lord Verisopht as Theologians. 5. Why I am not a Universalist. 6. Cause and Effect in the Soul's Future. 7. Equal Educational Rights for Black and White. 8. Literary Conferences at World's Exhibitions. 9. Virchow's Reply to Hackel's Materialism. 10. What Lies Behind the Key-board of the Nerves? In these lectures Mr. Cook bases his views of Marriage on natural laws. He takes several instances of pure and noble types of wives and husbands among the pagans, who in practice and teachings gave examples of supreme love and affection in their homes. One of these was Panthea, wife of Abradatus, who said, "My home is on my husband's breast," and who, when her husband was dead, died with his dead bosom as a pillow. These instances show that among the pagans the ideal marriage had as its natural basis a supreme affection. A second fundamental proposition is that a supreme affection can only exist between two, and again only as a supreme affection exists can a marriage naturally take place. Mr. Cook claims "That when marriages are natural according to this definition, the best possible means for the preservation of the best of the race are brought together." These principles are sound, and lie at the basis of all true ideas of marriage. We have scarcely ever had a book from any author which has given more genuine pleasure. Beginning right as to true marriage, the lecturer is right all the way through. He shows all phases of freeloveism to be unnatural, and therefore unscientific and wicked. He ridicules the laws which make divorces easy. Some of his best points are made in discussing the pre-natal influences which effect character. This is a book for every thoughtful person to read.

New Publications.

The Popular Science Monthly for August comes freighted as usual with very rich and valuable matter. Black's article on "Removal of Inherited Tendencies of Disease" is one of special value as showing how hereditary predispositions to special disease, like consumption, may be counteracted by the wise use of hygienic principles. "Food and Feeding," in relation to the preparation of food and the combination and service of dishes to form a meal is very entertaining and suggestive. "Re-education of the Adult Brain" is quite curious in the facts it presents, and is important as a contribution to mental science. "Chloral and other Narcotics" shows how easily a simple scientific discovery, valuable as a medicine, becomes a great evil by abuse, and how readily mankind attach themselves to varied cravings after intoxicants which end at last in deterioration and destruction. In Physics we have a number of remarkably able discussions as "The Molecular Theory," and "The Brightness of the Fixed Stars." The article on "Neuter Insects," "Agnosticism as Developed in Huxley's Hume," "Of the Age of Cave Dwellers in America," "Dry Rot in Lumber," "Generic Images," "Geographical Evolution," "Monarchy and Its Drawbacks," are followed by the editor's table, Literary notices and Popular Miscellany, all of which are particularly worthy of the special attention of every reader.

THAT THE PHONOGRAPH can "bottle up" the voice and pass it down to future ages is indeed a wonder, but is not the restoration of a lost voice more wonderful? And yet Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery speedily restores a lost voice, cures hoarseness, sore throat, bronchitis and consumption. Many ministers who had abandoned the pulpit, by reason of sore throat and general debility, have, by the use of the Discovery, been restored to perfect health and strength. Sold by all druggists.

It is Worth a Trial.

"I was troubled for many years with Kidney Complaint, Gravel, &c; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about, and was an old worn out man all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood and kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72, and I have no doubt it will do as well for others of my age. It is worth a trial."—(Father.)

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

AS A FLOWER OF THE FIELD.

BY ALEXANDER R. THOMPSON, D.D.

Buttercups and daisies,
Silver threads and gold,
In and out the green grass
Of the meadows old.
Sown by—who hath sown them?
Who may have a care?
God himself did sow them
In His garden fair.

Garniture right radiant
Over hill and dale,
Specks of golden sunshine,
Points of moonlight pale.
King-cups with their gold rims,
Stars that fell in showers
Where flit by the bird wings,
Over grass and flowers.

Then the earth is winsome
As she were a bride,
When their eyelids open
In the sweet springtide.
Broidery of beauty
For the eyes of God,
Delicately woven
Over the brown clod.

Like as does God's spring-breath
Breathe fair life and bloom
Over frozen meadows,
Locked in winter's tomb;
So might God's own Spirit
Breathe His life in me,
Dull and sere heart hiding
With love's broidery.

35 years since, to Rob't. Seward, in Richard, Va. Have never heard from them yet. I went to Texas with Seward, who died, and I was sold to Gen. Armstead, whence I came to Mississippi. Had four brothers and one sister. Sister's name is Margaret Carter, oldest brother, Henderson Carter. Address me at Oxford, Lafayette Co., Miss. MARY FERGUSON.

DEAR EDITOR—I am seeking the whereabouts of my Uncle Jonah Hartly. Mr. Edwin A. Glover bought him from his first owner, Capt. Hartly, and brought him to Texas. Uncle being very sickly, and unable to work, he sent him back to Alabama, Marengo Co., about one year before emancipation. He left his wife here. Her name is Mary Ann. My mother, Jonah's sister, is named Sear, and my father's name is Frank Jackson. Preachers and readers, sympathize with me in my search for my uncle, Jonah Hartly, and if found, address me at San Felipe, Austin Co., Texas.

W. H. JACKSON.

MR. EDITOR—I am seeking the whereabouts of Mother, two brothers and one sister. Mother's name is Julia Echoles; sister's Ellen; brothers' Lowen and Tom Echoles. I received a letter from her in the year 1870. She was then living in Desoto Co., near Cold Water Springs, Miss. I have not heard from her since we used to belong to Larkin Echoles. I was brought from there by a negro trader by the name of Henry Vanhusen and sold in Texas to a man by the name of Wm. English. My uncle George was sold with me, but I know not where he is. Any information leading to the whereabouts of the above-named persons will be gladly received. Address me in care of Prof. W. H. Jackson, San Felipe, Austin county, Texas.

Gentlemen conservatives, these are some of the footprints of material progress of the present generation. Do you think the moral world will remain the same as before? that society will be unaffected by these changes? If you do, let me call your attention to the fact that this same generation has seen the abolition of slavery on a grand scale, the ascendency of republican America, the opening of China and Japan, the institution of world's fairs, the spread of the insurance system, and the agitation for the freedom of women. And the march is steadily going on, with accelerating motion. What is its meaning? Where will it end?

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article is made up of common valuable remedies known to all, and that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

IN THE MORNING SOW THE SEED.

In the spring the soil is richer;
And the rains more frequent, fresher,
Sow thy seed.
Let the grain grow strong and healthy
Ere the insects, countless, stealthy,
Bide in hurtful numbers come.

When the summer's sun is shining,
And the world is in its blooming,
Pull the tares.
Watch the fences, make them stronger,
Watch and wait a little longer.
Harvest joyful comes at last.

Here is autumn—take the sickle,
Fear no more the season fickle,
Bind the sheaf.
Reap, for plenty crowns thy labor;
Rest in peace, nor dread the winter;
Happy, rest, for toil is past.

While the heart is young and tender,
While the spirit's fresh and eager,
Sow thy seed.
Let the sun of gladness beaming,
In the early morn go streaming,
Warming, waking it to life.

When the noon-day's sun is glowing,
And its fervent heat is pouring
On thy head
O be faithful, watchful, earnest,
And the fruit for which thou yearnest—
Fruit abundant comes at last.

it is taught in God's Word. The story of the cross is an old story with them, but they carry it in their hearts along with their voices, and it is next to impossible to dislodge either. False teachers have been among them for these many years, teaching them that they can do most anything so they confess it to God and ask pardon. Before these people can be saved, other churches will have to be planted among them, where a christianity will be taught that will include a strict observance of the commandments and holiness of life as a test of membership.

I have now three regular appointments, and have organized one society with a few members, besides, I preach whenever and wherever I find an opportunity, and I am confident, by the help of God, from present indications, ere this conference year closes I will have at least three flourishing societies on this circuit; that is, if the whites will let me stay and labor for the salvation of these poor people, but I am doubtful as to whether they will or not.

Letter from Huntington.

HUNTINGTON, Tenn., Aug. 4, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—We are having a glorious time here: forty or fifty come to the anxious seat nightly, Seven or eight have professed a hope in Christ and still the work goes on. I am doing all I can to point sinners to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the the world. We have 113 scholars in our day school, many of whom are inquiring the way to Jesus, while others confide in Him. We spend half an hour every morning in singing and praying with them. The Lord showers down blessings upon us. A great many of the little ones weep bitterly on account of sin. Oh! the good that we might do as teachers in bringing our scholars to the Savior if we would only talk, sing and pray with them a little at the proper time. Sometimes the souls of my scholars get happy and they come to me, throw their arms around me and ask me to pray for them. We had a written examination on the 25th July. All the advanced scholars were examined and reflected credit upon themselves, it being the first written examination they had ever tried to pass. At night we had a spelling match at which many of the parents were present and seemed to enjoy it. We have succeeded in awakening an interest in the cause of education. We have been trying to get the teacher of our district to have a teacher's institute and think we will succeed in having one the last of this or the first of next month. Our Sabbath-schools are in a flourishing condition.

I write this to let my brethren know that I am still trying to do my duty as a teacher and local preacher of the M. E. Church, which has and is still doing so much for our people. G. N. JOHNSON.

It has been estimated that there are in the State of New York no fewer than 6,400 ecclesiastical organizations of all denominations, occupying nearly as many edifices, which furnish seats for over 2,000,000 persons, and having an enrolled membership of 1,300,000 in round numbers. The aggregate value of the church edifices and the lots which they occupy is about $101,110,000, to which should be added, say $16,500,000, the value of the parsonages and other real estate belonging to the various denominations. The Methodist Episcopal Church is the most powerful one in the state, all things considered. It has the largest number of edifices, the largest number of sittings, and pays its clergymen 20 per cent more money in salaries than any other denomination.

The Austin, Texas, Miscegenation Case.

Last week we noticed the sentence of Emile Francois to five years in the penitentiary for marrying a quadroon, by the judge of the Texas District Court. In the Austin Gazette of July 27, we find the summary of the brief of C. T. Garland, Esq., the attorney of Francois, who has appealed the case to the United States Circuit Court.

We have it from valuable authority that there is quite a talk of resisting the decision of the United States Court should that decision release Francois. The decision and result will be awaited with interest. The brief before us makes the following points in substance:

Article 386 of the Texas criminal code is unconstitutional and void so far as it prohibits the intermarriage of the white and negro races.

Said article 386 has been abrogated by the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments and the "enforcement acts" in so far as it makes intermarriage a crime and punishable criminally as to only the white race.

Various legal authorities are cited in support of these two propositions, particularly the second, upon which the case is expected to turn. The ground upon which the Texas court of appeals held contrary to the second proposition in State vs. Frasher, was that the late amendments were made especially for the negro, and that, therefore, Frasher, not being colored, could not take advantage of them on the ground that said article 386 discriminated against his race in the matter of punishment. As opposed to this theory of our court of appeals the recent case of Ho Ah How vs. Mathew Nunan, sheriff of San Francisco, is cited, wherein Justice Field of the United States supreme court, (Judge Sawyer concurring) held that the notorious San Francisco queue-cutting ordinance (providing that all petty criminals shall have their hair cropped short) discriminates against the Chinese in the matter of punishment and is therefore in conflict with that provision of the fourteenth amendment which declares that no State shall "deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law."

This decision of Justice Fields sustains that of Judge Duval in ex parte Lou. Brown (a miscegenation case brought before him in 1877 from Waco). Judge Duval discharged this woman because said article 386 punishes only the white race and not the black. These decisions of Judge Field, Sawyer and Duval are shown to be really in harmony with the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court in the famous "slaughter-house cases," wherein it was held that "the letter and spirit of these articles (the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments), must apply to cases coming within their purview whether the party concerned be of African descent or not."

The brief before us maintains, therefore, that our appellate court's decision, in Frasher vs. State, must be regarded as distinctly overruled by the federal courts; that the "civil rights bill" of April 9, 1866, passed to enforce the thirteenth amendment, really put an end to inequality of punishments as between the races, that the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments and the later enforcement acts have an infinitely stronger bearing in the same direction; and that, the courts having held that the benefits of said amendments are not restricted to the African race, therefore the Caucasian, as well as the Mongolian, should be permitted to enjoy them, unless a Chinaman's "pig-tail" is to be more sacredly protected than a white man's liberty.

An account of a communion service in the Presbyterian Church at Atlanta, Ga., when Senator Gordon and Congressman Candler sat at the Lord's table with a colored woman, has been going the rounds. The report from Atlanta said "that the matter caused some talk, but was generally approved." The Presbyterian quotes this, and adds editorially: "We do not know why this should occasion any 'talk.' Twenty years ago the writer was a pastor in a Southern church, in the days of slavery, and then white and black sat together in his church at the same communion table. Separate communion services for white and black were never thought of or hinted at in that church."—Christian Intelligencer.

Last Day of Eve.

BY MISS MARY A. CHESTER.

It approached the evening twilight. The mother of mankind was placed by her descendents in front of her tent, reclining on a rude couch. The western wind fanned her pale cheek, and played amidst her gray locks. Near her sat her husband. Eve turned her eye upon him with a look of sadness, yet of deep affection, and as she saw his wrinkled brow, bent form, and head of snowy whiteness, seemed to call to mind other days.

Inwardly she reproached herself. "Ah! not thus was it I saw him, when first given to me by our God. Where has vanished that manly form—where is the elastic step—where the eye that beamed with brightness—where now the rich and mellow voice? Alas, how changed! And it was I who tempted, who destroyed him—I, the wife—the cherished companion—I bade him eat, and now what is he who but for me had known neither pain nor sorrow nor age! And what remains of her on whose beauty he then gazed with unsated pleasure! A trembling, wrinkled form, just sinking into the grave. Where is now that paradise with its rich fruits—that balmy air, which brought on every breath a tribute to each happy sense—those rays which warmed but never scorched? And sadder, sadder still, where now is that blissful intercourse with Him who made us rich in the happiness of living? His voice is no longer in our ears—driven from bliss—from scenes so lovely—the earth cursed—sin, sorrow, and death, the inheritance of of our children."

Our mother was overcome by the rush of recollections. Her eyes, long dry, found new fountains, and her aged form shook with deep emotion.

It may be that Adam had been indulging in musings not unlike, for he was startled, as if from a revery, by the emotions of his wife. The old man placed himself beside her—she laid her head on the bosom which had so often soothed its throbbings. "What ails thee, Eve."

"Oh, my husband, how can'st thou show kindness to her who has done all this? Thou wast young, and knew only happiness, and all around was formed to delight our every sense, and I, who should have strengthened thy virtue, fell, and dragged thee with me, the partner of my sin, to this depth of ruin. And after a few years of toil and anxiety, we are about to lay these worn-out frames in the dust.

"But for sin, we had lived in perpetual youth, and feared no change. The threatened death has worked slowly but surely, and now his work is nearly done.

"The first to sin, it was meet that I should first return to dust. Had the guilt and the curse been only mine, I might endure it; but I see thee now, and I compare thee with what thou wast, as it seems to me but yesterday.

"A few days will lay thee low. Let our children place us side by side in the cold earth. I know not why it is, yet it seems to me there will be pleasure in our bodies dissolving together, as if there were something of consciousness in the lifeless chest. Little of comfort as is now left in life, yet I cannot endure the thought that I shall utterly cease to be.

"Adam, thou hast given me words of consolation. Is there aught to cheer me, now I am to bid thee farewell?

"Thou seest yonder sun—thou wilt again see it rise and set—he is bidding me a last adieu.

"Sense shall soon cease forever, and no light shall again enter these eyes."

The old man wiped the tears that fell on the wrinkled brow of his partner. A sudden light was on his countenance, as if a new lamp had been lit up in his soul. Eve saw it, and it brought to her a gleam of hope; she gazed on his face as if death had lent new powers to her faded vision.

"First of woman," said Adam, "claim no pre-eminence in guilt—together we sinned—together we have borne the punishment. But there is redemption—there is hope.

"Whilst thinking of the fearful change which betokened to my heart that its partner was about to be taken away, a heavenly light beamed on my thoughts, and taught me to understand the visions which have often visited me on my couch. We shall not die—there is costly ransom provided. We must sleep under the cold earth, but we shall rise again in the freshness of that youth which we first enjoyed; and, purified from all sin, we shall walk in our own Eden, seven times more beautiful than when we first roved amidst its fruits and flowers.

"And there will be the ten thousand who, inheriting our evil natures, will have found a powerful Physician, and there will be that mighty Physician, whose presence shall wake ten thousand harps to melody.

"This earth, too, so long grieviously cursed for our sin, will come forth more than purified from every stain, and in more than its pristine youth.

"Thou wilt go a little before me to the grave; but we shall rise together with the glad shout of gratitude, and with us millions of our posterity ransomed from the curse." Adam paused—his eye fell on the face of his wife—a smile seemed to play in the brightness of hope on her pale lips, but the heart had ceased to beat, and that sleep had fallen on her which the trump of the arch-angel only shall disturb.

The Refugees in Kansas.

We daily receive letters from all parts of the country asking questions concerning the colored people who have come to Kansas this spring and summer, and to give a general answer to all such inquiries we write this article: For the past four or five years colored people in considerable numbers have been coming to this State, but their coming attracted no more attention than that of other nationalities, until, when they in large numbers and destitute condition, brought their coming directly before the people of the State in such a manner as to produce considerable excitement, and, in some quarters, a great deal of bad feeling was excited, and decided opposition expressed. All of this, however, had no effect whatever toward stopping the influx of these poor, destitute refugees, they kept on coming, and are still doing the same thing. As soon as the matter was brought to the attention of our noble-hearted Governor, he joined in with others to organize a relief association, the object being to render temporary aid to the destitute till such time as they could provide for themselves. At first money and clothing in abundance came in from all directions, until the first four or five thousand were pretty well provided for. But for the last two months very little money has been received, and as a natural result the treasury of the association is now empty, and the officers of the Relief Board are now unable to render any further aid to either those of the refugees who have been here for some time nor to those who are daily arriving, and to speak right out in plain English, unless the great hearted people of the North again pour out their money there will necessarily be great suffering among this people, and that right soon, to say nothing of their fate this winter. To this date, counting from last March, there have been about, in round numbers six thousand arrived in this State, that is, about that number have been taken notice of by the Relief Board. In answer to the question, "What has been done with these people," we answer: "They have pretty generally scattered throughout the State." Some have been sent upon lands in Wauhaunsee county, some to the Dunlap colony in Morris county, some to Hodgeman county, and many others scattered in almost every direction, wherever the labor was needed or demanded. With those that are now here, it is difficult to say, at this writing, what will be done. The funds of the association being exhausted, it is apparent that they will have quite a hard time, but it is hoped that money will soon be forthcoming. The chief cause of it being withheld at present can easily be traced to the lying meanness of such papers as the Kansas City Times. That paper is filled almost every day with the vilest abuse of all persons connected with the Relief Board, and its matchless lying is only equalled by its miserable hatred of every man, woman and child on earth who happened to be black instead of white. In conclusion, we would say plainly to our poor people in the South that it is a bad plan to move to Kansas without money. If you can bring one or two hundred dollars with you, come on; but if you be entirely helpless after you get here it would be wise to wait until a little money can be obtained. The people of Kansas have done most nobly, but there is an end to all things, and their willingness to give to this cause there is of necessity a limit. We love our race, and this love causes us to say to all its members, it is not wise to move to a new country without money.—Colored Citizen, Topeka.

Curtness.

EXAMPLES, VERBAL, DISPATCHED AND OTHERWISE.

The King of Zulu-land is said to have recently addressed a note to a British officer in South Africa, as follows:

"Excellency—First came the missionary; next the Consul; now the army. Cetywayo."* This brief letter recalls some short speeches and curt correspondence, which will doubtless be delightful reading in these times of long harangues at Albany and Washington. A Western judge once upon a time addressed the grand jury in these words: "Gentlemen—The weather is extremely hot; I am very old; you know your duty—perform it." Another American judge once intervened in an odd way to prevent a waste of words. He was sitting in Chambers, and seeking from the pile of papers in the lawyers' hands that a certain case was likely to be a long one, he said: "What is the amount in question?" "Two dollars, your Honur," said the plantiff's counsel. "I'll pay it," said the Judge, handing over the money; "call the next case." An English Judge was more patient. He listened for a couple of days to the arguments of counsel as to the construction of an act, and finally observed, when they were done: "Brothers, that act was repealed a year ago." One morning a woman was shown into Dr. Abernethy's room. Before he could speak she bared her arm saying. "Burn." "A poultice," said the doctor. Next day she called again, showing her arm, and said: "Better." "Continue the poultice," the response. A few day afterward she came again; then she said: "Well. Your fee?" "Nothing," said the great physician; "you are the most sensible woman I ever saw." Lord Berkeley, wishing to apprise the Duke of Dorset of his changed condition wrote: "Dear Dorset: I have just been married, and am the happiest dog alive. Berkeley." The answer came: "Dear Berkeley: Every dog has his day, Dorset." The editor of a Chicago newspaper wanting the details of a terrible inundation in Connecticut, telegraphed to a correspondent at Hartford. "Send full particulars of the flood." The reply came quickly. "You will find them in Genesis."

The wonderful recuperative powers of France are directly traceable to the large population engaged in agriculture. While England has but 250,000 landholders France has 6,000,000. She has according to statistics, 5,000,000 small farmers. England, it is estimated, has 1,000,000 paupers, while in France they are a small factor. That France should come out of a devastating war and so soon be able to pay a billion dollars of her debt in gold, has astonished the world. The fact we have mentioned largely accounts fur it. According to statistics, the farming lands of France are mortgaged to only 5 per cent. of their value, while in England the mortgage resting against the land is 58 per cent. There is no mistaking the fact that the permanent wealth of a nation, and the prosperity of its people, are more certainly assured by agriculture than by the arts or manufactures. In this we can see the grand future of our own country. Let the broad and fertile acres yet unoccupied be sacredly held for the small farmers. Let the government and benevolent organizations everywhere co-operate in the good work of locating the bone and sinew of the nation upon them. It is health and comfort and happiness to the individual; it is prosperity and strength to the entire people. As France has solved the question of pauperism in a great measure by encouraging agriculture, so should America, whose opportunities in this direction are a thousand fold greater. At present the United States has 3,000,000 proprietary agriculturists.

You cannot dream yourself into a character, you must hammer and forge yourself one.—Froude.

A Chinese Prayer Meeting.

Last Wednesday, with two friends from the South, we spent a pleasant hour in the prayer-meeting of the M. E. Chinese Mission, conducted by Rev. Dr. Otis Gibson. About forty Chinese, including half a dozen women and girls, with three or four Japanese, were present. The singing, which was the chief feature of the evening, seemed to be greatly enjoyed by the Chinese and was rendered with most astonishing correctness, both with regard to musical sounds and English words. One acquainted with the horrible jargon of a Chinese orchestra can understand how much these people have to unlearn to become melodious and harmonious. The book used was "Gospel Hymns and Tunes," and never in any Sunday-school or prayer-meeting have we heard them more heartily or harmoniously sung. A prayer in Chinese by one of the class seemed earnest and was certainly fluent. Dr. Gibson evinces remarkable talent in his position. He is a man of character, no mamby-pambyism about him. Fearless and frank, strong in will and voice, he impresses himself and his subject upon these people.

We are surprised to learn from him that there is not much indication of interest among the Christian people of this city as to the work of the Mission. Whatever may be the political and social views of our people with regard to the Chinese, there can be but one sentimet among Christians as to the spread of the gospel of Jesus Christ. And no Christian can be so narrow as to deny and avoid the opportunity which the residence of these Chinese among us presents. It any Christian tires of metaphysical, scientific, and theological, (so-called) disquisitions, let him go to the Mission rooms and hear the simple, pure, ingenious statement of the story of Christ to these heathens by these teachers and his heart will be warmed to the work. It is very refreshing. God speed Bro. Gibson and his helpers.—Pacific Methodist.

When the missionary steamer owned by the mission of the Free Church of Scotland was to be placed on Lake Nyassa, the leader of the expedition applied to the chief of the tribe for reliable help to carry the craft around the Murchison Cataracts. The chief responded by sending eight hundred women,—a compliment certainly to the trustworthiness of the sex. "Some of them came fifty miles, bringing their provisions with them. These women were entrusted with the whole, when if a single portion of the steamer had been lost, the whole scheme would have failed. They carried it in two hundred and fifty loads in five days, under a tropical sun, seventy-five miles to an elevation of 1,800 feet, and not a nail or screw was lost. They 'trusted the Englishman,' asking no questions of wages, and receiving each six yards of calico; and for the sake of being liberal each was given an extra yard."—Heathen Woman's Friend.

The Ground of our Obligation to Socrates.

Our obligation to Socrates is great. It rests upon the exceptional evolution in his own experience of the finer institutions that are in some degree common to all men; upon his clear perception of their transcendent import, and the gigantic facility with which he reduced them to axioms and even to scientific order. Our obligation may be said to be even enhanced by his heroic devotion to his perceptions of truth, and to what he considered his proper service to mankind. His well-used endowment, by which he became not only the gifted thinker but also the practiced reasoner, coupled with his singular faith in a divine goodness and deference to a divine will, these together mark him at once the wisest and the most child-like among ancient princes and philosophy.—Sunday Afternoon, for August.

The people of Ireland have realized so much benefit from the prohibition of the sale of drink on Sunday that they wish to place still further restrictions on the trade. Mr. Sullivan, an Irish member of Parliament has introduced a Saturday-closing bill, which, if passed, will have the effect of closing the drink-shops at an early hour on Saturday evening. There is a strong body of opinion in favor of the measure, most enthusiastic meetings are being held, and influential petitions adopted in its support.

A Museum of Health.

The science of health, the system of principles or rules which preserve health, should receive special attention in every scheme of public education. In its highest forms it is the special study of the physician; but its simpler elements should be universally known. This can never be until it becomes a part of common education in all schools. What can be more important to our earthly well being than pure air, pure light and pure water and proper food? The necessity of cleanliness, ventilation, the suitable preparation and use of food, drainage, and a variety of other subjects relating to the health of the people, ought to be leading considerations with all classes from the highest ruler down to the humblest peasant! We are particularly pleased to notice the inauguration in London of "The Parkes Museum of Hygiene."

The Christian World says:

"A brilliant company assembled on Saturday afternoon, to witness the opening of the Museum, the temporary abode of which is at University College, and it was gratifying to find cardinals and peers, statesmen and scientists, uniting in an effort to honor the memory of a wise and good man in so practical and useful a way, and one which would have commanded the warmest sympathy of Dr. Parkes were he still among us. Mr Cross, the Home Secretary, who presided, after commenting upon the deplorable want of sanitary knowledge among the people, justly observed that they were engaged in an effort to hunt down diseases into a corner, nay, to prevent its having a beginning. Pure light, pure air, and pure water were, he maintained, the birthright of every Englishman, and it was impossible for any one at all acquainted with the way in which the poor are housed, not to join in his hearty denunciations of the carelessness, indifference, and selfishness of those who undertake to erect dwellings for the working classes. Matters relating to sewage, food, clothing and cooking, will be illustrated in the Museum. Nothing, indeed, which concerns the health of the people, however simple it may be, will be excluded from its shelves and cases. And as the Duke of Northumberland, who was one of the speakers, remarked on Saturday, a great deal more is learnt by seeing than by hearing. It is to be hoped that the contents of this Museum, which, we are glad to add, will be open free to the public on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, will do not a little to stimulate inquiry and suggest reflection upon the part of both poor and rich.

Humorously as it was put, yet terrible enough was the fact stated by Mr. G. Godwin, F R S., who assured the audience that he had recently seen four families living in the corners of one room, not fitted to hold more than two persons, whilst a bachelor rented the center. Seventeen persons were huddled together in this squalid hole. But it is not only the extreme poor who need to be educated in sanitary matters. Viscount Cranbrook told of a large country house, the lower part of which was flooded with sewage, in consequence of the drains being made to empty themselves into a disused coal-mine, from which receptacle heavy rain caused the foul matter to be washed back. That improved sanitary regulations can effect a vast saving in life was clearly proved by Cardinal Manning, who showed from statistics that whilst the death rate in the army was 27 per 1,000 in 1858 it is now only 9. As the Cardinal well said, the restoration of the domestic life of the working man is wanted, and nothing but increased healthy, and therefore comfortable, conditions of home life will bring that about. To this the attention of all Governments, whether Conservative or Liberal, must be far more directed than it has been, and, as Sir William Jenner observed, amidst prolonged cheering, and evidently to the discomfiture of the Cabinet Ministers who were present, sanitary reform will give to them a better title to the gratitude of the country than waging war in almost every quarter of the globe. With remarkable appositeness, Prof. Huxley, who was the last speaker, quoted the text, "The people perish for lack of knowledge"—the knowledge which will enable them to preserve sound minds in sound bodies. To awaken the desire for that knowledge, and, in a large measure, to supply it, "The Parkes Museum of Hygiene" has been called into existence. It is now in its infancy, but we have no hesitation in predicting for it a rapid growth and a large sphere of usefulness."

Affairs may be ripe enough for a movement of this kind in this country, but of its utility none even doubt. But begin with teaching, in the simplest manner, the conditions upon which the preservation of [illegible] depends, and how diseases [illegible] prevented. It is not necessary [illegible] medical lectures be deliv[illegible] [illegible] pupils become medi[illegible]. But certainly they [illegible] be ignorant of element[illegible], nor continue indif[illegible] laws which control [illegible] Domestic and city [illegible] considera[illegible] [illegible] which is necessary to health. If it be true that cleanliness is next to godliness, then with cleanliness duly attended to, we may look for more general attention to godliness. Purity in air, food, clothing, dwellings, habits and living will be eminently favorable to purity of mind. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

The Francois Miscegenation Case.

On the first page of to-day's ADVOCATE will be found a synopsis of the brief filed by the attorney of Francois, convicted to penitentiary, for marrying a colored woman in Texas. We have been favored with a summary of the decision of Thos. H. Duval, U. S. District Judge, Western district of Texas, rendered on the 4th inst. Emile Francois was formerly a resident of New Orleans. C. T. Garland, his attorney has appealed from Judge Duval's decision to the U. S. Circuit Court, with an almost absolute certainty of final success. Says the Austin State Gazette:

On Monday in the case of ex parte Emile Francois, Judge Duval refused to writ of habeas corpus for the following reasons, in substance: The reasoning of the Texas court of appeals in the case of Frasher vs. (3 Tex. Ct. App., 263) and a more through consideration of the subject in the Francois case, have induced a doubt of the correctness of the opinion in the case of ex parte Lon. Brown.

The regulation of marriage belongs exclusively to the states, and in no wise pertains to the general government. It is not clear for instance, that the federal constitution and laws would prevent any state from prohibiting the intermarriage of uncles with nieces, or Christians with Jews, and imposing a punishment therefor upon the man alone. If a state could do this, then it could certainly prohibit marriage between a white person and a negro, and affix a penalty for the act upon the former alone. If the Texas statute punished the negro in such case, and not the white person, then it would be clearly opposed to the civil rights bill. But the converse of this proposition may be regarded as doubtful upon mature consideration.

In its discrimination against the white race there can be no doubt that the State law is unwise, unjust, and repugnant to the spirit of the constitution and the civil rights bill. But it is not clear that it violates the letter of either. Unless it plainly did so, it would hardly be justifiable to declare it abrogated by the federal constitution and laws.

For such unnatural marriages as those between whites and blacks, the former are mainly to blame by reason of their superior education and intelligence, giving them an overwhelming influence over a race so long held in a subordinate position. This fact may furnish some excuse, if not a justification, for punishing the whites alone, in such cases, as a means of prevention.

In refusing the writ prayed for, the judge expressed gratification that an appeal from his decision lies to the U. S. Circuit Court, where a higher tribunal can weigh and pass upon the important question presented by this case.

The Pacific Methodist, of Ju'y 25, has this: "Rev. S. Halsey Werlein, pastor of Louisiana Avenue Church, New Orleans, called at our office this week. Bro. Werlein is with his parents on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Lilly Werlein Ware, the gifted and popular instructress of music at Pacific Methodist College. He will make visits to places of interest in our State and go back to his Louisiana work rejuvenated. We would be glad to lay violent hands upon him and keep him for California, but that he has left a young wife in the Louisiana lowlands. However, the Western work and its needs will doubtless so impress him as to make him useful to us on the other side."

Letter from Pontotoc, Miss.

PONTOTOC, Miss., July 29, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I have just closed my protracted meeting, which resulted successfully. It lasted nineteen days, and we had 30 converts, 6 reclaimed and 19 additions. We baptized 16 adults and 7 children. It was a continual revival for two weeks, day and night. I had written to two of the brethren to help me, as they had promised to come if I would call, but they failed to come. This made it quite a struggle for me.

Rev. S. Bradford, of the Baptist Church, took a liberal part in our revival, and was greatly rejoiced at the conversion of his eldest son and daughter. Two twin girls were converted at the same time. Rains have greatly improved the crops.

J. H. COOK.

A letter from Kingston, Jamaica, dated June 24th, represents the financial and agricultural prospects of that country as very gloomy. Officers are recklessly extravagant, and resort to increased taxes to meet the deficiency of the revenue. A large and excited public meeting has been held in Kingston to protest against the [illegible] to which the colonists [illegible] subjected by the officials, by [illegible] the system of government [illegible] is utterly irresponsible.

Total Abstinence.

The sound, fundamental principles of total abstinence are unmistakably laid deep and broad in the faithful, unwavering lessons, both of nature and revelation. The Creator of all organized matter furnishes His natural creatures with all things necessary to develop, sustain or rejuvenate their physical nature; yet in all the broad acres of nature we fail to discover the presence of alcohol. Hence the quotation in defense of alcohol, that "God saw everything that he had made, and behold it was very good," is both inapplicable and false, for God is not the Maker of alcohol; neither can He be, unless He be the Originator of moral and physical evils. Examine the manifold windings of Nature. Trace every line, explore every field, follow her in her hidden recesses; but you fail to discover any traces of this unnatural, inflammable substance. Stand upon the banks of some gentle running stream, with its shores trimmed with rippling, laughing waves. The merry songster with plumage dipped in gold, fresh from his cozy nest, wings his way to this enchanting bowl—drinks his fill of Nature's only choice drink. In his sweetest notes of joy he invites stubborn, dissatisfied man to come and partake of this delicious draught. But in vain is he invited. He is dissatisfied. He seeks, virtually, to disparage the wisdom of God by substituting his deadly invention, for what God in His wisdom made and declared "good" for man's only beverage. Observe the king of day as he faithfully, though unobservedly, draws up from God's inexhaustible fountains, the drink for all of God's creatures, and stores it in His mighty reservoir. Analyze the morning dew, that kisses the blushing flowers, and nowhere except in man's inventions do you find this poisonous substance—alcohol. Being an alien to nature, he is ever at war with her subjects, conquering and slaying his millions. He enters the mouth, charges the blood with his venom, steals away the brain, and drags his victims to destruction. Against such a monstrous enemy we ask you, in the name of the countless victims who are chained to his triumphant chariot, to take a vow of perpetual warfare. He is branded an alien, an enemy, a criminal, not only by nature, but revelation, too, with its unerring index, points him out as the arch-enemy of the human race. The mighty agent that brings destruction to the body, and damnation to millions of unsuspecting souls. There is an old story current that a Quaker once discovered a thief in his house, and taking down his grandfather's old fowling piece, quietly said: "Friend, thee had better get out of the way, for I intend to fire this gun right where thee stands." So do we warn you, dear reader, that you had better drive alcohol out of your house, for we are about to bombard it with red hot shells of Bible truths, unless the thief is driven out. It is an intruder. It is in the wrong place. It has no more business to be there than the thief in that honest Quaker's house. That decanter of yours stands right in the range of the following inspired words of revelation.

"It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth." While nature recounts to us the curses of strong drink, Revelation thunders in our ears: "Be not among wine-bibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh, for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty, and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags." Again it peals forth: "Do not drink wine nor strong drink—thou nor thy sons;" and "look not thou upon the wine when it is red (with the blood of millions) when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." These are only a few of many passages that condemn this foul demon. Fearing that we might be beguiled by his cunning deception, again Revelation for our soul's sake commands that we have no dealing with him, for "no drunkard can inherit the kingdom of God." Alcohol being denied by both nature and revelation, let all the children of nature, and heirs of revelation join heart and hand together to battle against this enemy till he is banished from our world.

Article 203, of the New Constitution, to be voted on for Louisiana provides for a tax "to supply the citizens of the State who lost a limb or limbs in the military service of the Confederate States with substantial artificial limbs during life."

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

TEXAS.

John Jackson, Jefferson: "I have received into the church since the second quarter 30, and baptized 17."

M. Henson, Austin: "On the 20th Isaac Leonard Henson, my oldest son, fell off a fence and broke his right arm between the elbow and wrist. He is doing well."

H. Christmas, Hondo circuit: "Our membership has slowly increased this year, but the prospect seems to be brighter. Have added seven to the church since April, Sunday-school is doing well."

W. H. Jackson, San Felipe: "Rev. L. Lane has just closed a protracted meeting, resulting in 18 converts, 14 accessions, and many mourners at the altar. At Hutchinson there is a great revival. Elder Malloy will be with us during the camp meeting. Pray for our success."

C. Young, Lagrange: "The camp meeting convened July 18th and closed the 27th, resulting in three converts and 13 accessions to the church. District conference convened on the 24th, Rev. S. Gates and 18 preachers present. Rev. Geo. Smith, of Columbus, visited us, among others. The whites say that Rev. M. Henson preached the best sermon ever heard in the city. We had a glorious time."

MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. A. Rankin reports favorable progress at Red Creek church, Augusta circuit.

W. Brown, Garlandsville: "Our elder has been with us on his second round. The work is still growing."

M. Adams, Meridian: "We sent from the M. E. Church, for children's day, $5 to Phillips & Hunt, New York, and have their receipt for the same."

E. S. Sealey, Greenwood: "Our Union Sabbath-school is in a good condition. Will have love feast on the second Sabbath of this month. Sixty-five pupils in attendance, under B. L. Paster."

B. L. Crump, Greenwood: "I have just closed a two weeks' meeting, and added 39 souls to the church. Members are all in good spirit. Sabbath-school is prospering. We had a picnic July 11, and a concert at night. The object was to get a library, and $31 15 was taken in. The Kansas fever is here, but it does not stop us from working and improving upon our church. Henry Martin, a young man, will be hung here on the 29th for rape."

LOUISIANA.

Rev. S. Duncan says that Clinton Street Church, Carrollton, is now clear of all debt. The new parsonage has been paid for.

T. Jackson, Fairfield Chapel, Shreveport: "At our protracted meeting there were 5 converts and 6 added to the church. At our basket meeting the collections were: Anderson Pearce, $4 03; Daniel Grantom, $5 05; T. Jackson, $6 90; P. Hall, $2.50; M White, $2."

Rev. A. E. P. Albert, Houma: "Our church is in a very prosperous condition. Three precious souls have recently found Christ Jesus, a pardoning saviour. The influence of our church, is certainly transforming the character of the community. Will not some friend send us some temperance tracts, books, etc? Our temperance work is extensive and we need these tracts to help us."

ARKANSAS.

A pastor writes: "This is my first year in the ministry. The late Bro. Todd and I joined the conference together and were intimate friends. I little thought when we parted in Little Rock last winter that he would so soon be called away. I am anxious to stay here and try to save souls, but I have oppositions on every side to work against, and I am afraid of the whites on a part of my work. Would you be kind enough to advise me? The white people object to me stopping with the colored people, but I think I can do more good by so doing. I admire the firm stand you have taken for God and humanity."

An Assertion Corrected.

BRENHAM, Texas, Aug. 2, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—When I came to this county in 1870 the colored people had horses, oxen, cows and hogs almost without number and they have them to day, and many of them have buggies and wagons also. I think the assertion made by your correspondent at Corpus Christi should have been confined to the county and not made general. It may mislead some, and I think, from personal observation, it has a tendency to shake the faith of others in the paper. May the good Lord direct us to take steps for the people's good and His glory, for Christ's sake, amen.

MRS. ISABELLA HOWELLS.

A Missionary Meeting at Chautauqua.

The results of mission work by the various evangelical churches was the theme of the speaking at the 4 o'clock meeting on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 3, at Chautauqua.

The world is open to receive the missionary. The countries which have hitherto been closed to the gospel, have, by the recent events transpiring in the political world, been opened wide to the Word of Life. Rev. W. E. Simpson, of the Wesleyan Church of England and a missionary from India, gave accounts of the progress of the truth in Southern India. He told of the terrible power of superstition on the minds of the people and illustrated it by an incident. Two of the students of his own school, knowing the truth of the gospel by experience, determined to whip an image of a goddess, which was worshipped in the neighborhood of the school. At night they went to the place where the image stood. One shrunk at first from the fearful work of attacking, irreverently, the object he had been so long accustomed to reverence, but the other, with great trepidation went on and gave the image a gentle tap with a slipper, and then waited to see how the goddess would avenge the insult; but there was no mark of appreciation of the insult on her part and then another slap was given, and still no response. Then the other young man, emboldened by the result, came up boldly and helped to administer a sound slapping with the slipper. The next morning the priests came to complain about the indignity offered to the goddess. The young men answered that if the goddess could not defend herself, she was not worth honoring. This was the beginning of the iconoclastic work in Southern India. That young man who led in their attack on the idol is now preaching the Gospel, within a few feet of the place where that image stood. He illustrated the kind of preaching done in the bazaare, or what we would call the public squares or markets. He read, on one of his preaching tours, in the bazaar, the third chapter of John, and when he came to the passage, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of heaven," one of the five hundred Brahmins who had gathered around him interrupted him by saying, "You have taken our words, and you have no right to them." The answer was that you have corrupted these words, and we bring them to you purified. One of the crowd told the preacher not to mind the interrupter, but asked permission for an old white-headed Brahmin to speak. This being granted, the old man came forward and said: "You, sir, Missionary, see these hairs, white with years. Once they were black as the raven, and they have grown gray while I have been waiting to hear such words as you have spoken to-day." The words of Jesus fell on the ears of this old Brahmin as the sweetest music, cheering and refreshing the soul. Now there are thousands of native Christians in Southern India, and hundreds of native helpers in the various mission fields.

Bishop Harris gave the account of Ling Chung Ting, the Chinese preacher who was beaten in the bazaar, taken to the city gate, and threatened with death if he should return. The poor man rose up, walked to a little stream near by, washed his bloody wounds, sent up a prayer for Divine guidance, then went back to the same place, preached, and was again mobbed, beaten, taken to the city, and told that he would be killed if he dared to return. Ling Ching Ting again washed his wounds, again prayed, and returned to the same place and preached. He was now thrust into prison. The Mandarin now came to the rescue, and in accord with the law of China that no one shall be persecuted for opinion sake, they sent officers to the prison, brought out the preacher, placed him in the very spot where he had preached, and then told the mob that the first man who interfered with the preacher should die. The multitude heard the gospel with respect, if not with gladness, from the lips of the preacher. Hundreds of Christian Chinese now rejoice in the love of Jesus. The converted heathen give the same evidence of their faith that was given in apostolic times, by those who endured persecution for the sake of Christ. The result of the conference is that the testimony in favor of Christian Missions as a grand success—is overwhelming. From any standpoint they have been blessings to the world. They open the way for enlarged commerce, for better forms of civil government, for a purer, higher social life, for more healthful intellectual development, for the more general spread of knowledge among the people, for a pure religion and a high state of Christian piety. The results point clearly to the time when the prayer shall be answered, "Thy kingdom come."

Grand Temperance Demonstration in Houma.

Saturday, August 2, was a grand day in our little town. The day opened in splendor. The balmy morning air, freighted with the silvery dew, was pleasant and refreshing. Early in the day you could discover that something more than usual was about to take place. Everybody seemed to expect something. Ere the clock struck ten the Thibodaux brass band had invaded our quiet little town and were loading the breezes with their "Sweet By-and Bye." At 12 m. the grand temperance procession had formed in front of the M. E. Church on Canal street in the following order: Brass band, followed by the Albert Total Abstinence Society with colors flying and about 100 members in rank; The Band of Hope, a total abstinence society composed of about 117 children whose ages range from 9 to 16 years. This beautiful band, with their colors flying, formed quite an important part of the procession. Last, but not least, followed Evening Star Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T., with their beautiful banner mounting upon the breeze and with 42 members in the rank, all dressed in full degree regalia. Their banner, which is truly a rare specimen of superior taste and workmanship, was presented by Bro. T. H. Jones, P. G. W. C. T. of G. L. of this State. The sight was really imposing. Nearly 300 total abstainers in rank, dressed tastefully and in full regalia, with three beautiful banners and appropriate mottoes thrown to the breeze, marching to the strains of sweet music right in front of coffee houses and dram shops; in a town of less than 800 inhabitants is certainly grand.

These temperance organizations number about 367, but Saturday being "pay day," many could not "turn out." Having paraded the principal streets, they proceeded to Fowler's Park where the temperance [illegible] of war had prepared to open fire on the arch fiend—Alcohol. Hon. E. W. Williams, who was a member of the late Constitutional Convention, and labored so faithfully for a Sunday prohibition clause, spoke on legal prohibition; doing credit to himself and the cause. Mrs. M. E. Mason and Mrs. Lou Williams delivered very impressive addresses on "Woman's Duty," and "Home Protection;" followed by Bro. M. C. B. Mason, W. C. T., who chose for his theme "Moderate Drinking." His fiery eloquence convinced many. After Mr. Mason's brilliant effort all eyes centered upon Rev. A. E. P. Albert, D. D. R. W. G. T., who was to deliver the closing address. His subject was "Alcohol the Outlaw of all Laws." In his arraignment of this giant evil one could almost see the criminal in his crime, the jury hearing the evidence and the judge passing the sentence of eternal doom to the monster. Bro. Albert is certainly doing a great work here. Why will not some other of our ministers join hands with him and help him extend the I. O. G. T. or ordinary temperance organizations, that our fair State may be saved from a plague much more destructive than yellow fever, smallpox or cholera.

Houma may well appreciate her temperance organizations: they will do her more good than all her other enterprises. Evening Star Lodge is certainly a blessing and an ornament to this town. It was born in a storm, the memorable 4th of June 1879, and we pray that her days may be long and her history bright. We have heard nothing but promises on all sides. If the ministers of Christ, of all denominations and races, would labor as faithfully in the cause of temperance as Rev. Albert has done here during the last 18 months, not only Louisiana, but the whole country would be free from this curse of intemperance. Pray for us. More anon.

Letter from Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Miss., August 7, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I write to inform you how we are getting on with our work here. Last Sabbath being the first of the month, it was very interesting. Attendance was 149. The pupils recited 206 verses. Miss Mary Richards recited 103. Our collection was good also. Then Rev. B. F. Penney, our beloved pastor, gave the children some encouraging words, telling them that each had work to do, let them be ever so small. Mr. Silles, a visitor, made some acceptable remarks.

On Monday the funeral service of Loular Erwin was attended by the Sunday-school at 3 p. m. She was a faithful pupil for three years, and died at the age of sixteen. She had learned to love Jesus, and while sick she repeated many of the Sabbath school hymns, and desired the school to sing at her funeral "Shall we gather at the river?" Two persons united with the church in the afternoon. Mrs. S. B. Merrill, a well known lady and worker for Christ, is mentioned in the following article, published in the July number of the American Messenger. Yours,

E. S. SPRIGGS.

THE FREEDMEN IN MISSISSIPPI.

A lady in Columbus, Mississippi, a voluntary laborer among the freedmen, is cheered by the following fruits of her labors in tract distribution:

"A wonderful revival of religion has been going on among the colored people here for several weeks. One remarkable feature is that so many of them are converted at home, under no peculiar excitement. Heretofore their meetings have been held late at night, and with noise and shouting; now they go away subdued.

"The tracts which have been sent to me from time to time from your society have done much good. I gave a number to the colored preacher a few months ago, and an appropriate one was put into the hands of a very wicked young girl living in known sin, and she was converted, and joined the church. She has been ever since a worthy member.

"Last week I read two tracts to some washerwomen at work where I board. An old woman, named Aunt Betty, a very good Christian, asked me to let her have them to take home to her son, eighteen years old. He read a leaflet beginning in large letters 'The Wages of Sin is Death,' 'The Gift of God is Eternal Life,' etc. He was converted, as we hope, that night.

"An old man read a tract and repeated it all through to a teacher who is instructing his children; they also repeat the hymns which were on the tracts which had been given them.

"I take great comfort in teaching them in their Sunday-school. There are about three hundred in one school. The order is good and they sing well. I am almost carried away when I hear their choruses.

"Last Sunday thirty united with one of the churches and were publicly baptized. The meeting was marked by great solemnity; 1500 were present.

"No one can tell how much is done among this people by these tracts. I often hear of good from them, but now every day I have to deny those asking, for I have none. Colored men and women seek tracts who a year or two ago ridiculed the idea of reading them. I have taken great pains to distribute all I have had to those that I knew would read them. Now is the time. May the Lord incline our Christian friends North to help us."

Colored Voters and Greenbackers.

BYHALIA, Miss., July 24, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—The colored people of the South before going into the National Greenback party should enter into an agreement with that party like this: "We, the National Greenback party, do pledge ourselves to the colored Republicans in the Southern States, that if they vote with us, we will see that each colored man shall have a fair chance to register and vote for the candidate of his choice, without being molested in any way whatever; and also pledge ourselves to give the colored people an equal representation, on the State and county tickets." If this arrangement were made with the colored people of the South, and carried out in good faith, not a single colored man would go to the State of Kansas to live, but stay just where they are, educate their children, and work their former master's land or buy it.

We simply appeal to the wise world for justice. Here we are, millions in number in the United States, and only one Representative in Congress—Senator Bruce. We are entitled to one half from the Southern States. This is why the negro desires to go to Kansas or some other State. He can not vote nor hold office in the Southern States under Democratic rule.

Mr. Editor, I hope you will not think for a moment that I am a politician or an office seeker, from this letter. My friends requested me to express these views through your paper. I long to see the day come in the South when every man white and black can think and act for himself. A great many white people are bolting from the Democratic party up here and are organizing the National Greenback party, and asking colored Republicans to go with them and elect certain candidates. But not a single word has been said about "the Nigger" yet in connection with an office. This is wrong and unjust.

I remember the time, in 1877, in Lafayette Co., Miss., when there was a colored Republican candidate for the State Legislature, and he beat the Democrat 175 votes at one box in town that night, but next morning he was behind 25 votes. A white man, Mr. R. C. said to a colored man John F.: "Why did you not come to the counting school last night, John. You Republicans quit counting at sunset, but we Democrats counted all night and brought you Republicans out behind 25 votes. How is that?"

P. C. POWELL.

If we want to conquer the world for the Lord Jesus Christ, we must take men one by one.—Spurgeon.

Foreign Missions.

The Methodist Church South report of their Mexican Missions twelve native preachers, eight teachers, and 258 members. Of their Brazil Mission they report 19 members, six of whom are Brazilian citizens and thirteen foreigners—these are in Rio de Janeiro.

The Presbyterian Record for August has the following beautiful story of the endeavors and outcome of a colored congregation of their people in Kentucky to procure a church for themselves. They commenced by depositing small sums in bank, praying for success. Yet not daring to hope that their prayers would be answered so soon—but hear the pastor's letter: "God has heard and answered our prayers. He has given us a church building of our own, where we can worship without fear. One of our members, a plain, ordinary man—an old bachelor—purchased the building from the German Methodists, paying them $4,800 cash. I saw every dollar counted. This gentleman has been a member of the Presbyterian Church for nearly thirty years. He never spent five cents for a cigar, a drink of whisky or a chew of tobacco in his life. The act, I think, is unparalleled in history of black men.

The Wesleyans, in their Executive Committee, recommend that during the year some method be devised by which all the present advantages of the Breakfast Meeting may be secured with less cost to the society. In a scheme for increasing their annual income by £10 to £200,000, that measures be adopted for the more thorough canvassing of the non-members who worship in their congregations.

August 17, 1879.—THE CHRISTIAN ARMOR.

SCRIPTURE.—Eph. 6: 10-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."—11.

TOPIC.—Christian Warfare.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Connection.—The apostle shows to the Ephesians that they are called—"he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world." 1: 4. Their calling had been effectual—"and you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins." 2: 1. They had been called for a purpose—"created in Christ Jesus unto good works." 2: 10. In this election, it was the purpose of God that the Gentiles should be "fellow-heirs" with the Jews. 3: 6. Having thus laid the foundation, the exhortation to walk worthily of their vocation follows as a natural sequence. They were to walk "with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering," etc. They were to "put off," concerning the former conversation, "the old man," and, instead, "put on the new man." Lying, corrupt communications, filthiness, foolish talking and improper jesting, were not to proceed out of their mouths.

The Christian's Foes (10 12)—The warfare is to be a severe one. It is no ordinary foe that the Christian has to fight. The Christian needs, not only to be strengthened within but protected without—not only to have the courage to fight, but also to have a proper defense against the attacks of the enemy. He is safe only as he puts on the armor of God—that spiritual panoply that only God can furnish to him. It is not enough, as a great many seem to do, just to take up the shield of faith. It is a great protection, but it does not furnish a complete safeguard. Neither does the breastplate of righteousness alone afford safety, nor the helmet of salvation when worn by itself. Each piece is indispensible, but not in itself a perfect defense. One must "put on the whole armor of God." The foes with whom the Christian has to fight are: 1. The devil. The Scriptures are not at all uncertain in declaring the existence of such a being. They distinctly affirm the fact, over and over again. 2. The rulers of the darkness of this world." 3. "Spiritual wickedness in high places."

The Christian's Armor (13-17).—The first three pieces mentioned for the Christians to put on are in the nature of garments. 1. "Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth." With that he wants to girded—as it were, to have it buckled on so that it never can come off. "And having put on the breastplate of righteousness." The righteousness here intended is that which is the result of the work of the Spirit." "And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." The war-sandals of those times were thickly studded with nails to give the soldier a firm footing. Just so do the principles of the gospel give to the Christian a secure standing He is not easily tripped up. The Defensive Armor. 1. The shield of faith. "Above all"—or, rather, "over all"; for it refers to the shield that covered the whole body—"taking the shield of faith." Faith then, is the largest piece of Christian armor. "Wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one." 2 "Take the helmet of salvation." Rather, "receive" it. God alone gives that. It is to be noticed that there is nothing for the back. It was meant that the Christian always should face the foe!

The Offensive Armor. There is only one offensive weapon. "The sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God." It is called the sword of the Spirit because it was inspired by him. "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." 2 Pet. 1: 21.

The Christian's Duty (18 20).—In these three verses are set forth three obligations of the Christian. 1. Prayer. The old couplet is still true:

> Satan trembles when he sees
> The weakest saint upon his knees.

2. Watching. One can not pray [illegible] asleep. If he is not on the [illegible] he will cease to pray. 3 [illegible] ing. "That I may open my [illegible] boldly." There was nothing [illegible] so much dreaded as [illegible] in the preaching of the [illegible] was nothing that he [illegible] of. He wanted with[illegible] to proclaim the [illegible] the gospel!" Paul [illegible] Christian soldier—[illegible] taken prisoner. [illegible] of this un[illegible] Christ. May [illegible] be multi[illegible]

Notes from Victoria, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—In the days of our prosperity we feel like giving the glory to God, and publicly acknowledge his mercy. Since our revival here about three months ago our classes have been strong. The prayer-meetings have been well attended, and the Sunday-school is increasing in numbers and usefulness. We cannot speak too highly of our excellent Bro. Starnes, who came to us about eight months ago from the Central Tennessee College to teach our public school. He is a competent teacher, a devoted Christian, and a useful worker in our Sunday-school. He is the assistant superintendent, and teaches a Bible-class of about thirty. If that college has any more like him that they can spare it would be a great blessing to us away out here on the southwestern frontier if they will send them on.

Our members are studying the Bible and the M. E. Discipline. They mean to be Bible Christians and Methodists, for the two words mean the same thing. Our people are waking up to the fact that whisky and the spirit of the Lord don't go together. The temperance work among us is helping us in every way—religiously and financially. People have more money to build and repair churches and pay the preacher and buy Sunday-school books and educate their children and make home happy when they pay no saloon bills. We are just putting new seats in our church, and intend to be ready to take care of the annual conference next December in good shape.

It would almost seem that Bro. Madison thinks the "preacher in charge of Victoria" is selfish because he won't consent to have the conference moved to Austin. Now I want to say to Bro. Madison and those who think the conference ought to be moved, that the vote was almost unanimous which fixed the coming session of the conference here, and we do not want to go against the wishes of the majority of our brethren.

We had our third quarterly meeting last Saturday and Sunday, and the presiding elder, G. W. Richardson, was with us. His talk in the quarterly conference on the subject of family prayer and home piety cannot fail to do good. About 110 persons took the sacrament on Sunday, and two adults were baptized. Nine have been received on trial since the last quarter. We believe our members are growing in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior—Jesus Christ. To God be all the glory.

Deaths.

Sister Sarah Trotter departed this life on the 3d inst. She had been a member of Asbury Chapel for many years. J. M. S.

Holly Springs, Miss., August 9, 1879.

Mrs. Rachel Ann Key died at Nashville, Tenn., June 1, 1879, aged 21 years. She was converted six years ago at a camp meeting conducted by Rev. H. W. Key, on the Mason and Pleasant Grove circuit. She subsequently united with the M. E. Church, and it is believed that the various duties growing out of this new relation were performed by her in a manner that has left no room for any one to doubt her thorough consecration to Christ. During her illness, which was brief but painful, she exhibited true Christian fortitude, and when the summons finally came, she seemed filled with rapture, and sweetly fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. At the time of her death, she was a member of Thompson Chapel, in this city. D. W. HAYS.

Satan selects his disciples when they are idle. Christ chose his when they were busy at their work, either mending their nets or casting them into the sea.—Farrendon.

New Books.

SHAKESPEARE'S KING RICHARD THE SECOND, with introduction, and notes explanatory and critical, for use in schools and classes, by Rev. Henry N. Hudson, Professor of English literature in the School of Oratory, Boston University. Ginn & Heath, Boston.

We decidedly prefer to have advanced classes carefully go through such a volume as this rather than to be spending their time in reading scraps of various authors as contained in the readers which are numbered five and six for our schools. Give us the production of an author as a whole, and let us bring all the lights of history, literature and criticism to bear upon it. Our young people will then have gotten such a taste as to long for more, and be the more disposed as well as the better prepared to possess themselves of the rich stores of the best authors. We like the idea, the plan, and the execution of this book, and desire to see it have an extensive use.

CORONATION HYMNS AND SONGS FOR PRAYER, PRAISE AND SOCIAL MEETINGS, by A. S. Barnes & Co., New York. Post-paid, 35 cents.

On opening this new candidate for popular favor, our good-will was at once excited by seeing the name of Rev Chas. F. Deems as one of its editors, although that of Theodore E. Perkins was not unknown to us as among the highest in this much beaten path. The authors say that in this little book they believe "will be found more hymns that the world will not suffer to die, and more new hymns that deserve trial than in any other book extant." As the price is small, our readers can easily test this claim. The authors even go farther, and say that in their opinion "it is the best book of the kind now for sale in Christendom." Well, that is certainly modest, but as Dr. Deems says so, we are willing to trust the statement.

ON DISCIPLINE. Eldredge & Brother, Philadelphia. 50 cents.

This is the fourth of a series of manuals for teachers. The preceding volumes have been on the "Senses," "The Cultivation of the Memory, or The Use of Words" Originally published in England by distinguished educators, they are revised and adapted to the wants of American teachers. We have been very highly impressed with the value of these manuals. We most warmly commend them to every parent and teacher. The particular volume before us treats of one of the chief matters pertaining to schools, for what is a school without discipline? The characteristics of good discipline as regards results and as regards its exercise; the instincts to be ratified and the motives to be cultivated in education. Motives and habits form a series of chapters very rich in thought and valuable in suggestion. The small price of the volume puts it within the means of most teachers, and if they would get and ponder it, there would be a speedy improvement in the order of even the best schools.

Perhaps the most remarkable literary enterprise of the time is the publication of the Library of Universal Knowledge, in 20 volumes, of nearly 1000 pages each, handsomely bound, for 50 cents per volume, or $10 for the set. It is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh and London edition of Chambers' Encyclopedia: A Dictionary of Universal Knowledge for the People, with very large additions upon topics of special interest to American readers. The amount of matter somewhat exceeds that of the cyclopedia of Appleton or Johnson, though the price is but a fraction of their cost. Volume one is to be ready early in September, and the others will follow at very short intervals. The remarkably low prices are accounted for by the method of sale, to the subscribers direct, saving them the large commission, often 50 or 60 per cent., paid to agents or dealers; also, by the recent great reduction in the cost of making books, and by making very large sales. This certainly is a work that the millions will appreciate. Special inducements are offered to early subscribers and to clubs. The same publishers have recently issued editions of Chambers' Cyclopedia of English Literature, 4 volumes, $2, formerly sold in 2 volumes for $9; also, Rollins' Ancient History, and Josephus' Works, large type editions for $2 25 and $2, and Smith's Bible Dictionary, $1. They also publish, in August and September, the Acme Library of Biography, 12 vols, and the Acme Library of Modern Classics, 9 vols., the former at 35 cents and latter at 50 cents per vol. In these series are presented such authors as Carlyle, Macaulay, Gibbon, Goldsmith, Lamartine, Michelet, Thos. Moore, Walter Scott, and Fouque, and such subjects as Cæsar, Cromwell, Burns, Joan of Arc, Vicar of Wakefield, Picciola, Lalla Rookh, etc. Full catalogue of publications, terms to clubs, etc., will be sent free on request by the publishers, the American Book Exchange, 55 Beekman St., N. Y.

New Publications.

The Sunday School Blackboard, published by W. F. Schneider, Cleveland, Ohio, will be found useful by all practical instructors. We have examined specimens and can recommend it.

Charming indeed, is the cover page picture, of Haus und Herd for August, and it attracts the attention of every body. There are as usual, several nicely illustrated articles, as "Berea," "The Mosquito," "The Old New York," etc; some fine essays, as "How to Preach in Our Days," from the editor; and some very interesting stories. The magazine is popular in all respects, and shows a variety which must satisfy any reader, of whatever age or profession he may may be. The Sunday-school department, the lessons, etc., are carefully prepared and well provided for. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati; Phillips & Hunt, New York, Publishers. Henry Liebhart. D. D., Editor.

The numbers of The Living Age for July 26 and August 2, contain the following articles: The Talmud. Church Quarterly Review; Malta and Chesterfield's Letters to his Son, Fortnightly; Food and Feeding, by Sir Henry Thompson, and Our Wheat-Fields in the North West, Nineteenth Century; Gray and his School, Cornhill; Benjamin Franklin, Contemporary; Patronized by Royalty, Mayfair; A New Caledonian Rising, All the Year Round; Oxygen in the Sun, Spectator; the continuation of Jean Ingelow's "Sarah de Berenger;" Miss Keary's "Doubting Heart;" and Sarah Tytler's "The Bride's Pass," and the usual amount of Poetry. For forty-two such numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3 000 pages, a year) the subscription price ($8) is low. Littell & Co., publishers.

'Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for September comes to us as bright fresh and lively as ever, richly freighted with choice, entertaining, and delightful reading-matter. Among the illustrated papers are another of Mr. Guernsey's on the "Persecutions of the Lollards"—containing sketches of notable Pontiffs. "The Zuni Legend," by Major Calhoun; "The Jains of India;" "Lavalette's Escape from Prison;" "Chivalry and Knighthood," etc., are admirable articles. Among the stories worthy of particular mention are "Rush and Reaction," by Rev. Mr. Baker; "Arthur Moreland's Fortune"; "A Thorny Path"; "Reuben Holmes's Faith," etc. The poems are original and possess merit, sustaining the reputation which the magazine has won for itself in this department of literature. The more strictly religious papers include "Remember," by Thomas A. Hoyt, D D.; "The Invalid's Portion"; a sermon by the Editor on "Secret Discipleship"; "Popular Exegesis," etc. The Editor discusses various timely subjects. There is a comprehensive and interesting miscellany. The number contains 128 quarto pages, and illustrations number nearly 100. The subscription price is only $3 a year; six months, $1.50; four months, $1. Single copies, 25 cents, postpaid. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 & 57 Park Place, New York.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

TROY, O., Jan. 2, 1878. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

Ecclesiastical Law
—AND—
Rules of Evidence:
With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
— BY —
HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,
— AND —
WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.
8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

Lectures on Preaching
Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.
By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D., LL.D.
(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)
Cloth, 12mo. Price........$1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics, delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly, forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workman who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

This book will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Address,

HIDING FROM PAPA.

Papa's lost his baby!
Searches everywhere,
Under chairs and tables,
With the greatest care!

Pulls aside the curtain;
Peeps behind the door,
Never sees the little heap
Curled up on the floor.

Never hears the whisper,
"Mamma, don't you tell!"
Nor the little laughter,
Muffled, like a bell!

Off he scampers wildly,
Hunting here and there,
Overturning everything,
With the greatest care!

Canary has a visit,
Sitting on his perch,
Mamma's apron pocket
Suffers by the search!

"Now I am so tired—
Elephant at play—
That I must take a rest
A minute by the way.

I'll lay my weary head
On this little rug."
Under mamma's towel,
Lay her darling snug!

Then the merry scrambling
Papa laughed to see!
"And you didn't fink, now,
That it could be me!"

A Child's Heart.

The other day a curious old woman, having a bundle in her hand, and walking with a painful effort, sat down on a curb-stone up Woodward avenue to rest. She was curious because her garments were neat and clean, though threadbare, and curious because a smile crossed her wrinkled face as children passed her. It might have been this smile that attracted a group of three little ones, the oldest about nine. They stood in a row in front of the old woman, saying never a word, but watching her face. The smile brightened, lingered and then suddenly faded away, and a corner of the old calico apron went up to wipe away a tear. Then the eldest child stepped forward and asked:

"Are you sorry because you haven't got any children?"

"I—I had children once, but they are all dead," whispered the woman, a sob in her throat.

"I'm awful sorry," said the little girl, as her own chin quivered. "I'd give you one of my little brothers here, but you see I haven't got but two, and I don't believe I'd like to spare one."

"God bless you, child—bless you forever," sobbed the old woman, and for a full minute her face was buried in her apron.

"But I'll tell you what I'll do," [illegible] continued the child. "You may kiss us all once, and if little [illegible] isn't afraid, you may kiss him four times, for he's just as sweet as candy!"

Pedestrians who saw three well-dressed children put their arms around that strange old woman's neck and kiss her were greatly puzzled. They didn't know the hearts of children, and they didn't hear the woman's words as she rose to go:

"Oh, children, I'm only a poor old woman, believing I'd nothing to live for, but you've given me a lighter heart than I've had for ten long years!"—Detroit Free Press.

cage. Henceforth they lived like bosom friends.

Thus you see even a fierce tiger can be grateful for a little favor. How much more, then, should children learn to be grateful to their friends for the great favors they have received? When I see boys and girls unkind and insulting to their parents, who have done and suffered so much for them, I tell them the story of the tiger and the dog, and say: "Children, don't be less grateful to your kind parents than the tiger was to the little dog."

What a Spider Eats.

In order to test what a spider can do in the way of eating, we arose about day break in the morning, to supply this fine web with a fly. At first, however, the spider did not come from its retreat, so we peeped among the leaves, and there discovered that an earwig had been caught, and was now being feasted upon. The spider left the earwig, rolled up the fly, and at once returned to his "first course." This was 5:30 a. m. in September. At 7 a. m. the earwig had been demolished, and the spider, after resting awhile, and probably enjoying a nap, came down for the fly, which it had finished at 9 a. m. A little after 9 we supplied him with a daddy-long-legs, which he ate by noon. At 1 o'clock a blow-fly was greedily seized, and then immediately, with an appetite apparently no worse for his previous indulgence, he commenced on the blow-fly. During the day and toward evening, a great many small green flies, or what are properly termed midges, had been caught in the web, of these we counted one hundred and twenty, all dead, and fast prisoners in the spider's net. Soon after dark, provided with a lantern, we went to examine whether the spider was suffering from indigestion, or in any other way, from his previous meals; instead, however, he was employed in rolling up together the various little green midges, when he took them to his retreat and tea. This process he repeated, carrying up the lots in little detachments, until the web was eaten, for the web and its contents were bundled up together. A slight rest of about an hour was followed by the most industrious web-making process, and before daybreak another web was ready to be used in the same way. Taking the relative size of the spider, and of the creatures it ate, and applying to a man, it would be somewhat as follows: At daybreak a small alligator was eaten; at 7 a. m., a lamb; at 9 a. m., a young camelopard; at 1 o'clock a sheep, and during the night one hundred and twenty larks. This, we believe, would be a fair allowance for a man during twenty-four hours, and could we find one gifted with such an appetite and digestion we can readily comprehend how he might spin five miles of web without killing himself, provided he possessed the necessary machinery.—Classmate.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire through you for brothers, sisters and relatives. My mother's name was Matilda Earhart and father's Dan Earhart. I had a sister, Vickey, and a brother, Jim, that I remember. I left my mother and sister in the State of Georgia with old man Earhart. My father, my brother and a woman by the name of Sarah was brought to Texas about 20 years ago by Dr. George Earhart. My father died some time ago. The last I heard from brother, he was in Taylor, Smith Co., Texas. I remember of having struck one of my sisters on the head with an axe, but I was too young to remember much about it. Any information will be gladly received. Address me at Bryan, Texas, in care of Rev W. W. Brown.

PREVENT Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 31 13t

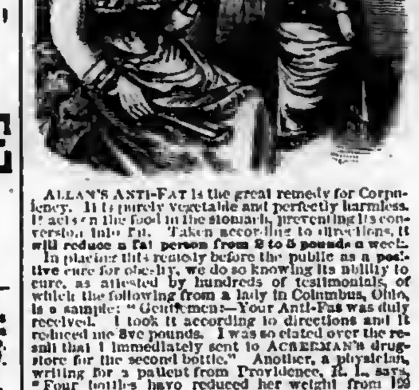
ANTI-FAT



ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT is the great remedy for Corpulency. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into Fat. Taken according to directions, it will reduce a fat person from 2 to 5 pounds a week. In placing this remedy before the public as a positive cure for obesity, we do so knowing its ability to cure, as attested by hundreds of testimonials, of which the following from a lady in Columbus, Ohio, is a sample: "Gentlemen:—Your Anti-Fat was duly received. I took it according to directions and it reduced me five pounds. I was so elated over the result that I immediately sent to ACKERMAN'S drug store for the second bottle." Another, a physician, writing for a patient from Providence, R. I., says, "Four bottles have reduced her weight from 192 pounds to 192 pounds, and there is a general improvement in health." A gentleman writing from Boston, says: "Without special change or attention to diet, two bottles of Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me four and one-quarter pounds." The well-known Wholesale Druggists, SMITH, DOOLITTLE & SMITH, of Boston, Mass., write as follows: "Allan's Anti-Fat has reduced a lady in our city seven pounds in three weeks." A gentleman in St. Louis writes: "Allan's Anti-Fat reduced me twelve pounds in three weeks, and altogether I have lost twenty-five pounds since commencing its use." Messrs. POWELL & PLIMPTON, Wholesale Druggists, of Buffalo, N. Y., write: "TO THE PROPRIETORS OF ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT: Gentlemen,—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat. 'It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost.'" Anti-Fat is an unexcelled blood-purifier. It promotes digestion, curing dyspepsia, and is also a potent remedy for rheumatism. Sold by druggists. Pamphlet on Obesity sent on receipt of stamp. WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittant Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

[illegible] Protection of Labor.

[illegible] delivered in Clinton Street [illegible] church, New Orleans, La., Aug. 11, 1879.

BY [illegible] EMERSON BENTLEY.

[illegible]—The strikes [illegible] miners, engineers [illegible] every kind, and the [illegible] of which the press [illegible] chronicles, indicate [illegible] of a considerable [illegible] labor circles. If we [illegible] origin of these demonstrations [illegible] that all along [illegible] is an earnest desire [illegible] the laboring classes [illegible] and pre[illegible] more perfect [illegible] [illegible] ance, prejudice, and un-American religious fervor. We have land enough, room enough, and it is to be hoped that we will be hospitable enough, to welcome the Chinese during the period that American vessels trade in Chinese ports, and American missionaries penetrate the interior of China with bibles, telegraph lines, railroads, and probably every product of our workshops. For so the policy of justice will undoubtedly be compensated.

Of late years industrial changes have been wrought by skillful workmen, in the production of labor-saving machinery; by the great civil war, the growing density of population, and consequent increased competition in the older labor centres. The laboring classes have been stirred to their depths by the advancing encroachments upon their time and wages. Having imbibed the noble philosophy of the wisest teachers of mankind, the heart beats, the blood leaps, the soul protests against the conversion of humanity into mere instruments, mechanical and almost soulless, dominated by the rich and powerful for their almost exclusive benefit. Inspired by the genius of our government, which expects and honors the exercise of a high state of individuality, the eight hour men desire more of sunlight, and less of lamplight for mental improvement and social pleasure. However, impracticable it may be to earn within the space of eight hours the means of a comfortable livelihood for an entire day, is to be determined by the time and place of its operation. But we can not fail to applaud an honorable ambition.

The laborer sees the laws of supply and demand enforce a reduction of wages, almost without warning, and apparently by an arbitrary caprice. The attendant loss of accustomed comforts is sore of itself; but, at the lowest ebb, when succeeding labor barely furnishes a family the mere necessities of life, his murmurs and complaints become louder. In this mood, the ostentatious display of the more successful or grasping is naturally provocative of envy and discontent. But the wise laborer may ease his sore pathway by bearing in mind that just so long as there shall be strong and weak, there will be rich and poor, the just and the unjust man, and with due regard to the infirmities of his changeable being, use only the weapons of peace and love in the struggle to better his worldly condition.

How to preserve fair relations between employers and employes is always a question appealing to the intelligence of the parties concerned. It requires a general, sometimes an intricate knowledge of the movements of the commercial world to prepare with fortitude for its reverses. These overshadow us all in the course of life, and prudence dictates that both employer and employee, in times of prosperity prepare to tide over those of adversity, or join hands in leaping the yawning chasm. How impotent force is in securing adjustments the history of thousands of strikes that have completely failed of their purpose will bear witness. Arbitration, wherever possible, cannot be too highly commended as a measure of protection. Reason and unselfishness are indispensable factors in such a settlement of a controversy. It is observed, however, that, as a general rule, compromises originating in the necessities of, and yielded to by the weaker party, are not long binding, and seldom remove the spirit of discontent.

The exercise of the citizen power [illegible] should be made in [illegible] with their fellow citizens [illegible] to press special issues [illegible] class organization [illegible] experience has [illegible] antagonisms [illegible] minority and [illegible] at the polls. Nay, [illegible] fall too [illegible] of self- [illegible] who bring [illegible] well intended [illegible] The [illegible] workingmen [illegible] their place at [illegible] schools, [illegible] of their [illegible] urged upon the attention of laboring men. They should know that the slaves of the world are the ignorant, and its masters the learned. The poorer tradesman is overreached by the more skillful; the farmer who studies the soil and the rotation of crops, and brings to his aid the latest experiences and inventions is the prosperous. The man who neglects, wilfully or ignorantly, to give to his vocation the better powers of mind, will always suffer in competition with the one of superior foresight who does. From the cradle up the survival of the fittest is the burden of man's philosophy. The perfect man is enthroned with the gods. It is neither possible nor desirable to change this order of progress.

The foundation of all measures of self-protection is, therefore, the acquirement of a fair education in all the practical concerns of life. Public schools are supported by the State in recognition of the well established fact that educated labor and citizenship conduces to the highest prosperity. Never was this better illustrated than in the recent history of our country. By examining the colored plates and tables of the official census report of 1870 it will be seen that the division between free and slave territory was also the division between progress and re-action, patriotism and disloyalty, education and ignorance, in a very comprehensive sense. In one division man toiled with a reasonable hope of remuneration, in the other, hope flickered feebly in the socket. We have witnessed the democracy of the public school arrayed on the side of the nation's highest aspirations, hurl its thunderbolts against tyrannical task-masters, until it has broken shackles clear round the world. Even now the tremblings and upheavals of European States show that the echoes and reverberations have not ceased. We may safely say, that whosoever, by voice or vote aims a blow at the public school system is a deadly enemy of the working classes, and should be so estimated. Let it be affectionately and jealously guarded from the insidious assaults of both secret and open enemies, who may be found in every community.

Mill, mine, machine-shop, and landed capitalists form associations of a co-operative character, and exercise their powers to the utmost to regulate the markets for their wares, and incidentally to control the rates of wages. These proprietary combinations consult proprietary interests, and the laborer complains that in these councils he is neither represented in person nor by proxy, but is seemingly estimated on a par with the live stock and machinery used in the production of a commodity. Because the adjustments made by them are exclusive of the laborer's voice and vote, they often work unnecessary hardships, or infringe upon his rights in a manner which in self-protection he is compelled to resist. These proprietary combinations, however objectionable they may be, viewed in a moral sense, or even injurious to mutual interests, are generally made within the limits of the law, use common agencies, and it is scarcely possible to prevent or punish them by such legislation as a well ordered democracy could safely or consistently approve. In seeking practical remedies it is evident that laborers must bring to bear upon the unjust or burdensome proprietary combinations all the reasonable elements of power they possess. On a careful review, it will be seen that the laborer is admirably armed for his self-protection. Girded with the armor of righteousness, directed by intelligence, his assaults upon the lines of his adversaries may become almost invincible.

Primarily, an appeal should be made, in the spirit of manly brotherhood, to those who mistakenly or wilfully restrict or oppress. This leads to a better understanding, if not the removal of the cause of complaint. Secondly — If selfishness, indifference, or the arrogance of power prevents a satisfactory adjustment, associates may be consulted, and a common course of action agreed upon. Broken contracts are covered by the statutes, and may be enforced by ordinary legal procedure. Equally binding on all parties, they should never be signed carelessly, or in bad faith. The best interests of the laborer require him to be governed by the very soul of honor, in the [illegible] by letter and spirit, of [illegible] contracts.

Thirdly—Associations may be formed for purposes of consultation, mutual improvement and protection. As the protest of an association is weightier than that of an individual, so will its resources be found greater. A common fund may be used in seeking redress for violated contracts, or attempts to defraud. By means of association unwise counsel may be exposed and rejected, a fraternal sympathy cultivated, reading rooms opened, and enlightening influences placed within the reach of all which the means of none singly could command. A farm could be purchased and run on a share system. In like manner provision stores, the trades and manufactories may be conducted, ships sailed, newspapers published, and public opinion formed.

The abuse of such organizations is seen in strikes, and the forcible coercion of persons not members, or those who, Judas-like, desert their their fellows. Such demonstrations are unwise assaults upon the rights and liberties of the persons against whom directed; they are punishable under the law of conspiracy, in several States of the Union, and are on an equal footing in dignity and effect with other species of mob violence. As measures of self-protection the days of strikes and senseless mobs are on the decline. The progressive workingmen of the future will be expected to husband their resources in schemes of co-operation, and not waste their hard earnings in fruitless endeavors, unlawfully endangering the welfare of society at large. With well defined purposes, void of any unreasonable or vindictive class spirit, co operative associations will encourage self-reliance, and lead to many other most happy results.

It must always be borne in mind that the increase of population tends to an increased competition in laboring circles in any community; and the wages of labor will vary according to the number engaged in a like pursuit, the need of a given species of a labor, or the commodity it produces. The overplus in a department of labor may even be so great at times as to prevent success by co-operation at one point. The alternatives are acceptance of other employments temporarily, migration, or submission to the inevitable reduction of wages in such cases. The population of many of our States and Territories, is largely due to migrations from the crowded labor centres, and still the tide rolls on to the westward, opening up new fields and placing new stars on our banner of civilization.

When semi-military political societies, as in many parts of the Southern States, are operated to the exclusion of the laborers from the equal exercise of their citizen rights with planters and merchants; and where these capitalists have entered upon one great strike against the laws of the country useful and protective to laborers; where minorities count out legislators elected, and even drive out those whom majorities desire to to elect, there are several alternatives in self protection. The principal ones are: 1, A patient submission to serfdom, which is objectionable, because few men desire to sell their birthright for a mess of pottage; 2. Removal, en masse, from a place of oppression to a vicinity of more humane employers; 3, Migration to other States where the fruits of toil may be reaped free and unmolested; 4, By the co-operation of a score or more of associations, directed by a central head in the capital of each State, with authority to employ legal counsel to seek redress for infractions of the laws, and a common treasury with which to speedily withdraw all field labor from bulldozed communities; and also a labor bureau at which to warn others from entering them, and direct to such plantations or counties where labor is guaranteed to be unmolested. Such a plan, if determinedly entered upon, would cure extreme manifestations of intolerance and lead to better conditions of society.

All of this world are laborers, in the performance of allotted functions, working out the common destiny. No pride of caste should allow the use in an opprobrious sense of the distinctive appellations "laborer" and "capitalist." In the ups and downs of life the laborer may become a capitalist, and the capitalist a laborer according to the terms in popular use. As citizens we are equals; in the possession of virtues and talents some are large, and some small capitalists, and hence proceeds the train of inequalities. Virtues and talents are inherited more or less by all, and may be acquired to a certain extent from experience. This should inspire the laborer to the honorable, industrious and temperate pursuit of his chosen calling. The State that turns a deaf ear to his wrongs or complaints is doomed to willing or compulsory submission to inexorable decrees from the throne of Justice. Abide your lot patiently, laborers; look well to your laurels, statesmen, in view of this gracious provision in the regulation of the universe.

THE VALUE OF CHRISTIAN CHURCHES.

Why the M. E. Church is in the South.

AN ADDRESS BY REV. M. A. DAUGHERTY, AT THE LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE OF TRINITY M.E. CHURCH, IN SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, AUG. 6, 1879.

Why do we invest so much money in churches? This country has about $300,000,000 in churches. Fifty millions are annually expended in their support. Can we defend this immense outlay? I reply that it is the best investment that we have as a nation; that it is our chief glory that it is so great, and our chief misfortune that it is so small.

The sum seems large—$300,000,000 permanent investment, and $50,000,000 annual expenditure. But contrasted with some other of our investments it seems small. We have employed in the liquor business fifteen hundred millions, and annually expend nearly $700,000,000 for intoxicating drinks. The government derives nearly $61,000,000 of revenue from this business alone, $500,000,000 in distilleries, breweries and bar-rooms, and $300,000,000 in churches; $800,000,000 annually for whiskey and as much more for the crime and pauperism it creates, and $50,000,000 for Christianity. Our city has not less than $200,000 embarked in the business of making drunkards, and possibly $80,000 in churches She expends $200,000 per year for intoxicating drinks and possibly $25,000 for keeping open her churches. Who will call us extravagant until we expend at least as much for saving men as we do for destroying them?

But let us look at some of the considerations that make Christian churches valuable to communities and nations. 1. They are our public recognition of the being and providence of God. Houses of worship are the natural and only tangible expressions of a people's faith in God and his divine authority. Man is everywhere a worshipper and has covered the earth with temples. He is often gross and sensual in his conceptions of deity and rude may be his temple, but never so sinks to the level of the brutes below him as to be without a God and a place of worship—All heathendom is filled with temples, exponents of false gods, while Christendom points a spire heavenward from every hilltop and every valley, proclaiming the true conceptions of diety.

This public recognition of the God of the bible, his authority and word, embodied in our temples of worship, not only propitiate his favor but prepetuate the true idea of the one only God. Every Christian temple is an educator of all the people in the true conceptions of deity, his sovereignty, love and mercy, and man's accountability. Give to a people these ideas and you have furnished the strongest incentives to virtue and the most powerful restraints to vice.

2. But they also teach the true position and character of man. Men forget amid the excitements and absorbing pursuits of this life that there is anything beyond. The old Spaniards looking out upon the boundless Atlantic, through the narrow pass between the pillars of Hercules, concluded there was no land beyond their peninsula, and so they joined the Pillars of Hercules with a scroll and inscribed upon it, "Ne plus ultra," nothing beyond, and stamped the coin of the realm with this device. But Columbus one day found a bit of carved wood that had drifted in from the western ocean, and that bit of wood whispered to him of another world, and he found it. Then Spain struck out the "ne" from her motto and ever after wrote it "plus ultra"—there is more beyond. These Christian churches are shouting to all passers by, "there is a world beyond this world." They say to these men of business as they bustle by, "you are immortal, you have souls as well as merchandise and stocks." They say to the devotees of pleasure, "you have eternity as well as time." To all, of every age and condition, they are continual reminders of that tremendous fact—immortality. Every stone, in every one of these temples, is ceaselessly vocal with this admonition. There is a God. You must live forever. You are something nobler and grander than a man of business or of professional skill. Your relations leap the barriers of time and grasp eternity. You are sinner, and unholy, but God loves you, redeems you, and would make you his own sons and daughters. You have possibilities in your future; on the one hand the angels might envy, and on the other that devils might shudder at. They silently utter in the ear of the masses these tremendous truths, and warn men that every footfall here echoes through the archways of eternity, every word and thought is shaping immortal destiny. Take from the public mind the notions thus acquired, and you have degraded manhood and left it cowered and helpless and hopeless.

3. Christian churches alone keep alive a pure morality. Men boast of their morality while coldly neglecting or openly rejecting Christianity. This is eating the fruit and cursing the tree. Where do men find that lofty standard of morals that compels their admiration, but in the bible, and who disseminate and educate the world in this morality but the churches? You have never heard of any other organized agency for this work. In our land 60,000 ministers every Sunday deliver an average of two discourses a day to 10,000,000 or more of our people, enforcing some phase of bible morality. Every Sunday 7,000,000 of children and youth in our land are taught the same truths in our Sunday-schools. Can you measure or conceive the influence thus extended? And who is doing this work, I ask again, but the churches? Who beside ever did or ever can do it in the very nature of things? Whatever conceptions society has of what is lovely in morals or hideous in vice, whatever of approval of the one or condemnation of the other is due to bible views and sentiments. All our springs of purity are here, and issue hence in a thousand streams that water all the land.

But Christianity goes a step further. She comes to man with his heart steeped in rebellion against the purity of bible morality, powerless to resist the tide of his passion and depravity, and holds out to him not only divine love and sympathy, but divine help. It offers not only to teach him the morals of heaven, but write its precepts in his heart, to transform him that he shall love them, and find his supreme joy in keeping them. It offers supernatural help to helpless sinners, to make the tree good, that the fruit may be good, to make every sinner a saint. Millions have thus been recreated. Christian churches alone proclaim these good tidings, and lead men to the divine Saviour.

4. But again, churches cherish learning and education. The great founder of Christianity defines its mission when he said, "Ye are the light of the world." The study of God's works, as well as His word, is the legitimate fruit of faith in and reverence for God. The church of God believes that the volume of nature and the volume of revelation, are written by the same divine author and should and must agree. Hence a spirit of research and discovery, and natural and moral science are the fruits. If any scientific theory opposes the bible, Christian scholarship at once says either the theory is false or our understanding of the Word is erroneous, and promptly, either the falsity of the theory is exposed or the interpretation corrected. There is no conflict, there can be none, between the church and science. Both are the offspring of eternal truth, and the only seeming differences possible, are the result of human error, in one department or the other.

As a matter of fact and history, the church has been the patron of learning and the founder of schools in all ages. The sphere of human knowledge has been widened, and all progress accomplished, directly or indirectly, through her agency alone. She has not been without bigots and perverted views, but her real children are and have been the friends of truth, education and progress. In our own country we have three hundred colleges; all but thirty of them were created by the churches. We have numerous seminaries, most of them children of the churches. Our educational systems and free schools, the glory and hope of the country, the State colleges and all agencies for educating the masses, are the legitimate offspring of the civilization struck out of the Bible by the churches. Strike down the Bible, blot out your churches, and you have strangled the author of your best gifts and brightest glories as a people.

Another truth akin to this must not be overlooked. Christianity quickens the intellect, and raises to superiority the nations that embrace it. Judaism, the precursor and progenitor of Christianity, produced the grandest people the world had ever seen. The Jews were princes among men, designed to be educators of nations. Intellectually they were the mightiest nation on the globe. Christianity, in a more eminent degree, quickens the mental power, for to the sublime doctrines and motives of Judaism it adds the sublimer and mightier of Jesus and the Gospel. Christian nations are the ruling nations. They control the commerce, they create the laws and literature of the world; they possess the civil power, the schools and scholarship and statesmanship which rule the globe. They originate all useful inventions and create all progress. Non-Christian peoples contribute nothing to the world's advancement or man's elevation. These are facts, and it is equally patent that the secret of superiority lies in the religion of these nations. Heathen nations are coming to copy the distinctive features of Christian civilization. and nothing stands in the way of their so doing but their religion. Mohammedans and Buddhists must have our religion if they have our civilization, for the two are as inseparable as cause and effect.

Another fact gives value to the churches: They alone teach and conserve the principles that enlarge the sphere of human rights and lift upward the masses. Every other religion degrades the masses, enslaves the many, and exalts the few. The gospel teaches the universal brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God, the equality of all men in natural rights. It enthrones manhood and dethrones kingcraft and priestcraft; levels caste and exalts man as man. This glorious work, though resisted by all the powers and pride and ambition of the ruling classes, has gone steadily on, until the consummation draws nigh. In many nations the fetters are fallen, the prison's doors are thrown open, and the millions go forth enfranchised. In all parts of the world the glorious ideas of humanity taught by Christ and enthroned in his own person as the elder brother of our common humanity are forcing their way. The tread of the masses, with Jesus at their head, as they march upward to their true position, is heard in all lands. Thrones, aristocracies and tyrannies are crumbling, and the divine right of the people is being exalted. Even those forms of perverted christianity which have joined hands with oppressors to keep the common people in degradation, are being crushed under the ponderous wheels of progress and are doomed to dissolution.

Akin to this is the fact that the churches alone make the destruction of political evils possible, and good and pure government practicable. Law without sentiment to support it is in our land a nullity Law is unavailing if unenforced. Without the influence of the churches, where would be the public conscience, the sense of virtue, that demands universal justice to all classes and universal prohibition of all corruption and wrong?

Was there ever an evil in our land, in our administration of governmental affairs, does there exist one now, here or anywhere in the world, that is not prohibited by the Bible? Would not the universal prevalence of bible ideas cure every wrong and remove every cause of complaint that a good man could make? Would it not end the evils of the whisky shops, as it has other great wrongs? Would it not suppress licentiousness, dishonesty of all kinds, corruption in office, fraud and intimidation at the polls, persecution and murder for opinion's sake? Would not the weakest and most defenceless of American citizens be as safe as the most powerful everwhere? Then by all possible means reinforce your churches, who teach the Bible. The word of God is a surer defense than armies and forts, policemen and courts. Not by giving the church the power of the State, but by sending its purifying atmosphere throughout the State, making it reach every interest, every home and shop and heart.

The churches maintain, defend and perpetuate the institutions which refine society, elevate public morals, insure safety and dispense benevolence. What would become of the Sabbath but for the churches? Destroy this institution, and what a flood-tide of immorality would be let in upon the public. But for the Sabbath, christianity and public moral instruction would be impossible. None but incendiaries, or insane or grossly ignorant men would destroy the Sabbath and its public influence. Schools and wholesome literature and nearly all the benevolent institutions of the land are the outgrowth of Christian benevolence. No other religion founds hospitals, asylums, reformatory or educational institutions for the people. No form of skepticism or irreligion does this. The various forms of humanitarian and philanthropic effort root in a subsoil of Christian teaching, and would die without the nutriment. Music, the fine arts and architecture, and all the adornments of society have their chief value in the pure taste and refined culture encouraged and developed by Christianity.

Churches have also commercial value. That which gives value to everything else must itself be precious. Suppose there were no churches in this city; would your shops, houses, merchandise and corner lots be worth more or less? Would not your property depreciate fifty fold the cost of your churches should you banish them? Would you take your family to reside among a people who would not tolerate churches? Would you expect desirable people to come and live with you with no churches, no Sabbath, no Bible? Even the most pronounced opposers of churches, knowing well their commercial value, are often foremost in encouraging their erection, and in their support. They are sure to mention good churches if their city has them, and to take strangers around to see them when showing the attractions and add a good per cent. to the property they have for sale. Every church you have erected, or will erect, has added to the value of the property of the city many times its cost. Those who refuse to help, pocket the profit and leave their neighbors to bear the burden alone.

But what is the propriety or necessity of erecting another Methodist Episcopal church in this city? We have one, not well filled or supported, why add another? Why not all Methodists unite in one society?

Some go so far as to claim that the Methodist Episcopal church has no right to exist here, that she is an interloper, and should be kept away, and do what they can to make and spread this sentiment. Why then do you come? I reply:

1. We do not come to rival or oppose any church, to quarrel with, or persecute, or in any way interfere with any sister church. We come as friends, brethren and helpers, holding out our hands to all. We come solely and purely for the purpose of aiding in the work of laying Christian foundations for the future millions that are to live in this great and beautiful country. There is work for God and humanity here; we can aid, and, therefore, are on the ground.

2. We will not conceal the fact that there are insuperable differences between the two Methodisms, called north and south. Not of doctrine or church polity, but of attitude toward great and vital questions, which have in the past, do now, and must until one or the other shall change position. Keep them apart ecclesiastically. They were advocates of slavery; we were opposers of slavery. They cling to the prejudices and ideas begotten of that system; we to the opposite. They were abettors and leaders in secession; we were loyal to the Union and the nation. These are radical differences and without reproach to either, giving both credit for sincerity, they form abundant reasons for separate establishments, and will for some time to come. Previous to the late civil war, [illegible] after the secession of the southern conferences from the Methodist Episcopal Church on account of slavery, we were proscribed and practically excluded from the [illegible] Our preachers and teachers were driven out or killed, and there [illegible]

Prof. Jeremy S. Benn, of New Orleans University, is visiting relatives in New Hampshire.

The fourteenth annual session of the Central Tennessee College, Nashville, begins Monday, Sept. 1.

The Buffalo Christian Advocate and Rochester Exponent have consolidated, and the Buffalo paper will carry both names, and endeavor to increase its usefulness.

The Texas Iron Age, Austin, has admitted a partner, Mr. C. F. Drake, of Bay City, Mich., and on the arrival of purchased material promises to commence the publication of a daily paper that "will be a credit to the capital city of the State."

A friend has sent us a copy of India Methodist Watchman, published at Vepery, Madras, Vol. 1, No. 1, for July, 1879. This healthy looking sentinel on the outposts of Christianity, will be sent to American subscribers at $1 per year.

This is how the color line gives way to the dictates of pure Christianity: James Snowden, a colored man, died in Augusta Ga., and his funeral took place from St. Paul's church, the principal white Episcopalian church in the city. The church was filled with colored people. The rector officiated, a white choir sang. A number of whites attended the service.

The Carolitou Sunday-school excursion on Tuesday last was not largely attended owing to the threatening look of the weather, but fortunately, there was no rain and those who did go spent a very pleasant day. The Essential Elements of Preaching.

By no one, perhaps, has the essential elements of preaching been more clearly stated than by Rev. Phillips Brookes, in his lectures on preaching at Yale College. He defines preaching as "the communication of truth by man to men," and points out that it has in it two essential elements, truth and personality. "Preaching is the bringing of truth through personality. It must have both elements. It is in the different proportion in which the two are mingled that the difference between two great classes of sermons and preaching lies. It is in the defect of one or the other element that every sermon and preacher falls short of the perfect standard. It is in the absence of one or the other element that a discourse ceases to be a sermon and a man ceases to be a preacher altogether." As to the matter of preaching, Mr. Brookes says: "I think that nothing is more needed to correct the peculiar vices of preaching which belong to our time than a new prevalence among preachers of this first conception of the truth which they have to tell as a message. I am sure that one great source of the weakness of the pulpit is the feeling among the people that these men who stand before them every Sunday have been making up tains of thought and thinking how they should treat their subject as the phrase runs. There is the first ground of the vicious habit that our congregations have of talking about the preacher more than they think about the truth. The minstrel who sings before you to show his skill will be praised for his wit, his rhymes and his voice. But the courier who hurries in, breathless, to bring you a message, will be forgotten in the message that he brings." He says "there is an immense amount of preaching which must be called preaching about Christ as distinct from preaching Christ. There are many preachers who seem to do nothing else, always discussing Christianity as a problem instead of announcing Christianity as a message." "Beware," he continues, "of the tendency to preach about Christianity, and try to preach Christ. To discuss the relations of Christianity and science, Christianity and society, Christianity and politics, is good. To set forth Christ to men so that they should know Him, and in gratitude and love become His, that is far better. It is good to be a Herschel who describes the sun; but it is better to be a Prometheus who brings the sun's fire to earth."

On the subject of the element of personality, Mr. Brookes remarks that Christian truth is pre-eminently personal. "However the Gospel may be capable of statement in dogmatic form, the truest statement is not in dogma, but in personal life. Christianity is Christ, and we can easily understand how a truth which is of such peculiar character that a person can stand forth and say of it, 'I am the Truth,' must always be conveyed through—most indeed, be almost incapable of being perfectly conveyed except through — personality." "Everything that was peculiar in Christ's treatment of the disciples was merely part of the process by which the Master prepared their personality to be a fit medium for the communication of His Word. When His treatment of them was complete, they stood fused like glass, and able to take God's truth in perfectly on one side, and send it out perfectly on the other side of their transparent natures." The personal fitness and preparation of the preacher are then of supreme concern. That the preacher knows of Christianity as doctrine is of great importance, but what the preacher is is of still greater importance. Mr. Brookes expresses the conviction that the true sermon, the utterance of living truth by living men was never more powerful than it is to-day. Preachers are not to excuse their own failures by foolish talk about the aversion of the age to preaching, but to look for the fault in their own preaching.

Off and On the Lines of Fraternity.

We have spent an instructive half hour this week in perusing the columns of the press of the M. E. Church South, and reading what they have to say off and on the lines leading to a fraternal union with the M. E. Church. The personal criticisms of prominent members of this church have grown unusually severe of late, and we wanted to estimate its Southern critics at their true value, coming to the task in a candid spirit, a love of the truth, and a desire to remove all impediments to fraternal union.

Picking up the Nashville Christian Advocate, O. P. Fitzgerald, editor, our eye caught this leading editorial: THE EVILS OF SECTIONAL ABUSE.

The incessant and indiscriminate abuse of the Southern people by a class of Northern newspapers does harm in many ways.

The good brother started off the line. He referred to criticisms of lawlessness, not "abuse" of Southern people. He assumed a motive to govern the Northern press, of which he could not be assured, and hence his remarks about "exciting hatred and contempt," "a spirit of retaliation," and "blunting the edge of popular rebuke" are liable to be misunderstood as encouraging that class of people in the South which indulges in lawlessness. Especially does this appear in the sentence: "The judgment of every thing in the South by these Northern censors is so harsh," etc. The good brother here lost his discriminating judgment for a while, but we are happy to congratulate him on the recovery of that valuable possession, in time to say, at the close:

Addressing ourselves honestly and earnestly to our duty as conservators of what is true and good, and inflexible opponents of all that is false and evil in our own section, we shall have not only the blessing of Him who rules in righteousness, but the good-will and sympathy of the large and increasing class of Northern people who are disposed to treat us as citizens of the same country, and children of the same faith should treat each other.

So we leave Dr. Fitzgerald at his nearest point to the fraternal line, and converse with Dr. McAnally, of the St. Louis Christian Advocate. He says:

Some weeks ago the Methodist Advocate, of Atlanta, Ga., published a list of ministers, and perhaps some others connected with the M. E. Church, who had been assaulted, maltreated, or killed in some part or other of the South, and the idea suggested that it was all done simply because of their relations to and work in and for the denomination with which they were connected. The list was copied into at least three of the Northern Methodist papers: perhaps more, and alluded to by others.

As to the truth of the statements we know nothing and say nothing. As to the motive of parading them before the public in the way it was done, we have no right to speak. To challenge motives is not under any ordinary circumstances regarded as consistent with gentlemanly character, but as violative of all the delicacies and propriety of refined society.

What strikes us here is the general looseness of the language employed in describing the persons, where killed, and in what place. But, then we remember it must be the case with an editor who admits that he knows nothing of the truth of the statements; and this admission might explain to Dr. McAnally the purpose of the Atlanta Advocate in publishing them, i. e., to give information on a grave subject to those who had little or none before. His remarks about challenging motives so exalted the Doctor in our estimation that we were hardly prepared for this backset:

It may, and we suppose it does accord with the taste of these papers to collect and blazon such things abroad, but it is not in accordance with the taste of truly refined society. Such a course sometimes excites pity, but it is a pity largely mixed with contempt—pity for the real sufferers, and contempt for those who would try to make capital out of their sufferings.

Indeed, Dr. M'Anally! Here is a new doctrine for the guidance of the press: "Don't call attention to unpunished crimes, because it is in bad taste, and refined society will hold you in contempt." Listen to him:

Were we so disposed, it would be easy to present to the world a list longer and full as hideous as that under notice. We might begin here in Missouri, and tell of not a few who were shot down in cold blood for no assigned or assignable reason in almost every case than that they were ministers of the M. E. Church South, and we could tell in most cases at whose instance it was done.

Here is unexpected evidence of lawlessness in Missouri, and we hope the guilty parties will be taken in charge by the officers of the law and punished. It is the failure of officials to do their duty in such cases, that makes it incumbent on the religious press, to advocate obedience to the divine commandment "Thou shalt not kill," and the brotherly love exemplified by the Savior. Let us turn from the "gaping wounds of the past," opened by our Atlanta brother, and pray that our St. Louis brother may not wander too far away from the fraternal line.

Our Texas contemporary, the Christian Advocate, of Galveston, attracted our attention as would the war whoop of a Comanche on the broad prairies of his empire State:

Dr. Fowler, of the New York Advocate, is mad again; or, it is rather an intensification of the same old mad. A gentleman in Huntingdon, Tenn., punished a negro wench for crowding his wife and another white lady off the sidewalk. None but a woman coarse and depraved would be guilty of an act that compelled a husband to interfere to protect his wife and other ladies from insult; and none but a paper eaten up with prejudice would become the champion of that class. Were it not for the support a class of insolent and often degraded negroes receive from the Northern religious papers, there would be no necessity for a white man interfering to protect his wife and children from insult. Were these women to carry their rudeness and insolence into a Northern city, they would be promptly arrested; but the taste of the New York Advocate makes it their self-constituted champion.

We believe this places editor I. G. John as far away from the fraternal line as the Comanche is, if not farther. It is news to us that a "gentleman," on the ground of an alleged right of way of a wife to the sidewalk, can enter a lady's room, take her by the hair of the head, drag her about and beat her. We had supposed, and do still think, that an elbowing of one person by another, if maliciously done, might be treated as a common assault, and settled in a police court. It was proven in court, where the outraged lady sought redress from her assailant, that this "gentleman" was guilty of the charge preferred, and a Southern judge fined him a small sum; but the village newspaper championed the aggressor because the victim was black, and she was compelled to move from the place where she had hitherto pursued the honorable vocation of a school teacher. Leaving the reader to follow his natural reflection upon editor John's position in this matter, we charitably hope that sometime before the last sound of Gabriel's trump shall cease to be heard, we may see him coming up, right foot foremost, to get on the fraternal line. For the present, we commend his case to Dr. Fitzgerald, as furnishing a text for an editorial on "The Evils of Sectional Abuse," commencing, "The incessant and indiscriminate abuse of the Northern people by a class of Southern newspapers does harm in many ways," and closing in his best vein of good nature.

That San Antonio Corner-Stone Laying.

The laying of the corner-stone of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church in San Antonio, Texas, August 6, was a most happy event. We publish the excellent address of the pastor, Rev. M. A. Daugherty. His discussion of the value of the Christian Church is instructive and his vindication of the presence of the Methodist Episcopal Church in San Antonio and the whole South is complete. Our colored people have in San Antonio a large self-supporting church, our German brethren have a vigorous church, and now Trinity Church is being built. This new church is to cost $10,000, without the lots, and will seat 500 people. The walls are of Salado rock, trimmed about the corners and openings with San Geronimo cut stone. The San Antonio Express says the church will be an ornament to the city exteriorly, and interiorly a model of beauty and convenience.

The tin box placed in the cavity of the stone contained the following articles:

1. Discipline of the M. E. Church.
2. Standard Hymnal of the M. E. Church.
3. History of this enterprise.
4. Board of trustees, building committee, and contractor of rock work.
5. List of original subscribers to the building fund.
6. List of members of original society of Trinity M. E. Church.
7. Original board of stewards and list of the officers and teachers of Trinity Sabbath-school.
8. List of members of the original choir.
9. A copy of the Christian Advocate of New York.
10. A copy of the Northwestern Christian Advocate of Chicago.
11. A copy of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of New Orleans.
12. A copy of the San Antonio Daily Express.
13. A copy of the San Antonio Herald.
14. A copy of the Evening Courier.
15. A copy of the Texas Sun.
16. A copy of the Surprise.
17. Roster of troops in the department of Texas.
18. A copy of the Texas Christian Advocate, a paper of the M. E. Church South, published at Galveston, Texas.

Rev. F. Christian will leave New Orleans October 1, to visit Methodist churches in the country, until the next annual conference. He expects to do good, and to test his efficiency as a servant of the Master.

Tremont Temple, Boston, was nearly destroyed by fire on the 15. It is owned by the American Bible Society.

The Yazoo Infamy.

We have referred to the forced withdrawal of an independent candidate at Yazoo City, Miss., by an armed mob of several hundred Democrats, and the extra Herald of that place, exulting at the deed. Since further particulars have come to light warranting further notice of the infamy.

Capt. Henry Dixon, an ex-Confederate officer, was so efficient in his campaign against the Republicans in 1875, that the Democratic party of the country presented him a solid silver pitcher, on which was engraved:

To
The Bravest of the Brave,
Captain Henry M. Dixon.
Presented to him by his Democratic fellow-citizens of Yazoo county, as an humble testimonial of their high appreciation of his brilliant services in the redemption of the county from Radical rule in 1875.

Early in April of this year Capt. Dixon announced himself as an independent candidate for sheriff of Yazoo county. Later other candidates were announced, receiving support from about one-third of the whites and nearly all the Republicans. June 23 the Democratic convention nominated a ticket, resolved to suppress the Independents, and intrusted the executive committee with perfecting plans. In July the committee announced its programme, and the Yazoo papers declared it would be supported by all Democrats of that county. Military companies were organized and used to intimidate voters during registration, but Capt. Dixon and his fellow-Democrats succeeded in registering a majority, and other measures were resorted to. Friday morning, July 25, about 500 armed men assembled, commanded by H. Stubblefield, Democratic candidate for sheriff, called together on maliciously invented rumors of a negro uprising. Learning that the enemy consisted of Dixon and two friends, about 200 deserted and 300 called on Dixon at his home in Yazoo City, and demanded that he should leave the county within twenty-four hours, under an armed escort, or take the consequences.

The Captain declined the proposition, and the Mayor of Yazoo City, pistol in hand, faced the mob, to prevent assassination and the burning of the house. Says a trust worthy citizen:

In was not until a parley of six hours had been indulged, and the gallant young Mayor, Jos. H. Holt, Esq., nominee of the Yazoo Democracy for District Attorney, in the meantime appearing in front of the mob, with weapon in hand, denouncing their action, and declaring to them that he would kill the first man who attempted to cross Dixon's threshold — not until all this, and not until the mob had commenced to fill themselves with mean whisky, and not until there became imminent danger of Dixon's house, and the houses of his friends being burned, and his friends, white and colored, being murdered—not until all this did this gallant young Mississippian (for he is still quite young, although he has six children) consent to allow his friends and the mob to come to an agreement.

Similar honors were also paid to Mr. Bell, independent candidate for clerk. Then came the extra Herald, saying: "The Democratic flaw now waves over this glorious old county, uncontaminated and unchallenged, and long may it wave." Not a word was allowed to be said about the affair by telegraph from Yazoo, and the general public received its first intelligence of the affair on the arrival of a river packet at Vicksburg, July 27.

Now, sir, is there no remedy for us? Is there no source to which we can look for protection in our rights? They now threaten to compel every prominent Independent to pledge his support to their party or burn our houses and drive us from our homes. How is this for a free country?

Judge, help us with your advice, and in any and every other way consistent with your sense of right and justice. Our young friend, Edward Holmes, by whom we send this, is every way worthy of trust, and is intelligent and well posted, and we can assure you the utmost confidence can be reposed in his statements. He will give you all the details necessary.

Judge Morris, on the 28th, in his reply, said:

So far as the form and theory of our laws and judiciary are concerned, your remedy ought to be abundant and speedy. The offenses of which you speak are well defined by our statutes, and well known to our courts. But under existing circumstances, and in the midst of such political excitement, it is painful to have to admit that practically our laws upon this subject are a dead letter and our judiciary a dead system, because violence and fraud in elections, and fraud and perjury in covering them up, have in too many instances been the instrumentalities by which our public officers got into power, and by which they expect to retain it.

In reponse to your request for my advice, I would say: Preserve your organization; keep up the free standard of your constitutional rights; stand firmly to your duty, and go forward with a determination that the few hundred violent men composing the mob shall not, without the indorsement or connivance of the gentlemen to whom I allude, drive you from the field. The mob element exists to some extent in every community, and if permitted the mob would intercept and defeat by murder and rapine any party, be it ever so meritorious, if encouraged or connived at by the leading minds of the opposition. Such men can be restrained by no laws which the authorities refuse to see executed, those they could safely defy, though they would skulk from the presence of enlightened men, such as these to whom I have alluded.

I was full satisfied before receiving your letter and the detailed statements of the gentleman who brought it to me, that no such mob as that could have assembled in the town of Benton or Yazoo City, utterly destitute as that mob was from its inception of any honest cause or lawful intention, unless it had been known that they were opposed by the majority of the legal voters; and I know also that extraordinary lying and artifice must have been employed, as you say it was, to induce the better class of them to assemble, and your information to this effect but confirms my previous convictions. If you will pursue the course which I have here indicated, the action of the mob of last Friday and Saturday will most certainly react with most humiliating and disgraceful effect upon its leaders and authors, and in your favor. Hundreds of men not hitherto with you will rally to your standard, and you will yet achieve a glorious triumph. Or, if I am mistaken in all this; if one party in Yazoo County can not organize without consulting the other; if no citizen can cast or receive a vote without the consent of his adversaries; if a party largely in the majority can be dispersed and scattered with impunity by an armed mob—it requires no prophet to foretell that we shall embitter the people of the Northern States and make them "solid" against us, and that the laboring classes of that and many of the neighboring counties will leave en masse and go anywhere—anywhere out of the State.

The emigrants from this State will find the river full of steamboats to carry them away. The fertile hill plantations of Mississippi will be given over to the occupancy of briers, bermuda and wastening gullies, and the still more magnificent plantations of the Yazoo and Mississippi bottoms will be returned to the dominion of alligators, moccasins and owls, and the still more desolating inundation. God speed you in your good work, the success of which alone can prevent these disasters.

The Independents number among them Hon. R. S. Hudson, a distinguished lawyer and for many years a leading Democrat, having served his State and party whenever he chose on the bench and in the halls of the Legislature; R. G. Hudson, Esq., son and partner of the former; Maj. P. M. Doherty, present Democratic Treasurer; J. N. Gilreath, Henry Elliott and Wm. Elliott, of Elliott Brothers, merchants; Drs. Moore and Grudberry, the latter formerly a professor in the Medical College of Louisville, Ky., and for many years a citizen of Yazoo City, and Ed. Kelly, merchant. Besides these are Dr. B. R. Holmes, of the county; Wm. M. Richardson, planter; W. A. Brown, merchant, Deasonville; Samuel Tucker, of Tucker & Co., Vaughn's Station; James Smith, planter; John Purvis, planter; Joseph Purvis, planter; Dr. J. W. C. Smith, planter; L. Lincoln, merchant; Davis L. Rosenburg, merchant at Pritchard's Cross roads; Mr. William Upshur, a planter on Silver Creek, and the white people generally of that region of Yazoo county. They sent a deputation to Gov. Stone, who mockingly gave them a letter to the leader of the mob asking him to grant protection to citizens, as sheriff of the county. A mass meeting of Democrats in Yazoo City, Aug. 5, adopted a vindication of the course of their party, and charged Dixon with reviving a race issue. A more brazen document was never issued from any source. The Vicksburg Herald, for mildly disapproving the war against independents, was voted an enemy to the community.

Two or three Democratic newspapers of Mississippi, and the New Orleans Democrat of the 16th, have openly approved of the infamous affair. The New York World (Democratic) says:

Those who are or who aspire to be leaders of the ruling race in Mississippi surely will not quarrel with the World for saying that such acts as the young men of a portion of that State are reported to have perpetrated in the Yazoo country must not be permitted to be performed. We understand quite well that the offensive candidate was not a negro, and that his candidacy was not inspired by negroes. We understand that what was done was done as a measure of local partisan politics. But it was a measure, if truly reported, better fitted for Zulus than for Americans capable of self-government and of liberty protected by law. Caucuses and conventions in Northern States have sometimes been controlled and their presiding officers installed by violence, but decently educated people in the North do not uphold such practice. It concerns the South intimately to stand side by side with States like Connecticut, New York and New Jersey on all questions of law and order.

And it significantly gives a warning:

There is real danger that the stalwart ideas of reconstruction which prevailed so long after President Lincoln's murder may again be applied to the South in spite of anything and of everything which Eastern Democrats can do or say.

Suffrage Qualifications in Kansas.

The following correspondence will explain itself, and be welcome intelligence to many of our readers:

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 3, 1879.

Gov. St. John, Topeka, Kansas:

DEAR SIR—I have been not a little surprised on reading the following communication, from a gentleman of high standing in political and commercial circles of this city, and published in a conspicuous position by the daily Picayune of this morning:

Suffrage in Kansas.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2, 1879.

To the Editor of the Picayune:

Article 5, on suffrage, section 1, Constitution of Kansas, says: "Every white male person, of 21 years and upwards, belonging to either of the following classes, who shall have resided in Kansas six months next preceding any election, and in the township or ward in which he offers to vote at least 30 days next preceding such election, shall be deemed a qualified elector:

1. Citizens of the United States.
2. Persons of foreign birth who shall have declared their intention to become citizens conformably to the laws of the United States on the subject of naturalization.

Now until some definite action has been taken by the people of Kansas or the United States Supreme Court on this question of suffrage, how stands our newly arrived colored brother, knocking at the door for equal rights in Kansas? The curious in such matters are referred to "Charters and Constitutions," edition of 1878, published by authority of Congress, a book to be found, I suppose, in the offices of most of our attorneys—certainly in the office of my nephew, Gen. Sandidge, Commercial Place, who directed my attention to it.

JNO. M. SANDIDGE.

The seeming forgetfulness of the writer of the celebrated Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is universally supposed to have set aside race qualification of the suffrage in State Constitutions, is noted. But it is more than probable that the communication of Mr. Sandidge was intended for double service, viz.: To retard the negro exodus to your State; and to convict the ruling majority of unfaithfulness to the political tenets they now advocate and urge as measures of wisdom upon the South. As a peculiar interest attaches to Kansas as the Republican battle-ground in the earlier contests with the slave power, and from the noble attitude of yourself and administration in welcoming its later refugees to your borders, I have thought it best to refer the communication to you, and to solicit your authoritative reply to its contents. I am satisfied that a brief statement of your present legal restrictions of the suffrage will commend your State to the friends of justice and equal rights in the South. Hoping that this intrusion upon your valuable time will not be altogether unwelcome, I remain, very respectfully,

EMERSON BENTLEY,
126½ S. Johnson St.

STATE OF KANSAS, EXECUTIVE DEP'T., TOPEKA, Aug. 7, 1879.

Emerson Bentley, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—In answer to your letter of the 3d inst., inclosing to me a short communication by one John M. Sandidge, clipped from the New Orleans Picayune, I have the honor to state that Mr. S's. communication is in keeping with the political element to which he belongs—in other words, it is an attempt to deceive the class of people for whom it is intended.

If Mr. S. does not know, he ought to know, that the Fifteenth Amendment not only blotted out the word "white" from the Constitution of Kansas, but also out of the Constitution of all the States in which it occurred.

In Kansas, every law-abiding male citizen of 21 years of age and upwards, who has resided in the State six months is entitled, whether black or white, to a free ballot, unrestrained or restricted by either bull-dozers or by blinded narrow contracted prejudice. Very truly yours,

JOHN P. ST. JOHN.

An Acknowledgment.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 11, 1879.

J. C. Hartzell, D.D.:

DEAR FRIEND AND BRO.—Let me make acknowledgment and thanks through you to Rev. Mr. Mathews, representing the Western Seamen's Friends Society, for a box of books and reading matter for free distribution at the parish prison. You may be sure that these books and papers will be very useful, and faithfully distributed by myself and the Christian helpers with me in this good work. I will, as chairman of the Mission Committee, have a record made upon the books of the Y. M. C. A. of this generous donation. Fraternally yours,

W. C. SHEPHERD.

Rev. Scott Jones, China Grove: "The work is moving along slowly. Received into full connection 20. One new church on the work this year, about 20 miles southwest."

L. W. Watson, Sunday-school superintendent at Shuqualak, gives an encouraging report of his work, and speaks highly of Rev. C. W. Ivey, the pastor in charge there."

C. L. Crump, Batesville: "On June 29 a Sunday-school concert was given. J. H. Cox and B. J. Alston were speakers. The school is doing well, and has $2 missionary money in its treasury."

H. L. Kennedy, Winona: "We have just closed our protracted meeting, with 47 accessions to the church; baptized 17. Besides these we have more to baptize on the next appointment. We are now in a glorious revival at Vaiden."

G. W. Harney, Macon: "I have just closed a protracted meeting. The Lord was with us. Conversions, 15; added to the church, 34; baptized 13. Sunday-school is doing well. We collected on children's day $5. Our school is now working for the missionary cause. Pray for us, that we may do a good work this year."

J. C. Stewart, Durant: "The work on this circuit is in a good, healthy condition. Have had 14 accessions, 10 full members, 5 probationers. August 2 was a grand day with the Shady Grove Sunday-school. A fine dinner was given, and a concert at night. A society from Huckleberry turned out with us, and a fine band from Lexington played beautiful airs. The school is an organized missionary society, and we are looking forward to prosperity."

C. W. Ivey, Shuqualak: "My protracted meeting commenced July 26, lasted until August 10, and resulted in 12 converts, all baptized. By B. Cannon 24 infants were baptized. Total, 36; 9 joined church on probation. Third Quarterly Conference just closed with 13 anxious seekers at the mourner's bench. Elder's collection, $7.15. Largely attended by Methodists and Baptists—two sisters joined us from the Baptist Church last week at Scooba."

W. H. H. Gallion: "My camp meeting began July 31. We had throughout one of the largest congregations ever known in this county. Some white citizens attended and expressed their warm brotherly love. On the closing day, August 10, I baptized 20 children and 58 converts. Six came to us from the Baptist church, two of them being preachers and one my wife. She wants to go to heaven with her husband, under the wings of the old M. E. Church. Revs. Robert Hays and A. R. Sanderson gave me their earnest labors. We are making progress."

TEXAS.

R. Kidd, Davilla: "I am doing well in my ministerial work, assisting other pastors in charge. The Kansas question is agitating this country now, and a great many people are thinking of migration. Give as much of the full particulars about Kansas as possible."

Rev. Peter Morgan, Palestine: "I have just closed a protracted meeting of six weeks, dividing time between Palestine and Piney Grove. In Palestine there were 22 accessions, and 25 baptisms. We have increased from 4 to 37 members. Being so badly misrepresented, I thank God that by His help this little wild goat house is being turned into an M. E. church. Bro. Todd speaks of one progress. Elder Moore was with us at Piney Grove. Here were 16 baptisms, and 40 additions. We are getting up our benevolent collections as fast as possible. Bro. Allen battled faithfully here. I desire the prayers of all brethren."

LOUISIANA.

J. T. Marshall, Alexandria: "Please announce through our paper that we expect to begin here on the camp meeting style, a protracted meeting, August 28, 1879. All are cordially invited to attend."

Joseph Nash, Washington: "Our third quarterly conference was held in St. Mark church, Aug. 9. At our love feast, Aug. 10, the minister of the M. E. Church South and family came and joined with us. We collected for our popular pastor, Rev. F. Landor, over seventy dollars. Sunday-school is prospering. We have had a big trouble on Big Bend, parish of Avoyelles, where we established a Methodist society. We were compelled to take our flight to save our lives. I think we will have to give it up. Pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

Rev. C. Bullington, Cookeville: "I commenced my quarterly meeting on the 26th of July. B. B. Manson was present, and the result was that we had 14 conversions, 12 joined the church, 5 were baptized. I was assisted by Rev. C. E. Hughes, of the M. E. Church South, Rev. A. Dodson and Rev. Thompson, Rev. S. K. Phillips, of the C. P. Church, and Rev. C. Green, of the Sparta circuit. I think our work is in a prosperous condition, both spiritual and temporal."

able essay on the Sunday-school, its Work and the Duties of its Officers. A lively discussion on a question propounded by R. Dukes, as to "Which are the Best Three Qualifications of a Sunday-school Superintendent." It was decided thus: 1, He should know Jesus in pardon of his own sins. 2. He should know the plain facts of the Bible, believe in and love it, with aptness to teach the same. 3. He should love the doctrines, methods and teachings of the M. E. Church; have the ability to select competent teachers, and above all, love his teachers and scholars. This, with other important matter, closed the exercises. Question 6th; "Where shall the next district conference be held?" Calvert and Austin were put in nomination, and Austin was unanimously chosen. Resolutions of thanks to the people of LaGrange for their hospitality and to the presiding elder and secretaries were adopted. After a few timely remarks from the presiding elder to the preachers, appointments being made, the district conference closed to meet in Austin in 1880. The people attended well and were much delighted.

White River, Ark., District.

I am now finishing my second round on the district; have been away from home for six weeks, have traveled about five hundred miles, and preached an average of once in every twenty-four hours. Augusta circuit was the first visited. This was an entirely new field. Bro. Layton is the pastor. Sickness for a season has hindered him in his work, but we have one small society organized and hope ere long to build up more. Bro. Layton is a promising young preacher, and we look hopefully on his future. Having received $150 from the Church Extension Society to aid us in building our church in Jacksonport, with other financial interests to look after, I spent a few days with Bro. Emory, pastor of Jacksonport and Newport charge, and found his work moving on. The inspiration given the work by what the Church Extension Society had done for them, a plan was set on foot, and now we have sufficient means and reliable security, to say to the church at large that we will build a new house of worship in Newport also; this will give us a permanent hold on these two centers, and by another year enable us to control the country up and down the White river. The quarterly meeting has been held and the reports showed advancement in all the departments of church work. The meeting is protracted and we hope that many of the sin-sick sinners who are attending will be saved.

The Grand Lodge of Colored Masons met at this point July 17. They made a very fine display in their public demonstration. Prof. Carlin, who has charge of the normal branch of the A. I. U. at Pine Bluff, was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the State. Among others worthy of honorable mention who are leading gentlemen of the order were Augustus Richmond, recording steward of Wesley Chapel M. E. Church, Little Rock, and also one of our most popular public school teachers, John Alexander, of the same profession, having been one of the most successful teachers in Little Rock; Robert Parish, Hon. H. Ferguson and Hon. Isaac Gillian, who takes the SOUTHWESTERN. Bro. [illegible] was a member of the last legislature of the State, and is a member of the A. M. E. Church, but worthy of a better church fellowship than that church can furnish. When such men as have been mentioned lead this ancient order, and who are the first men of the capital city of our State, connected as they are in fellowship and sympathy with the grand old Methodist Church, may we not hope that ere long a better day will dawn upon this benighted land?

August 24, 1879.—THE MIND OF CHRIST.
SCRIPTURE.—Phil. 2: 1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."—5.
TOPIC.—Christ our example.
[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Prefatory.—The Epistle to the Philippians is one of the most tender of Paul's letters. The church at Philippi was a favorite church, and that and the fact of its supplying his wants as a prisoner at Rome give to the communication its affectionate character. It being so much an emanation of the heart, it has less of arrangement than his other epistles, but the main thought running through it is very plain to be seen. It is expressed in verse 5 of our lesson: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."

Consolation in Christ (1, 2).—The lesson commences with some "ifs" which question the existence of some of the sweetest blessings of the gospel, in order, not to throw any doubt on their reality, but to give force to the appeal that follows. The four "ifs" are: 1. "If there be any consolation in Christ." Certainly there is a consolation in Christ that is beyond the power of man to express. That consolation has sweetened many a life otherwise very bitter, and has given peace to countless dying beds. 2. "If any fellow ship of the Spirit." They could not partake together of his presence without having the bond of brotherhood among themselves strengthened. 3. "If any comfort of love." The more fellowship of the Spirit there is, the more comfort is there in brotherly love. The heart of a Christian becomes sympathetic through intercourse with Christ, and is specially moved for the woes of those who are brethren in Christ. 4. "If any bowels and mercies." The apostle meant, If they had any sympathy and compassion for him. Of all the things that the apostle feared, nothing seemed to exceed his dread of contentious among Christians. Above all things he desired that they should be at peace among each other. A fort is at the mercy of the enemy when the garrison inside is quarrelling among themselves. People, however, can differ and yet remain in the most perfect harmony. Mutual affection always produces harmony, no matter what may be the variances of opinions.

Lowliness with Christ (3-8).—"Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory." But in lowliness of mind let each esteem others superior to himself. Lowliness of mind comes from a realization of one's proper position before God. It springs from an apprehension of one's failings. It arises from seeing the human heart as it really is. There should be no self-seeking such as involves the trampling down of the rights of others. Christ is the perfect example. Just in proportion as men come near to being like him, they are faultless in the church and before the world. Instead of the glory that he had before the world was, he meekly bore the shame and the taunts of men. His throne was exchanged for a carpenter's bench, his crown of glory for a crown of thorns, his robes of splendor for the mock-royal purple with which the soldiers clothed him. His humanity was real, but it enclothed divinity. He was tempted in all points like as we are—yet was without sin. It is our comfort that we have a High Priest who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities—whose experience in the flesh made him experimentally acquainted with its weaknesses and its trials and temptations.

Bowing before Christ (9-11).—The humiliation of Christ was only temporary. He again reached the height from which he came down. But his exaltation was not as the Son of God. The name that was despised upon the earth was the one that received the homage of heaven, and is yet to command the reverence of all the world. Some who now deny the fact, and are doing all that they can to uproot all faith in him, eventually will have to acknowledge him as their ruler and judge. Some will bow before him in fear, while others kneel before him in love. Confession in one case is the deepest misery, and, in the other, the most exalted happiness. In this universal homage, God the Father will be glorified. All adoration to the Son is to the glory of the Father.

Obedience to Christ (12, 13).—The lesson has a very practical and a very comforting conclusion. It consists of an exhortation and a reason for it. 1. The exhortation. "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed." "Not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence." "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." 2. The reason for exhortation, [illegible] to carry out the exhortation. "For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure." The "good pleasure" is, that the work shall be entirely and abundantly finished. We shall know what this means when we "awake in his likeness."

Letter from Van Buren.

VAN BUREN, Ark., Aug. 6, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—My second quarter has just closed. The elder was present. We held our love feast on Friday night. The elder preached Sunday at 11 a. m. and at 3 p. m with great power. It seemed that the entire church was moved. The holy spirit was poured out like the overflowing of a great stream. We are here in the extreme western part of the State, among the mountains. Times are hard here, but my people seem to remember the old days of Methodism. Nearly all came up and our quarterly collection was $10.25. The Sabbath-school is good: average attendance from 60 to 65. A strong Christian spirit prevails in the church. We are remembering the benevolent collections. Your paper is much liked among the people here: I hope to be able to obtain a large subscription for it this fall.

Sister Polly Reeves departed this life June 1, aged 40. She left a husband and seven children. Both died in full triumph of faith.

S. JONES, Pastor.

Sister Alice Smith was born July 1, 1861, and died August 2, 1879, so at the time of her death she was 18 years, 1 month and 1 day old. Sister Alice was converted to God in our great revival in March, 1878, and immediately joined Asbury Chapel M. E. Church. She was a devoted daughter, a faithful class member and a Christian in whom there was no guile. Her faith was extraordinary; her sweet, submissive spirit during four or five months of excruciating agony, rare and wonderful, and her death peaceful and triumphant. Often did we visit her during her illness, and we always found her ready to praise the name of Jesus—even to the very moment of her death she was shouting praises to God, and sank peacefully to rest in Christ Jesus. The family wept bitterly on the loss of the affectionate one, but we cannot, would not, call her back. Her country is our country: we are traveling that way: it is not far: it will not be long. She is just within the vale: we are just without. We shall meet again in the "land of the living."

AN HOUR WITH THE AMERICAN HEBREW. New York. Jesse Haney & Co., Price, 25 cents.

This small volume owes its existence to the recent course of Mr. Corbin towards Jewish patrons at his hotel. Like Judge Hilton, of Saratoga, he does not desire their company; not on account of their religion, however, but for associations and habits which he deems objectionable. The error is in objecting to the Jews as a people, instead of individuals who may be found in all nations and races whose conduct renders them unfit guests anywhere. The object of the book before us is to exhibit the merits of the Jewish race in a great variety of particulars, and certainly a fine showing is made for them. Prominent is the sermon of Henry Ward Beecher on Jew and Gentile.

HISTORY OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH FROM ITS ORIGIN TO THE PRESENT TIME. By W. M. Blackburn, D. D., Professor of Church History, Chicago and Cincinnati, Hitchcock & Walden.

In this ample volume of 711 pages the whole of church history from the founding of the Christian Church to this time is compressed, but compression is not secured at the expense of vivacity, clearness, vigor and sufficient fullness. The various periods and characters are brought into rapid review, and yet they stand out in due proportion and are sketched with admirable justice and impartiality. The author divides his history into six periods. The first covers the origin, extension, trials and establishment of the Christian Church. The second relates the controversies in Theology, Councils and Creeds. The third comprises the New Europe; its conversion to Christianity, and submission to the Papacy. The fourth presents the culmination and decline of the Papal Power. The fifth gives us the Rise and Establishment of Protestantism, and the sixth closes the book with an account of National Churches and Denominations. We most cordially recommend this work to all students and readers of Church History.

New Publications.

Harper's Magazine for September presents many striking novelties. In fiction, this magazine is now remarkable for its three serial novels by Miss Mulock, William Black, and R. D. Blackmore—a marvellous array of imaginative power. A ghost story by Howard Pyle, with eight illustrations has something of a charm which is fascinating, and the pictures are character sketches—as fine as they are striking. Mr. Ernest Ingersoll's "Gold-Mining in Georgia" takes us into a new and very interesting field, of which little is known. The paper is profusely and excellently illustrated. Edward Howland's paper, "An Industrial Society and its Work," presents a curiously remarkable series of co-operative industrial plans successfully carried out in Mulhausen, offering many useful suggestions to those interested in the welfare of laborers. The Editorial departments are full of interesting matter.

Sunday Afternoon, Springfield, Mass., for September is the last issue of the magazine under that name. The new title will be Good Company. The character of the magazine will remain the same, and there will be no change in its management. This number has stories by Rose Terry Cook and Elizabeth W. Denison; these sketches,—A Bit of New England, A Practical Leave, The Old Log School-house, and Sketches in Southern California; also an account of the summer charities of New York by William H. Rideing. Rev. B. E. Warner writes about the pernicious periodical literature for the young now so abundant, Rev. Dr. J. M. Whiton about some peculiarities of the books of Esther and Ruth, and there are carefully prepared papers on Latimer as a Social Reformer by Octave Thanet, and on the Public Schools and National Culture, by Noble C. Butler. The Hebrew Hereafter is a reply to the Hebrew Father in Immortality in the last number. There are several poems, including one in the Still Hour Department. The Editor's Table has articles on Rink Religion; Vacation Sundays; trashy periodicals, and expresses gratification "that the great International Game of Hop, Skip and Jump in which our Sunday schools have been engaging for almost seven years, is pretty nearly ended."

Drunken Stuff.

How many children and women are slowly and surely dying, or rather being killed, by excessive doctoring, or the daily use of some drug or drunken stuff called medicine, that no one knows what it is made of, who can easily be cured and saved by Hop Bitters, made of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake, Dandelion etc., which is so pure, simple and harmless that the most frail woman, weakest invalid or smallest child can trust in them. Will you be saved by them? See other column.

Speculation.

Since the creation, it is estimated that 27,000,000,000,000,000 have lived on the earth. This sum divided by 27,864,000 the number of square miles, gives 1,314,522,036 to a square rod, and 5 to a square foot. Suppose a square rod be divided into 11 graves, each grave would contain 100 persons. But this is speculation, and of no benefit to the 1,000,000,000 people that now exist, 500,000,000 of whom are invalids, 33,000,000 dying each year. What they most want are facts concerning Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. For years his Golden Medical Discovery has been the standard remedy for the cure of all scrofulous, throat, and lung diseases. While for over a quarter of a century, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has been unrivaled as a positive cure for catarrh. The testimony of thousands of ladies has been published, certifying that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively cures the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women. For full information, see the Peoples's Common Sense Medical Adviser, an illustrated work of over 900 pages, price (post-paid) $1.50. Over 100,000 copies sold. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Genuine and the Counterfeit.

Wherever fairly tested throughout this broad continent, the manifold merits of the Holman Liver Pad, as a wonderful remedial agent, has been universally acknowledged and substantially established. On its health-giving mission it enters alike the poor man's cot and the rich man's palace; it ministers alike, also, to the needs of the poor mechanic and millionaire. The Holman Liver Pad enables the invalid to brave the chilling east wind, while it shields the denizen of the South or West from malarial diseases. It does not take long for an article possessing so much merit to win its way to public favor. The growing demand for these pads is somewhat wonderful, and, to supply this demand, human ingenuity has been taxed to produce labor-saving mechanism, which, operated by powerful steam-engines, are kept running day and night. The great fame of the Holman Liver Pad has attracted the attention of various unprincipled adventurers, who, thinking that they could see "millions in it," have set about introducing base counterfeits of this really invaluable medicine. Did our time and space permit, we would attempt, merely for the reader's amusement, a list of the more perminent and audacious shams. None are genuine unless the name of Junius Hart, 191 Canal st., New Orleans, is on the back.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.
Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.
Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.
The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Ecclesiastical Law

Rules of Evidence:
With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
—BY—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.
8 vo., 511 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.
In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.
* * * * * * *
In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

and property owners to recognize this fact and aid us with a part of that which we put in their pockets, for we cannot carry the enterprise through successfully without such help. Many have liberally encouraged us, but the great bulk of the people have not yet been asked to help. In due time all will be applied to, and we bespeak a favorable consideration from all.

To the members of our society and congregation, allow me to congratulate you on the enterprise which you undertook and the success that has thus far attended this work. We are now numerically small and comparatively feeble. We are on the very outposts of our Zion, the farthest point occupied by us in this direction. But remember, we are part of a mighty host that fill our land. The little band of soldiers at Fort Clark is an integral part of the army that represents the power of the nation. We are part of an organization numbering 11,000 ministers, nearly 2,000,000 of members, with a constituency of 6,000,000 American people who can all find sittings in our churches, with an army of 2,000,000 of Sunday-school children. This great church, with all her vast resources of people and wealth, and schools and presses now in every element of power the mightiest in our country, takes us to her bosom and lays her hand on us as her child. Her sympathies and help will flow generously toward us. Her eye is turned in this direction with deep interest. We are at the remote extremity, but vitally connected with a powerful arm and a stalwart body, and a great, loving, paternal heart.

But this, though comforting, is not all, nor the best. We are part of the mighty host of God's people. They are all about us; they fill the land and are covering the globe. We belong to the royal family, part on earth and part in heaven. God and the angels and good men cheer us. So long as we do service for God and man, our feebleness will be supplemented by Divine Almightiness. His sympathies are with the truth, the right, the pure, with the struggling masses of sinful men whom He would lift upward. Let us never forget that our mission is one not of strife but of love; not of pride but of salvation; that we have no opposition to make against anything but sin and wrong; nothing but love and fraternal blessings for fellow-laborers in other churches; that we have no compromise to make with sinful practices and immoralities, no business but planting Bible truth in the public mind and leading all classes of people, rich and poor, learned and ignorant, to the common Savior of all. This let us do, and the "Lord of Hosts will be with us, and the God of Jacob will be our refuge." This handful of corn we sow on the top of the mountain shall shake like Lebanon. Especially remember that the chief end of our planting here is to exalt the standard of Christian life and religious power, by love and good works to provoke others to like endeavors, to spread scriptural holiness over this land. The great need of this country is a higher standard and mightier type of Christianity, that shall come with power and the Holy Ghost to men as well as in word. Unless we aid in this vital work, we will exist in vain. Our house must be a house of prayer, the habitation of God through the spirit. It will be beautiful for situation, a joy to beholders; but its chief attraction and only value must be the glorious Shekina from the mercy seat.

To the many friends who zealously aid us in effort and money, we return our sincere thanks and utter our fervent prayer that this house you help to build may be the place of your birth into the house of God, the gate-way to immortal bliss for you and your children, and that we may all enter its gate with joy and flourish in the courts of the Most High forever.—San Antonio Express.

PREVENT

Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 33 13t

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. PIERCE'S Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists.

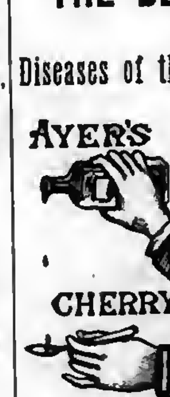
THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S



CHERRY

PECTORAL.

Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

[illegible] of this catholicity, denominationalism is not forgotten, for each denomination may have its own prayer-meeting on Thursday nights, when special arrangements are made to secure this end. This conflict of opinion, or rather this interchange of views of the leading minds, of those holding different views of the teachings of the Bible, can be but beneficial, when had in the spirit which pervades the discussions at Chautauqua. The lecture of Rev. Dr. Pepper, Baptist, on Comparative Theology, was a clear presentation of the differences of various systems of religions, especially the Deities of these systems. Rev. Dr. Boardman, Baptist, on the Genesis of Sin, was eminently scriptural. Rev. Dr. Hodge, Presbyterian, on the Person of Christ, was clear and instructive, and carried his audience with him in his views on the Unity of the Human and Divine in the Second Person of the Trinity. Dr. D. Curry, on The Old and New Conflict, gave Calvinism some tremendous strokes, and at the same time those Arminians who imagine that the Arminian view explains everything concerning Divine sovereignty, foreknowledge, and human freedom received rough handling. The Doctor had the closest attention of a large audience, embracing Calvinists and Arminians, who seemed heartily to enjoy the Doctor's sturdy strokes against their opponents theory, and sometimes his well-aimed blows against their own, (for both sides received some of the Doctor's arrows which pierced their armor.) The Doctor also delivered a lecture to-day on the Arminian View of Biblical Interpretation, in which he gave a history of the doctrine, as well as a clear statement of it. He presented also his views of the Calvinistic teachings of the Bible, and what he thought to be the logical sequences. There was evidently a little wincing under the Doctor's presentation of Calvinism, as some who heard would as stoutly deny the logical sequences as presented by the speaker, as he affirmed them. It was the design of the management in getting up this course of lectures, to let each party present its own side, and leave the hearers judge whether their statements were in accord with the standards of the two systems of Biblical interpretation. Hence there was a little surprise manifested when the Doctor gave a pretty good setting forth of the system of Calvin. Dr. Fowler's lecture on the Holy Ghost was a rich treat. It was a feast of good things. It set forth the personality of the third person in the Trinity in such a way as to lead some, at least, to new and more correct views of the grand agency of this Person in the regeneration of sinners, the sanctification of believers, the sustaining, guiding, instructing and witnessing influence with the saints. These lectures, together with constant Bible study in the normal classes, daily Biblical exegesis by able theologians, and in fact in all the studies at Chautauqua, make this place rather a theological school than a mere Sunday-school assembly. As long as the present spirit pervades it the church has nothing to fear from the influence of Chautauqua, which is certainly becoming very extensive, perhaps world-wide. It would be well if we had more of the spirit of earnest Bible study in all departments of the church, in the pulpit, the pew and the Sunday-school.

them through the dangers and toils on earthly grounds, as well as those upon heavenly grounds. Unless they try to do their duty in that direction, I don't think they manifest that interest they should have for their people. Therefore I think that the ministers of our people in the South have certain duties to perform in connection with this exodus movement of our people from the South. First, they should study this question in the light of the Holy Scriptures, with a view of teaching their congregations what to do, for they are looking up to them for instruction as to how they should live in this world, as well as in the world to come. The majority of our ministers in the South know that they don't stand up for their people's rights as they should, for fear of being persecuted for it. Some of the best men in the country regard this as a providential movement of the colored people from the South, because it is a matter of impossibility for any people to improve morally without moral ventilation. It matters not what their previous condition had been. Everybody that knows anything about the South knows that our people are too much crowded together, both in the towns and on plantations, for their good. Second, Our ministers should remember that they are the reformers of our condition by preaching and teaching certain principles, both by precept and example, namely: Morality, sobriety, industry and economy. I regret very much to have it to say that many of the ministers have led the people astray from these fundamental principles, carrying their churches and congregations into worldly pleasures to support themselves, whereas they might have been better supported, and the current expenses of the church kept paid up, and the moral discipline of the people farther advanced, by systematic working in the church. Now then, brethren, fourteen years have gone by, and we are yet hobbling along in our mistakes. Let us change the programme for the better, and that is to say, let us tell our people what we think is best for them. Notwithstanding, let the heathen rage and the people imagine vain things, we must stand up for our people's rights, and lead them on in the order of Providence through dangers and snares. I am in possession of a good number of letters from very intelligent ministers living in the Southern States, desiring to know if their services were needed in Kansas conference, and not one of them has said he would lead his people to this or any other State of the free. Many have come to this State charging their former pastors of opposing their exodus from the South. I hope when their pastors do oppose the movement they will do it for the good of all, and not for the sake of keeping congregations to preach to that they may collect big salaries of them. Brethren, let us prepare our people for future usefulness in the world. God bless you.

The Southern Methodist papers took the occasion of the death of Bishop Ames to recall the Stanton-Ames order, under which certain M. E. Church, South, churches were taken possession by our preachers under a war-office order. The last statement we have seen is in the Central Methodist. It says: "The North Methodist papers, so far as we have seen an expression upon the subject, are unanimous in the opinion that the Government (the President) has a right to say what class of preachers shall fill the pulpits of the land in time of war. If that right exists at all, it exists in time of peace." We have said nothing in the premises, because that whole business—all of it that was outstanding in 1876—was settled unanimously by the Cape May Commissions of the two bodies of Methodists. Raising the question at this time of day is a foolish business at the best. If, however, our Central namesake wants our opinion on an abstract question, we respectfully suggest that the government of this country does not claim the right to fill the pulpits in time of peace. When such rights is claimed, it will be time enough to discuss it. As for ourselves, we had an impression that the president of the Central had [illegible] It between 1861 and [illegible] all events, our readers [illegible] himself [illegible] rights and duties of [illegible]

News from the Queen City.

BY. C. HUBBARD.

The outlook here, all things considered is decidedly hopeful. The Sunday-school encampment and camp meeting occurring in consecutive order have just closed with a result highly gratifying to all. The meetings were conducted to the glory of God and the salvation of many souls. Distinguished speakers contributed to the feast of good things, and the multitudes were greatly strengthened in the faith. Dr. Vincent was present at the encampment and addressed the meeting most felicitously concerning Sunday-school work. He awakened deep enthusiasm in behalf of this department of church work. A fresh impetus has been given this movement, which will continue to accumulate momentum until a grand tidal wave of spiritual awakening shall sweep this eastern section. Dr. Payne, of Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, served the people most acceptably at the camp meeting. His sermons are spoken of as masterly efforts, arousing the consciences of sinners and strengthening the faith of the saints. Dr. Ridgaway also delivered very able discourses, attracting large concourses of people and affording universal satisfaction. The services throughout were attended with rich outpourings of grace. Verily, it was a pentecostal season crowned of God in the salvation of many souls, reclamation of backsliders and sanctification of believers.

The grounds are admirably adapted to camp meeting purposes. The natural beauties are exceptional. The scenery is picturesque and entrancing. The rolling green earth in contrast with the spangled beauties of the firmament, make a most bewitching effect; reminding one of Bunyan's "Land of Beulah." The springs, the shade, the avenues, the general scenery, the accessible location, the healthfulness and quietude—all the numberless varieties of attractions made it the most available spot in the length and breadth of our wide domains. The Cincinnati Methodists have very generally built cottages there, making it a good investment for the Lord as well as a delightful, wholesome retreat for their families during the hot, sultry weather. Fully one hundred families have been quartered there this summer, enjoying the highest physical and social advantages free from the dust, din and rush of city life. Here in this Sylvan temple they have had a rich foretaste of the beautiful land beyond the Jordan in the sweet fields of Eden. Most of the city pastors are about taking vacations: acceptable supplies, however, are filling their pulpits and dispensing the bread of life to the multitudes.

The Cincinnati Annual Conference is rapidly approaching, and fond anticipations, anxious thoughts and painful misgivings are the mixed motives influencing the minds of the brethren. The prominent feature of this session will be the election of five delegates to the General Conference of 1880. There are candidates innumerable, so to speak, in the field. Scarcely any brother is without the ambition to serve the Church in this capacity. All seem willing to undergo the cares, perplexities and responsibilities of the trust. Several slates have been made up, many combinations are developing. It is safe to say that many have a great disappointment in prospect. Startling disclaimers will be made when the balloting begins. Considerable doubt thus far has attended the campaign. The canvass will probably be sharp and fierce. Conflicting claims and interests will make quite a jostling among the contestants. We trust that God will be glorified in the choice.

The Methodist preachers meet every Monday morning for friendly greetings and free discussion. The "Sabbath desecration" question is now under discussion. Efforts are being made by the Christian public to stem the tide of intemperance, Sunday desecration and kindred evils that threaten to submerge our fair city. A home missionary movement has been inaugurated by the Methodists for a vigorous campaign upon the forces of wickedness arrayed under a variety of phases, all bent, however, upon the destruction of the Christian element in society, and in their blasphemous impiety threatening to usurp the throne of Jehovah himself. Out of a population of two hundred and fifty thousand, fully two-thirds of that number are opposed to our distinctively Protestant institutions, our civil Sabbath, and our temperance principles. How to resist this foreign inroad upon our precious Christian heritage is the problem of the hour. Methodism, under the leadership of such men as Drs. Ridgaway, Walden, Rust, Young, Ketcham, Hyper, Revs. Bunyan, Weeks, Pierson and others, is grappling with this light-headed monster, and waging an uncompromising, unrelenting warfare for its extinction. The armies of the living God must eventually triumph. There will be fluctuations and reverses, but Jehovah will put all the hosts of the evil one finally to inglorious defeat, and plant the gospel banner upon the highest hill-top.

The Queen City is full of thrift; extending her borders in all directions. Commercially she is distancing all competitors. It is destined to become the great metropolis and heart of American civilization. Sanitary and hygienic measures have made it the most healthy city in the nation. Fine blocks of public buildings are springing up as if by magic. Solidity and steady growth are its characteristics. It will not slumber or hesitate in its onward march.

Our Mission Fields.

I notice an article in the Central Christian Advocate which speaks of the missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church as being too many, and says that for many years the conversion of the heathen world has occupied the heads and hearts of our ministers and members. I am glad to know that this great work has so occupied the minds of the church. While this world is compared to a great battle field, it is also compared to a great harvest, and God's ministers are compared to the sower going forth to sow the precious seed which is God's word. So long as there is a place where God's word is not preached, there still remains a mission field for the Methodist Episcopal Church to cultivate. If Joshua could not take Ai because God was not with him, and sin was in the camp, the Methodist Episcopal Church can take this world for Christ because the Lord is with her, subduing sin. The great captain that lead Israel on to conquer will lead the Methodist Episcopal Church to accomplish the work that she has in view. The writer says it is possible to have too many irons in the fire. It may be, of a temporal nature, but I do not think so of a spiritual nature. I believe that the Methodist Episcopal Church will cultivate all her missions by the help of God. I cannot think that the Church generally thinks she has too many mission fields, but wants to do more. The writer says that it seems to him that we have one mission that we cannot properly cultivate, and that is our mission in Liberia, Africa. One of the reasons given is that our white bishops and preachers cannot stand the climate. Next is that it is the black man's land, and God does not intend that the white man shall rule. First, it our white bishops and preachers cannot stand the climate, let the General Conference at its next session elect a man of African descent, as he indicates that they can stand the climate. Elect one of African descent who will take charge of our mission in Africa: send men from our own ranks and aid them to cultivate this mission under the supervision of the Methodist Episcopal Church. I am in hopes that he, the writer, does not want to give it up because it is a mission among the colored. If so, we are not ready for the color line. Caste would be a disgrace to Methodism. I am inclined to think we have brethren of African descent in our own ranks who are fully competent to take charge of this mission. Just as much so as Bishop Campbell or Bishop Wayman. Why not elect and send them? We want to go to Africa, but we want to go from the Methodist Episcopal Church. We have 250,000 of the African descent who worship at the old Methodist altar. If our mission in Africa is to be turned over to the A. M. E. Church, it seems that the entire membership might as well be turned over to them. We do not want to go to Africa to rule as man, but that God would rule through us to the saving of this people. I am inclined to think that no church can manage as well and accomplish as much as the M. E. Church. We have good men already in the field that would make good missionaries, and in a few more days the old Methodist Church will have more good cultivated brain in the field than any other church in the world among the colored. We are not ready for the color line, neither are we ready to go to the A. M. E. Church. Do not turn us away from our old mother, for we love mother the dearest of all the family. She has proven that she loves us—by her words she proves it.

The Next General Conference.

I want to go there. For several weeks past I have labored under the impression that my age and experience qualifies me to represent the work before that august body as no one else is capable of doing. I have been a close thinker, and I can assure the brethren that I have kept my eye on every department of our church work, and nothing, however minute and insignificant, has been allowed to escape my observation. I sometimes sit up all night reading the different Advocates, in order to keep myself posted, and besides, I keep up regular correspondence with our most prominent men, some of whom have more than once intimated to me that I ought to go to the General Conference. I don't intend to thrust myself forward as a candidate, but I am satisfied that if the brethren fail to elect me they will do themselves an irreparable injury. The Annual Conference that won't send up its strongest men as its delegates deserves to occupy an inferior place, and to have its material interests pushed aside without consideration. The delegates we sent up four years ago didn't accomplish anything at all. I have searched the General Conference journal through and through, and have failed to discover a single speech or important resolution put forth by them during the entire session. If I am elected this time it will be my aim to speak on every question that comes before the body, and I intend to make myself heard. I have now in course of preparation a half dozen speeches which I am certain will take. All I want is a chance. I have great influence with the Bishops who rule the General Conference, by which means I will be able to carry all my points without the least difficulty. I know how to work curious schemes, which accounts for my being able to succeed at everything I undertake. I want to go to the General Conference to get to strike at some of our men who are now holding official positions in the church. They have had things their own way long enough, and if I can get one blow at them, they'll know I have not been asleep. I am not afraid to uphold the right, let the consequences be what they may. I find so many things in our Discipline that needs a thorough revision, so many valuable measures that should be adopted, so many high-salaried officials who ought to be removed, and such a great amount of pulling down and cleaning up at the next General Conference, that I am at a loss to know how they can possibly get along without me. I don't claim to have more knowledge than any of my brethren, but I understand parliamentary tactics, and if I am elected to the General Conference I can bring about certain changes in our economy which none but a shrewd man, well acquainted with human nature, could effect. I shall not do anything to secure a seat in the General Conference, but if sent there by my brethren I am going to make a stir in the camp. I just want to go there one time. I want to meet the Bishops and the great preachers that your hear so much talk about. I am sure that none of them will make a better appearance than myself. I have already given my measure to the tailor for a fine suit. I am not to be outdone—I will spend the last dime I have got first. I am in the race, and if somebody doesn't look sharp, when the next General Conference meets, I'll be there.

The Last Day of Adam.

BY S. W. BAILEY.

It was sunset. The clouds that hung about the western horizon were still bathed in the gorgeous hues of the departed luminary. The gentle breath of the evening wind—sweet with the perfume of a thousand flowers—brought a refreshing coolness after the sultry heat of the day; and the deep stillness that was gradually stealing over all things awakened in the wind calm and holy feelings. On a soft couch, beneath the shadow of a tent, over which a cypress waved its mournful head, lay the venerable form of Adam—majestic even in the hour of death. Around him stood the representatives of many generations, that had risen up to fill the earth, awaiting with sad hearts the departure of that spirit that once bore the "image of God." A faint smile passed over the features of the dying man as he was raised up to gaze for the last time upon the fair and beautiful earth, that had owned him for its lord. The rustling of the leaves among the tall trees—the faint murmurings of a gentle stream that wound its course amid the spicy groves—and the sweet notes of a solitary bird, that rose upon the air, soft and clear, filled his mind with visions of the past. Memory recalled the hour when first he stood on Eden's lovely bowers, and heard the loud chorus of "the morning stars," that "sang together" for joy. The faint streams of light, that were fast fading from the sky, seemed like the bright wings of angels, that once came in messages of peace and love to earth, seeking again their home in Heaven. The fair form of Eve appeared once more to stand before him, beautiful as in that hour when first he received her from the hands of the Creator, and called her his own. Then the "voice of the Lord God walking in the garden" struck upon his ear—and he wept. The words of that fearful curse, which shall be re-echoed through all the long ages of eternity, were again repeated. The "tree of life" waved its majestic head above him, around which turned the "flaming sword of the cherubims,"—and he felt anew the anguish that wrung his heart when he was driven forth from the garden by the command of the Almighty. But, the same voice that had uttered the words of condemnation, spoke of one who should bring peace and joy to men,—and hope enlivened his heart, as when the promise was first given. He knew that the path to the grave, dark and dreary as it was, would reveal to him the the avenues that led to the regions of light and love.

From these thoughts he was awakened by the low voice of prayer, and by a cloud of incense that ascended up toward the Throne on High. It was the hour of evening sacrifice. All bowed down and worshiped. In that sad and silent hour was uttered the last prayer of Adam, ere his spirit was born by guardian angels to its home in Heaven.

Visions of the past had floated before his mind, and now the dim shadows of the future rose before him, dark and gloomy. He saw the race of man, ignorant and guilty. Nature put on her loveliest robes, and decked herself fairer than a queen,—the rich bounties of the great Giver were strown thickly around,—Heaven and earth called for songs of praise and gratitude, yet no heart was raised to Him whom angels adore. Conscience warned and threatened,—the angry voice of God was heard in the low mutterings of the distant thunder,—the "still small voice of the Spirit" whispered in every breeze, but man heard them not. Wrath and judgment were fast gathered up against the day of vengeance. That day came. "The windows of Heaven were opened, and the fountains of the great deep broken up," and all perished,—all, save the small remnant who had proved faithful to the Most High. Peace and mercy decended again to earth. There was seen the bright star that shone in the east, the harbinger of a glorious day. With prophetic eye the history of man was traced through the long vista of years that ended in the destruction of the "last enemy." The lips of Adam moved in prayer and thanks to Him who had revealed some of the counsels of eternity. His eyes closed—a peaceful smile stole over his countenance—all was still—and the father of mankind was not.

A German Bishop.

Rev. F. Rinder, in the Apologete, has presented his views concerning the election of a German bishop for the M. E. Church. He does not nourish the mischievous doctrine of separation, but urges that the German bishop would become a new bond of union, increasing the hearty sympathy of Americans. The Germans have now a representative on all the leading committees of the church organization, but in the board of bishops they have none; they are thankful, however, that our bishops, hitherto, have taken fatherly care of the work. Rev. Rinder says it is an incontrovertible truth that a bishop nominated from the German people, united with the necessities, peculiarities and hindrances of that people and the work intrusted to him, could represent it with better knowledge, and more impressively. Besides the bond with the head of the church, a German bishop would place more directly before societies and preachers of the English church the nature, importance, success and hindrances of the work.

Says Rev. Rinder: "The bishop question among the blacks is simply a question of color, a question of race-equality, of justice. The colored people speak the English language, and enjoy the service of the English bishops, exactly as the American people do. Indeed, some of our bishops have done the colored people certain great services, and have been of as great advantage to them as any man of their own color ever could be. But among Germans the election of a bishop is a question of language, of profit, of efficiency, of missions in the German language among the German people. The bishop question is of an entirely other nature than the same question with the colored people, and our delegates should not for an instant admit that the election of a German and that of an African bishop stand on a par. We want no German bishop merely because he is a German, or to have a German have the honor of the office, or because it would content our ambition; but we want a German bishop because we are thoroughly convinced that he, as a new organic bond of union, would strengthen and increase the sympathy between German and English workers; because he would be a blessed representative in the highest place of church government. We want him, and we emphasize the statement, because he only, as a German, in the German language, can impart the mighty and blessed influence of the episcopacy to our people. We want a German bishop because we are convinced that our German work in the United States and in Germany urgently requires the election of a German to the episcopacy."

In this synopsis we have availed ourselves of a translation of Rev. Rinder's article in the Northwestern. We believe the argument for a German bishop to be sound, and may be profitably adopted by the church; also that the importance and necessity of electing a bishop of African descent is incidentally underrated. We favor both movements.

A Kentucky College.

The Church Herald, a bright Methodist journal of Louisville, Ky., says: Hon. Joshua F. Speed and wife attended the Commencement of the College at Berea in that State. Here both white and colored study together and seek the highest honors that can be conferred on men or women who seek for knowledge by intellectual industry. Everything connected with the management of the institution is creditable to that indefatigable laborer the President, Rev. Mr. Fee, the faculty and the students, in all their appointments and the several departments in college education. The once persecuted philanthropist, Rev. Rev. Benjamin Wayne.

The congregation, pupils and friends of this estimable gentleman were grievously shocked by the intelligence of his accidental death. The deceased was pastor of the Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian church, and a public school teacher. Desiring to enjoy a brief vacation from his arduous duties, on Saturday the 16th inst, accompanied by his family, consisting of a wife and four children, he went over Lake Pontchartrain to Mandeville, to remain until the opening of the next term of the public schools.

On Monday he plunged into the Lake for a bath, striking on a hidden stump or pile, upon the groin, resulting in internal injuries. As soon as possible he was placed under the care of kind friends, who did all in their power, but without avail. At twenty minutes past one o'clock last Thursday morning the soul of Benjamin Wayne took its flight to the abode of its Savior; Thursday afternoon all that was mortal was conveyed from the church he so loved and well served to its last resting place.

Rev. Benjamin Wayne was highly esteemed by his congregation and a very large circle of outside friends and acquaintances. It was our pleasure to have met and known him. We bear most willing testimony to his excellent Christian character, and tender to his afflicted family our sincere condolence. Deceased was fifty-five years of age.

At a regular meeting of the city School Board, Thursday evening, the following, offered by Mr. Geo. Swarbrick, was adopted:

Resolved, That the board has learned with unfeigned sorrow of the sudden death of the Rev. B. Wayne, one of the most meritorious members of the corps of teachers in our public schools.

Resolved, That in the death of this gentleman the public schools have not only lost a teacher of fine scholastic attainments, firm but kind in conferring knowledge, and thoroughly successful in communicating information, but the public at large have lost a useful and most estimable citizen.

Resolved, That the board profoundly sympathizes with his bereaved family in the irreparable loss they have sustained in being deprived of a kind husband and father.

The city press paid warm tribute to his memory in extended notices of his death.

The Yazoo Crime.

Last Thursday Capt. Henry M. Dixon, the independent candidate, whose withdrawal from the canvass was demanded by the Democratic mob of Yazoo county, was shot down in broad daylight in the streets of Yazoo City. While going down a street Capt. Dixon was hailed by one J. A. Barksdale, a prominent Democrat, on the opposite side, who approached, shotgun in hand, and fired at him. After an exchange of shots Capt. Dixon turned to pass up a stairway and received a volley in the back. He was conveyed to his residence, and expired shortly after. Barksdale was subsequently arrested, and released on $15,000 bond, the prosecution agreeing and examination waived.

This is a legitimate result of the lawless attitude of the Yazoo Democracy, and it will be hard to convince those who have carefully noted the unfortunate condition of affairs in that county that it was not a part of the original programme to annihilate all opposition to the Democratic candidates in the approaching election. Capt. Dixon felt outraged, as was natural under the circumstances, at the brutal treatment received from his former political associates, and it is said, declared his intention to continue the canvass, without regard to the declaration of withdrawal forced from him by an overpowering mob. Barksdale was a conspicuous persecutor, and in the Democratic committee moved resolutions denunciatory of the personal character of Dixon, but it does not appear that Barksdale had the slightest excuse for his assault upon his victim, whom he shot in the back while in the act of escaping from his murderous presence.

One newspaper in New Orleans, the Times, has spoken in condemnation of the affair. The others are either silent or in haste to publish the assault of the Democratic committee of Yazoo, upon the character of the man who is now powerless to confront his accusers, and who left a wife and four children to feel these unmanly and ignoble stabs. For let it not be forgotten that it was this same committee which originated and subsequently endorsed the mob, led by its candidate for sheriff of the county, which told Dixon that he must withdraw from the canvass or suffer the consequences of a refusal. It is a body totally incapable of giving or taking away the character of any [illegible] man. Some of its members applauded Dixon as the "bravest of the brave" in 1875, and the large number of respectable citizens of Yazoo, who endorsed his candidacy in 1879 is sufficient evidence that the shortcomings of Dixon were chiefly of a political nature, and endangered the chances of a few Democratic office-seekers in Yazoo county.

The New York World, Atlanta Constitution, and other leading Democratic papers, not depending on a mob element for countenance and support, have strongly condemned this Yazoo crime, and we trust that out of it may come a sure retribution for the offenders, and a union of all good men in rebuke of such shameless political intolerance.

The Wesleyans we perceive are proposing to turn to best account the services of Bishop Campbell, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in this country, who appeared in their conference as the representative of his church. One of the editors asks: "Cannot the missionary secretary retain the services of this grand old gentleman for some little time to come? We shall be glad if he can be retained long enough to attend some of our larger and more important autumnal missionary meetings." This reminds us of a question asked once in our hearing concerning a very eloquent and intelligent colored minister among ourselves, and an able advocate of the missionary cause, "Why do not some of our missionary committees call him out?"

A Methodist Voice.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Christian Advocate (Church South) writes from Springdale, Arkansas:

Methodism is and should be aggressive, its heavenly mission is to carry the glad tidings of salvation to earth's remotest bounds. Oh! for the missionary fire to so burn in our own hearts, to so open them as to send missionaries, not only to foreign heathen lands, but into our own mountain fastnesses, till every nook and dell and hill and dale in all the Arkansas mountains shall become vocal with the sounds of redeeming grace. In so far as we lose the missionary spirit, either home or foreign, just so far we lose the vitality of our own Christian character.

To this we respond with a hearty and fraternal "Amen."

A pastor wrote to the mission rooms: "Ours is one of the few churches that only a few years ago received missionary money for its pastoral support in part. As far as I have faithfully tried the plan for raising missionary money, I have found it to work well. I am throwing into it my constant and prayerful endeavors. Our Sunday-school work this year will show better than last. Four collections will be in advance, and also in advance of our assessed quota."

From the California Christian Advocate: "The Utah and Montana conferences, at their recent sessions, resolved to become mission districts, and instructed their delegates to the General Conference accordingly. If it shall be deemed wise, Utah may be added to Colorado."

The Sunday-School Association

In response to the notice given in the SOUTHWESTERN Aug. 19, the Louisiana Sunday-school Association convened in the Austerlitz Baptist Church. The meeting was called to order by the president, I. H. Norwood; by request of that officer, Rev. J. W. E. Bowen prefaced the proceedings with an earnest prayer.

The regular routine of business having been dispensed with, addresses were in order. Rev. H. C. C. Astwood was called to the stand, and in a very thoughtful, anxious and carefully prepared address discussed the advantages that would accrue from an organization of the kind in our State, consecrated to the disseminating of gospel truths among the young of the rising race. S. T. Clanton followed in a very practical discourse as to the efficiency of workers in the Sunday-school. Rev. J. W. E. Bowen spoke at some length upon the urgent necessity of lifting the religious and moral tone of the race.

Just before adjournment the Rev. A. M. Green, of the A. M. E. Connection, offered a resolution, which was referred to the executive committee of the Louisiana Sunday-school Association. The association then adjourned, to meet on Wednesday, Aug. 27, at Union Chapel.

Costa Rica has more school teachers than soldiers. The army consists of 429 officers and soldiers, and the teachers in the 316 schools number 482. The revenue exceeded the expenses of the government last year by nearly $2,000,000. This amount, it is stated, will be applied to the construction of a railroad from the Carribbean Sea to the Pacific.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

MISSISSIPPI.

S. Williams, Louisville: "The church is prospering, and four Sunday schools are in fair condition. The Lord has blessed my labor."

D. D. Goodwin, Vicksburg: "The church is in a very prosperous condition. I baptized 6 children and 3 adults last Sabbath. A colored woman named Delia Loper was shot last night by Joseph Fisher."

R. Anderson, Evergreen circuit: "The Lord blessed our labors with 9 conversions and 40 accessions. In Sabbath-school on children's day $1.75 was collected."

M. Lockman, Deer Creek: "There has been a great exodus to Kansas from here, but through all that I have been successful enough to have nearly completed a new church 30x40. I have preached one sermon in it."

H. Heslup, Sallis: "On Saturday, 9th inst, our Sunday-school assembled in a beautiful grove. About 300 were in attendance. The Bible class recited verses, Miss Jane Andrews recited ten chapters, or 313 verses in all. F. Steward, my self, W. H. Wigley and R. B. Hartley addressed the school."

A. Davis, Jackson: "My church is prospering. The Sabbath-school is in a good condition, with from 75 to 80 in attendance. Some of the students of Tugaloo have been engaged in our Sabbath-school since the close of their school. May they become more studious and useful in the Master's cause. The children recited many verses from the Bible."

LOUISIANA.

W. A. Primus, Lake Providence: "Our protracted meeting is still going on; accessions 4, converts 5. Times are very hard here."

Rev. F. Christian preached in Laharpe street church last week, taking as his text Ezekiel xxxvii. His sermon greatly plased his hearers.

H. Wright, Alexandria: "The Murray M. E. church Sabbath-school gave an entertainment last Sunday afternoon to their credit. Teachers, superintendent and pastor displayed energy in getting it up. Camp meeting, Aug 28. Come all ye preachers."

ARKANSAS.

Rev. T. B. Ford, presiding elder of the Little Rock district, Arkansas Conference greatly needs young preachers to supply his work. The Central Christian Advocate says whatever may be the difficulties of our work among the colored people in that State, they do not seem to lie against the work among the whites. There is a large population in sympathy with our Church, and it is increasing by emigration from the Northern and border States. Young men willing to do the work that has always been done by itinerant Methodist preachers in newly-settled countries, will find a field here for successful labor. There is no demand for self-denial and labor that any one called to the ministry ought to shun. And this call should meet with a ready response. Letters directed to Rev. T. B. Ford, Russellville, Ark., will procure full information on the subject.

TEXAS.

Emanuel Hardeman, Luling: "Our camp meeting closed on the 10th. We had a good time. Revs Cames, Davis, Michel, Wadkins and Norris, visited us, and were a great help. We will hold a basket meeting on the first Sabbath of next month."

TENNESSEE.

G. Baber, Galway Station: "On account of the yellow fever panic the West Tennessee District Conference will not be held until Oct. 20, 1879."

Bishop Haven and Dr. Philpott.

BRENHAM, Texas, Aug. 12, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I have read with great care and interest the articles written by Bishop Haven, and also that by Dr. Philpott published in our paper. I am sorry the Doctor should think the Bishop has stated what is not true. If the Doctor had interested himself and labored as some of us have done for the moralization and Christianization of the colored people, I expect he would readily admit the truth of the Bishop's statements. It is plain enough to be seen that there are two elements in Texas society.

My husband being a plain, outspoken man, often expressed his regret at the illiteracy of the blacks. He was told on more than one occasion that if he talked like that he would soon have a bullet through him. Although I have traveled thousands of miles alone, on my horse, unhurt. I have no doubt the facts brought out in your paper will do a great deal of good, and help on the work of education. Yours very respectfully,

MRS. ISABELLA HOWELLS.

Jefferson (Texas) District.

MARSHALL, Texas, Aug. 13, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—I have just returned from my work, after traveling 465 miles, visiting ten of my appointments, and meeting the district conference. It has proven a blessing to me, and I hope to every point that I met.

My first point was Jefferson There I met Bro. S. Pratt, who had just closed a successful meeting. From there I went to Cooper circuit, and met Bro. R. R. Roberts, with some success in the quarterly meeting. At Paris Bro. G. W. Gill was burdened, trying to build a church at that place. I held his quarterly meeting, made out a bill of lumber for them, and went with a committee and made arrangements to get the lumber. Paris circuit, H. Smith, pastor, had a protracted meeting in full operation, and received 8 or 10 converts before I left, when the meeting was still going on.

I crossed Red River into the Indian Territory to meet Bro. L. Richard, and was disappointed to find him away from his post on account of sickness in his family in Houston. I met the church with Bro. A. McCarty in charge, and found him well posted in regard to the rules of our church, and admired his graceful conduct among the Indians. We had a grand time. Our people in the Choctaw nation are doing as well as their brethren in Texas. The lands are very rich. It looked a little strange to see Indian men with boots up to their knees, and the women all barefooted in church together.

Re-crossing to Red River circuit, bad weather prevented me from meeting the full congregation of Bro. W. Pollard. At Clarksville quarterly meeting Bro. Morris and the church welcomed me. Courtesies were tendered by prominent white citizens also. I was tendered the use of the law office of Senator Swain, but I found a true friend to our church in the center of the town, Mr. McCulloch, who supplied us with all the comforts we needed for the occasion. The district conference convened with G. W. Gill as secretary. Business progressed finely, with a very large attendance. Our church at Clarksville, 30x40, was just able to hold the conference, but not one-third of the people who attended divine services. We had fine weather, the moon in full, and 1500 or 2000 out every night. Friends built a large shed on the side of the church, and on Sunday 2500 came. I witnessed the happy shouts of quite a number of new converts before I left, with the meeting still going on.

From there I went to Texarkana, held Bro. Moore's quarterly meeting, with appearance of success. On the circuit, Bro. S. L. Johnson's quarterly was held with a small congregation. I left there at 2 o'clock a. m., and rode for five hours in a hard rain to catch the train for Queen City. There I met Bro. A. Williams at the depot, waiting for me; held his quarterly meeting with great cheer. From there I came home, finishing my third round. In my next I will give particulars of the financial condition of the work. Most respectfully,

WALTER RIPETOE.

Letter from Texarkana.

TEXARKANA, Texas, Aug. 18, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to advise you concerning the progress we are making in the good work of the Sunday-school at Texarkana, Texas. I was elected to the office of superintendent of the Sunday-school of St. Paul M. E. Church in this place about three months ago, at which time the school was on the decrease, there being only 15 or 16 in attendance. At present we have 30 scholars and 4 teachers, all of whom are members of the church except one. I wish to acknowledge my obligations to Warren Jenkins and Victoria Barrister for their able and devoted work with me in building up the school. Though neither one of these are members of the church they are both sober-minded, energetic and moral people, who have the good of their neighbors at heart and do everything in their power for the advancement of our people. My prayer is that they will not remain long out of the fold.

At a supper given on the 16th under the auspices of the Sunday-school, we realized, after paying expenses, the sum of $5 05. In this enterprise we were very much discouraged by certain members of the church, which I very much lament. I ask the prayers of all the brethren that we may be successful in the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom here upon earth.

General Stewart L. Woodford and daughter are coming South with Mrs. Chisolm. The General will act as her adviser when the cases of her husband's murderers are called.

Let My People Go.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 20, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to speak through your valuable paper to the colored men of this State concerning the coming election. There is a party now split from the Democrats who style themselves "Greenbackers;" but I think the proper name to give them would be "forlorn Democrats." They are now seeking to get the colored Republicans to join hands with them and help them to win. Now I may be wrong, but I think it would be best for all colored men to let these two sore head parties fight their own battles. These two parties at the last election joined freely in the slaughter of the poor colored man; and if it is necessary they will join again. There is no use for them to say that "we will stand by you," for this has been the say all along, and it was only to get the poor negro's vote and then the shot gun policy and bulldozing went on all the same. I have heard these white-liners sing the song of feigned friendship toward the negro long enough. They are no friends of the colored man—they want his vote and they will do anything to get it. If the colored man would only look back at the riot at Vicksburg and Clinton, and see their styled friends hunting them as the blood hound hunts the deer, and think how, when they have been found, they were treated. My pen refuses to write what those blood-thirsty fiends did. I say let the fight go on among themselves, and while they are striving for supremacy let the negro work and get enough money to leave this field of blood.

There is but one way to bring Mississippi to terms, and that is for the negro to emigrate. Look around you and you can plainly see your sons and daughters going to ruin on account of your being deprived of your rights of citizens. If you love liberty, go where you can obtain it and there build yourselves up. The West is invariably the best place for the colored man. He can there get paid for his labor, and can also educate his children and enjoy his rights as a citizen unmolested. The negro has heard the shotgun (held by the bulldozer's hand) summon his comrades from this to an unknown world.

I write this letter because I feel that the colored man has been abused long enough. He has been trodden under foot for some time, but I rejoice to say he has turned his face towards the verdant fields of the West, and from what I can learn they are doing well. I did not mean to say much and I hope this letter will not take too much space in your paper, but before I close I will say, though I am a young man and have been in the field of public life only three years, mine has been three years of watching; yes, watching those whom the negro built up tear him down.

I have said enough, and if I have spoked harshly forgive me.

W. W. HENDERSON.

Letter from Carthage.

CARTHAGE, Tenn., August 18, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I would like to let the brethren know how we are getting along at present. I was sent to this work by Bishop Scott. It was the first work I ever had charge of. I got here eight days after I was appointed. The people did not seem to care much for me, but I remembered the promise the Savior left. He said, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the earth, Amen." That was my first text. They invited me down to the church. On my arrival at the church, I found it was a little school house sitting on the side of the pike with some logs, with the ends lying on rocks, and a little stove setting in the middle of the house. I had to stand by it to preach. After service was over I asked if that was the kind of churches in Smith County. They said, yes, that the circuit was about 15 years old and had no churches. I asked what they had been doing. They said the conference had been sending big preachers, but they had no big churches, and they were in hopes that they had got a little preacher and would get a church built this year. I indorsed that move and have gone forward and bought a piece of land and will get the title bond for it on the first payment and will have one year for the second payment. They will build a church on it by Christmas. We will use this land for church, school and burial ground. We will, on the 5th of September, 1879, give a Barbecue to raise money. We anticipate a good time that day. I have four sabbath schools in my work, but they are all afraid of money. The Baptist and Presbyterians and A. M. E's. were against me, but now they have shaken hands with me, and say they believe in free communion; so we all unite together at one table. I come here to fight the devil, and we have him started by hard fighting.

I am having a protracted meeting now at Ticktown. There is a good prospect for a revival. I have had several conversions this year and thirty additions, to the church; eighteen from other churches. I am on the field for victory and victory we must have, God being our helper. Pray for us.

C. L. SEWARD.

Letter from Cypremort, La.

DEAR EDITOR—I suppose that our people think that we are all spiritually dead, having not heard from us for so long; but we are yet alive, and each one performing a part of the great work of the Master. The church is getting on well. Three or four weeks' rain have made our roads almost impassable, but while this has reduced attendance in church it has greatly improved the cane crop of the vicinity.

We had a fine school exhibition on the first Friday and Saturday nights of this month. Scholars were examined in the common English course, and gave satisfactory evidence of the efficiency of their teachers.

Since conference our church has raised $615.65, paid Rev. Beal $193 95, and on the original debt $227.95. Bro. Beal is a blessing to our community, and we regret to think that some day we shall lose him. I preached my farewell sermon on Sunday night last to a crowded house. I am en route for Nashville, Tenn., with the purpose of preparing for the ministry, at the Central Tennessee College. I have been local preacher, recording steward, trustee, and Sabbath-school superintendent of Cypremort church for three years, and I regret to leave me people, but the Bible says add to your virtue knowledge. Yours in Christ,

S. P. BELL.

Holly Springs Circuit.

HOLLY SPRINGS, August 22nd, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Allow me to inform the brethren of my success since they have heard from me. On the 6th of August I started a protracted meeting at Calvin's Chapel, five miles from Holly Springs. On the evening of the 6th we held a society meeting and a goodly number of the members were found charged with some kind of sin. At dusk we adjourned our meeting of trials. At night Bro. Johnson filled the pulpit. The next night at 8½ o'clock our meeting commenced. Again at 11 o'clock old Father Brown preached. On Saturday the committees all met and four were found guilty of immorality and were expelled. Sunday the funeral of Bro. Bailey Pegues was preached. On Monday morning we commenced a prayer meeting at 9 o'clock; preaching three times a day by different brethren. On Monday night the Lord blessed one. Wednesday we held a general feast among all of the friends and members, and the Lord converted four souls during the day. Thursday an old man about 80 years old named Pompey Reeves professed a hope in Christ, also Jesse Pegues about 52 years old. For ten days and nights I was assisted by Rev. S. Brown, Foster and Johnson. The brethren and all worked together and during the ten days meeting God blessed 26 souls. About 20 of them were men full grown. Allow me to say a word for Bro. Parker, who worked day and night, just converted last summer himself. He is a faithful man.

We have a fine Church and a fine congregation. The congregation has increased about eighty or more during my two years stay with them. We have a fine Sabbath School, numbering about eighty. We have purchased catechisms, songsters and many other books this year. Pray for us that we may continue doing as we are. Please allow me to say to the brethren that helped so faithfully God bless Bro. Johnson, Bro. Foster, and for old Father Brown, I hardly know what to say. He is 72 years old and has been preaching fifty-seven years. He is full of fire, and the Holy Ghost. May his days on earth be many, and when he dies may he depart in peace with God and all mankind.

J. B. GRIFFIN, Pastor.

Foreign Missions.

Bishop Wiley says, under date of July 15: We have just closed a pleasant session of the Swedish conference. All the brethren were present, and in good health and spirits. They are very careful and thorough in their business, and warm and earnest in their religion. They have had a prosperous year notwithstanding their troubles. Two probationers were promptly dropped for wrong doing and poor Witting was expelled from the Conference and Church. All is at peace now, and the prospects are excellent for next year. They enlarged the work by about six new appointments and twenty new preaching places. They raised, for the missionary cause, 6080 crowns, which when we consider that two crowns are a day's labor or wages for an ordinary mechanic, and are equal to 3000 day's work, are by an American standard equal to $3000 of giving. We received six on trial in the Conference. They are growing properly careful about the men they receive and are increasing in strictness in their requirements before passing the candidates through their classes. Of a class of five candates, only two were admitted into full connection, one was dropped, and two were continued in their studies. The whole conference presents the appearance of a body of a clean, godly, zealous, and thoroughly Methodistic men. Not one of them would hear to a suggestion of an "Autonomy," All would cling to the connection with the "mother church." If the supplies were cut off they would still want to belong to the one great M. E. Church. Our work in Sweden is among a good and interesting class of people – sober, industrious, home-like mechanics and farmers. Our chapel was crowded and overflowing all day Sunday. The school board resolved to open the public schools Sept. 15. A communication from State Superintendent Lusher says the apportionment will amount to but four cents per child, or $170,500. He recommends additional taxation on the part of the city, and enforcement of the poll tax.

A Mother Found.

The following letter addressed to the editor illustrates a happy result of advertising for "Lost Friends," a special feature of this paper:

LULING, Texas, July 28, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—It affords me [illegible] pleasure to write you this [illegible], and to express to you that I [illegible] happy to say that I have found my long lost mother, that I had [illegible] seen for 25 years. I inquired [illegible] her in February, 1879. A few months afterward I received a letter [illegible] Houston, Texas, from my [illegible], right here within about [illegible] miles from me. I left her on [illegible] east shore of Maryland, and heard nothing from her until the [illegible] came. I thank you very [illegible] indeed. I found her doing [illegible], with a good husband [illegible] home. She had thought [illegible] was dead. I also thank Bro. [illegible] Hardeman for his kindness in [illegible] me to find her.

Aug. 31, 1879.—PRACTICAL RELIGION.

SCRIPTURE.—Col. 3: 16-25.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men."—23.

TOPIC.—Living unto the Lord.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Introductory—"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above." As neccessary to the carrying out of that precept the apostle urges: 1. "Set your affections on things above;" for no one will seek for that for which his heart has no desire. 2. "Mortify, therefore, your members." Under the title of "members" he enumerates fornication, uncleaness, etc. 3. "Lie not one to another." Entire reliability of speech and Christianity are inseparable. 4. "And above all these things, put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness." Love is too ready of heart and too quick-eyed to miss any duty. The religion of Christ is eminently "practical." It does not consist meely in spiritual enjoyment. It is not a rapturous gazing at the heavens in expectation of the return of the Master. It is not an indifference to the affairs of this life on account of the greater joys that await a Christian in the life to come. No such selfishness is inculcated, or permitted, by the gospel. It is an outlining of principles that make one a better neighbor, father, husband, friend. The religion that does not add to the security of the state and to the happiness of the home is a sham. Christianity demands that one shall show his faith by his works.

The Church (15, 17).—The primal admonitions in our lesson are addressed to the church as "one body." To its members are given five commands. Then people were dependent for their knowledge of the gospel upon the oral teachings of their recognized instructors. Now we have the teachings of Christ and of his apostles gathered together. In this respect, at least, those who live to-day are better off than those who belonged to the early church. Having such constant and free access to the gospel in these later times, this injunction should be felt as specially obligatory upon those to whom this priviledge is given. It should "dwell" in them—its vital, sustaining, and comforting passages be committed to memory. The Bible should not ostentatiously be displayed upon the parlor table in elegant binding, while it has no place in the heart. It should be read upon week days as well as heard upon the Sabbath. It should form the theme of private meditation as well as of public worship.

The Family (18 21).—1. The Wives. "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord." In Eph. 5:22, it reads, "as unto the Lord." And there, in the next verse, the reason for that is given: "For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church." There is no need for woman-suffragists to fight against this passage—for it does not settle the question of woman's voting one way or the other. It merely declares that man is the rightful head of the household. And this is no arbitrary law laid down in the gospels only. It was written by nature in the heart long before it ever found expression in the Scriptures. 2. The Husbands. "Husbands, love your wives." In Eph. 5 : 25, it is added, "Even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." In Eph. 5 : 28, it is further declared, "So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies." Love is no despot. No woman will ever have any cause to complain if the spirit of this passage is always observed. "Be not bitter against her." There are petty household tyrants—men who are honey abroad and gall at home. There are those who bully, and browbeat, and storm, and even descend to blows, and who justify all that they do on the ground that they are the "head" of the family. Household tyrants are not of the Scripture's making. A Christian man makes a good neighbor, a tender husband, and a kind father. 3. The Children. "Children, obey your parents in all things; for this is well pleasing unto (in) the Lord." "Obey" is a stronger word than "submit." "Honor thy father and thy mother" was written with the finger of God on the tablets of stone that were given to Moses. But upon fathers, also, rest obligations as well as upon the children. "Fathers, provoke not your children, lest they be discouraged." But bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Children so brought up will need comparatively little punishment. The best way to reach a child is from the side toward God.

The Servant (22 25).—Two-thirds [illegible] mankind are serving the other [illegible]. Two directions are laid [illegible] for servants. 1. "Obey in [illegible] your masters in the flesh." [illegible] in the flesh" is an expression used in contrast to "your Master which is in heaven." With this exception servants are to "obey in all things"—in disagreeable as well as in things which are pleasant—in things which are hard as well as in things that are easy. How? "Not with eye-service, as men-pleasers; but in singleness of heart, fearing God." Those who serve "with eye-service" are those who work only when the master is around looking at them. Then they are very officious and industrious, but lapse into idleness as soon as his back is turned. Such service as that no Christian is to render. And now Paul gives the reasons for such a fidelity. "Knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritence." The first verse of the succeeding chapter is. "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven." The observance of these directions, both on the part of the servant and the master, would break up every monopoly and destroy every trades-union. The masters would not be banded together against the employes, nor the employes against the masters. Their interests really are one. The only thing that finally will put an end to their destructive and suicidal hostility is the brotherhood effect of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Marriages.

At the bride's residence, Austin Texas, Aug 5, by Rev. M. Henson, Mr. Milton Alexander to Miss Helen Carpenter. Both are esteemed members of the M. E. church. Many valuable articles were presented to the handsome couple by their friends. A select assemblage of guests witnessed the ceremonies. Our best wishes attend them through life. M. HENSON.

Austin, Texas, Aug 15.

Deaths.

One of our worthy members fell asleep on the morning of the 16th. The day before he told his wife "I have been suffering here a long time, but I am going home. I am just waiting for Jesus to come." Bro. A. J. Balard was 46 years of age, and joined my church in May last. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his loss. The church unites in sympathy for his bereaved widow and children.

H. PRIMM.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 19, 1879.

James English was born in Down patrick, Down county, Ireland, November 15, 1824. His parents moved to Canada in 1827, soon after which his mother died. When about grown he came to Port Hudson, La., and, in a short time, joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South; was licensed to preach, and in 1845 was received on trial in the Mississippi Annual Conference. He was a faithful worker in this connection for nineteen years, serving, too, as a presiding elder. He then went to Missouri, and joined the Missouri and Arkansas Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but the climate disagreeing with him, he returned at the end of three years, and settled at Johnson's Station, Pike county, Miss., where he died in peace, June 18, 1879. His widow writes me that he was a lover of all Christians, that his heart knew no difference between the two Methodist Churches, and that he looked forward to the day when the two would be one loving church. I knew Bro. English well in former years. He was a quiet Christian gentleman, not a brilliant, but a good preacher, a strong friend, without ill-will toward any, decided in his convictions, earnest in his work, upright in his dealings, and affectionate in his home.

All his brethren will be glad to learn that he kept the faith, and was ready for the final summons. He told his friends good-by, exhorted his wife to live so as to be ready to die, and fell asleep.

Truth is Mighty.

As the little leaven hid in the measure of meal, made all leaven, so truth gradually overcomes all doubt and disbelief. When Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., annouced that his Favorite Prescription would positively cure the many diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, some doubted, and continued to employ the harsh and caustic local treatment. But the mighty truth gradually became acknowledged. Thousands of ladies who had uselessly undergone untold tortures at the hands of different physicians, employed the Favorite Prescription, and were speedily cured. Many physicians now prescribe it in their practice. So sanguine is Dr. Pierce of its power to cure, that he now sells it through druggists under a positive guarantee.

Germany, it is said, has abandoned the friendship of Russia, for that of Austria and England.

The Sultan has yielded to the demands of Great Britain for reforms in Asia Minor.

New Books.

YOUNG FOLKS' HISTORY OF ROME. By Charlotte M. Yonge. Cincinnati; Hitchcock & Walden. Price $1.50.

This is the fourth book of an entertaining series. It embraces Roman history up to the reign of Charles the Great, head of the new Western empire. Under the skillful manipulation of Mrs. Yonge, history ceases to be dry and unattractive, to be avoided by our youth. The narrative is as pleasing as that of the story books in popular use, and ever so much more instructive. The type is large, and engravings are useful in illustrating the text.

New Publications.

The Southern Musical Journal, Sudden & Bates, Savannah, Ga., for August is received.

The Holyoke Manufacturer of Holyoke, Mass., is a new publication devoted to the manufacturing interests of the United States. Terms one dollar a year.

"Facts About Tobacco," compiled by Prof. Edward P. Thwing, published by I. K. Funk & Co., New York, should have a wide circulation, as a valuable missionary aid, in the crusade against the obnoxious weed. Price, 25 cents.

Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., 111 & 113 William Street, New York, will reprint immediately, in their Atlas Series of Essays, Mr. Gladstone's "The Country and the Government," from the Nineteenth Century for August. It will form No. 10 of the Atlas Series. Sent, postage prepaid, to any address, on receipt of 10 cents.

"Witnessing for the Truth: or the Overthrow of the Papacy," a lecture by Justin D. Fulton, D.D., has been received from the publishers. I. K. Funk & Co., 21 and 23 Barclay street, New York. Price, 20 cents. Dr. Fulton shows how the temporal power was broken, and the spiritual power is to be, by the proclamation of the truth.

St. Nicholas for September helps the boys and girls to begin the new year of schooling with a great variety of amusing stories, pictures, and interesting articles. It begins with a large frontispiece, drawn by Addie Ledyard, and, near the end, it gives young Louis Napoleon's life-history, with a portrait engraved from a photograph taken a little while before his death. There are eight short stories, all illustrated. "The Chateau D'Oiron" is the title of an illustrated article on the history of the rare and beautiful pottery called "Faience D'Oiron."

Considerable educational flavor is imparted to the September Scribner by the three essays of the number,—Professor Boyesen's interesting illustrated paper on "The University of Rome," Mr. W. C. Brownell's exposition of the unique methods of teaching in "The Art Schools of Philadelphia" and Professor T. R. Lounsbury's discussion of the arguments for and against "English Spelling Reform," —a large quantity of light summer reading, is largely re-enforced by the fiction of the number, which contains much variety of style and incident. The poetic contributions are good. Dr. Holland's "Topics" are entitled "European Travel," "A Word About Newspapers," and "Write it Yourself." A "Communication" calls the attention of American collectors to some great paintings and other objects of art to be purchased in Europe and other material.

The numbers of The Living Age for August 9th and 16th, contain: Wordsworth by Mathew Arnold, and the Mirabeaus, Macmillan; Food and Feeding, by Sir Henry Thompson, and Moose Hunting in Canada, Nineteenth Century; The Last Jewish Revolt, and Chloral and other Narcotics, Contemporary; The Evangelical Movement, its Parentage, Progress and issue by Mr. Gladstone, British Quarterly; The Birth, Life and Death of a Storm, Popular Science Review; How to Popularize Wordsworth, The Journey of Colonel Prjevalsky towards Tibet, The Influence of India on China, and the Lessons of Prince Napoleon's Funeral, Spectator; Egyptian Exiles, Saturday Review; The Chances of War, Natal Mercury; and in the way of Fiction, The Ghost of Morcar's Tower, The Grey, and instalments of Jean Ingelow's "Sarah de Berenger;" and Sarah Tytler's "The Bride's Pass:" and the usual amount of Poetry. The subscription price is ($8). Littell & Co., publishers.

Wide Awake for September has an exquisite frontispiece drawn by Miss L. B. Humphrey, illustrating Miss Brown's poem, "Where the Brook And River Meet." Next comes "Fright Of the Beehive," by Margaret Eytinge. Then comes an article for children about "How Umbrellas Are Made In Philadelphia," by Mary Wager Fisher, profusely illustrated. "Ti Si Poppaty?" by Katharine Hanson will amuse young and old philologists. Mrs. Margaret J. Preston gives another of her dainty art poems for the children, "Little Titian's Palette," a pretty pendant for Mr. Benjamin's papers on "Our American Artists," of which No. IX is about Samuel Colman, with excellent illustrations. But the two "star articles" of the number are "Children at Newport," by "Margery Deane," with twelve exquisite pictures made at Newport by Miss Humphrey, and the new Classic of Babyland, "Tom Thumb," by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, and illustrated daintily by J. G. Francis. Only $2.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

The National Repository for September opens with an illustrated sketch of "Cincinnati, Past and Present," by S. W. Williams, in which its former history and present condition are set forth. This is followed by "Inland Provinces of Brazil," by D. S. Kidder, and a graphic narrative of the "British in South Africa." Mrs. Ella Rodman Church writes of "A Classic of the Middle Ages," or the Travels of Sir John Mandeville; and Prof. W. H. Larrabee carries us back to ancient times in his article on "An Old Egyptian Library"—long before the exodus in the days of the Pharaohs. "Wesley and Chalmers" are paralleled by Dr. Daniel Wise; and "My Lamb of Beulah" develops more interest in the progress of the story. The "Editor's Study" is a paper of rare interest on the Eschatology of the modern Church. Two or three poems and the general Miscellany of the number will be read with attention. The National Repository is published monthly at three dollars a year, post-paid. Hitchcock & Walden, Phillips & Hunt, Cincinnati, Chicago, or St. Louis.

You Can be Happy.

If you will stop all your extravagant and wrong notions in doctoring yourself and families with expensive doctors or humbug cure-alls, that do harm always, and use only nature's simple remedies for all your ailments—you will be wise, well and happy, and save great expenses. The greatest remedy for this, the great, wise and good will tell you, is Hop Bitters—believe it. See "Proverbs" in another column.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lectures on Preaching

Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D.

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price $1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics, delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workmen who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

This book will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Address,

Phillips & Hunt, 39 Natchez Street, New Orleans.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

Ecclesiastical Law

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. . . . . .

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judical investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

A LITTLE WHILE.

BY REV. WASHINGTON GLADDEN.

What is this that He saith?
"It is but a little while."
And trouble and pain and death
Shall vanish before His smile.

"A little while," and the load
Shall drop at the pilgrim's feet,
Where the steep and thorny road
Doth merge in the golden street.

But what is this that He saith?
"A little while," and the day
Of the servant that laboreth
Shall be done forever and aye.

O the truth that is yet untold!
O the songs that are yet unsung!
O the sufferings manifold,
And the sorrows that have no tongue!

O the helpless hands held out,
And the wayward feet that stray
In the desolate paths of doubt
And the sinner's downward way!

For a silence soon will fall
On the lips that burn for speech,
And the needy and poor that call
Will forever be out of reach.

For the work that ye must do
Before the coming of death
There remaineth, O faithful few,
But a little while," He saith.
—Sunday Afternoon.

good qualities, and without thinking of your defects and failings, which everybody is born with, remember then, any little girl, the almond blossom; and remember also, when your affectionate mother may not be there to tell you, that beauty without gentleness and good temper is worthless."

Every day a Little.

Every day a little knowledge. One fact in a day. How small is one fact! Only one! Ten years pass by. Three thousand, six hundred and fifty facts are not a small thing.

Every day a little self-denial. The thing that is difficult to do today will be an easy thing to do three hundred and sixty days hence, if each day it shall have been repeated. What power of self mastery shall he enjoy who, looking to God for grace, seeks every day to practice the grace he prays for!

Every day a little helpfulness. We live for the good of others, if our living be in any sense true living. It is not in the great deeds of philanthrophy that the only blessing is found. In "little deeds of kindness," repeated every day, we find true happiness. At home, at school, in the street, in the neighbor's house, in the playground, we shall find opportunity every day for usefulness.

Every day a little look into the Bible. One chapter a day! What a treasure of Bible knowledge one may acquire in ten years! Every day a verse committed to memory. What a volume at the end of twenty-five years!

A Little School-Girl's Faith.

A little five-year-old child of this city, who had just lost her father, received a ticket of reward from her teacher a few days ago. As soon as school was out, she ran home to show the ticket to her mother, and when she showed it, the child said, "Mother, I have held the ticket up to the sky all the way home, so that my father, could see how good I have been."—New Haven Palladium.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I have a son who left me in 1878, and I have never heard from him since. His name is Michel Jordan. Any information of him will be gladly received. Please address me at Enterprise, Clark Co., Miss.

EDMON JORDAN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make inquiry for my brother. He went away a little before Christmas 1878, and I have not heard from him since. His name is E. M. Isom. He lived last year with Dr. J. J Pullam, Lagrange, Tenn. If he is still living he will please write to me at Oxford, Miss.

R. B. ISOM.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire information of my father, mother and sister whom I left in Macon, Ga., in 1849. Father's name was Archie, mother's Betsey Howard. They belonged to Mrs. Hardy Haral. My sister Lucy Ann was sold to Jake Johuson three miles from Macon. Sister Philis was sold to Guds McDonald, in Macon. My brother Ned was sold to Samuel Taylor, in Arkansas. If any of these are found address me at Navasota, Grimes Co., Texas.

Can't Preach Good.

No man can do a good job of work, preach a good sermon, try a lawsuit well, doctor a patient, or write a good article when he feels miserable and dull, with sluggish brain and unsteady nerves, and none should make the attempt in such a condition, when it can be so easily and cheaply removed by a little Hop Bitters. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," other column.

PREVENT
Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents 33 13t

(Successors to R. V. PIERCE, M. D.)

DR. R. V. PIERCE, having acquired a world-wide reputation in the treatment of Chronic Diseases, resulting in a professional business far exceeding his individual ability to conduct, some years ago induced several medical gentlemen to associate themselves with him, as the Faculty of the World's Dispensary, the Consulting Department of which has since been merged with the INVALIDS' HOTEL. The organization has been completed and incorporated under the name and style of World's Dispensary Medical Association, with the following officers: Hon. R. V. PIERCE, Pres. F. D. PIERCE, V. Pres. JNO. E. PIERCE, Sec. LESTER B. SMITH, Treas.

NINE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS of eminence and skill have been chosen as the Faculty.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms come within the province of our several specialties.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of practice is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases treated with the most successful results.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are our facilities of a superior order for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), Neuralgia, and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty.

NOT NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.—By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases as successfully without as with a personal consultation. For particulars see "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" (1,000 pages, sent post-paid for $1.50) or "Invalids' and Tourists' Guide Book" (100 pages, 10 cents post-paid).

SURGICAL CASES.—Among the operations which we are called upon most frequently to perform, are those for Nasal Polypus, Harelip, Tumors, Fistula in Ano, Piles, Hernia (Rupture), Hydrocele (Dropsy of the Scrotum), Varicocele, Ovarian and Uterine Tumors, Calculi (Stone in the Bladder), Strictures, etc., etc. We also treat successfully, by a new method without surgical operation, Cancers, Club-feet, Spinal Curvature, and other deformities. (See pamphlet entitled, "Motion as a Curative Agent," sent on receipt of 10 cents.)

Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, BUFFALO, N. Y.

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

Favorite Prescription sold by Druggists.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

CHRIST OUR ALL.

Jesus, I my cross have taken,
All to leave, and follow Thee;
Naked, poor, despised, forsaken,
Thou, from hence, my all shall be;
Perish every fond ambition,
All I've sought, or hoped, or known
Yet how rich is my condition!
God and heaven are still my own.

Let the world despise and leave me;
They have left my Savior too;
Human hearts and looks deceive me,
Thou art not, like them, untrue.
And while Thou shalt smile upon me,
God of wisdom, love and might!
Foes may hate and friends disown me,
Show Thy face, and all is bright.

Perish, earthly fame and treasure!
Come, disaster, scorn and pain!
In Thy service, pain is pleasure;
With Thy favor, loss is gain.
Oh! 'tis not in grief to harm me,
While Thy love is left to me;
[illegible] to charm me,
[illegible] with Thee.

[illegible] Abba Father,
[illegible] on Thee,
[illegible] and clouds may gather,
[illegible] to me.
[illegible] earthly mission,
[illegible] pilgrim days;
[illegible] glad fruition,
[illegible] and prayer to praise.

The Exodus.

BY GOV. ST. JOHN, OF KANSAS.

[illegible], July 28, 1879.

[illegible] your letter of [illegible] in[illegible] have, and feel [illegible] you, touching [illegible] colored people [illegible] not re[illegible] day or two [illegible] answering. [illegible] notice of [illegible] the tide of [illegible] the South [illegible] Wyandotte [illegible] last, [illegible] seven [illegible] desti[illegible] it, [illegible] State. [illegible] about fifty are sick and disabled, all depending solely upon the Association until able to work, and employment can be secured for them. The refugees, as a rule, are not only industrious and faithful laborers, but are of peaceable, well-disposed, sober, and moral habits, and are not paupers; but will not only make their own living by honest labor, but will add to the material wealth of any country, if they are only given a reasonably fair opportunity to do so.

The question is frequently asked, "Is the exodus likely to continue for any length of time?" To which I reply, that I am forced to the conclusion, after having engaged in an extensive correspondence during the past two or three months with both black and white people of the South, and talked with hundreds of the refugees touching this question, that the exodus has just fairly begun, and were it not for the extreme poverty of the blacks, and the quarantine regulations now in force along the Mississippi, and could transportation be obtained, a half million of them would come northward during the next ninety days; but even under existing circumstances many will work their way through to the Northern States. There are now 150 just landed at West Kansas City, Kan., and two more boat-loads are coming up the Mississippi River, and will reach the same place within a week. And while the quarantine regulations will stop those desiring to come from the Gulf States, just as soon as the restrictions are removed the movement will be renewed with greatly increased numbers. So we had as well make up our minds that the exodus will continue possibly for years yet, and prepare for it, as it will not cease until the whites of the South recognize the fact that a negro is a human being and not a mere brute, and receives full protection of his life, property, and sanctity of his home, with the right to a free ballot.

Many efforts have been made to stay the tide, and, if possible, turn it southward again; but, so far, they have been unavailing, and but few, if any, have been induced to retrace their steps, preferring, as they say, to even perish in their efforts to remain North and be free, than to return to a condition of things that they know from sad experience to be worse, if possible, than the most abject slavery. These refugees do not come North because they prefer to live in the Northern States, but they come here because the manner in which they have been treated in the South renders it impossible for them to longer remain with any degree of safety for life or property, or hope of ever enjoying the rights of freemen there.

All the refugees unite in substantially the same story of cruelty, outrage, and wrong inflicted upon them for years past by the whites; they say they have waited from year to year for the past ten years, hoping that there would be a better condition of things; but their waiting has all been in vain, and instead of matters getting better, they have grown worse all the time.

To illustrate the manner in which these poor people have been treated, I give below the prices which they have been compelled to pay for the common necessaries of life as I find them in an account, now in my possession, rendered by [illegible] D. Carrie & Co., of Edwards [illegible], Miss., in January, 1877, against a colored man named Wm. [illegible], which he has paid: Coarse [illegible] sugar, 12½ cents per pound; [illegible] grade of molasses, $1.50 per [illegible]; bacon, 20 cents per pound; [illegible], 25 cents per pound; nails, [illegible] 10 cents per pound; flour, [illegible] per pound; rice, 12½ cents [illegible]; calico, 12½ cents per [illegible], [illegible]onade, 40 cents per yard, [illegible] same bill he is charg[illegible] for a work mule for [illegible], and other things at [illegible] rates, in a bill [illegible] in the aggregate to [illegible] prices, be it re[illegible] reasonable as are [illegible] like bills [illegible] Southern [illegible] and are [illegible] at least, twice as much as such goods are worth anywhere in this country. And it cannot be said in justification of such outrageous prices that the merchants in the South run any unusual risk in selling on credit, for, under the laws of the cotton States, the merchant has a lien upon all the interest or share that the negro has in all the crop he produces to secure the payment of his claim.

I find upon examination of leases held by these refugees for lands that they have cultivated in the South, that they have been compelled to pay from $7 to $10 per acre per annum as rent for lands, the title in fee simple to which would be worth but little, if any, more than the sum so paid as annual rent. In short, the whole system of dealing with the colored people of the South has been but little better than downright robbery. In the face of these facts, we are frequently told that the negro will never succeed.

Now, suppose the order of things down South was reversed, and the negro should play the part of landlord and merchant, and do the renting and selling at such outrageous prices, and the white men should play the part of tenant and purchaser, who would succeed? Would the negroes or the whites be foremost in an exodus?

Would Mississippi River boats refuse to take the white fugitives on board? Would our Government issue tents and rations to the fever stricken negroes, and refuse them to the destitute, starving whites, struggling to extricate themselves from such tyranny, outrage, and oppression? But let us carry this figure a little further. The negro, thus being the landlord and merchant, possessing the capital, and, although greatly in the minority as to numbers, yet ruling politics as well as in trade, organizes k. klux klans, black leagues, night-raiders, and bulldozers, and by force, murder, and intimidation compels these poor whites to vote as the negro desires or not at all, deprives them of the opportunity of educating their children, extends to them no protection to life, liberty, or property in the courts, and ruthlessly invades the sanctity of these homes! Is there a white person in this broad land that would not shudder at such a state of things? Would not every true man and women aid them in their efforts to extricate themselves? Yet we find the negroes of the South for years have been subjected to all these cruel, brutal wrongs and outrages, and to-day, in their miserable poverty, foot sore and bleeding, they cry out aloud for help. Is there a loyal liberty loving man or woman in this boasted land of freedom who can stand idly by and satisfy his or her own conscience and God with the answer: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Have we forgotten that in our country's darkest hour these same black men were always loyal and true? Have the loyal soldiers of our country forgotten that when they escaped from Southern prison-pens, that these negroes, wherever found, were their faithful friends, that they not only cheerfully divided their last crust of bread with them, but guided them through the swamps and jungles of the South to the land of the free and loyal North? Shall we be less true to them now, in the hour of great distress, than they were to us in times past? God will not hold him guiltless who, by his indifference, permits the shackles again to be riveted upon these poor downtrodden and oppressed people.

Very truly yours,
JOHN P. ST. JOHN.
—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

Pittsburg is one of the blackest of cities, by reason of the smoke from its manufactories, but a plan is being tested that promises to make it clean. The proposition is to wash the smoke, and the way of doing it is thus described: The washing is done by passing the smoke through the spray caused by paddle-wheels revolving in a tank of water holding soda ash in solution. The tank and wheels are placed in the flue, between the furnace and the chimney, and, the wheels being made to revolve in the direction of the chimney, the draught is increased. The smoke after being thus treated will not soil a white handkerchief.

Be careful to say what you mean. [illegible] did not, evidently, who built [illegible] to a missionary, and [illegible] is an epitaph reading, "He [illegible] his [illegible]. Well [illegible] good and faithful servant!"

Religio-Political.

One—only one—has complained of the utterances of the Methodist on current political matters. But we have nothing to take back. The political situation of this country is such that all good men must come to the front. So long as men quarrel about purely secular matters they may be allowed to run on at pleasure; but when their quarrel concerns the dearest interests of men—the rights of private opinion, free speeches, individual liberty and religious worship; when the souls and bodies of men are at stake, and the cause of Christ is jeopardized—then it is the privilege the imparative duty of every one who has not surrendered his conscience and judgment to speak for the right. That time has now come. Every political question to-day has a religious bearing and must be solved, if solved at all, by the application of Bible truth. Bad men, seeking position and plunder, have applied their policies in vain to settle existing difficulties. In common with others we have looked on with alternate sorrow and disgust, while anarchy and bloodshed have been spread over the lately rebellious states, and while every conceivable expedient has been tried in the Congress of the United States to extend the same rule over the nation. Henceforth we shall labor in our narrow limits for the triumph of the principles of the fathers—the principles fought for in civil war and embodied in the Constitutional Amendments. We want to see a man in the White House, as honest as Mr. Hayes, as firm as Gen. Grant, as wise as Mr. Lincoln, as pure as Mr. Washington. We must have him in 1881. This nation must not have at its head a man who comes out of the ranks of those who were rebels or rebel sympathizers. We desire to see in the House of Representatives and in the Senate, representatives of the people and of the states, not wire pullers, men who will not seek so much to make capital for parties as laws for the nation. Such a state or things is not more necessary for our political than our religious welfare. We shall exert whatever influence we possess in the direction indicated for Christ's sake. Let every one understand the position of the Kansas Methodist. We honestly believe that herein are expressed the sentiments and purposes of the Methodist Church, if not of all the protestant churches.—Kansas Methodist.

Miscegenation.

A case of miscegenation came to light in Wytheville, Va., August 5. Some time since a very pretty girl, aged twenty-two, living with her parents in this county, became infatuated with a negro man by the name of Ken Grubb. The negro returned her affection, and the result was that she left her father and brothers and went to live with Grubb. A week ago they left the county and went to Blountville, Tenn., where they were legally married. They then returned to this place. This morning her father and brothers swore out a warrant against the newly wedded pair for miscegenation. The father then swore out a warrant against Ken Grubb, charging him with abducting the girl. Grubb was sent to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The girl exhibited great affection for her black husband, hugging and kissing him in Court. She arose in the witness-stand, warmly defending him, saying she had promised to love and obey him, and she intended to do it. Her father and brothers attempted to take her home by force. She showered curses and blows upon them as they took her away.—Globe Democrat.

Kansas has a good and grand temperance Governor, and a constitutional amendment has recently passed the Legislature which will be submitted to a vote of the people in the fall of 1880 for ratification. The amendment forbids the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks in that State. The sentiment of the people in the Western States strongly favors prohibition, and the intelligent citizens of this young State, no doubt, will set an example for others to follow.—Church Herald.

Garibaldi's daughter, a girl of twelve years of age, was bathing recently at Civita Vecchia, when a young man who could not swim got out of his depth, and at his cry for help the girl swam towards him, caught him as he was sinking, and brought him safe to land.

A Valuable Work by Mr. Evarts.

The following has been furnished by the Department of State at Washington:

The reports from the United States Consuls on the condition of labor in the several countries of Europe, which have been prepared for publication by the Department of State, their publication being provided for on the last day of the recent session of Congress, will be ready for distribution in a few days.

These reports cover all phases of the labor question in Europe; viz: the rates of wages, the hours of labor, the habits of the working people and their manner of living, capital and labor, strikes, drinking, trades unions, socialism, communism, etc. The condition of the working people of Europe—their continued struggle with most adverse circumstances—as compared with the condition of the working people of the United States, is well purtrayed in these reports.

The following startling facts are clearly proved by these reports.

1. That wages in the United States are double those of Belgium, Denmark, France and England, three times those of Germany, Italy and Spain, and four times those of the Netherlands.

2. That the prices of the necessaries of life are lower in the United States than in Europe, and that the laborer in the United States, were he satisfied with the scanty and miserable fare upon which the European laborer must live, can purchase like food for less money than it can be purchased for in Europe.

3. That the French working people, with far less wages, are happier than the working people of Great Britain, who receive the highest wages in Europe, on account of the steadiness and the economical habits of the former, and the strikes, drinking habits and consequent recklessness of the latter.

4. That more misery results from strikes, drinking, socialism and communism in England and Germany than from all other causes combined, hard times included.

As Congress only provided for the publication of 15,000 copies of these reports—8,000 for the House, 4,000 for the Senate, and 3,000 for the Department of State—Senators and members of Congress will do well to get their allotted number for distribution among their constituents at this most opportune time of investigation into the depressed condition of labor in the United States.

The reading of these reports will remind many of the naturalized workingmen in this country (who are so fierce in denouncing the condition of affairs in the United States) of the hopeless condition of that labor from which they escaped by emigration to this Republic, and open their eyes to the superior position of the workingmen in this country. It will show the native American workingmen the difference between labor disfranchised, degraded and hopeless in Europe, and labor free, independent, honorable and an equal share in political power in America.

A careful reading of these reports will do more to solve and settle the "labor problem" in the intelligent judgment of the country than the fragmentary investigations which have thus far been the only public inquiries undertaken by the Government.

A Move Against Mormons.

Mormonism must move on. The Executive Department of the government has, after years of waiting and praying by Christian and respectable people, issued the fiat to check its growth and in the end, we trust, cause the nasty community to walk off into the sea or at least slough its putrid limb of polygamy. The cabinet has sent to the governments of Great Britain, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, whence Mormonism has mostly drawn its recruits, a letter protesting against their permitting their subjects to embark for this country under Mormon lead. The protest is based on the fact that bigamy is contrary to the law of the United States, and that therefore foreigners sailing with the intention of becoming Mormons sail with the intention of becoming criminals in this country, violators of the laws. If this request is unheeded the government will then refuse these immigrants entry to this country.—Christian Statesman.

Honorable Mention.

Let it be published, and then remembered, that the colored delegates of the late Constitutional Convention voted, to a man, for the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday.

And some of the delegates made earnest and eloquent appeals to their white opponents to give them such a constitutional clause to protect their people against the demoralizing influence of the Sunday traffic. And to the dishonor and utter shame of a majority of the members they heartlessly refused that boon to the laborers in their fields.

Among those who denied them their just and modest request, we recognize a number of planters, and some from the upper as well as the lower parishes.

These exhibited in a very conspicuous light, their total unfitness for the responsible position committed to them, as well as a shameless disregard for the prosperity of our agricultural interests, and the welfare of the commonwealth.

The names of these men, who prized party and machine politics above the interests of the State, can be found in the published record, and the voters ought to put the brand of scorn upon them in the future, and "remit" them to the deserved obscurity of private life, where they cannot deal such fatal stabs to the prosperity of the State. We have had enough crookedness in the past, and the voters will do well by making a new departure in the selection of men to represent them.

The law of Sunday prohibition to the liquor traffic is a vital necessity to the State of Louisiana, and we fear that the action of the convention will react with a terrible retribution upon the planters of the State.

The People's Journal and the New Orleans Observer, both edited by intelligent colored men, have already thrown out some significant hints on this subject.—Temperance Advocate.

"A Man's a Man for a' That."

Andrew Ferguson, of this city, is a native of Bourbon county, Kentucky, and has been a member of the Presbyterian Church for many years. His occupation, as we see in the National Presbyterian, is that of a janitor, and though nearly sixty years of age, he has never spent a dime for whisky or tobacco—a living exemplification of what temperance and religion will do for a man, be he white or black. To his praise be it spoken, he used the grace divine to make him what he is; for the above graces of the Spirit lead on to other and greater things, as will be seen in the development of the instance here recorded.

In the early part of June arrangements were made for the purchase of the German Methodist church on Madison street, between Eleventh and Twelfth, including the parsonage and lot, the price fixed at $4880. Mr. Ferguson came forward and paid the entire sum, putting the congregation hitherto worshipping on Green street, and its pastor, Rev. J. R. Riley, in possession of that commodious church and parsonage, which was done on the 1st instant.

We rejoice with these friends in so happy a circumstance for them and their pastor, and with our German brethren in obtaining the ready cash to help them in their new enterprise in another part of the city. May great religious prosperity attend them all, and may the example set by our colored brother Ferguson, lead many more to devise liberal things, for by them shall they be made to stand.—Church Herald.

The Columbia River Conference began its seventh session at Walla Walla, August 7. Bishop Gilbert Haven, of Atlanta, Ga., occupied the chair. Rev. Wm. G. Simpson was chosen secretary, and Revs. Flenner and Grannis were chosen assistants. The first day preliminary business occupied the attention of the conference. On Saturday, at 10 o'clock a. m., the conference proceeded to elect a delegate to represent this conference at the general conference which meets in Cincinnati some time in May of next year. The contestants for this high honor were Strong, Hines and Wilbur. Strong was elected on the second ballot, and Hines elected as reserve. Jones H. Brown, of Idaho City, was elected lay delegate to the next general conference.—Pacific Christian Advocate.

The Women of Egypt.

They are not allowed to go out of doors as we are, and many of them never get beyond the walls of their houses. The cows sleep in the same huts with the people. These huts are made of mud without windows, and the doors are so small that the wonder is how people get in. They do not wash their babies until they are a year old, because it is considered unlucky to do so. They rarely comb their hair from month to month. Their chief meal is at sunset; the rest of the time they eat a piece of bread when they are hungry. They never use plates or knives and forks. All sit around the table on the floor. Bread" is their daily food and each family makes for itself, as it is a kind of disgrace to buy "street bread. The women clean the corn and carry it on their heads to mill. It is made into thin, small cakes, stuck against the sides of an oven, and baked in less than a minute. A hundred loaves are not too many for a family of four in a week. Travelers are usually expected to eat three loaves apiece. They make butter in a strange way. A goatskin half filled with milk is hung on a peg, and then a woman, taking hold of a long string tied to it, jerks it to and fro till the butter comes. Then she drains it, but never washes or salts it. Their favorite dish is rice cooked with this butter.

A Southern Methodist suggests in the editorial columns of the Nashville Advocate that the bishops of the Southern Church "conveniently forget" to appoint fraternal commissioners to the Northern General Conference next year. The reason given is that organs of the Northern Church are slandering the Church South and gathering up lying reports about it, the crowning offence being given by the paper of the bishops in regard to the Arkansas affair. As nobody ever charged the outrage on Todd and Pollard to the Southern Methodist Church, it seems strange that that body should feel insulted by a condemnation of it. All good men ought to join in condemning such violence. That there is no real fraternity between the churches is plain to everybody. We said so when fraternity was formally declared. There was too much haste and too much gush. It is creditable, of course, to both bodies to desire to live together peaceably; but there is nothing to be gained by professing an affection which neither feels. The Southern Church has sought to show its Northern brethren that under the plan of fraternity they have no right on Southern soil, and the Nashville Advocate wanted them to turn their colored members over to a colored organization. If the parent body would withdraw from the South and promise not to teach or preach to the Freedmen, Southern Methodists would, no doubt, be sweetly affectionate toward it; but we hope, on such conditions, fraternity will be delayed till doomsday. *N. I trust in a few years there will be American steamers running between New York and Boston and the western coast of Africa. This will be a necessity, if our country ever recovers her commerce which was lost during the war, when the European lines of steamers were started to the coast of Africa. With a small subsidy for a few years from our Government, American steamers would become a financial success. Commerce, science, philanthropy and Christianity, all, it seems to me, demand new and enlarged efforts for the civilization and Christianization of the Dark Continent, with her 200,000,000 of people, and her varied and valuable natural resources. Africa can furnish just the market that the United States requires; and can furnish her in abundance, just the products that she needs. So here our duty as a nation and a church, is identical with our interests.—Dr. Bushnell.

Dr. Joseph C. Hartzell, the vigorous editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, published in New Orleans, is enabled to make a good showing of his last year's financial success with his important Church paper. His circulation is much in advance of previous years, having reached about 4,000. His cash receipts have increased nearly fifty per cent. Our two official papers, at Atlanta and New Orleans, are among our most efficient agencies both for the spread of truth and for the upbuilding of denominational interests.—Zion's Herald.

NORWAY CONFERENCE.—Bishop Wiley informs us that the Norway Conference was closed "after a profitable session—pronounced by them the best they have ever had—on Monday, July 28. All things are moving healthfully in Norway. There has not been much growth this year, but good progress in spirituality and discipline. The country has been suffering much from "hard times" and there has been some falling off, in consequence, in self-support. There is an opening for a large amount of work in Norway if they had the means with which to enter new places. They received six fine-looking, promising young men on trial. Bro. Ansen was elected to the General Conference. The characters of all the preachers are good, and they are true and loyal, and thorough Methodists full of enthusiasm and zeal. I find a very fine type of Methodism in Norway. It reminded me of the Methodism of forty years ago in America." The following is a summary of the statistics: Preachers 23, local preachers 16, exhorters 99, members 2823, probationers 488, deaths 41, excluded 77, withdrawn 17, moved 123, received 452, churches 23, value 96258 crowns or $26,015, debts 2578[illegible] crowns or $6935, missionary collections 56467 crowns or $152,60, total collections 13932,67 crowns or $3765, Sunday-schools 41, teachers and scholars 2454.

September, 7, 1879.—THE COMING OF THE LORD.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Th. 4: 13-18.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And so shall we ever be with the Lord."—17.

TOPIC.—The Second Coming.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Preliminary.—The main object of the apostle in writing his two letter to the Thessalonians were, first, to strengthen their faith, and, second, to correct the erroneous impressions which they had with regard to the Lord's coming and their attitude towards it. Paul had taught them the Lord would come, and that he might return at any time, but had not instructed them with relation to their duties in the matter. The result was, that they began to be "restless expectation of his coming." Practical duties were neglected, and, in some instances, the usual avocations were given up, and able-bodied men became dependent upon others, as if their only duty was to wait for the appearing of the Lord. All of the church were not affected in this way, probably not even the majority, but enough to bring reproach and scandal upon the cause of Christ. Believing that the coming of the Lord was near at hand, some, also, were troubled with regard to the dead, fearing lest they had missed the opportunity of welcoming the returning Saviour with his accompanying triumphal host. The apostle's main design, therefore, in writing was to rectify this special error, and to give comfort concerning those who had fallen asleep. He declares to them that the time of the Lord's coming is uncertain—that it will come as a thief in the night. In the second letter he more specifically says, that day shall not come "except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition." 2: 3. From star-gazing he turns their thoughts to homely duties, and exhorts to the faithful discharge of them, that through their neglect the name of Christ might not fall into reproach. Our lesson explains how he met their anxieties with regard to the dead.

Asleep in Jesus.—It is noticeable that the death of believers invariably is spoken of as a "sleep," but the death of Christ is referred to in no disguisitng term. "Jesus died"—"them also which sleep in Jesus." The explicitness used in regard to the death of Christ suggests that the apostle desired ever to keep before them the fact that Jesus actually died, while the use of the other term with regard to the death of believers indicates that he was equally anxious to fix their attention upon that which would give them hope and encouragement with relation to the state of the friends concerning whom the Thessalonians had been despondent. It suggests, also, that Jesus tasted the full bitterness of death, while for his followers there is nothing to be dreaded.

Alive with Jesus (15-18).—Paul evidently attached much importance to the words that he was writing to the Thessalonians. The special communication that he thus had he announces to have been; "That we which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep." The time of his coming was one of the things that was not revealed to him, nor to any one of the inspired writers. The particulars he proceeds to give: 1. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout." The emphasis is upon "himself." He will not come by deputy, even in the person of the most exalted of celestial beings. His appearance will be no phantasm, no deception of the vision, but the real Lord himself. This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts 1: 2. The church, which is the bride, will be received by the bridegroom himself. "The Lord himself"—identified by the prints of the nails in his hands, and by the wound in his side—whom the redeemed, first of all, would like to see and adore. How shall he descend? "With a shout." Literally, "with a command"—the summons of the great leader to all of his forces to meet him in the air. "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." John 5: 28. "With the voice of the archangel." Perhaps this chief of the angels is Michael. Jude 9; Rev. 12: 7. To him specially seems to have been committed the guardianship of the saints. Dan. 10: 13. "And with the trump of God." It is a phrase used to accommodate the thought to human speech. The trumpet was used to summon the people together to all solemn convocations. Its piercing notes were heard far and wide. In that is symbolized the penetrating character of the summons which shall announce the return of Christ, and [illegible] even shall cause the dead to hear. None will fail to be reached by it—neither those to whom it will be a joyful call, nor those to whom it will be the most dreaded of all mandates. Next, the apostle states the order of the resurrection. "And the dead in Christ shall rise first." The fear of the Thessalonians had been that they would not rise at all to meet their Lord. This shows that, instead of being worse off than the living, they would be first prepared to meet him. 2. "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in clouds." When the irresistible summons shall come the living will experience an instant and marvelous change. "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." 1 Cor. 15: 51, 52. Then this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality. "And so shall we ever be with the Lord." Never will there be any separation from him from that hour—not even any wayward impulse. The Saviour then will supremely rule in the hearts of all of those who here have longed that he might take full possession of them, but who have been tortured with a divided reign. With this the apostle stops. He does not, as is elsewhere done, speak of the millenium, the final judgment, and the glories of the kingdom then inaugurated. It was not within the scope of his purpose in this case to do this. He had aimed only to speak some comforting words, and, having done this, his mission is accomplished. "Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

Deaths.

Rev. Richard Green, a local preacher, died Aug. 28, after an illness of about six months. Brother Green passed away in the full triumph of faith, leaving a wife and many relatives to mourn his loss, in West Baton Rouge.

GASPARD DE COLIGNY. By Walter Besant, M. A. New York: Harper & Brothers. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich. Half-Hour series. Price 25 cts.

It is the only life of the great French worthy that has yet been published in England. Admiral Coligny was an indomitable Protestant leader, and was murdered on the day of Bartholomew, 1572, by an unexampled act of treachery. It teaches many lessons of religious and political liberty.

STORIES OF THE OLD DOMINION. From the Settlement to the End of the Revolution. By John Esten Cook. New York: Harper & Brothers. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich.

The author has arranged a number of striking stories connected with the history of Virginia, a State famous for great men and thrilling episodes. The narrative is pleasing, and intended for the amusement and instruction of the author's own and other boys. The book is profusely illustrated, and will be eagerly sought for by those fond of the recital of thrilling adventures.

MOSES THE LAW-GIVER. By Rev. Wm. M. Taylor. New York: Harper & Brothers. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich, Canal street.

A series of biographical discourses by one who devoted to the work the study of years. The story of the Hebrew Exodus is narrated, and lessons for to-day pointed out. The writer has attempted a faithful exposition of the Scriptures, leaving to others questions of Egyptology and chronology. He has been mindful that Moses was the precursor of Christ, and has sought to show the connection between the Old Covenant and the New. It is an interesting and valuable work.

Indian Depredations.

The fair reader shudders when she thinks of the settler's wife watching, from the door of her rude hut, the retreating form of her husband going out to his daily labor—going out perhaps to return not again, for before nightfall a savage hand may have laid him low among the prairie grasses. Or it may be a child, a bright-eyed daughter, is snatched away in an unguarded moment, to grace the next war dance. When we read the heart-rending details of these savage depredations, we are apt to blame the government for not taking more strict precautions to insure the settler's protection. But we daily read of the depredations of that arch-fiend, consumption, with scarcely a thought of the terrible inroads it is making in human life. Tens of thousands of homes are annually desolated by consumption to one by Indian outrage. Like the Indian, consumption oftenest comes stealthily, and no danger is apprehended until the victim suddenly finds himself hopelessly ensnared, and death's fatal arrow ends the scene. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a powerful alterative, or blood-purifier, and tonic, has restored thousands of consumptives who had tried every other remedy recommended to them, without obtaining any relief, and are willing to testify to its remedial powers.

What is Compound Oxygen.

This new remedy for chronic diseases, which of late has attracted so much attention, will be found advertized in the present number of our paper. The question naturally arises, "What is Compound Oxygen?" Its discoverer claims that it is a new combination of Oxygen and Nitrogen (the two elements which make up our atmospheric air) in such proportions as to render it richer in the life-giving element, and that it acts in complete harmony with natural laws and forces. If one fifth of the cures which are claimed for it, and which seem to be well authenticated, have really been made, then it is the most wonderful agent for the relief of suffering humanity which the world has seen. A Treatise on Compound Oxygen, containing a history of the discovery of this remedy, a statement of its nature and mode of action, and a record of many remarkable cases, will be sent free to anyone who will write for it to Drs. Starkey & Palen, of Philadelphia. See their advertisement.

You Can be Happy.

If you will stop all your extravagant and wrong notions in doctoring yourself and families with expensive doctors or humbug cure-alls, that do harm always, and use only nature's simple remedies for all your ailments—you will be wise, well and happy, and save great expenses. The greatest remedy for this, the great, wise and good will tell you, is Hop Bitters—believe it. See "Proverbs" in another column.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lectures on Preaching

Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D.

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price..........$1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workman who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

— BY —

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $2; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

EXAMPLE.

We scatter seeds with careless hand,
And dream we never shall see them more;
But for a thousand years
Their fruit appears,
In weeds that mar the land,
Or healthful store.

The deeds we do, the words we say,
Into still air they seem to fleet;
We count them ever past;
But they shall last—
In the dread judgment they
And we shall meet.

I charge thee by the years gone by,
For the love's sake of brethren dear,
Keep, then, the one true way
In work and play,
Lest in that world their cry
Of woe thee hear. —John Keble.

"I wouldn't."

That is what Ping Wee's mother said.

"I will."

That is what Ping Wee did not say, but what Ping Wee thought.

"Ping Wee, if you keep turning over so you will catch it. You will have trouble," said his mother.

As before, Ping Wee said nothing, meaning to do just as he had done before.

The very wise booby.

So Ping Wee kept at it, standing on his head, turning somersaults, doing outwardly as the silent Ping Wee thought it inwardly.

One time Ping Wee made a turn or two, but found to his surprise that he kept turning. At first, he was greatly delighted. It had been his ambition to make four or five successive turns without stopping. Wee's Chang Pi and Hang Ho, my chums, envy me when they see me," thought Ping Wee.

But he began to be a little alarmed when he found he could not stop. If he could have stopped, he would have seen that his pigtail struck right out with fright. It kept on was going like his granny's spinning-wheel, over and over, round and around, whirr-r-r.

No True Religion Without Morality.

By true religion, we mean the religion of the Bible, in contradistinction to all false religions, such as Mohammedanism, Buddhism, Brahminism, and Mormonism, which permit and encourage practices that are declared in the Bible to be forbidden and wicked. It would be superfluous to say that there can be no true religion without morality, were it not for the fact that many try to substitute a sort of religious enthusiasm and what they call faith and love for that thorough righteousness which it is the object of the religion of Christ to produce. There has somehow got abroad among the large class of professors of the Christian religion the notion that zeal for the church and the punctilious use of prayers and hymns and sacraments will be accepted of God in lieu of an equally punctilious morality. If we are to take their practice as an indication of their creed, it would appear that many have the idea that their relations with the Lord may be so comfortably adjusted that they can have perfect immunity from any unpleasant consequences that might otherwise result from their shortcomings toward their fellow men.

In plain English, there are multitudes who are very religious, but who are not very moral, who, like the Pharisees of old, try the mint, and anise and cummin in the matter of religious observances, but omit the weightier matters of the law, — to deal justly, love mercy and walk uprightly before God and man. It is necessary to tell such people plainly, that their religion is spurious, that their "oblations," their prayers and professions, and other religious observances are offensive to God.

It is time this matter were better understood than it appears to be. There is no such thing possible as a genuine religious experience without strict morality. The grand object of the Christian religion is to make men righteous. "Christ is the end of the law for righteousness unto every one that believeth." He died to save men from their sins, and faith in Him has for its sole object the renewal of the soul in righteousness and true holiness. And love to Him is not a mere sentiment to be enjoyed, but the master-motive and inspiration to obedience to His commandments. This is what Paul means by the declaration that "love is the fulfilling of the law,"—not that it is something that one can have and enjoy without morality, or that God will accept as a substitute for righteousness, but that it is the only thing that can enable us to lead a holy life, and that it is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto us for that express purpose. If a man loves God with all his heart, he will love his neighbor as himself; and this love to his neighbor involves thorough morality in all his relations to men.

We cannot bear in mind too constantly, nor emphasize too forcibly, the fact that the foundations of true religion are laid in righteousness; and that whenever men's professions of religion and zeal in religious observances outstrip their morality, they are either a delusion and a snare to themselves, or conscious hypocrisy, intended to deceive and ensnare others. In either case the disparity between their profession and their practice is a disgraceful misrepresentation of the Christian religion which disgusts and alienates men from it. For morality is the manward side of religion, and the only side that men can see; and if they see a man who professes to hold communion with God and to be accepted of Him, guilty of any impurity, injustice, dishonesty, or guile of any kind in his dealings with men, the very name of religion becomes a stench in their nostrils.

If these things are so, if there can be no genuine religious experience without morality, and if every departure from strict rectitude of life and conduct brings our holy religion into contempt, what manner of men ought we to be? How careful to adorn the doctrine of God our Savior, by a holy walk and conversation! to have and manifest the spirit of Christ? For Christ is our example of righteousness; and "He [illegible] saith he abideth in Him, ought [illegible] so to walk even as he [illegible]." And if we have the spirit and love of Christ in our hearts, we [illegible] able to follow Him, to live [illegible] His grace teaches; for then, the [illegible] of the Spirit of life in Christ [illegible] shall make us free from the [illegible] of sin and death, so that, being [illegible] sin, we shall not [illegible] therein, but have [illegible] and the end, [illegible] our prayers and other religious exercises, are reduced to practice in our domestic, neighborhood and business relations with men. We shall then realize, and the world will see, that a genuine experience of religion and thorough morality are not separate, but co-existent and inseparable.

[illegible] the baptism [illegible]

Roman Catholicism in Louisiana.

The Louisianian newspaper of St. James parish, La., publishes a communication containing matter that is either truthful or slanderous, affecting the personal character of Cure Dubourg, Catholic priest, at Vacherie settlement. A young lady, twenty-one years of age, arose in her pew, and pointing to the confessional, exclaimed: "There you sought to rob me of my honor!" "Let all disorderly persons leave the church!" said the priest, and the young lady and her brother left. The brother was afterward assailed by adherents of the priest. The priest and the parties engaged have been arrested and bailed to appear before Judge Siskron. Previous to these occurrences 143 persons petitioned Archbishop Perche to remove their pastor, and in his absence they addressed the Vicar General seeking an investigation. They were informed that none would be held. On Aug. 15th they were notified: "The doors of the Archbishopric will be closed hereafter against the complainants; and if the priest is obliged to leave, the church shall remain without a priest."

Rev. T. A. Vandry, a priest in West Baton Rouge, whose piety was vouched for by the Vicar General, withdrew from the priesthood recently and married. He denounces the Romish system as immoral and challenges the priests of the diocese to meet him and defend it before the public. While attempting to lecture, in his parish, a crowd of the adherents of his successor interrupted him, compelled him to suspend his lecture and threatened him with personal violence. These disturbers were arrested by the U. S. Marshall, and bound to appear before the United States Court in November.

Romanism in Louisiana, as elsewhere, is the determined enemy of religious freedom. By assaults upon free speech it seeks to cover up the errors of its corrupt followers.

The Great Storm.

On Monday Sept. 1 a great wind storm swept over the Southern portion of Louisiana, inflicting great damage upon the growing crops, uprooting trees, destroying houses, sinking vessels but fortunately attended with slight loss of life. The storm centre appeared to be near Morgan City, where some twenty buildings, including the Teche freight depot, the Presbyterian church and the new school house were destroyed. The new railroad round house and two steamers at Berwick City were lost.

Nearly all the sugar-houses between Morgan City and New Iberia were either injured or totally destroyed. In Franklin the Catholic church and Smith's warehouse were blown down. At LaTeche the Orphans' Home building, in which the people of the place shortly remained for shelter, was converted into a mass of ruins. A letter from LaTeche which we publish to-day gives the details. Chauenton, a neighboring village was almost completely destroyed.

Estimates of the losses to the crops place it at one-half or near two million of dollars.

On the river just below Baton Rouge, the Opelousas steamer Trenton was caught by the gale, the passengers were hurried on shore, and shortly after, the boat was torn from her moorings, and turned bottom upward, with freight, clothing and passengers' baggage. At Baton Rouge coal barges were sunk. In city and country buildings and other property were destroyed. Several steamers had narrow escapes, with torn cabins and lost chimneys. In front of New Orleans coal in barges to the value of $200,000 was destroyed, and several wrecks of vessels were made.

In the southern portion of Mississippi some eight miles of Jackson railroad track near Bogue Chitto was washed away, and crops were injured nearly one-third.

The gale lasted about 18 hours, and at 11 a. m. reached a velocity of about forty miles an hour. Old inhabitants of South Louisiana say the storm was without parallel in its fury and destructiveness.

Gen. Clinton B. Fisk has invited the bishops to hold their semi-annual meeting in his house at Seabright, N. J. The Episcopal board will convene there Oct. 31, eating, sleeping, and transacting their business under the general's hospitable roof.

Misrepresentation.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate (Church South) in its editorial summary of "News of the Week," Sept. 8, says:

The fray between two Democrats in Yazoo has been charged to the account of the Democratic party in the State of Mississippi, and, on a parity of reasoning, the San Francisco affair should be charged against the Republican party in California. There is as much propriety and justice in the one as in the other, and none in either.

The facts are that the Democratic executive committee planned the suppression of Dixon and other independent candidates, and subsequently endorsed the conduct of its followers in Yazoo county. Barksdale emerged from the Democratic committee room to shoot Dixon, and Dixon's brother has testified that Barksdale was urged to the deed by the committee, and if he had refused, forty others were ready to obey its wish. In no particular is there the slightest similarity between the shooting of Kalloch and that of Dixon. Lawlessness was promptly rebuked and suppressed in San Francisco, and openly excused and applauded in Mississippi. Why should a religious newspaper attempt to so inexcusably misrepresent well known facts? Is the Church South required to shield the murderers of Dixon?

Good Advice on the Exodus.

The following letter should be read everywhere, for the good of those people who contemplate an early migration to Kansas, and other Northern States:

TOPEKA, Kansas, August 22, 1879.

To L. Brower, New Orleans, La.:

DEAR SIR—In answer to your questions in relation to the migration of the colored people from Louisiana to the northern states, I have the honor to state that neither the State of Kansas or the general government extends aid to any class of immigrants. All the inducements that Kansas offers is rich soil, healthy climate, full protection under the laws to all classes, free schools and a free ballot. All who come here are expected to make their own living, which all can do if they are only industrious, sober and economical. I desire to impress upon the colored people of the South the importance of not coming to this or any other State in a destitute condition, for such course if indulged in by large numbers would tend to defeat the very object of their present movement, by over taxing the charities of their friends, and thus causing a reaction, which might result in not only causing many to turn back, but discourage others so that they would be compelled to remain where they now are and suffer even a worse condition of things if possible, than they are now subjected to. I speak thus plainly to you because I am now, and have always been your friend and greatly desire your success, and I firmly believe that under God's guidance a brighter day is dawning for your race, and it only requires patience and an exercise of good management to lead your people to that enjoyment of freedom to which you are entitled under the laws of our country but which they have been deprived of heretofore.

Trusting that God may guide and protect the colored people in every patriotic and honest effort that they may make to better their condition, I am, very truly your friend.

JOHN P. ST. JOHN.

The annual reports of the Publishing House of the M. E. Church South, for the year ending June 1, 1879, just published, shows that 199,849 books, pamphlets, etc., 2,514,900 Sunday-school papers and 489,275 Christian Advocates have been published. Publications of other houses have also been circulated. Of the $300,000 of four per cent. bonds $273,439 have been subscribed for, and $26,561 remain unsold. The report says: "As to the New Orleans Depository, we have not been able to state the exact condition of that Depository, but can state that, before this committee was appointed all the property belonging thereto had been seized under execution, and was shortly thereafter sold, yielding some $8,000, and leaving an alleged balance of indebtedness of more than $30,000." The New Orleans Christian Advocate remarks that the affairs of that depository have been in the hands of the agent more than a year, and its exact condition ought to have been ascertained. A general appeal is made to the church for support.

Rev. John Scott, D. D., was elected by the Publishing Board of the Methodist Protestant Church to fill out the unexpired editorial term of the late Rev. Alexander Clark. He was previous to the election of the latter several years editor of the Methodist Record. After he retired from the editorial chair he was stationed in Cincinnati, O. For two or three years past he has been stationed at Sharpsburg, near Pittsburgh, a stronghold of the Methodist Protestants. His election gives much satisfaction in and out of that Church.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

MISSISSIPPI.

W. H. Ogbrune: "Our Sunday-school is doing well, with an average of 75 in attendance. We have an organization here called the Emancipation Historical Union."

J. B. Smith, Forest: "We have been visited with a special outpouring of the spirit here. We carried on a protracted meeting at the Evergreen church for a week, receiving 33 converts and 3 back sliders."

W. D. Sims: "A protracted meeting just closed at Mt. Olive church resulted in 8 conversions, 9 backsliders reclaimed, and 19 probationers. One of our local preachers, Bro. M. Portis, 105 years old, and a church member 68 years, has died. He said he had served his time, and was prepared for his removal. He has joined the church triumphant."

LOUISIANA.

W. A. Primus, Lake Providence: "I have just closed a protracted meeting; 11 added to the church and 3 converts; one backslider reclaimed. The church prospers spiritually."

The second quarter's love-feast for Wesley Chapel took place on Wednesday night, 3d inst. About 500 attended. One hour was spent in telling the story of the cross, after which the bread and the water were passed. It is spoken of as a glorious time.

W. Carr, New Iberia and Thomson: "On the first the wonderful storm threw down both of our churches. It blew down four churches in New Iberia and at Jeanuerette. The loss of crops, houses and fences in this parish cannot be less than $300,000. Five persons were killed, and most all sugar houses are down. Dear Elder, (Rev. Emperor Williams,) please use your influence with the brethren, and try to raise something to assist us. I want to put up the church here as soon as possible, and am doing all I can to raise money."

Holly Springs Circuit.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., Sept. 3, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—At Zion Hill Church of my charge, Aug. 23, the first sermon of my protracted meeting was preached by Rev. Wm. Payne, to a large congregation. On Sunday morning we had prayer meeting from 9 to 11 o'clock, in which the spirit of God was largely manifested. From Saturday night, Aug. 23, to Sunday, Aug. 24, ten souls were made happy in the knowledge of having found peace with God. The church labored faithfully for the conversion of those under the heavy load of sin, and is still laboring and asks the aid of prayers, that the Lord may give us great success in our work. Though we have not done as much as many other churches, yet we are made to rejoice when contemplating the value of one soul in the presence of God and His angels.

As we are so far from Holly Springs, (about 20 miles,) many of the brethren that would have helped me could not come. On Sunday, Aug. 31, the doors of the church were opened, which resulted in the annexation of 9 to our number, so we feel more encouraged to overcome sin. Brothers Pope and Cyrus Brown took an active part in the meeting, and used their best efforts. Each Sabbath the children are called together in school, where they are taught the will of the Lord. Aug. 9 the Sabbath-school had an exhibition in which the scholars showed much training on the part of their superintendent and teachers. Bro Benj. Barker, a young man of our church, is superintendent, and I believe the young man loves his office, and does all in his power to benefit the school.

Letter from Greenwood.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Sept. 2, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I have thought that it might have some good effect to have you publish a short sketch of the tragedy that took place here on the 29th. Henry Martin, a colored boy 18 years of age, was hung between one and two o'clock, for committing a rape on a child three or four years old. Those who knew the young boy from childhood stated that he never had good sense, and on that ground there was a petition gotten up signed by 140 names, among them a majority of the most prominent men, lawyers and doctors, and Judge Wm. Cothren, who passed the sentence, asking the Governor to commute the sentence from death to imprisonment for life, but he refused to comply. The prisoner was brought forth in the presence of not less than 2000 people, and expressed his faith in the Lord Jesus with calmness. I performed the last duty that I could, commended him to the Lord and he died without a struggle.

J. W. DUNN.

Kansas.

MR. EDITOR—This Kansas Methodist Freedmen's Mission work is calling for more missionaries to do work in these new grounds. It might do well to make a few statements as to the kind of men we need here.

1. They must be converted Christians.

2. They must be self-sacrificing men, because the case demands it. The people are poor and are not prepared to contribute any money in support of the ministry. Consequently, the ministers sometimes will necessarily have to do a good deal of walking to their appointments; also live on small means for a while at least, till the people get a start in living here. They will come not to be benefited alone but to benefit others by teaching and preaching and leading them, to do business.

3. We want men who love their race. The majority of our people have been badly treated in their previous condition, and it has been but a short time since their emancipation, and as a consequence they are still in a pitiable condition, morally, mentally and materially. Now then, if the ministers have a good deal of love for them they can easily adapt themselves to suit the circumstances. Some of our people are not very well informed, even in the simplest rudiments of life. Therefore they must have men who will condescend to them into their humblest condition, that they may ascend to the highest and noblest calling in human society. The teachers and leaders of our people must have enough of that love and pride for their race to constrain them to labor hard for their elevation, let it cost what it will.

4. We want men who have some education. They must know about the Bible and the discipline of the church.

5. We want men who have experience, which is the better part of education, after all. We want men who would not undertake to govern their churches with a whip, but rather govern it with the spirit of love and of kindness, both preaching to the people, and teaching them what is right in the sight of God and man.

6. We want men that are married if possible. We do not mean to say that we want none but those that are married, but we do think if ministers are married when they enter upon their work of the ministry, they could accomplish more good in saving souls, and also make better impressions upon the public mind and be less criticised by an evil eye of the un-charitable. In the Methodist family the M. E. Church, the mother of all, must be the model church in the moral, mental, social and material reformation of our people through all this country, for we have able men at the head of affairs all through our communion who are working for the improvement of the whole world, white and colored, rich and poor. Now then as the fall conferences in the South are fast approaching, it may not be out of place for us to say we want several men with the characteristics as have been above described. We believe that there are men in each Southern State that would do good service in this missionary work. Don't forget what I have already said; it takes none but missionaries to succeed here. Indeed we need both men and money to carry forward this work with. We do not know where the money is coming from, nor how much we can get, to support the mission that Kansas is calling for; and as the missionaries will not come seeking money, but rather seeking to save that which was lost, let the hereafter take care of itself. We shall trust in the Lord and do good, and we shall be fed. If there be any who can trust in the Lord as to the consequences of what shall be, by being in obedience to the call, they may address me at Topeka, Kansas.

Letter from Franklin.

FRANKLIN, La., Sept. 4, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—I have entered upon the arduous labors of the pastorate of the Franklin circuit. I found the church in this place considerably scattered owing to the seeds of discord which were sown among the members. However, I have succeeded, by divine assistance, in gathering the members together, and we are moving on nicely. I have an efficient Board of Leaders and Stewards who are always ready to comply faithfully with their duty. Hon. W. B. Smith and Rev. A. J. Ford are a blessing to the Board, both of whom know and love the discipline. Both are stewards. Bro. Smith is the popular Representative of this parish, a good Christian, a good citizen, and well beloved by both white and colored. Bro. Ford is an intelligent local preacher who expects to apply to the ensuing annual Conference for admission into the traveling connection. Our annual Conference has few brighter young preachers than Bro. Ford.

The church at Centerville, five miles below here, is a blessing to the M. E. Church. Under the leadership of Rev. Armstead Osborne, a local preacher residing there, it did not stop fighting, and praying, and working for the Master's cause, and raising money to pay their property out of debt. When I visited that church I felt myself happy to meet the pleasant faces of the officers and members. The intelligent appearance of the sisters there is sufficient to make any minister happy. A church will prosper best under one who understands government and discipline; the prosperity of the Centerville church during the absence of a regular appointed pastor under the leadership or control of Rev. Armstead Osborne, points to him as one born and called to rule well the Lord's house. The terrible storm which swept over the land on the 1st inst., and stamped this portion of the country with the displeasure of Providence, did us comparatively a small amount of damage. Our personage was rendered totally unfit for use—is down, and the probable cost to rebuild is $100. The belfry of the church is left a mere frame, the bell being exposed, and three windows remain to be replaced. The probable amount of damages sustained by the church here is $200. Centerville church was set off its foundation blocks on the ground, with hardly enough damages to speak of. I wish to mention the destruction of our sister churches here, but time and space will not allow. I have caused the Sabbath-school here to be reopened and put to work. It promises to be lively. The punctual attendance of Miss Lucy Miller and other lady teachers, indicates prosperity. Rev. A. J. Ford is superintendent. The Sabbath-school at Centerville has never closed. It is in a prosperous condition. Pray for us. Fraternally,

The Storm on the Teche.

LATECHE, La., Sept. 3, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—About four o'clock Monday morning last the wind began to blow furiously from the North-east, and all indications of a storm were obvious. The wind continued to rise and about eight o'clock the horrors of a terrible storm were upon us, hurling fences into the air, twisting and turning huge live oaks up by the roots, blowing down houses, barns and other buildings, scattering lumber in all directions and in a frightful manner. The storm continued to rage until six o'clock in the evening. It is impossible, at present, to make any estimate of the loss of property, etc. The Orphans' Home building was entirely destroyed. The colored people of the plantation gathered in crowds to the asylum for refuge, but the storm raged so terribly that they were obliged to seek shelter in a small brick building situated near the public road. A few minutes later the large building was a heap of ruins. No lives were lost. Two or three men were slightly injured. Almost all the plantation quarters were laid in waste and ruin. The warehouse, sugarhouse and school house were also wrecked. The store of C. J. Roberts & Co. was entirely destroyed. On the Baldwin plantation one sugar mill and several cabins were destroyed and almost all the fences were blown down. The roof of the Thompson University building was almost all blown off, and great trees in the surrounding grove were torn up by the roots. The whole town of Charenton was wrecked. A great many houses were destroyed in Franklin and contiguous villages. People who have lived in this portion of the State for many years say that they have never before witnessed such a storm. It is estimated that two-thirds of the buildings in St. Mary parish were demolished. The latest news is that several persons were killed on the Cypremort prairie and that not a single sugar-house remains standing. The Cypremort prairie lies directly west of here and is a district of country about ten miles square. The weather since the storm has been remarkably fine, affording a grand opportunity for repairing buildings, fences, etc.

Letter from New Hope, Miss., Circuit.

DEAR EDITOR—In the SOUTHWESTERN I see letters from preachers from most every part of the Southwest, and I think it no more than right that I too let you know how I succeed on my circuit, and I wish you would give this a place in your paper.

I have here, on New Hope Circuit, three appointments — New Hope, New Salem and St. Morris. To-day I finished my last protracted meeting and it took me nearly seven weeks to get through with them all. Our Lord blessed us in our efforts, and has been with us during the whole year. We gained 20 converts and 85 probationers on the circuit; baptized 8 adults and 9 children up to date. Our presiding elder was with us on the 19th and 20th, and preached two splendid sermons to us, after which he administered the sacrament to about 120 people. He is greatly beloved by our people, saints and sinners, and many came from distant places to see him and hear him preach. We have three Sunday-schools with an average attendance of 170 scholars and 16 teachers. All the schools are organized into missionary societies, and are in fine condition. At the last examination at New Hope about 250 Bible verses were recited, of which Willis Redrick recited 30, Henry Harvill 25, Mahala Harvill, a little girl of 9 years, 27; Martha Gains 25, and several others 19 and 20. About the other schools I will report in the next letter.

The SOUTHWESTERN is very popular among our people, and those articles about Kansas are read with relish; but still I do not hear many talking about going there.

Letter from Elder Carper.

DEAR EDITOR—As I've been silent a long time in regard to my work, I shall now take this opportunity of saying something. In going round my circuit I observed some things which so inspired me that I must let the brethren know what they were. This is my third round. I find that the work is steadily moving onward. Had much success at all my points, especially at Columbus circuit, on Bro. Granville Norman's work. There I saw prominently existing among the class-leaders, stewards and local preachers that brotherly love and unity which Christ, the Head of the church, spoke of and urged when he was upon earth. I must say that I never before in a quarterly conference felt the power of God manifested so powerfully among a band of brethren as there at Ashbury Chapel. I asked the reason of their unitedness. They said that "our dear pastor had taught us continually to love one another—showed us the power of unitedness." They all were with one accord. On Sabbath day we administered the Lord's Supper to 84 members. We returned at 3 o'clock to Columbus, and administered the Lord's Supper to 142. The Lord was with me in all my work, and some good was done. I shall write you again soon. Yours in Christ,

Letter from Hearne.

HEARNE, Texas, August 27, 1879.

MR. EDITOR—My camp meeting commenced Aug. 1, and continued eighteen days. We had 11 conversions, 34 added to the church, and 6 baptized during the meeting. Our little church here numbered 45 and has now 84 members to show the year's work. One of our local preachers was a Joshua with me in the camp meeting; James Dalton, is a young man and a Christian who will be a champion in days to come.

Rev. J. W. Robinson, pastor of Calvert church, came to my assistance, and did wonderful good. A great many white friends visited us; among them some members of the M. E. Church South, who understood camp meetings and loved Methodism. I thank God we do not forget to love each other. Dr. Morrow, a grand man, has given to our church a lot and a burying ground for all of our people. He participated with us, as did also another white brother, a Methodist steward, about 65 or 70 years old. He won our affections by praying and talking to us.

A sad thing happened to a young man who was converted during our meeting. He professed religion on one day, and the next day was killed by damp air while digging a well. A white man went down to get him out, and the damp air struck and killed him too. It created a deep sympathy among us.

Foreign Missions.

JAPAN.—Superintendent Maclay reports July 14: "Our annual meeting closed July 8. The proceedings were harmonious, and the reports from the charges cheering. Members in full connection, 438; probationers, 170; children baptized, 55; total, 663. Amount raised during the year for the support of native church, $445.56, making a little over one dollar for each member in full connection. Our Missionary Training School building is now nearly finished, and we await the arrival of Bro. Vail to take charge of the school. He is on his way now. We hope to commence the school in September or early in October."

BURMAH.—The importance of the new church organization recently made in Rangoon by Dr. Thoburn will the more clearly appear from the following note which we now take from the Lucknow Witness: "It is a notable fact that in the year 1877-78 the foreign trade of Rangoon surpassed that of Madras for the first time in the annals of Indian statistics. Some allowance, of course, must be made for the depression caused in Madras by the famine, but there still remains the certainty that Rangoon, one of the most rising places of the East, is altogether outstripping Madras in commercial importance. Perhaps the completion of Madras harbor—at some unknown and distant date—may give a feeble stimulus to the expiring trade of the presidency town, but the benefit would not be last[illegible]. The Execution of Taylor Ake, Aug. 22, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR.—Learning of the approaching fate of the subject of this sketch through Mr. W. H. Holland, who asked Elder S. Gates and myself to call upon him in the prison, we did so. We had been informed that no one could get any satisfaction from him, and that he treated ministers with contempt. We did not find this to be true. Why this and many other things were charged against the doomed culprit appears intended to magnify his crime, and justify those who rendered his verdict. On our arrival we were granted admission by jailor Nichols, who spoke very friendly, saying he was glad we came to advise the prisoner concerning eternity, of which he appeared to have but little thought, and had refused to allow any one to do. The prisoner appeared to be not over 16 years old. On hearing our mission, he seemed glad to see us, and have us talk with him about the love of God, and the saving power of Jesus; said he wanted us to pray for him, but not there, giving as a reason that we would be annoyed by the other prisoners. This seemed to be the whole ground of his objection to public prayer being offered. However, we persuaded him so that it moved his companions to tears; the noise was great, but he consented to have us sing and pray for him. We sang "Did Christ over Sinners Weep," which provoked some vociferous amens from some of the cells. Elder Gates lead in prayer, calling upon me in time before service ended. We could not hear any amens, but some low sobs and groans. After this we were requested to come again by the prisoner and other inmates. Undoubtedly the visit had a good effect.

We were shown around in the prison, which had every appearance but that of cleanliness; the flies swarmed like bees, and the bugs were like those of a bee-hive. The sheriff invited us to call again on Friday. In the morning at 10 a. m., we found Taylor Ake, having a letter written to one of the white family to whom his parents belonged, and who partly raised him. This over, some time was spent in dressing. On being admitted, the doomed man looked very cheerful and glad to see us. He was permitted to remain in the open space, where the following conversation ensued:

"How are you this morning, Mr. Ake?"

"O, fine; very well. How do you do?"

"We are all well, and have come to pay the last visit. How do you feel toward God; are you prepared to die?"

"I am willing to die. I have made my peace with God."

"How long have you felt the change of which you speak?"

"Three days ago. I am not guilty of the crime for which I am to die. This I have kept secret from everybody before now."

"Why did you keep it hid from those who asked you about it?"

"That I cannot tell you, or any living man. I know I am prepared to meet God in peace."

"Would you like to have us sing and pray with you this morning?"

"Yes, I would like it, but not in here."

"Where would you like to have us do so for you?"

"On the scaffold."

We promised to meet him there, telling him to stand firm in his belief, and trust in God.

"Well, I will" (with a smile).

AT THE GALLOWS.

"Well, Mr. Ake, we are here."

"Yes, I see you are. I am glad to see you."

"I am feeling all right."

September 14, 1879.—THE CHRISTIAN IN THE WORLD.

SCRIPTURE.—1 Tim. 6: 6-16.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world."—John 17: 16.

TOPIC.—Living as a Man of God.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

The Connection.—The two Epistles to Timothy are pastoral letters that set forth the qualifications and duties of a "bishop," or pastor, with relation to his work in the church. With verse 3 of our chapter the apostle passes from speaking of the duties of servants to warnings with regard to false teachers. In a few words he portrays the characteristics of a teacher of this sort. 1. He is one who teaches "otherwise"—otherwise than he had been instructing Timothy with relation to the bondmen. 2. Who consents not "to wholesome words, even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ." 3. "He is proud, knowing nothing." 4. "Doting (literally, sick) about questions and strifes of words, wherefore cometh envy, strife, railings evil surmisings, per verse disputings." etc. 5. "Corrupt minds, and destitute of the truth, supposing that gain is godliness"—or, rather, "that piety is a means of gain." That is the background for the teachings in our lesson, and that gives special force to the declaration, "But godliness with contentment is a great gain."

A Great Gain (6-8)—The idea designed to be conveyed is, that though false teachers may err in supposing that piety is a means of gain, still there is a sense in which it is true. United with "contentment" it is a gain, and a great gain. But that is not the sort of gain that is coveted by a mercenary disposition. That desires worldly profit, while this is spiritual. The contentment that here is meant is not indifference to the means of life, but a grateful acceptance of whatever God is pleased to furnish. Why is godliness with contentment a great gain? Because it is a great gain to be rid of a disquiet spirit. That is a torture to a man which no outward circumstances can allay. Neither wealth, nor place, nor position, can stop its querulous demands. It is ever wanting—never satisfied. It is a great gain because it is an assurance that he has a part in the life to come. He has no occasion to look upon the future with dread. It is a great gain, also, because it denotes a soul at peace with its Maker. There is no more rebellion, no inward conflict, no denial of the right of God to rule in the soul. The apostle gives several reasons for contentment. 1. "For we have brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can carry nothing out." "And having food and raiment, let us therewith be content."

A Great Evil (9, 10).—The apostle gives his third reason. "But they that will be rich fall into temptation, and a snare." "For the love of money is the root of all evil." Paul does not say that money itself is the root of all evil, but the love of it. Money has its legitimate uses—is a public necessity. It becomes an evil only as it is made an idol. Envy, jealousy, rage, murder—the whole of the evil passions of man is brought out by this master spirit.

A Good Fight (11-16).—Paul addresses some words to Timothy, his "beloved son," whom he calls, after the title given to the prophets, a "man of God." By this it is probable that he refers to his official position before the church. 1. "Flee these things"—the love of money with all its attendant evils and lusts. 2. "Follow after righteousness," etc. 3. "Fight the good fight of faith." 4. "Lay hold on eternal life." The remaining verses are a psalm of praise. The epistle closes with a few words concerning the rich. The mind of the apostle again reverted to them in connection with what he had said in regard to the danger of the love of money. 1 He commanded Timothy to charge them that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God. In this he touched upon their greatest dangers. 2. That they do good with their riches, distributing to the neccessities of others, thus laying up a store for them selves in the time to come. And in this he pointed out the true use of wealth. "Even as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

There is a bill in the Georgia Legislature to accept the tender of the Lucy Cobb Institute, and to establish a State female college as a branch of the State University. It is proposed that the State shall donate eight thousand dollars annually to the institution, which is to educate free as many young ladies of Georgia as there are representatives in the lower house of the General Assembly, the Representatives to nominate the pupils.

In Memorium.

Emma R. Garrett died at Port Gibson, Miss., Monday, September 2, at 7 a. m., aged nineteen years and six months. "In the midst of life we are in death." How sadly and touchingly has this solemn truth been verified in the death of this young woman. A little more than two months ago she stood in her father's house a happy, beauteous bride, full of the vigor of life and health, just starting out in life with prospects bright. Loved by all who knew her, hated by none, she is now cut off from all the bright dreams of life, asleep in the sleep that knows no waking—laid peacefully away in the silent grave. She had a presentiment of her early death, and on the morning after her wedding told her husband her thoughts. She went to live with her husband at Canton, Miss., where, by her genial nature, she won many warm friends, and admirers. Always a Sunday-school worker, she there threw her whole soul into the good work and contributed much toward building up the school. After remaining in Canton nearly seven weeks, she expressed an earnest desire to visit her parents at Alcorn University. The quarantine not allowing them to come by boat, they started in a buggy a distance of a hundred miles. The fatigue of the journey overcame her, and they could only reach the house of a friend, Mr. Bradford, at Port Gibson, where, after lingering a short time, she died. A messenger was immediately sent to her venerable father, the Rev. Hiram R. Revels, president of Alcorn University. He at once started, but was taken ill about a mile from his home, and compelled to turn back without seeing his daughter. He was prostrated in his bed from which he could not arise to be present at the solemn services. Father, mother, sisters were absent, but a devoted husband and kind and loving friends stood by to smooth her dying pillow. Just two months to a day from the time her husband took her away a bride, he brought her back a corpse. Her eldest sister, Miss Lillie Revels, had just gone to Natchez on a visit, when the sad tidings flashed over the wires that her dearly beloved sister was no more. By almost superhuman effort, she reached home to witness the last of her sister. The funeral services took place in the chapel, the Rev. Shaw, (white,) of Fayette, officiating. His remarks were very touching. The deceased was highly esteemed by all the surrounding people, always striving to promote the happiness of others by her gentle, loving and affectionate disposition. The large concourse of people showed how extensively her loss was felt. Her grave is near that of the late Prof. Vasson. At the grave the minister repeated a part of that hymn so dear to every true Christian's heart:

"Asleep in Jesus; blessed sleep,
From which none ever woke to weep."

To her it is a blessed sleep, for she was an active Christian for over five years, ever having her lamp trimmed and burning. In the silent tomb we have laid her, but we remember in you bright heaven her soul has gone, and she is free from the cares and sorrows of this fleeting world. She is at rest in heaven, "where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest."

Starving to Death.

Thousands of men and women are starving themselves to death. They dare not drink this or that, fearing it will increase their flesh. Life depends upon continuous self-denial. The only safe and reliable remedy for this terrible condition is Allan's Anti-Fat. It is wholly vegetable and perfectly harmless. Its use insures a reduction of from two to five pounds a week. Sold by druggists.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18, 1878.

To the Prop'rs of Allan's Anti-Fat:

Gentlemen—The following report is from the lady who used Allan's Anti-Fat: "It (the Anti-Fat) had the desired effect, reducing the fat from two to five pounds a week, until I had lost twenty-five pounds. I hope never to regain what I have lost."

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit.

Most gratefully yours,

Ecclesiastical Law —AND— Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

— BY —

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 311 Pages.

Cloth, $2; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

The Spider and the Butterfly.

The spider was full of business; he darted this way and that, fastening his thread now to this leaf, then to that flower, crossing it at regular distances with wonderful care; he did not stop to rest, for Mistress Spider was hungry, and there was no dinner for her as yet; so [illegible] and round, up and down, till at last the web was finished [illegible] to watch, with all his eight eyes, for the approach of some thoughtless [illegible]. The minister and his little daughter passed that way, and seated themselves on the bank [illegible] the spider.

"Oh, papa, I wonder if he will catch anything?" whispered the child.

She was not long kept in doubt, for at that moment a white butterfly was seen dipping his long proboscis into the depths of a flower, then floating in the sunlight till he came to another, every time getting nearer and nearer to the web and the watchful spider. The beautiful creature did not dream of danger as [illegible] with a companion, or [illegible] its delicate wings for an instant's rest on some blossom. [illegible] again it flitted nearer and [illegible], happy in its ignorance of [illegible] snare, for the web was [illegible] that only in one light [illegible] its delicate threads be seen. [illegible] was growing on the [illegible] of the web, and the butterfly [illegible] straight towards it, [illegible] honey there [illegible] in its painted cup; but, [illegible] very moment its [illegible] wings were entangled in [illegible] trap, and the spider, [illegible] from its hiding-place, [illegible] its victim. The butterfly [illegible], but it was in vain; [illegible]

"My Mother's Been Praying."

In February, 1861, a terrible gale raged along the coast of England. In one bay, Hartlepool, it wrecked eighty-one vessels. While the storm was at its height, the Rising Sun, a stout brig, struck on Longreach Rock, a reef extending a mile from one side of the bay. She sunk, leaving only her two top masts above the foaming waves.

The lifeboats were away, rescuing wrecked crews. The only means of saving the men, clinging to the swaying masts, was the rocket apparatus. Before it could be adjusted, one mast fell. Just as the rocket, bearing the life-line, went booming out of the mortar, the other mast toppled over.

Sadly the rock men began to draw in their line, when, suddenly, they felt that something was attached to it, and in a few minutes hauled on to the beach the apparently lifeless body of a sailor-boy. Trained and tender hands worked, and in a short time he became conscious. With wild amazement he gazed around on the crowd of kind and sympathizing friends. They raised him to his feet. He looked up into the weather-beaten face of of the old fisherman near him and asked:

"Where am I?"
"Thou art here, my lad."
"Where's the cap'n?"
"Drowned, my lad."
"The mate, then?"
"He's drowned, too."
"The crew?"
"They are all lost, my lad; thou art the only one saved."

The boy stood, overwhelmed, for a few moments; then he raised both his hands and cried in a loud voice:

"My mother's been praying for me! My mother's been praying for me!"

And then he dropped on his knees on the wet sand, and hid his sobbing face in his hands.

Hundreds heard that day this tribute to a mother's love, and to God's faithfulness in listening to a mothers prayer.

The little fellow was taken to a house near by, and in a few days he was sent home to his mother's cottage in Northumberland.—Sunday Magazine.

"I wonder how the world will get along without me, when I'm gone?" said a conceited man. "Well," responded a friend, "I'll tell you how you can get an idea of it. You just go and stick the point of a needle in the ocean and then withdraw it, and see how much it's been mis-ed!"

Lost Friends.

We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire about my mother whom I left in Monroe county, Georgia. I was brought to Texas by John Slack when but five years old and mother was sold to John Panil. I had one sister, Caroline. Mother's name was Eliza Slack. She had one sister and one brother, Mary and Henry Slack, who were brought to Texas at the same time and by the same man that I was. Any information will be gladly received. Address me at Columbus, Colorado Co., Texas, in care of Rev. George W. Smith. JOHN BENJAMIN SLACK.

Cured of Drinking.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor, that had so prostrated him that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor, made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. PREVENT Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 33 13t

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair,

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, having acquired a world-wide reputation in the treatment of Chronic Diseases, resulting in a professional business far exceeding his individual ability to conduct, some years ago induced several medical gentlemen to associate themselves with him, as the Faculty of the World's Dispensary, the Consulting Department of which has since been merged with the INVALIDS' HOTEL. The organization has been completed and incorporated under the name and style of World's Dispensary Medical Association, with the following officers:
Hon. R. V. PIERCE, Pres. F. D. PIERCE, V. Pres.

NINE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS of eminence and skill have been chosen as the Faculty.
CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms come within the province of our several specialties.
LUNG DISEASES.—This division of practice is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases treated with the most successful results.
DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are our facilities of a superior order for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females.
NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), Neuralgia, and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty.
NOT NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.—By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases as successfully without as with a personal consultation. For particulars see "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" (1000 pages, sent post-paid for $1.50) or "Invalids' and Tourists' Guide Book" (100 pages, 10 cents post-paid).

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

WHAT MAKES A WOMAN.

Not costly dress nor queenly air;
Not jeweled hand, complexion fair;
Not graceful form, nor lofty tread.
Nor paint, nor curls, nor splendid head;
Not pearly teeth, nor sparkling eyes,
Not voice that nightingale outvies;
Not breath as sweet as eglantine,
Not gaudy gems nor fabrics fine;
Not all the stores of fashion's mart,
Nor yet the blandishments of art;
Not one, or all of these combined,
Can make one woman true, refined.

'Tis not the casket that we prize,
But that which in the casket lies.
These outward charms that please the sight,
Are naught unless the heart be right.
She, to fulfill her destined end.
Must with her beauty goodness blend;
Must make it her incessant care
To deck herself with jewels rare;
Of priceless gems must be possessed,
In robes of richest beauty dressed;
Yet these must clothe the inward mind,
In purity the most refined.

She who doth all these goods combine,
Can man's rough nature well refine;
Hath all she needs in this frail life
To fit for mother, sister, wife.
Contentment dwells within her mind,
And peace doth there a lodgment find;
He who possesses such a friend,
Should cherish well till death doth end.
Woman, to fine, the mate should be,
To sail with man o'er life's rough sea;
And when the stormy cruise is o'er,
Attend him to fair Canaan's shore.

Dr. Newman's Experience.

It was exceedingly refreshing to hear the testimony of Rev. J. P. Newman a few weeks ago in the New York Preachers' Meeting, on the subject of full salvation. The first Monday in every month is devoted to reports from the Churches and religious worship. It was on such an occasion that Dr. Newman promptly stepped forward and stated his conviction in relation to holiness, and his interest, and that of his congregation, in the blessed experience. His first remark was personal to himself, and was substantially as follows: It is my belief that I ought to use the best means and earnest efforts to advance the spirituality of my Church. Accordingly I entered upon my work this winter by going to my study and seeking a personal anointing of the Holy Ghost. And now I would not thank any man to cast doubt upon the doctrine, or upon my experience. I mean sanctification as a distinct work subsequent to, and perfective of, regeneration. I, secondly, went into my pulpit and preached this doctrine to the congregation, and inculcated this high attainment upon my people. Two results have followed. First: a great increase of spiritual power. There are men in my Church as deeply experienced in the things of God, and women as definite in their testimony to the attainment of full salvation, as ever Hester Ann Rogers was. Second: a revival influence prevails in my Church. Souls are being converted to God. It is my conviction that the great need of the Church is the plain practical enforcement of the obligation of personal holiness from an experimental standpoint, after the example of our Fathers, and according to the gospel standard. The effect of the speech was most happy and hallowing. It seems to command universal assent, and to beget holy aspirations. Immediately a verse of "Whiter than snow" was sung, when another minister offered a fervent prayer, interspersed with feeling ascriptions of praise that the Lord is moving our chief ministers to lead off in the advocacy of holiness. —Divine Life.

The Belt of Danger.

We refer to a belt of States extending along the Atlantic coast and the Gulf of Mexico, from the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay to the mouth of the Rio Grande, and lying south of the 37th degree of north latitude. We call it The Belt of Danger, because it has disturbed the public peace and endangered both the morals and liberties of the whole country for the last two generations, and because it contains the germs of a disease far more to be dreaded than the yellow fever.

THREE CLASSES.

The people are divided into three classes: 1. Poor whites, 8,000,000. (This includes the Border, which lends to the South morals, intelligence, and respectability, and receives from the South ideas and leadership in national affairs.) 2. Colored people, 4,500,000. 3. Aristocrats, 500,000. The people in the first class (the poor whites) are dangerous because they are ignorant. Those in the second class (the colored people) are dangerous because they are helpless, and can do nothing but increase unjustly the power of their oppressors. The people in the third class are dangerous because they are disloyal to universal freedom, and are devoted to unchristian and despotic ideas. Glance at each of these classes.

We do no one injustice when we say that the ignorance of the "white trash" is notorious. Compare them with the great mass of working people in the North, and the conclusion is inevitable.

It is only necessary to add that in the North only eight per cent. of the population over ten years of age are unable to read, while in the South forty-two per cent. of the same class are illiterate. If we find it so difficult to handle eight per cent., what difficulties confront Southern statesmen who seek universal freedom!

NATURAL FRUITS OF IGNORANCE

The natural fruits of this ignorance appear in the cruelties and barbarities practiced by these ignorant masses under the leadership of the perverted and too often perverse managers and politicians of that belt. We will not recite the catalogue of crimes that have by contrast made even the North seem like "God's country."

CHARACTER OF MATERIALS TO BE USED AND SAVED.

We will let some of the great men of the South speak on the character of many of the people whom we must teach and evangelize in this Belt of Danger.

The Hon. Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, was employed by the Ku-klux of South Carolina to defend their brethren in bonds. After listening to the evidence, he was constrained to say:

I have listened with horror to some of the testimony which has been brought before you. The outrages proved have been shocking to humanity; they admit neither of justification nor excuse; they violate every obligation which law and nature impose upon men. These men appear to have been alike insensible to the obligations of humanity and religion.

If this case is severely put by Reverdy Johnson, it is because the case of his clients will bear no better putting.

It ought not to be considered unfair to call the Hon. Judge Bond, of Baltimore, to speak concerning the character of these people. It is long experience in crime and cruelty that has made these ignorant multitudes so dangerous to the cause of human rights in America.

After Judge Bond had listened to the statements of the prisoners, he addressed them as follows:

You have pleaded guilty to an indictment which charges you. . .

We acknowledge great perplexity in determining what punishment shall be meted out to you. We have no words strong enough to signify our horror at the means employed. . . .

You have, as it appears from your statements to the court, been brought up in the most deplorable ignorance. At the age of manhood but one or two of you can either read or write, and you have lived in a community where the evidence seems to establish the fact that the men of prominence and education — those who by their superiority in these respects establish and control public opinion—were for the most part participants in the conspiracy, or so much in terror of it, that you could obtain from them neither protection nor advice had you sought it.

But what is quite as appalling to the court as the horrible nature of these offenses is the utter absence on your part, and on the part of others who have made confession here, of any sense of feeling that you have done anything very wrong.

Some of your comrades recite the circumstances of a brutal, unprovoked murder, done by themselves, with as little apparent abhorrence as they would relate the incidents of a picnic, and you yourselves speak of the number of blows with a hickory which you inflicted at midnight upon the lacerated, bleeding back of a defenseless woman without so much as a blush or sigh of regret. None of you seem to have the slightest idea of, or respect for, the sacredness of the human person. Some of you have yourselves been beaten by the Klans without feeling a smart but the physical pain. There appears to be no wounding of the spirit, no such sense of injury to yourself as a man as would be felt by the humblest of your fellow-citizens in any other part of the United States with which I am acquainted. . . .

It is impossible to contemplate the characters thus presented and multiplied by millions, and not tremble before this Belt of Danger.

This threatening character is further confirmed by the testimony of General Toombs given on the floor of the late convention that framed the present Constitution of Georgia, which paralyzed the school system of the State, and so effectually barred the way of the colored people. Toombs exerted more molding influence in that convention than any ten other men. He explained how colored people are treated and robbed of their rights.

The truth is, sir, we know how they are governed. It is by force. They [men opposed to his view in the convention] govern by force and fraud, as long as they try to withhold these people from their rights. And now, how are they to be governed? They are to be governed as every race of paupers is governed, by those who own the property and give them bread. . . No inferior man, no man without civilization, has a chance in this race. . . . As his friends tried to govern him by force and fraud, we will control him by force and fraud to prevent him from bringing ruin to us.

So deep and all-pervasive is this spirit that Ben Hill, a United States Senator, feels called upon to denounce Dr. Fuller for making a temperate condemnation of the Southern civilization. Dr. Fuller is the editor of our Atlanta Methodist Advocate, and one of our ablest and best preachers. Hill denounced him and his calling "as far worse than that of a highway robber, and much less manly and truthful." Surely, great masses of ignorance in the service of such leaders as Hill promise no good!

THE DANGEROUS MINORITY.

The third class (the old rulers) are dangerous on account of their power over the ignorant, and their convictions against human rights and manhood government. They have never legislated for the poor, but for the rich.

They have planned and worked for a class—"the landed aristocracy, embracing comparatively few of her people"—but they have been entirely indifferent to the interests of the masses. "The rich man's war, but the poor man's fight." But they forced the poor into the army, and allowed the rich man, who had fifteen slaves, to remain at home. The established no free schools to educate the people, but they appropriated large sums of money to establish and endow colleges, where the children of the rich could be educated. They have exempted the property of the rich from taxation, but have taxed even the pots and kettles in the cabins of the poor. They are responsible for the ignorance that exists in the South, and they are responsible for the condition of this section.—Southern Advocate and Georgia Republican.

WAR OF IDEAS.

It is a war of ideas. The North is commissioned to promulgate the ideas of the equality and brotherhood of man. The South does not accept these convictions. The tussle of these ideas is going on in this Belt of Danger. We must see to it that the cause of God, which never forgets the poor or the oppressed man, does not fail by our slowness or cowardice.

This is not a question of politics, but of religion. It has been driven out of the South so far as it touches politics. It is now reduced to a simple question of saving the South, just as any other semi-civilized people are saved. The New Testament and the spelling-book must be used to do do that for which bayonets could only prepare the way.

OUR WHITE WORK.

Much of this work is to be done among the whites—among those whom slavery degraded in degrading labor. This work can never be done solely through the colored people. The whites must be reached. Eight millions of these need only light to make them the natural defenders of human rights. They hear the preaching of the gospel gladly whenever it can be brought within their reach. Wherever Northern ideas have been explained to these people, they have shown good ground for the seed. Even in politics this is true. Colonel Bryant, of Atlanta, Ga., who ran for Congress in the First District of Georgia in 1874, and in 1876, reports:

I was able to organize and canvass but eight counties out of nineteen. The following was the result:

At the election in 1874, my vote in the eight counties organized and canvassed by me in 1876 was 2,375
In the same counties my vote in 1876 was 3,841
A gain of (61.7 per cent.) 1,466
The vote of Hartridge, my opponent, in the same counties in 1874 was 5,713
In 1876 his vote was 5,231
A loss of (8.4 per cent.) 482
A net gain for me of 1,948
In 1874 my vote in the eleven counties not organized and canvassed by me in 1876 was 4,339
My vote in the same counties in 1876 was 2,091

If the presentation of the evident interests of the South in the rude and usually-heated antagonisms of politics can produce such results, what may we not expect from a vigorous putting of the gospel in its applications to all men in all their relations to society. What we contend for must win its way. Putting aside the questions of slavery, of the preservation of the Union, and the citizenship of the negroes as settled, for the present at least, let us urge the protection of the life and rights of the citizen, universal education, encouragement to labor, the elevation of the masses, and the salvation of sinners—matters of vital importance—and that kingdom of darkness must come down.

ADVANCE ALONG THE LINE.

We are called upon to reinforce our work among the whites at least tenfold. We have blundered somewhat in the past in not giving more attention to this work. We do not expect to reach the old ruling class, but we can raise up a generation of native Southerners from the poor that will make the great ideas of purity and spirituality in the Church, and of human equality before the law and equal rights in the State, the dominant ideas of the South.

It will cost money and men. But it is like any other war, we must expect that. When one man falls put another in his place. We have gained every point we have moved upon from the beginning. Emancipation, citizenship, open field for Church work, the planting of our Church every-where, all these points are past. We have now to move upon the poor whites with our schools and pulpits. We can soon create natural protectors for the colored man in the right ideas of the white.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

The Colored Bishop Question.

DEAR EDITOR—A beg a space in the columns of your excellent paper to express a few thoughts relative to the subject of the election of a colored Bishop in the M. E. Church. As the General Conference approaches, the question is again agitated. I read an article in the Methodist Advocate of Atlanta, Ga., of the 3d inst., from the pen of one Hon. John W. Ramsey, a layman of the M. E. Church, which I think does the colored people great injustice. Respecting the election of Bishops in 1880, he says: "If race has anything to do with it, one of those elected ought to be a German—their language, learning, and influence seem to require it. But the German are a philosophic people, willing to labor and to wait." This we do not complain of, but would say that we think there ought to be a German elected to the Episcopal office. But he says, "Our colored people manifest a very different spirit with rare exception. * * They speak out in their assemblies, preachers' meetings up to their annual conferences, and their organ at New Orleans. They speak from impulse. They can't wait. They don't reason. They see no difficulties, and greatly exaggerate their number and importance." Why does the brother condemn us for speaking out in our assemblies? We are taught to ask. If we do not speak out in our assemblies, church organs, etc., how, in the name of all that is honest and fair, will the church know our wants? He says, "They can't wait, don't reason, see no difficulties." That is false. We can wait—we have waited. In 1872 we asked for a Bishop of African descent; also in 1876, and in May, 1880, with all the power and prayer there is in 200,000 members, and we intend to ask again. God, hear the prayers, and may a colored Bishop be elected! We have reasoned together. We know the difficulties of electing a colored man Bishop in the M. E. Church. The inborn race prejudice, not of the old M. E. Church as a whole, but such as Hon. John W. Ramsey, of Cleveland, Tenn., represent such spirits against colored people. The M. E. Church has done great things for the colored people, for which we are glad, but she don't think of stopping here; therefore the election of a colored Bishop will enable her to do more for a greater number. Without a doubt thousands who would have joined the M. E. Church before, would then come over. Our church is confronted everywhere in the South with the fact among the colored people that other churches have Bishops of African descent, though our number of membership in the M. E. Church is quite large; but we are not represented on the Episcopal Board, and there is not any chance ever to be, just because we are colored people. When this malicious argument is removed by the election of a Bishop of African descent in the M. E. Church, the colored people will flock to her fold by multiplied thousands; she will not only have the most loyal people of the South to the church and the National Government, but the most peaceable citizens in the world, and lovers of the meek and lowly Jesus.

Hon. J. W. R. also says: "Nothing short of an independent organization with plenty of their own Bishops and other officials will satisfy them." This is untrue. We have not asked for an "independent organization," we love the M. E. Church from principle, and want to stay in it. The most astounding part of Bro. R.'s letter is: "The negro shows by word and action that he feels his inferiority to the white race." This is untrue and unkind, and has the ring of an old slave-holder, and is the common talk of the Democrats of the South, who have ill-treated the poor colored people. It appears to me like Bro. R. wants to stir up more prejudice against us. The negro does not feel that he is inferior to the whites. This is one reason why they are speaking out in their assemblies, preachers' meetings, and annual conferences, and our beloved organ at New Orleans, the SOUTHWESTERN. They feel their equality with the white brother. Why not? Have they not made as rapid progress in civilization since the emancipation as most any other nation of people? While we are frank to admit that there are thousands who are yet poor, destitute and oppressed, and seeking homes in the North and West, where they may live peaceably from bull dozers, and vote to the dictate of their own conscience; yet there are many others who have educated themselves, others have succeeded amid poverty, K. K., and bulldozers, purchased and paid for thousands of acres of land, some as nice farms, plantations, houses and lots as the white race. Could the National Government protect the negro in his rights, guaranteed to them by the Constitution, so they would not be molested—vote as freemen safe from bulldozers; peace and harmony prevail with races in the South dealt justly, with land sold them at reasonable prices, it would not be long until the negro would own almost the entire plantations of the South. Bro. Ramsey says, "Passing over other difficulties, the inborn preferences of race will make a colored Bishop unacceptable to three-fourths of the annual conferences." This can hardly be the whole truth. The day that Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, presided over the Senate of the United States of America, with all the dignity of any other Senator, one-half of the nation, no doubt, rejoiced as much as if it had been Lamar, or Ben Hill, of Georgia. There are colored ministers who have lectured and preached to large assemblies in Boston and other Northern cities and in the South, to the edification of their audiences. Should the General Conference elect a colored Bishop, and should one of his appointments happen to be in New England, or some other Northern Conference, there is no doubt but that he would be admitted to preside and treated with due respect. Bro. Ramsey concludes by saying that, "The colored Bishop timber is evidently yet to be grown. * * * And it will be many long years before a General Conference puts a colored man in the hot blood of youth into the Episcopal office." We think that there are some among our number who have the age, learning and habits of thought and business that might be elected Bishop. Of course we will allow the General Conference to decide the question. We'll await its action, and abide by its decision.

True Education.

True education is one of the most ennobling acquirements of the human family. It recognizes the brotherhood of man; it promotes peace, happiness, and good-will to all men; it converts indolent and barbarous tribes into industrious, enterprising, literary, and God-fearing nations.

By education we understand the act or process of educating, the result of education in knowledge, skill, or discipline of character acquired; also the act of training by a prescribed or customary course of study or discipline.

Education proper is to draw forth, and implies not so much the communication of knowledge, as the discipline of the intellect, the establishment of the principles, and the regulation of the heart.

True education consists in having the proper care paid alike to the mental, moral and physical natures of the individual: in having fit instruction in regard to the relation one sustains to man, as man, and things; taught to abhor and turn from the numerous paths which lead into those seemingly beautiful Edens of vice, where thousands of noble, promising young people have been allured, and irretrievably wrecked.

Where true education exists in individuals, their hearts go out after humanity—the orphan, the homeless—and the most elevating of these charities is the going out after their immortal souls; he endeavors to throw a beam of light over their gloomy, hopeless, wretched, lost condition, and raise them.

It was the spirit of true education that led Latimer, Knox, Wesley, Martin Luther, and others equally eminent, to give the world a moral shaking.

In the family it is like the sun's rays chasing the darkness before it, soon radiating the whole. The youthful mind revolves around the mother and father, like the lesser planets around the sun; and all held in subjection by the gravitation of love and education. Each member of the family is enabled to enjoy the standard literary productions of men of all ages—prose or poetry—and to discriminate their faults and beauties.

It is in those homes where the Gospel has free course we are to look for the just education of the young; it is by the principles there generated we are to hope for the future greatness, or lament the future obliteration of our budding race. About such homes there is observed a cheerfulness; the perfume of the rose, jassamine, orange blossom and violet may be inhaled. The graceful drooping of the weeping willow and virgin lily, and the chirping of birds may be heard, all breathing out God's goodness to all things. There the soft, mellow tones of a well-tuned instrument may be heard, mingled with the voices of young and old, producing most delightful harmonies; and when the strains mount upon the wings of the zephyrs, a passer would almost imagine it the echo emerging from those heavenly choirs.

Enter a community where education is extinct; you behold the darkness of ignorance rather than the jeweled light of intelligence. The inhabitants present a dingy appearance; their apparel is uncleanly, while some are in tatters, and others completely savage. Let intelligence walk in; let him be installed; let him select his cabinet; and let it consist of the minister, and those immortal principles which are laid down in the sacred Word of our God, the teacher and lawyer; then you will see churches whose spires lift their fingers towards the habitation of our God in peaceful majesty. The rum hells deserted; churches being filled to their utmost capacity, the passion for war known and having its existence in the dark ages only, commerce takes a new spring, peace reigns supreme in the world.

The Hebrews, during their early history, were a powerful nation, with a religious turn of mind, and law-abiding people, to whom the world is in debt for their laws, and codes of morals. Why is it that during all the generations of mutation they have maintained their distinctiveness as a race? How is it that the rising and subverting of dynastics but scarcely affects them in any sense? Answer for yourselves.

Germany, which is largely intellectual, is largely infidel: France, during the reign of Louis XIV, accumulated so much wealth that her young men neglected education, lived in luxury, became effeminate and is now seething in deism.

England educates her young men physically, morally and intellectually, by which she is becoming a tower of strength in Europe, while in our own great, grand country, the young men of education are broad shouldered, liberal hearted, astute men.

You who have a thorough education are in possession of a jewel more glittering and more valuable than the regal diamond of France. It will lead you into the deep; into the beds of the rocky heights; among the fabrics of your own bodies; among the planetary systems; and beyond that into the beatific region where our blessed Lord waits to live with us through the eternal ages.

GEO. W. WELLS.

We can say, with justice, that the American common school of the last 250 years has saved the country to republican institutions. The New England pioneer alone attempted to educate the whole people before the Revolution, and the 250,000 soldiers of New England, the majority of the entire enrollment, carried the Colonies through the war. The fact is notorious that the Union was saved twenty years ago, by the States that have done best for intelligence of the whole people in the common school, and that the public character and policy of the reconstructing Nation is slowly being moulded by the same populations. All the forward-looking public issues that excite the loathing of the average politician, and make the heart of the Christian patriot beat faster, are issues of the thoughtful people who have been trained in the primitive American congress—the common school.—N. E. Journal of Education.

"What Must I Do To Be Saved?"

This cry of the jailer voices the desire of the whole race. For there is a universal consciousness of sin in the hearts of men. Even those who have not the law of God by which is the knowledge of sin, that is, a complete knowledge of its nature and consequences, are a law unto themselves,—have the moral law of God written in their hearts and consciences which accuse or else excuse them according as they obey or fail to obey that law. Moreover, all men are suffering from the malady of sin The world is full of misery. "The whole nation groweth and traveleth together in pain until now," on account of sin. And however great the ignorance of men of the revealed law of God, they always connect their miseries with what their consciences tell them is sin. Hence they are continually trying to do something to escape these miseries, and inquiring, "What must I do to be saved?"

What is true of heathen peoples, is equally true of Christendom, where the conscience is enlightened and well knows that sin, which is the cause of their sufferings, is the violation of the revealed law of God. Hence every form of religion under the sun attempts to answer this question of the jailer. But the only correct answer ever given was that made by Paul: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved!" for there is none other name given under heaven and among men whereby men can be saved.

It is, therefore, a matter of supreme interest to all mankind, to know just what this answer of Paul to the jailer means. Happily, it is easy for all who have an experience of salvation to tell what it means—to point out the way so plainly that no man who sincerely desires to be saved need err therein. And it is an unspeakable blessing, that the poorest and most illiterate may know exactly what to do to be saved. Other religions perplex and bewilder and darken the minds of their votaries, but the Christian plan of salvation is so plain that no man need perish through ignorance.

When Paul said "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ," he assumed two facts with regard to the jailer, which must be true of every man before he can exercise saving faith in Christ. He assumed first, that the jailer was convicted of his sins. There was evidence of this in his conduct and in the question he asked. No man can be saved from sin until he is convinced that he is a sinner. He must first feel the guilt and peril of his soul, or he will not care even to ask the question of the jailor. And he must realize that he has no hope of salvation without Christ, or he will not be prepared to receive Him for his Savior. The trouble with unconverted men is not that they do not know themselves to be sinners, but that they do not realize the fearful peril and helplessness of their condition out of Christ. So they either try to put off all concern about their salvation, or else try to reform and save themselves. Before any man will take the necessary steps to salvation he must not only feel that he is a sinner, but that he is a lost and undone sinner, who cannot save himself, and must have divine help or perish.

The second fact that Paul assumed with regard to the jailer was that he was truly penitent; that is, not merely sorry for his sins, but was ready to renounce them forever. Many a man is sorry for his sins because they have brought him into difficulty; because he has been detected in them by men, and is to be punished for them. He would have had no sorrow for his misdeeds if he had not been caught at them. This the apostle calls "the sorrow of the world which worketh death,"—sorrow, simply because the world knows the sin and disgrace. But godly sorrow for sin has no thought of what the world thinks about it, but regards it as the transgression of God's righteous law, which exposes the soul to eternal death. This sorrow "worketh a repentance not to be repented of,"—the complete renunciation of all sin, both of the heart and of the life. This is repentance: Ceasing to do evil and beginning to do right. Until a man knows that he does thoroughly repent, he cannot exercise saving faith. It is the lack of this, more than anything else, that prevents the assurance of pardon. It is defective repentance, and not any constitutional inability to exercise faith that keeps men from believing. For God has endowed men with the faith-faculty, and with power to exercise it when they have done, and are, therefore, conscious that they have done all they can to comply with the terms of the Gospel in the matter of repentance.

And when a man has repented of his sins, his next step is to believe; that is, simply take God at His word, and rely upon His promise that "if we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." For this matter of justification by faith is of the nature of a contract between God and the soul. God makes the overture—offers and promises salvation if we will repent and believe. We know that His promises are sure, that He will do His part if we will do ours. The thing then for us to know is that we have done our part. On this the whole question hinges. For if the penitent is conscious of any failure to do his part, and that God knows that he has kept back part of the price, he will be unable to claim the promise. On the other hand, if he is able to look up and say, "Lord, thou knowest that I have done all I can to fulfill the condition of salvation," he will also be able to say, at that moment, "I do believe: I am convinced that Thou hast forgiven me."

"'Tis done, the great transaction's done;
I am my Lord's, and He is mine."

And along with that assurance of faith will come the blessed unmistakable writes of the Spirit that he is saved.

"SAVED." Precious word! It does not mean partly saved. It does not mean that he can have a hope of heaven and be saved from sin without knowing it. It means that he may know that he is saved now, and that he can have no "well grounded" hope of heaven unless he does know it. The peace and joy that fills the saved soul is a present heaven to him, which is a sufficient guarantee that he is saved, and the sure pledge and foretask of his eternal salvation. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

A Minister in Distress—Rev. James Hayward.

MR. EDITOR—Permit me to place before the community a case of suffering humanity, viz: Rev. James Hayward, a minister, whose character is as a Christian's ought to be—stainless and spotless in this and all other communities. In the year 1878 he was appointed to Franklin, La., by Bishop Harris. He worked faithfully and adorned the work of Christ, so much so that he was reappointed by Bishop Andrews, and he again labored till about five months ago. While standing as usual at his post of duty he was visited by the hand of affliction, which resulted in the loss of his mind. Since then he has suffered worse than death. His wife, assisted by a few true friends, to the best of their ability and means, have constantly administered to his cravings until his necessities are so numerous and the means to procure them so limited, that unless his condition receives the most charitable consideration of all his friends his sufferings must be greatly increased. He has served the Church for thirteen years with fidelity, zeal and success; he has been subject to the discipline of the Church; he has sacrificed earthly possessions in order to gain souls for the cause of Christ. Now he is a prisoner to insanity. If he has any friends let them show their friendship. Give what you can towards the support and care of him and his unhappy family.

R. B. G.

The above appeal comes from one of our lay brethren, but expresses the feelings of all our ministers and people in Louisiana toward Bro. Hayward in this time of deep distress. We earnestly endorse this appeal. The New Orleans preachers and churches have already done something to help him and his family. But every day brings new demands.

There is hope that he may recover so that he need not be sent to the asylum, and so he is kept at home Let both him and his wife be remembered in prayer by the churches Send money to Rev. J. Gould or Rev. Emperor Williams, either direct or care of this office.

Shaw University.

The fall term of Shaw University will open Thursday, Oct. 2d Let all ministers in the Mississippi Conference who may read this announce the same in their pulpits and elsewhere on the very first opportunity, and do all in their power to send students to the school. Work for the Lord's sake, for your country's sake, and for your people's. Work for your church, work for your school, work for humanity. WORK. Education is the strong anchor that gives safety amid the storms of life, the gate-way to worldly success, and the stepping-stone to eternal happiness. The doors of Shaw University stand open to all. Energetic and efficient teachers have been secured, and it is hoped that the coming year will prove the most successful in the history of the school.

Let him that readeth say come, and whosoever will let him come and enjoy its privileges freely.

The Navasota (Texas) Dist.

BRYAN, Texas, Sept. 4, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR.—It has been some time since you had anything from me. The weather has been so dry and hot, and my labors have been so great, it has neither left me strength of body or mind to write. Next week will close my third round on the Navasota district, visiting all but three appointments, preaching from five to seven times at each place, besides attending to all the duties pertaining to the work of a presiding elder. I have promised God to give more of my time to the work than I have ever done since I have been on a district. Going to my meeting on Saturday, preaching once or twice, give the sacrament, take the collection and go home is not doing the work of a presiding elder as I look at it now. I am trying to make my work my business. The saving of souls is my business, and God helping me, I will be a man of one work. If we have a good conscience, and God is well pleased with us, our work must be done well, and how can we do it well when we are half the time away from the work. I found all the pastors at their work. They seem to love the Lord, and to be willing to do all possible for His cause. Bro. Hardwell, at Brenham, is having quite a hard year. They are trying to finish their new church, but the times are very hard, and money very scarce. They are moving very slow. Bro. Lane, of San Felipe, has been having considerable revival influence on his work. He is doing a good work. Bro. Lee, of Hempstead, has one fault, if it is a fault. He will have a nice church to preach in. He is now engaged in adding ten feet to his church, and making other improvements. We are by Bro. Lee like Mr. Lincoln was by Gen. Grant. Somebody said to him that Gen. Grant was drunk during a certain battle. Mr. Lincoln answered: "I wish more of my generals were drunk on the same kind of whisky." Bro. Guess, of Courtney, is holding his own and gaining a little. Bro. Gillam, of the Brenham circuit, is a faithful man, doing all he can for Christ. Bro. McKinney, at Navasota, has some difficulties to contend with, but I hope all will be overcome, and before conference you will hear of a glorious rivival at that place. Bro. Bookman, of Anderson, Bro. Jackson, of Milican, Bro. Adkins, of Red Top, are all good men, and giving the most of their time to the work. The churches on this district are passing through deep waters at this time. The Kansas fever has broken out all over the work, and they can't see through. It is hard to tell what will be the result. It is hard to get the people to do anything that takes money. They say that they do not feel that this is their home any longer. We must take our children where they can be free. They have good reasons for feeling as they do on this subject. I will not throw one straw in their way if they can go and be free. In the name of God let them go. They must always be hewers of wood, and drawers of water in this country. I have read lately some very hard things against those who favor the emigration. They are charged with favoring it for the loaves and fishes. Now if I was to consult my own interest, I would oppose the movement, but I dare not place my interests between them and liberty and manhood. No, let a thousand like myself perish, but let the poor people find a home where the father and husband will dare lift their voices in defense of their wives and daughters. This is the first time I have written on this subject, and would not have written this, but as an answer to hundreds who are wanting to know my opinion of this matter. I want my friends everywhere to know that I am in favor of them going to Kansas, or anywhere else to better their condition. I know this will multiply my enemies and endanger my life; but what of that? I have long since given my life to Christ, and if He wants me to lay it down for His people, let it be so. One word of caution to the people: Do not go until you get ready. Do not go depending on charity. Let none of these tramps that say they have been to Kansas, and know it all, fool you. Have nothing to do with them.

I want to say to the brethren of this district, do all you can to report your benevolent collections in full at the district conference, which will meet Nov. 6. Rev. F. D. Bookman, of Anderson, will preach the opening sermon Thursday night We invite our brethren and friends from other districts to meet with us. I will have blanks for all the reports that are to be made. The pastors can write to me for them.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

LOUISIANA.

R. L. Beal, Cypremort: "The storm last Monday commenced a 9:30 a. m., and continued for four or five hours, doing considerable damage. It blew down the upper story of our brick church. The parsonage was blown off its foundation. Several houses in our neighborhood are in complete ruins. We intend to repair the parsonage next week. We are taking up subscriptions to rebuild the church. The crops are nearly all lost. A large number of sugar houses are down. Though we are cast down we're not discouraged.'"

MISSISSIPPI.

W. McDonald, Starkville: "My third quarter was held Aug. 29–30; 119 received sacrament: 7 were received in the church."

A. D. Bean, Tupelo: "The church here is overcoming its opposition. The churches in the country are doing good work. Fairfield church in six weeks added to its membership 28; Arnold Chapel 4; Wyche's School 7. Total 39."

J. D. Walden, Goodman: "The elder was with us on the 6–7, and preached two fine sermons. Seventy-seven partook of the Lord's Supper. On this work, this year there have been 16 converts, and 30 joined the church. The people are very poor."

Gulf District, Mississippi, Conference.

DEAR EDITOR—I know that the brethren in this district are doing a good work this year. There has been a protracted effort in each charge which proved successful. The great cloud that overshadowed the Augusta circuit has disappeared and the old church is now moving along without anything to molest her. I was with the people at Liberty on the 6 7th, as I had previously appointed to be. The Lord was with us and we had a good reviving time. At night several came forward for prayer, and five or six joined the church. Rev. W. S. Harris, the pastor, is holding the fort, though he has great opposition to contend with from the Baptist church. All over the district everything looks bright, with the exception that but little has been done in taking up the benevolent collection. This, I hope, the brethren will correct by going to work at once and do all that they can.

Dear brethren, it won't do to wait any longer. Ere long the Conference will meet and I hope that all the preachers of this district will be able to report a good collection. Brethren, begin now. If we cannot be the banner district, don't let us come out behind all the rest. Talk to the people; take up a collection early enough, so that you may have time to take up two or three more before Conference, if it be necessary. If you wait until a week or two previous to the meeting of the Conference the weather may be bad, and you may make a complete failure in taking up the collection. Then this Conference year will pass away into eternity with all your negligence. Brethren, don't let this be the case.

I feel encouraged in making this appeal to you because heretofore you have been so kind in carrying out my advice.

May the blessings of Him who always rewards the faithful be upon you. Yours as ever,

J. CAMPBELL.

A Nestorian helper is beset day and night with Jews anxious to be instructed in the New Testament.

A Memorial.

The following paper presented by Rev. G. W. Arnold, D D, was adopted by the Macomb District Conference, Central Illinois Conference, held at Hamilton, Ills., Sept. 3 1, 1879, and is forwarded to you by request of said Conference for publication in the SOUTHWESTERN. P. WARNER, Asst. Sec.

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference to be held in Cincinnati, May 1st, 1880:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN—Your memorialists beg most respectfully to represent that

WHEREAS, The Discipline of the Church declares that "The profits arising from the Book Concern, after a sufficient capital to carry on the business is retained, shall be regularly applied to the support of the deficient traveling preachers and their families, the widows and orphans of preachers, etc. The book agents shall, every year, send forward to each annual conference an account of the dividend which the several annual conferences may draw that year." Also the 6th Restrictive Rule declares, "They shall not appropriate the proceeds of the Book Concern * * to any purpose other than for the benefit of the traveling, supernumerary, superannuated and the worn-out preachers, their wives, widows and children," and,

WHEREAS, The traveling preachers in their ordination vows have agreed to "reverently obey their chief ministers unto whom is committed the charge and government over them, and to do that part of the work * * * at those times and places" assigned them; and as the church in her organic law, has provided to supplement deficiencies in salaries not paid, and to furnish dividends for age and infirmity, for widows and orphans. Therefore,

Resolved, 1st. That your memorialists, most respectfully ask your reverend body to institute such legislation as in your judgment, may be necessary to have these provisions of the Discipline made effective; and that each Annual Conference be notified of its pro-rata share of the produce of the Book Concern, the total deficiency of the conference the preceding year being the basis of the estimate.

Resolved, 2nd. That you further enact that no man elected by the General Conference to any office shall receive more than $3000 as salary and house rent per annum, and that no traveling expenses of any man so elected, or of any member of the General Conference shall be paid from the produce of the Book Concern, or any part of such traveling expenses.

Resolved, 3d. That the salaries, house rent and traveling expenses of the Bishop be paid from the "Episcopal fund," and in case that should not be sufficient they shall receive their share, pro rata with other claimants, from the Book Concern.

Resolved, 4th. That our beloved presiding elder be requested to forward a copy of this preamble and resolutions to each one of the Bishops, requesting them to lay it before the conferences over which they shall preside before the 1st of May 1880, and take a vote in each conference by yeas and nays; those voting yea shall be counted memorialists, and report the result to the General Conference to meet in Cincinnati on the 1st of May 1880.

And your memorialists will ever pray, etc.

Foreign Missions.

DECORATION DAY—There was such a day in Monrovia shortly after the arrival of Mary A. Sharp. She had received upon leaving New York, from the hands of a lady friend, a bouquet of flowers which she preserved during the voyage. On a set day she proceeded to the Mission Cemetery, and had graves of the heroic missionaries sleeping there cleaned of weeds and grass and mounted up anew, after which she planted upon them the flowers she had brought with such care from America.

COPENHAGEN — We have word from Superintendent Schow up to Aug. 11: "The visit of our dear Bishop Wiley was a great blessing to us. We only regretted he had to make his visit so short. I met him on his return from Norway, and accompanied him through Denmark. He was very much tired out. God bless him. Yesterday we had a good day in our church here—received seven in full connection. Congregations increasing."

STANDING BY HIS CONSCIENCE—Rev. J. W. Butler gives an account of a glorious meeting Aug. 9, in Trinity church, City of Mexico: "Last night we had a glorious meeting in Trinity. A recently converted priest made a confession of faith, after which I received him on probation in the Mission church. He is but 25 years old, but was ordained four years ago. He has for two years been Vicar of Ixmiquilpan, beyond Pachuca, in the state of Hidalgo. After the Archbishop heard of his contemplated step, he had all kind of inducements held out to the young priest to return to the bosom of the church. Promotion and money were both offered him, but in vain. The young priest stood by his conscience, and God stood by him. He is coming out gloriously into the light. He feels a longing in his soul to tell 'the story.' We are hoping that God will make him of great use in our church."

Rev. Dr. Mathews, of St. Charles M. E. Church South, has returned from a trip North, in excellent health.

Saturday night, 27th inst., at Simpson Chapel, N. D. Bush, by invitation, will repeat his lecture on the "Oppression and Progress of the Church." The lecture being given for the benefit of the church, a small admission fee will be charged.

On Sunday, 14th inst., a military pageant appeared on the streets to commemorate the anniversary of the White League assault on the State Government in 1874. This long premeditated outburst of violence was actuated by the spirit of the Colfax, Grant, and other massacres, in the interests of Democratic office-seekers, to overthrow reconstruction in Louisiana. Gen. Grant promptly demanded the unconditional surrender of the insurgents, and both Houses of Congress supported Gov. Kellogg to the end of his office. In that wicked assault a few comparatively innocent men lost their lives. The leaders have had immunity from just punishment, owing to the chaotic condition of affairs in the South.

Sunday School.

September 21, 1879.—THE CHRISTIAN CITIZEN.

SCRIPTURE.—Titus 3: 1-9.

GOLDEN TEXT. — "Render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's."—Matt. 22: 21.

TOPIC.—The Christian as a Citizen.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.

The Connection,—A man's religion consist in something else than in duty toward God. It must control the whole circle of his relationships, and make him a better citizen as well as a better man.

What He Should Be (1, 2).—He should be "subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates." "Ready to every good work." The "good work" here had in view was any work such as the government might call upon one to do. In the exercise of its own power, no human government has the right to dethrone conscience. But in relation to all else than is forbidden by the law of his God, a Christion specially should be "ready"—prompt and willing. He should set to all others an example of good citizenship. And that is what Christian men do. Upon them largely depends the good order of society. He should act on the principle that every man is innocent until he is proven to be guilty. The apostle gives a reason why Christians should be gentle and forbearing to to those who still act disorderly. "For we ourselves, also, were sometimes foolish," etc. Man had done no works which made it incumbent upon God to save him. Indeed, what he had done had earned for him condemnation. Salvation is "not of works, lest any man should boast." Eph. 2: 10. 2. "But according to his mercy he saved us." As some one well has said, "It was his pity—not our piety." His compassion would not allow him to rest without an effort to save man from a fate the fearfulness of which must be measured by the sacrifice that was required to purchase his redemption. What are the steps of salvation? 1. "By the washing (rather laver) of regeneration." The use of the word "laver" indicates that the rite of baptism is referred to—the use to which the laver was put. Baptism is only a sign of a thing, and not the thing itself. It signifies that as water cleanses the body so has a cleansing operation been performed upon the soul. It is a rite that is important, because it is commanded as a testimony. The process of redemption does not stop with justification, but goes on to sanctification. And this spirit comes "through Jesus Christ our Saviour." That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." This is the completion of the process.

The apostle wished to "affirm constantly," or, rather, "strongly and persistently," that salvation is entirely of grace. At no time are his people more in the mood for good works than when their hearts are freshly touched by a presentation of the love and the kindness of God as shown in their own redemption. But this mood they should be studiously solicitous to maintain."

What He Should Avoid (9).—1. "Foolish questions." Curious inquiries into things of no consequence. Discussions that do not add to one's spiritual life, nor contribute to the sum of profitable knowledge. 2. "Genealogies." They furnished a large debating ground for "foolish questions." 3. "Contentious." They are just what such profitless discussions always end in. 4. "Strivings about the law." Concerning the authority of some minute-precept, or some trifling occurrence in Old Testament history. The argning Christian is never a working Christian, and the working Christian never has the time, in a useless debate. Work gives a taste for spiritual food—argument is satisfied with a wrangle. There are many teachers who have been bothered with members of their classes who think it is an evidence of smartness to start questions that no one can answer, and thus involve the whole class in a senseless disputation. Here is an opportunity, out of the Scriptures, and without going out of the way to do it, to show them that such things are "unprofitable and vain."

New Books.

The latest and most valuable work on finances, and the profitable use of surplus funds by corporations, capitalists or those of lesser means, has just been issued by Messrs. THE WORKMAN: His False Friends and His True Friends. By Rev. Jos. P. Thompson, D.D., LL.D., New York: American Tract Society, 150 Nassau street New Orleans: Presbyterian Depository, Camp street. Price $1.

The chapter heads of this neat 16mo volume are The Workman and his wants, Labor, Property and Capital, Land and Inheritance, Laws of Production and Trade, Money, Aids to Labor, Trades Unions and Strikes, Legislation and Labor, Immigration, Socialism and and Communism in theory and in history, economically and ethically; All for Each and Each for All, Every Man for Himself, Christianity and Society, The Future of the Workman in America. These topics are treated in a plain and thorough manner, from a consistent Christian standpoint. A book of this kind, with a price so moderate as to place it within the reach of all has long been needed. Prepared by a friend, with the sole purpose of removing obstacles to the welfare of workingmen, it deserves their confidence, and should be bought and read. We do not believe that within so small a compass, a greater store of timely information can be found than in the volume before us.

THE GREAT SPEECHES AND ORATIONS OF DANIEL WEBSTER, with an Essay on Daniel Webster as a Master of English Style by Edwin P. Whipple. Boston: Little, Brown & Co., Price $3.

An engraving of Webster, and an essay by a master critic, preface this volume of selections from the standard edition of Daniel Websters works, edited by Edward Everett. Its purpose is to revive public interest in the works of the preeminent American orator. Whether one be a lover of literature, of law, patriotism, or politics, the speeches of Webster will equally repay a careful perusal. They are full of eloquence, and political and moral wisdom. With the revival of States rights doctrines in their old time vigor, to be again combated, the exposition of the functions of our government by Webster will be highly useful and suggestive in carrying on the contest. It is mentioned in the preface that during the past 120 years, only two men—Edmund Burke and Daniel Webster—in legislative assemblies, have established themselves as men of the first class in English and American literature. Whether this estimate be just or not Webster assuredly ranks very high in the literature of this country. The volume now before us contains 707 printed pages, is handsomely bound in cloth, and should have an extended sale. The body of the work contains forty-five speeches, opening with the famous argument in the Dartmouth college case. An appendix consist of State papers on "Impressment," "Right of Search," "Letters to Cass on the Treaty of Washington," and "The Hulseman Letter." We commend this excellent book especially to the young men of the country, about to make their first essays in legal, political or literary life, as a valuable compendium of political knowledge on American State policy and institutions.

Our personal appearance is a matter in which our friends and acquaintances have a right to a choice whether we shall inflict upon them an exterior uncared for and unattractive, a countenance marred by a neglected grizzled beard, or a crown guiltless of covering, or half covered, or thatched, with white hairs, or whether we shall in deference to our fellows, pay due regard to our own persons, and make them presentable and acceptable in society. There are many helps for those who desire to do this, and there are none among them more acceptable than Hall's Hair Renewer and Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers. Both these preparations are kept for sale at all our drug stores, and if any one of our friends are looking a little the worse for wear, we advise them to make a note of it.—North Star, Danville, Vt.

New Publications.

The Church and School for September, (David Cook, Chicago,) contains many practical suggestions for Sunday-school work.

The Advocate of Christian Holiness for September, (J. Inskip, Philadelphia,) is received. "He is Mighty to Save" is the leading editorial.

The Princeton Review (37 Park Row New York—$2 a year) for September is on our table. The opening paper, by Phillip Schaff, D.D., on the "Progress of Christianity in the United States," is in itself worth the price of the number. It traces Christianity from its initial starting point, with comparative statistics of the different churches, and summarizes the relations of Christianity to the Negroes, Indians and Chinese, in a [illegible] hopeful spirit. The Philo-[illegible] ...ment in Italy," by Prof. [illegible], "Painting in its His-[illegible] ...ions," by Prof. Henry [illegible] and Morality," [illegible] H. Day; "The [illegible] Will," by [illegible] ...wood; "The [illegible] Bearing of [illegible] "Theolar- [illegible] L. [illegible] of [illegible] university of St. Andrews; are the other papers.

The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly for September is the closing number of the present volume and is of special interest. Among its contents are "Sowing and Reaping in the Kingdoms of Nature and Grace," by James McCosh, D. D., LL D., delivered before the Graduating Class at Princeton College and revised for this publication; "Reverence and Godly Fear," by Henry J. Van Dyke, D. D.; "The Testimony of Conscience," by J. H. Rylance, D. D; "The Human Side of Christ's Person," by Rev. David Winters. The sermons mentioned are given in full. Besides the Sermonic, Dr. William M. Taylor furnishes his fourth paper on "Expository Preaching;" Dr. Tilley, a paper on "Some Essentials of Successful Preaching." The Monthly is constantly growing in interest. Drs. Cuyler, Deems, and others, have been added to the corps of regular contributors. $2 50 per year; 25 cents per copy. I. K. Funk & Co., New York.

The October number of Harper's Magazine is rich in illustration and varied literary attractions. Colonel Waring's "On the Skirts of the Alps," gives a delightful description of the Lakes of Northern Italy. Mr. Charles A. Cole's paper on "Painted Glass in Household Decoration," a remarkable revelation. S. G. W. Benjamin concludes his series, "Fifty Years of American Art," with a third paper. Mrs. Helen S. Conant's "A Ramble in Central Park" details some of its most picturesque features. Mr. Frank H. Taylor contributes a very entertaining and instructive paper on Texas, with seventeen characteristic illustrations. A very novel descriptive paper, with pictures of Irish scenery and character, is contributed by Miss J. L. Clund, "The Connemara Hills." A brief paper on the present state of the alcohol question is contributed by Dr. T. M. Coan. The Editorial departments are well sustained.

Appletons' Journal for September opens with the first part of a new novelette by Mrs. Annie Edwards, "Vivian the Beauty;" the scene opens in Germany with an English young girl, an eccentric Scotch female guardian, a German tutor, and soon introduces Vivian, a spoiled "Hyde Park godless," as she is described. The story will be completed in four numbers of the Journal. Of the general papers, Karl Blind's second paper on "Russian Conspiracies" is the most important. A third paper will complete the record of oppression, insurrection, murder, crime, and intrigue. A paper by John Esten Cooke, entitled "An Hour with Thackeray," relates an interview with the great novelist in the city of Richmond. The "Souvenirs of Madame Vigee Le Brun" afford material for a gossipy, semi-historic, paper. Charlotte Adams describes the strange aspects of a night in Venice. Mr. James Payn writes satirically of absurd criticism. There is an article on Anthony Trollope; a paper comparing French and English paintings, a reply to Mathew Arnold's paper on "Wordsworth," and the editor's departments. Appletons' Journal is published monthly, at 25 cents per number, or $3 00 per annum. D. Appleton & Co., 549 & 551 Brodway, New York.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for October is an interesting number of this brilliant periodical. Every style of literature is found in its pages of the highest standard. The present number is even more crowded than usual with such reading as cannot fail to entertain and instruct, and to exercise a beneficial effect on the reader. The editor has reproduced, Macaulay's elaborated biographical and critical article on "The Pilgrim's Progress," admitted by critics as the best thing which has ever been written concerning Bunyan. "Recollections of Auld Reekie," in which Rev. Robert Irvine gives pleasant reminiscences of Chambers, Jeffrey, Wilson and others who made Edinburgh famous some fifty years ago. Godfrey A. Hudson, in the paper "An African Bishop," gives a sketch of the career of a native African who was sold as a slave when a mere boy, captured from a slave ship and sent to Sierra Leone, where he was educated, received the degree of D. D., and finally became Bishop of Niger, in Africa. The department of fiction contains stories by popular writers. The illustrated papers, depicting the manners, customs and aspects of various countries, are replete with interest and information. The number contains 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations. The price of a number is 25 cents, and the subscription $3 a year, prepaid. Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

How Women would Vote.

Were the question admitted to the ballot, and women were allowed to vote, every women in the land who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription would vote it to be an unfailing remedy for the diseases peculiar to her sex. Dr. Pierce has received hundreds of grateful testimonials of its curative power.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, March 4th, 1878.
Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:
DEAR SIR—For many months I was a great sufferer. Physicians could afford me no relief. In my despair I commenced the use of your Favorite Prescription. It speedily effected my entire and permanent cure. Yours thankfully,
MRS. PAUL R. BAXTER.

"Lies! Big Lies!"

Not so fast my friend; for if you would see the strong, healthy, blooming men, women and children that have been raised from beds of sickness, suffering and almost death, by the use of Hop Bitters, you would say, "Truth, glorious truth." See "Truths," in another column.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

THE ROBBINS

FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER

AGENTS WANTED.

We bespeak for this article the careful perusal of every intelligent person into whose hands this paper may fall. It should carry great weight with house-keepers and MEN WHO ARE LOOKING FOR A BUSINESS which will pay. To such the chance now offered is seldom equalled—never excelled.

In bringing this article before the public, it becomes necessary to take into consideration which is yet so imperfectly understood. Having had a lifelong experience in the laundry business, in connection with first-class hotels, public laundries, asylums, hospitals, etc., we know whereof we speak. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam wash boilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, viz: The saving of labor, the wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration; all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS,

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask all washerwomen and housekeepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow grease," or in other words, plenty of hard laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No; to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be the most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is a hundred per cent. greater.

READ WHAT OTHERS SAY.

From FRANK FLOWER, Eatontown, N. J., Jan. 30, 1878.

* * Your Robbins Washer has preserved my clothes from the remorseless washboard and the ruthless scrubbing and rubbing of the washerwoman fiend. No longer is washday the most dreaded of the week, as, thanks to the Robbins Washer, our washday is free from manual labor and unpleasantness incident thereto, and I hope your sales may extend until every household is blessed with the Robbins Washer. One thing I can assure you, that if she could not procure another, I do not think money could buy from my wife her washer. She has used it three years, and likes it better every washing day. Rest assured I shall always speak for my friend, the Washer, on each and every opportunity.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking and housework are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking while the house-wife does her housework.

The following extract from a private letter written by a lady to her sister in this city, who had sent her a Washer:

* * * Mr. — is home, and he is about the garden just as he was last Summer, and works right up against his clothes just as father does. He dirties four shirts a week, as black as dirt. We never could get them clean in the world if it were not for the Washer. We did not wash yesterday, and this morning I have been doing up all kinds of chores, while the washing does itself. It is just wonderful!

Last Saturday morning I told Em. we would make our fire do double duty, so we put all the threshers' sheets in the boiler, and after them seven long roller towels, and as many tea towels, and when we got our baking done they were all clean. You have not forgotten how dirty hired men make sheets and towels. I think everybody would have to have workmen's shirts, sheets and towels to appreciate it.

I told Em. I hoped no one would ask us to lend again, for what would we do if it gave out, I can't tell.

I now have a Washer in my kitchen that cost $15, but was laid aside because it was harder work to operate it than to do the washing with the washboard. If I could not get another of the Washers and Bleachers I could not afford to sell mine for $20. Every other kind of work goes on at the same time. * *

All who have tried steam wash boilers will unite with me in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water-force is what removes dirt from the fibres of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution, while steam will not remove dirt. It is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature, it causes the fabric to contract, which shuts in, or as our housewives say, "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings, and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER

embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which causes a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are three sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants, barber-shops, boarding-houses, etc.; No. 3, or steam power-washer, into which is conducted, through a ¾-inch pipe, live steam from the steam boiler, from which is obtained the power for driving the water. This washer takes the place of machinery in places where steam power is used in the laundries.

The Washer is composed of metal, and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 lbs., and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide, and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge pipe is 13 inches high over that, and 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid unbroken stream at the rate of 10 to 12 gallons per minute. It will work in any family boiler. It takes only three or four ounces of soap to 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed and table linen a boiler full in ten to fifteen minutes, wearing apparel in from twenty to thirty minutes, and will remove all streaks without any rubbing; requires no previous preparation of clothes, such as soaking over night, etc. We take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets thoroughly at work, we fill the boiler as full as it will hold, by gently pressing them down with a stick. We use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard, it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

For LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

The No. 2, or small hotel size, will do the work in a boiler four times the size of the common family boiler, and wash of average pieces from 1,500 to 2,000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler. They will work in anything that has a flat bottom large enough for them to rest upon.

For hospitals this washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabric as pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics and scientific men generally it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics or water force ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics that has ever been known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER is this: We have five pounds of metal, which attains a much greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube; thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of the same prevent its flowing backward; and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus, we get a combination. First, we have the desired heat. Second, perfect chemical action of the soap. Third, force of water—all of which are required to thoroughly cleanse and purify any fabric.

THE IMPROVED WASHER.

The Improved Washer has a perfect fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting animal or vegetable matter or discoloration from the various fibres which constitute all our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solutions of chloride of lime; third, solutions of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water; then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now, the question arises, Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—Poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

We have endeavored to set forth as explicitly as possible the merits of our Washer and the mode of operating it. And as it is much easier to answer inquiries here, we transcribe a few of the more common

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q. What kind of boiler do you use?

Ans. Any kind of boiler that has a flat bottom 5½x8 inches will do.

Q. How can you have a flow of water at the rate of ten or twelve gallons per minute in a boiler holding only eight or ten gallons?

Ans. The same water is used over and over again; and in order to be thus used it must pass down through and through the fabric, and this with the soap and heat is what does the business.

Q. How can you use a large quantity of water in a boiler already full of clothes?

Ans. We first fill the boiler two-thirds full of water; as soon as the washer commences to work, we put in the clothes DRY.

Q. Can you wash flannels and colored clothes?

Ans. We wash anything that can be washed. Flannels and colored clothes need but little soap and from five to ten minutes of the full operation of the Washer. Flannel should be rinsed in HOT water. It is the change from BOILING to COLD water that contracts the fibre, causing them to shrink. Any FULLER will tell you this is so. Fugitive prints will part with their colors by this or any other process, but fast colors will not be injured. It is not best, as every good housekeeper knows, to use strong soap or alkalies in washing colored goods. Many prints and other colored fabrics have some kind of ACID as a base, and if alkalies are used strong enough to destroy this acid, the fabric will part with its color. This is why English scarlets, which will not fade in the sun, or by ordinary washing, are ruined by STRONG soaps. These facts are worth remembering by the inexperienced housekeeper.

Q. Can you use the common soft soap of the farm-house?

Ans. Yes, if good.

Q. Is it not better to put very dirty clothes to soak over night? Ans. No.

Q. Will your machine remove the streaks from dirty wristbands and collars, such as farmers and mechanics wear, after having been worn a whole week, as they usually are? Will not these require extra care in rinsing? Ans. The Washer will cleanse the dirtiest clothing. Give the clothes a thorough rinsing.

Q. We sometimes find a whitish scum on top of the water. What is the cause of this? Ans. Your water is HARD. When soap is added to hard water a chemical change takes place. Certain substances in the water having an affinity for the alkali of the soap, unite with it, thus setting FREE other substances; these are PRECIPITATED and fall to the bottom, or rise to the surface in the form of a whitish scum, according as their specific gravity is greater or less than that of water. This is why it is impossible to cleanse fabrics with hard water. Hard water may be softened by the use of borax or sal-soda. Pure rain water is best for ANY method of washing.

Q. How can it be possible for so simple a thing to cleanse fabrics? Ans. If you will study the PHILOSOPHY of the Washer, carefully and intelligently, for a few moments, and consider what is required to remove dirt from clothing, you will ask, "How is it possible for it NOT to cleanse fabrics?" A gentleman writing to us upon this point, says: "I must own that when I first saw your Washer, I was utterly incredulous as to its cleansing powers. My family were still more so. In fact, they had no faith in washers of any kind; but being strongly urged by a friend who had used your machine successfully, I concluded to try one. We made the first trial with a good many misgivings. In fact, I could not see how so simple a thing COULD wash clothing. But when I saw the water pouring out from the discharge pipe at the rate of 10 or 12 gallons per minute, and when I reflected that this amount of water must pass through the clothes twenty or thirty times in the course of an ordinary wash, my doubts began to give way. I saw that there was both philosophy and common sense in the process, and that it was impossible that it should NOT prove effective. I am now a firm believer in the Washer, and trust it will find a place, as it deserves, in every household."

Q. Will you send a Washer C. O. D. to my address? Ans. We do not send Washers C. O. D. It only costs the sender 10 cents for a registered letter or money order, which can be sent at our risk.

We send sample Washers by express, and guarantee all packages to be delivered to our customers at their nearest express office. We pack securely in a strong box, and invariably send notice of shipment.

WILL YOUR WASHER DO ALL YOU CLAIM FOR IT?

(This Question Comes to Us Oftener than Any Other.) Answer—Stop and think, and you will readily see that we must sell more than Sample Washers in order to make our business profitable to us. Consider the cost of manufacture, rents, plating and office expenses, and prepaying expressage on Samples, and this fact is derived. We must depend entirely for our profits upon the sales made by those who first send for a Sample Washer, and after trying it and convincing themselves, become our Agents. If it were not "All We Claim For It," could we sell more than a sample to a person?

WELLS RIVER, Orange Co., Vt., Mch. 21, '79.
Messrs. Bissell Manufactoring Company, 42 Murray street, New York:

I enclose $3.50, for which please send me, express paid, one of your No. 1 Washers, per your ad. in N. Y. Weekly Witness of March 20. I propose to give it a thorough trial, and if it is all you claim for it, which I have no reason to doubt, I think seriously of taking a general agency for several counties in this vicinity.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 12, 1879.
Bissell Manufacturing Company, New York.

GENTLEMEN: I trust you will excuse me for troubling you with the first difficulty which arises with me in undertaking to introduce your Washer in this place. I wrote you a week ago, saying that it gave good satisfaction, and now say more. The third time using it to-day in my family, having become conversant with it, we could do anything we chose almost, and in most satisfactory manner, washing flannels and all. But to-day (later) a lady has used it who says (the clothes being very dirty, the collars, etc., having been saturated with sweat) that the clothes have yellow streaks in them, and that she believes that the continued use of the Washer will cause the clothes to become yellow beyond reparation. I cannot find but that she used the Washer according to directions. Can you not give me some testimonials which touch directly upon that point, and a list of names of some who have used the machine a year or more, to whom I may write in regard to the matter? My only excuse for writing this is that I am interested to have the Washer proved to be what I myself believe it to be—"a success." Very respectfully,

A. W. JONES, Wells River, Orange Co.

P. S.—Have seen the lady again, and she admits the clothes had become yellow by a careless servant and hard water. Would like the testimonials just the same however.

The letters asked for were sent.

BISSELL MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN: Inclosed please find check for $24, for which please send me one dozen No. 1 Washers, quick by express, and give me general agency for Orange County, Vt., and would like Caledonia County reserved for me. Took an order to-day from a lady who is considered the most particular in town about her washings. She tried the Washer, and was very much pleased with it. Hope I may get the above dozen by last of the week by express. Hastily,

Bissell Manufacturing Company.

GENTLEMEN: I return to you herewith letters of testimonial sent me in yours of the 15th instant, for which please accept my thanks. I think that I have succeeded in convincing my customers that it is not a humbug, and the letters were just what I needed, so far as they went. Very respectfully, A. W. JONES.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Before writing for further information read carefully the following:

The above contains all the information we can possibly impart to you. The principle and merits of the Washer, and testimony of those who are using it. All that our printed Circulars contain is here laid before you.

We do this to avoid the necessity of sending out circulars, or answering letters of inquiry. Those ordering direct from this advertisement will be dealt with strictly as stated above. We give to such, by prepaying Expressage upon their Washers, the full benefit of what we would otherwise expend in circulars, stationary, postage and labor, the cost of which in the aggregate is enormous.

As to the reliability of this Company, we refer you to the notice in another column of the Editor of this paper. Also to the MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK of this city, or to any Express Company in New York.

In ordering, write plainly your name, Post-office, County and State. Also the name of the Express office to which you wish the Washer forwarded. Strange as it may seem, some people who usually write a very good hand spell their names in Chinese, or some other language unknown to the average office clerk, and some even forget to write their names at all.

Cash must accompany all orders. Remit by Post-office Order or Registered Letter, at our risk. We insure the safe delivery of all Washers ordered as above. Money may also be sent by Draft on New York. Address BISSELL MAN'F'G CO., 50 Barclay St., New York.

When you order mention this paper.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judical investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

THE MASTER'S CALL.

Up and be doing! the time is brief,
And life is frail as the autumn leaf.

To God and thy better self be true,
Do with thy might what thou findest to do.

The harvest is white, and the field is wide'
And thou at thine ease mayst not abide.

Go forth and labor! a crown awaits
The faithful servant, at heaven's high gates;

Work with thy might! ere the day of grace
Is spent, ere the night steals on apace.

The Master has given His pledge divine;
Who winneth souls, like the stars shall shine! —Baptist Weekly.

Boys Using Tobacco.

Rev. Reuben Thomas has written a letter to boys in the columns of the Brooklyn Chronicle, which is full of sensible advice. He says:

There are some things which grown men, whose muscles are developed to their full strength—whose nerves are no longer very easily excited—may do with comparative freedom from harm. A fat man may smoke a cigar after each meal with no appreciable evil following—but a nervous, excitable man, all brain and little muscle, cannot often do even this much in the way of smoking without bringing some evil into his system. Men who all day long work with their hands, and are in the open air most of the time, can smoke without a very appreciable amount of injury. But boys cannot. Their muscles are not hard—their brain is not tough—their nerves are not rigid. Dull, heavy boys will not receive so much harm as some others; but quick boys, smart boys—boys who get near the head of their class—all such will do themselves an injury from which they may suffer for life.

He gives the report by the Medical Department of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., on the use of tobacco at that school. This report says:

Functional derangements of the digestive, circulatory and nervous systems, manifesting themselves in the form of headache, confusion of intellect, loss of memory, impaired power of attention, lassitude, indisposition to muscular effort, nausea, want of appetite, dyspepsia, palpitation, tremulousness, disturbed sleep, impaired vision, etc., any one of which materially lessens the capacity for study and application, all result from the use of tobacco.

The board are of the opinion, therefore, that the regulations against the use of tobacco in any form cannot be too stringent; and, further, that while smoking should be wholly interdicted, especial care should be exercised to prevent the substitution of chewing, the more deleterious practice.

A Spider Story.

One chilly day I was left at home alone, and after I was tired reading "Robinson Crusoe," I caught a spider and brought him into the house to play with. Funny playmate, wasn't it? Well, I took a wash-basin and fastened up a stick in it like a vessel's mast, and then poured in water enough to turn the mast into an island for my spider, which I named Crusoe, and put him on the mast. As soon as he was fairly cast away, he anxiously commenced running round to find the mainland. He'd scamper down the mast to the water, stick out a foot, get it wet, shake it, run round the stick and try the other side, and then run back to the top again. Pretty soon it became a serious matter to Mr. Robinson, and he sat down to think over it. As in a moment he acted as if he wanted to shout for a boat and was afraid he was going to be hungry, I put treacle on the stick. A fly came, but my Crusoe was not hungry for flies just then. He was homesick for his web in the corner of the woodshed. He went slowly down the pole to the water, and touched it all around, shaking his feet like pussy when she wets her stockings in the grass, and suddenly a thought appears to strike him. Up he went like a rocket to the top, and commenced playing circus. He held one foot in the air, then another, and turned around two or three times. He got excited, and nearly stood on his head before I found out what he knew, and that was this, that the draught of air made by the fire would carry a line across on which he could escape from his desert island. He pushed out a web that went floating in the air until it caught on the table. Then he hauled on the rope until it was tight, struck it several times to see if it was strong enough to hold him, and walked ashore. I thought he had earned his liberty, so I put him back in the woodshed again.

Lost Friends.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make inquire for my brother. The last I heard from him he was in Waco, Texas, in the year 1878. His name is Thyon Bateman. His first owner was Sim Bateman and the next Sandy Brown. Address me at Luling, Caldwell Co., Texas.
JANE FRISBY.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my three brothers, Stephen, Joe and Peter Blackville. When last heard from they were on a boat at Alton, Illinois, at the beginning of the war. Our father's name was Thomas Blackville. Stephen left Nashville, Tenn., in 1870. Address me at Martinsville, Yazoo River, Miss.
MOSES BLACKVILLE.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my husband and son, who left during the war. Husband's name is Jacob Fendel: he belonged to Jacob Feudel. Son's name is Neil Jackson: he belonged to Mr. Thad Stanley. Husband lived within two miles of Sparta. My daughter Lucy is with me. My son Green Brown died at Smithville, DeKalb Co., Tenn. Any information will be thankfully received. Address me at Smithville, Tenn., in care of B. Turner.
EMILY CURTTEN.

DEAR EDITOR—My brother was sold in Richmond, Va., 35 years ago to Seward, and was carried to Texas. His name was John Carter. I saw a piece in your paper, I think it was him. He says his sister's name was Margaret and brother's name Henderson Carter, and he has four brothers. I have a sister, Margaret Carter, but my name is Horace Carter, and I have four brothers, all except one. My aunt's name is Betsey, grandma Peggy, mother's Ann Carter. I am now living six miles west of Oxford, Miss. My brother was nine years old when he was sold in Richmond. I belonged to Robert Carter.
HORACE CARTER.

DEAR EDITOR—I write to find the whereabouts of my brothers, Anthony and Ned Carpenter. My mother's name is Rebecca and father's Sam Carpenter. I'm servant of Isaac Carpenter. Coleman Carpenter took one of my brothers to Georgia from Anderson county, North Carolina: Coleman Carpenter died and his wife sold him to Bill Bell. They say that he is now in Woodsville county. If you know where he is, I would be pleased to have you direct this to him. I have seen abundance of trouble. All my children are dead. I am now living with brother Jack Thirkill in Oxford, on the east side of the town. He treats me well. I have a few grand children, but they are of no use to me and are scattered all over the country. Any information of brother's whereabouts will be most gladly received. Address me at Oxford, Miss., in care of Jack Thirkill.
ANNIE CARPENTER.

"My dear," said a smiling spouse to her other half, a morning or two since, "I am going a-shopping; I want a little change." "Pooh!" responded the ungallant man, "that would be no change at all; you go shopping every day."—Oneonta Press.

Cured of Drinking.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for Liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor, made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it." —From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Ills.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Fever and Ague is most common in the spring, but most severe in the fall and winter. It is strictly a malarious disease, and so surely as the Bitters are adopted, so surely will the individual who adopts this precaution be exempted from its pains and penalties. Add to this its value as a stomachic and anti-bilious agent, and who will venture to gainsay its claims to the first place among family medicines.

PREVENT
Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable the system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 33 13t

45 Years Before the Public.
THE GENUINE
DR. C. McLANE'S
CELEBRATED
LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my husband and son, who left during the war. Husband's name is Jacob Fredel: he belonged to Jacob Fredel. Son's name is Ned Jackson: he belonged to Mr. Thad Stanley. Husband lived within two miles of Sparta. My daughter Lucy is with me. My son Green Brown died at Smithville, DeKalb Co., Tenn. Any information will be thankfully received. Address me at Smithville, Tenn., in care of B. Turner. EMILY CURTTEN.

DEAR EDITOR—My brother was sold in Richmond, Va., 35 years ago to Seward, and was carried to Texas. His name was John Carter. I saw a piece in your paper, I think it was him. He says his sister's name was Margaret and brother's name Henderson Carter, and he has four brothers. I have a sister, Margaret Carter, but my name is Horace Carter, and I have four brothers, all except one. My aunt's name is Betsey, grandma Peggy, mother's Ann Carter. I am now living six miles west of Oxford, Miss. My brother was nine years old when he was sold in Richmond. I belonged to Robert Carter.
HORACE CARTER.

DEAR EDITOR—I write to find the whereabouts of my brothers, Anthony and Ned Carpenter. My mother's name is Rebecca and father's Sam Carpenter. I'm servant of Isaac Carpenter. Coleman Carpenter took one of my brothers to Georgia from Anderson county, North Carolina: Coleman Carpenter died and his wife sold him to Bill Bell. They say that he is now in Woodsville county. If you know where he is, I would be pleased to have you direct this to him. I have seen abundance of trouble. All my children are dead. I am now living with brother Jack Thirkill in Oxford, on the east side of the town. He treats me well. I have a few grand children, but they are of no use to me and are scattered all over the country. Any information of brother's whereabouts will be most gladly received. Address me at Oxford, Miss., in care of Jack Thirkill. ANNIE CARPENTER.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for Liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor, made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it." —From a leading R. DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

[illegible]

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS.

THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds.

Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. 7. Religious and missionary intelligence; 8. Obituary; 9. Poetry.

A glance at the index shows that this order was carefully observed. The first number issued has very appropriately for its frontispiece a steel portrait of "Rev. Francis Asbury, bishop of the M. E. Church." Steel engravings of the bishops and other prominent ministers were usually inserted quarterly until 1850, then one each year for three years, after which only two or three appeared. But very few of the articles were illustrated with engravings, probably not to exceed half a dozen.

In 1821 N. Bangs and T. Mason appear as publishers, and the editorship was afterward attached to that of the Christian Advocate at New York. In 1825 it was published at the Methodist Printing Office, Crosby street, New York; and in 1833 the old familiar cognomen, "200 Mulberry street," is given as the place of publication. From Bishop Simpson's Cyclopedia we learn that it was the only organ published by the church until the establishment of the Christian Advocate in 1826. It was published monthly until 1828, when it was changed to a quarterly, and the title of Quarterly Review was added to that of Methodist Magazine. For some reason it was not issued in 1829. In 1832 Nathan Bangs was elected editor of the Quarterly Review and of the books generally. Commencing with July, 1837, it was edited by Revs. S. Luckey and G. Coles, until October, 1840, when Rev. Geo. Peck, D. D., became editor, and continued in office until the election of Rev. J. McClintock in 1848, and in fact Dr. Peck's name as editor is attached to the first three numbers of that year, and he arranged much of the material for the fourth number. Dr. McClintock continued in the editorial office until the election of Rev. D. D. Whedon in 1856, and, like his predecessor, assisted in the editorial work of that year. Every number and page, from the first until now, bears evidence of able and careful editorial supervision. An index at the close of each volume appears until 1828, and from 1830 to the present a table of contents follows the title page, and from 1850 a copious index was given at the end of each year. It contained about 476 pages annually until 1840, when by recommendation of the General Conference it was enlarged to 640 pages, and in 1849 fifty-four more pages were added. In 1852 it was reduced to 640 pages again, and enlarged five years afterward to 676 pages, of which twenty-eight were added in 1856; but in 1865 it was again reduced to 640 pages, to be enlarged again to 704 pages in 1872, and sixty-four pages more were added in 1876, which size it still retains. As a representative of [illegible] theology, and an exponent of the distinctive doctrines of Methodism, it has kept fully abreast of the giant march of thought, and has seldom given an uncertain sound on any of the leading questions of the day, and numbers among its contributors, past and present, some of the ablest minds on both sides of the Atlantic. Trial of John Barleycorn.

The National Temperance Society has just published a pamphlet of 32 pages entitled "The Trial of John Barleycorn, alias Strong Drink," by a jury of twelve men, in which judge and jury, attorney-general and sheriff, together with fifteen witnesses, take part. A vast amount of temperance truth is inculcated during the trial. It affords one of the best evening's entertainments and temperance educators which have ever been published. The following is the indictment against the prisoner, which is fully substantiated by competent and reliable witnesses:

"1. That he has annually, to an almost incredible extent, destroyed good and wholesome grain, given by a beneficent Providence for food, by converting it into an unwholesome beverage, which he has sold to the people for 'liquid bread,' to the great injury of the health and morals of the community.

"2. That he has long continued the practice of Sabbath-breaking, by employing workmen in certain places called malt-kilns, and causing them to labor on the Lord's day.

"3. That he has, in innumerable instances, obtained money and other valuable property from persons under false pretences.

"4. That he has to an alarming extent practiced a system of quackery, inducing individuals to take his malt liquor, by which a great variety of diseases have been engendered and fostered, habits of intemperance formed, health and strength destroyed, and premature death brought about.

"5. That he has been a common corrupter of our youth, despoiling the hopes of the nation. He has, partly through the bad example of Sabbath-school teachers, who have acted as his agents, led thousands of scholars into the paths of dissipation. By him young men, and even females, have been led to beer-shops and music-saloons, where frequent seductions have taken place, and where robberies and murders have been plotted, in which he has aided and abetted.

"6. That he has destroyed the peace of many families, broken up the domestic circle, separated husband and wife, causing quarrels between the nearest relatives and friends, many of which have proved fatal.

"7. That he has influenced certain workmen to neglect their employment, to the great inconvenience and loss of their employers, and to spend their money and their time at the public-house, to the great injury of their families, which have become a burden to the community.

"8. That he has deprived many thousands of families of the means of getting a livelihood, and reduced them to a state of starvation, by lowering the price of labor through drunkenness, into which he generally leads his victims.

"9. That he has at certain times and places caused serious riots, by which the peace has been broken, much valuable property destroyed, and many lives sacrificed.

"10. That he has been an accomplice in several cases of the most vile seduction, gaining, by false pretences, the confidence of certain respectable families, and leading certain members of those families from the paths of virtue and religion; he has ultimately consigned them to a lunatic asylum, or left them to become victims to suicide.

"11. That he has, in connection with his accomplices, Peter Porter, Delilah Wine, and Ardent Spirits, been guilty of the most atrocious crimes which have stained the page of history, causing at least three-fourths of the poverty, crime, disease and immorality which now oppress and disgrace our nation.

"12. That the prisoner has never been of any real service to the community, and that there are no redeeming qualities in his character; and that the community would be infinitely advantaged by the banishment of Strong Drink."

The recital of this trial will answer all the purposes of a public meeting, in any locality, and we commend it to all lodges, divisions, and committees in search of entertainment and instruction. Price 10 cents each, $1 per dozen. Address J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

Too Good to be Believed.

The long silence is at last broken. One voice has at last been raised in the South among our brethren of the Church South against the tide of cruelty and murder that has carried away not less than twenty-four thousand victims, murdered in every conceivable way, and at every possible hour of the day, twelve thousand of whom were reported and dated, and doubtless as many more unreported. We clip from the Christian Advocate of Nashville, Aug. 30, the following paragraph:

Two classes of magistrates are not wanted in this country at the present time. One is, such as are in moral sympathy with the vicious and disorderly elements of society; the other is, such as are weak-kneed, and, therefore, disposed to adopt a rose-water administration of law. The time demand not only good men, but brave ones, to sit in the magistrate's seat.

We will not stop to say how near this comes to being politics. We will only say amen, AMEN, AMEN! The foregoing of Aug. 30 has only opened the way for something far better. We can only restrain our tears of joy as we read in the Christian Advocate of Nashville Sept. 6:

What we want now all over this land is fearless prosecuting attorneys and inflexible judges. The men that flourish shot-guns and knives must be made to know that the gibbet is a swift and terrible reality. Let public officers who shrink from duty share the infamy of the criminals whom they encourage by their cowardice.

God bless you, Brother Fitzgerald! We will not quarrel about what brings you to such boldness of utterance against shot-guns. We will not say that the word "shot-guns" is pure politics, with a view to condemn it. It is enough that you have lifted your voice when it is so much needed. The religious press of the South can stop all the murdering and bull dozing in three months. If the religious people will plant themselves against these outrages and for justice, they cannot be resisted. No man can be elected to any place of trust without your consent. In a single month you can compel a better order of civilization than has obtained for years. God bless you in your good words!—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

This year will be memorable in the annals of Texas Methodism, on account of the revivals which have visited every section of our State. Other churches have shared in this gracious influence; but the M. E. Church, South, has been specially favored. Several hundred conversions have been reported in each issue of the Advocate for weeks past. There has been a corresponding increase in the church. All the interests of the church are responding to the revival influence at work in the church. We trust this this year our missionary assessment will be met in every charge. Can we present a more acceptable thank-offering to God for these wonderful displays of his grace which are now being poured out on the church?

"Shall we whose souls are lighted
By wisdom from on high,
Shall we to men benighted
The lamp of life deny?"
—Texas Christian Advocate.

In Brooklyn the Civil-Damage Act is appealed to by a husband on account of his wife. A husband, who is sober and industrious, sues a grocer, under the Civil-Damage Act, for selling liquor to the plaintiff's wife in spite of his express prohibition. The consequences of that act, for which the law holds the grocer responsible, are set forth in the complaint, namely, that the wife has been unfit to manage her household or attend to her children, has used shameful language toward her husband, has disgraced him, herself and her children, and has made it necessary for him to give bonds for his wife's good behavior.—Methodist.

The Richmond Advocate pushes the argument for a Negro bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church to the wall by asking if we would sleep with him. In all Northern Methodist homes they think highly enough of a bishop to give him a separate bed. If the proposed colored bishop should be a man of avoirdupois, like Bishop Peck or Bishop Haven, no other arrangement would be at all practicable. We would not choose to sleep with any man, but, if necessary, we could spare a bed with a clean colored man.—N. Y. Independent.

Education that Does Not Educate.

The whole tendency of modern education is to lift boys and girls to places they are not fitted to fill, to disgust them with work which they are fitted to do, which must be done, and which can be easily obtained. Our theory of education is continually losing sight of a fact which never permits itself to be ignored, and teaching the young to lose sight of it,—that the mass of the people in every generation, and under whatever form of government, must be laborers. The old heresy that every boy has a chance to be president of the United States, has done more mischief in the small brains of boys who, when they attain manhood's strength, are fitted to dig trenches and do nothing else, than it has ever in larger brains of public men who, once bitten with the personal application of the idea, are good for nothing afterwards. The boy should have an education which, when completed, will make the subject better fitted to pursue well the work for which he is adapted; which makes him not ashamed to do it, and which thus dignifies labor.—Indianapolis News.

We are glad of the inspiration that has fallen upon the colored men of the South to leave that land of abominations unless a change of policy is adopted by their former masters. It will tend to the development of that independence that comes only after tested and successful self-reliance; it will touch the people of the of the South in about the only sensitive spot they have, the cotton spot, and it will diminish the power of the South for mischief, both in the Halls of Congress and in the field, should it be necessary again, in the course of human events, to take the field. Much better would it be for the whole country could peace and righteousness dwell together in the States so lately in rebellion; but a peace that comes by blood and despotism, a Warsaw peace, can never be tolerated. Better another war, which closing, will make secure the objects for which it was carried on; better another conquest, which will mean something and bring in the triumph of justice and the dominion of law. Anarchy, lawless violence, cruelty, cold blooded oppression of the weak, are more to be deprecated than even war with all that it means. And yet, such are the horrors of war that nothing but an unmistakable necessity could be its vindication.—Pittsburg Advocate.

"Call Him Out."

Yes, that's it. The Wesleyans of England, knowing how to utilize to the profit of their crippled missionary cause, the visit of Bishop Campbell, of the A. M. E. Church, from this country to them, are determined to retain the services of this grand old gentleman, on the missionary platform for some time to come. So the Tennessee Jubilee Singers from the talent displayed, the color line was lost, unless it be said it distinguished them the more, as they were appreciated everywhere they went in our own country and Europe. A "very eloquent and intelligent colored minister among ourselves, and an able advocate of the missionary cause," should be called out by the missionary committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It would be greatly to the honor of the "old Church," and the glory of our common Master, thus to call them out. —Louisville Church Herald.

The way to get a lamb back into the flock is, sometimes to go after it, and sometimes to let it run. A silly half-yearling, with tail and feet flying, is not a hopeful object to chase. If you have ever tried, "you know how it is yourself." The faster you run after him, the faster and farther he gets away. A change of tactics will do the work. Hold the sheep together, keep an eye upon the stray to see that he neither gets lost nor down, and soon he will steal back into the flock. Certain foolish strays from church are soonest brought back by letting them stay away. The preacher can preach without them. And possibly the church can survive a season without the favor of their most gracious presence. And yet, for the sake of humanity and humanity's Savior, we should watch these foolish ones, for they, like the wandering lamb, are in danger of getting entirely lost.—Church and School.

Prison Work.

I wish, through these columns, to call the attention of all who have been identified with our work in prisons, jails, penitentiaries, etc., and invite them to communicate with me sometime before the close of September, giving any items that would be of interest in our general report for the National Convention.

It seems very important that this branch of our work should be brought more prominently to the attention of our Union; and in order to do this, let all who have been connected with it during the last year send brief notices of what has been attempted, number of visits made, meetings held, pledges taken, special needs of the work, stating relative hopefulness of efforts for men or women, and gather up facts of an encouraging nature.

I hope to hear from a large number, and have every State represented. Please address Mrs. J. K. Barney, Chairman Committee on Prison Reform, 521 Broad street, Providence, R. I.—Our Union.

Washington on Profanity.

HEADQUARTERS, MOORE'S HOUSE, WEST POINT, July 29, 1779.

Many and pointed orders have been issued against that unmeaning and abominable custom of swearing, notwithstanding which, with much regret, the General observes that it prevails, if possible, more than ever; his feelings are continually wounded by the oaths and imprecations of the soldiers, whenever he is within hearing of them.

The name of that Being from whose bountiful goodness we are permitted to exist and enjoy the comforts of life, is incessantly imprecated and profaned in a manner as wanton as it is shocking. For the sake, therefore, of religion, decency and order, the General hopes and trusts that officers of every rank will use their influence and authority to check a vice which is as unprofitable as it is wicked and shameful.

If officers would make it an unavoidable rule to reprimand, and, if that does not do, punish soldiers for offences of this kind, it could not fail of having the desired effect.

Agassiz's Power Over Animals.

According to E. P. Whipple, in the June Harper's, the late Louis Agassiz had a wondrous power over animals. He would go up to the most obstinate of pigs, and, after a few soft words and movement of his stick over the bristles of the creature in the right direction, the pig would lift its head erect, its small eyes would glisten with a vague intelligence, it would remain almost motionless in a kind of pleased surprise, and emit a grunt of comfort. The professor even carried serpents in his hat and in his pockets with a grand unconcern, and dropped them sometimes in his bedroom, so that his wife was frequently troubled by finding them coiled up in her boots. And whenever he entered a menagerie he was eagerly welcomed by lions, tigers, wolves, hyenas and other beasts of prey. There is said to be not a single instance of his having been injured by any serpent or beast.

The Independent mentions that a lady, Miss Watterson, has gone to Central Africa as a medical missionary. She is the third woman who has had the courage to undertake the long journey from the coast, perilous even to strong, healthy men, and to have settled among the savages in the vicinity of the great lakes. She is to join the Livingstonian mission, with which a European woman is already connected, who is to be the wife of Dr. Laws. Mrs. McDonald, at the Blantyre mission, in the Shire hills; south of Lake Nyassa, is the only other European woman north of Lake Fgami.

Every young man who loves God and cares for his fellow men, should take early opportunity to commit himself before his public, however large or small it may be, on the subject of temperance reform. It may not be possible for every one to work specifically as a temperance worker, but he may give the weight of his character to aid the movement. There ought to be the most absolute certainty as to the whereabouts of every person who claims to be good.

"It Is Written."

The late Bishop Doane, of New Jersey, was strongly opposed to temperance, and his side-board was loaded with brandy, wine, etc. On one occasion, Rev. Mr. Perkins, of the Sons of Temperance, dined with the bishop, who, pouring out a glass of wine, desired him to drink with him.

"Can't do it, bishop. 'Wine is a mocker.'"

"Take a glass of brandy, then."

"Can't do it, bishop. 'Strong drink is raging.'"

By this time the bishop, becoming somewhat excited, remarked to Mr. Perkins, "You'll pass the decanter to the gentleman next to you!"

"No, bishop, I can't do that. 'Woe unto him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips.'"

A colored girl did kitchen service and wrestled with the soiled garments of other folks till, at her death, she had five thousand dollars. With that she founded a scholarship for the education of Gospel ministers of her race at the Yale divinity school. Two have graduated in glad tidings on the interest of that fund; and there's more to follow. Does our chronic objector see no grand possibilities in the future of a race whose infancy develops women of this stamp! Peabody did not excel her in his great gift of educational millions. How time, too, make some things even at least. This daughter of Africa lies buried in the Yale grounds besides several Southern youth who died in college. —Christian Statesman.

Four Good Reasons.

Here are Dr. Thomas Guthrie's excellent reasons for being a total abstainer: "I have tried both ways; I speak from experience. I am in good spirits because I take no spirits; I am hale because I use no ale; I take no antidote in the form of drugs because I take no poison in the form of drinks. I have these four reasons for continuing to be one. 1. My health is stronger. 2. My head is clearer. 3. My heart is lighter. 4. My purse is heavier."

In the humblest dwellings and in the obscurest corners, the noblest, the most successful, and the most honorable lives are lived as truly as on the wide avenues and beneath the gaze of myriads of admiring eyes. Every life which Christ guides by His light, and cheers by His smile, and crowns with His forgiveness and His reward, is thoroughly worth living for its experience and for its abundant rewards.—Pres. Porter.

Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love, and mercy on the thousands you come in contact with year by year; you will never be forgotten. No, your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as the stars of heaven.

A writer in the Evangelist, sketching the temperance cause in Tennessee and Texas, half a century since, tells of a Rev. Morrison, who introduced a resolution into the Holston Presbytery, as follows: "Inasmuch as such great harm is done by the traffic in ardent spirits, therefore,

Resolved, By this Presbytery, that we recommend that none but ruling elders be encouraged to manufacture and sell intoxicating drinks."

A recent German writer says: "The lark goes up singing towards heaven; but if she stops the motion of her wings then straightway she falls. So it is with him who prays not. Prayer is the movement of the wings of the soul: it bears one heavenward; but without prayer he sinks in the filth of earthly impulses."

The trial of faith is the greatest and heaviest of all trials. For faith it is which must conquer in all trials. Therefore, if faith gives way, then the smallest and most trifling temptations can overcome a man. But when faith is sound and true, then all other temptations must yield and be overcome.—Sayle.

A priest asked of a condemned criminal in a Paris jail: "What kind of a conscience have you?" "It is as good as new," replied the prisoner, "for I have never used it!"

The Comptroller General of Georgia, W. L. Goldsmith, was found guilty of misdemeanors and dismissed from office. The State Treasurer offered to refund money, appropriated to his own use, together with his resignation, but this was refused, and he is to be impeached.

In Rome was recently ordained a colored priest who was formerly a slave. He had suffered many indignities, and an Italian lady, learning his condition and character, purchased him and gave him his freedom. He was then sent to the Propaganda, and his ordination is the result. His field of work is Abyssinia, where he has been sent to labor among his own people.

Miss Rye, a noble Englishwoman, has just made her thirty-second voyage across the Atlantic with a cargo of "wastrels," or street-waifs —girls collected from the highways of London. These girls are taken to Canada and placed in respectable families, and, in almost every instance have obtained comfortable homes and led virtuous lives. The work has been carried on for about ten years.

There will be a goodly number of emigrants from this and adjoining counties that will leave here for the West on the 15th. If navigation per river is open they will charter a steamboat. There is now several feet of water on the shoals, and the probability is that there will be a good stage of water at that time. If so they will go by boat, as it is much cheaper than by rail.—Nashville Pilot.

Evidently the Government does not propose to have any weakening of the army in the event of the disaffection of any State or States in the future. Each candidate for a second lieutenancy, lately examined at Washington, was asked, by direction of the Secretary of War, to fully explain his conceptions of the obligations assumed on entering the army; whether he believed in a right of secession, and whether, in case of a conflict between his State and the nation, he would follow his State or regard his allegiance to the nation as paramount.

President W. W. Hooper wrote that Shaw University, Holly Springs, Miss., would open Sept. 18th, instead of October 2d, as previously announced.

Not one of the morning dailies of New Orleans would publish the address of the Republican State Central committee of Louisiana, even as a paid advertisement. That address was a moderate document. The purpose was to deprive it of general circulation. Nowhere else do we believe would such intolerance be manifested.

Mr. Lodge will next review Von Holst's History of the United States in the October number of the International Review. In the same number, Dr. James R. Chadwick will have an article on "The Study and Practice of Medicine by Women," a question attracting the notice of medical men. Mr. G. Barnett Smith, author of the forthcoming life of "Gladstone," will review Mr. Blackmore's novels. His review will be the first considerable attempt to account for the success of this new and popular novelist. M. Talandier, Deputy in the French Assembly, will contribute a paper on the political situation in France; and other articles will be valuable and timely on the "Negro Exodus," "Protection and Socialism."

Gen. Grant arrived in San Francisco by the steamer City of Tokio on the 21st. The Governor and other officials, and the populace gave a most hearty welcome. Almost every flagstaff flags were waved, the shipping was festooned with bunting, and from the forts in the bay artillery thundered salutations lighted up with Gen. Grant took a carriage for his quarters, proceeding to the Palace Hotel, the procession being forty feet high, and bore the inscription "Welcome to Grant." All along the Pacific coast home from the people showed every demonstration of love and welcome to General and Mrs. Grant, who have honored and of heroes received the like of no man before awarded to the South. The Value of Life.

"Is Life Worth Living?" is the title of a somewhat remarkable book recently published by William H. Mallock, in which he shows that modern rationalism which discards the Bible, takes away the highest incentives to living, and makes life, for those who believe its doctrines, a poor, barren, unsatisfactory thing. He shows that the teaching of Mr. Huxley and others of his school, that a divinely given and revealed law of duty is not necessary to virtue, is utterly absurd, and that man's nature is so corrupt that without what he calls "a supernatural judgment" before his mind, he is certain to plunge into the lowest vices, and "work all uncleanness with greediness." And then, when the fires of passion are burnt out, and the infatuation with worldly and vicious pleasures (which for a time deluded him into the belief that life was worth living for these things) is followed by satiety and disgust, the man without faith in God and hope for the future becomes a miserable wreck, to whom life has no significance or value. Without religion, life ultimately becomes a burthen. Even the "joy in the mere act of living, in exercising the bodily functions, and in appeasing the bodily appetites," is diminished by the loss of religion. "It will not lose its existence, but it will lose its zest. The fabric of its pleasures will, of course, remain; but its brightest inhabitants will have left it." The book is a most forcible portraiture of the utter emptiness and desolation of life produced by the lack of faith in God, in virtue and in the future, and confirms the Apostle's declaration, "If in this life only we have hopes, we are of all men most miserable."

There are no adequate compensations in life, if the Bible is not true. Every thoughtful man may say without cynicism or misanthropy, that separate from its relations to a future state of existence, and as affording time and opportunity to prepare for external blessedness, this life is not worth living. The Epicurian creed, "Let us eat, drink and be merry, for to-morrow we die," is most dismal. We cannot be merry, if to-morrow we die, never to live again. The supposition that we could, degrades us to the level of the brutes. We do not say there is no happiness, in a mere animal existence, but we do say there is no blessedness in it for men. For we are created in the image of God, and have affections, aspirations and desires which reach beyond the low, fleeting pleasures of animalhood, and indicate that we can only find the perfection of our being and blessedness in eternal union and communion with God. Being created in the image of God, we must have God-like pleasures. Having lost that image we must regain it, or be forever miserable. It is because of the inborn and inalienable consciousness that we were created for a higher destiny, and pleasures than can be found in things of time and sense, that we never can find satisfaction in them.

This life, then, derives its great value and significance from the fact that it is a probation for eternity. There is an inward conviction in the hearts of most men, based on the indubitable truth of God's Word, in which life and immortality are brought to light, that "If a man die, he shall live again." And this conviction is strengthened by the instinctive demands of our nature for a future existence. There has never yet been a people discovered that had not some notion of a future life, and some desire for it.

"Whence springs this pleasing hope, This soul-chilling, this longing after immortality? Or whence this secret dread, this inward horror of falling into naught? [illegible] the soul back upon herself, [illegible] at destruction? [illegible] that stire within us; Heaven itself that points out an hereafter, [illegible] vacuity to man."

Our belief in a future life gives the belief that it is a state of happiness, and therefore [illegible] that this life [illegible] preparation for a better, by acquiring [illegible] here. And to those who by their [illegible] beliefs, and [illegible] there is an infinite [illegible] those who by [illegible] deny a future life, [illegible] this life [illegible] an other, and [illegible] to make [illegible] is [illegible] work.

The [illegible] has the sure hope and prospect before him of eternal blessedness, has in his soul a constant well-spring of delight. He is not only prepared to be happy in prosperity, but has that which will sustain and comfort and render happy his soul, in adversity. And this is the inestimable compensation of a firm religious faith, not only that it makes the blessings of this life more blessed, but panoplies the soul for the trials which must inevitably come to all men, and which are intolerable without the supports of faith.

We say, then, that without faith in the future, without God or hope in the world, life is not worth living. The practical question is, Are we making the proper use of life? And have we the hope of heaven to cheer us amidst its trials? If so, we have reason to bless God that we live, because our present life is the beginning of an existence that shall never end.

You will say "This is a dark picture, but it is truth. I hope our ministry will be sound as well as the membership to live up to our discipline. But when young men enter the ministry and find the discipline to be a dead letter, it is hard work to stem the tide." What one finds in his way does anybody else find the same, and leave matters as he has found them for ten years. We hope not. "In my ten years of ministry, I have not found a school organized into a missionary society and I find it exceedingly difficult to do so myself for several reasons. 1. It has not been practiced before, hence hard to introduce. 2. The question of collecting money in the school for the purpose is opposed because the official Boards are afraid it will affect the church finances. 3. The superintendents and teachers are listless in regard to it. 4. I find now and then a touchy superintendent, or one who has been in office so long that he is a block in the way. 5. I have never found one elected according to the discipline, but in open school. Hence the whole burden of organizing and pushing against all this opposition falls on the preacher, making him come continually in conflict with the official Board, which is not pleasant."

Bishop Keener, of the Church South, writes from Kansas to the Nashville Advocate: "Many persons, quite indifferent to our Church, will contribute to the first party that solicits aid in this direction, merely because they look upon churches as necessary to the development of a neighborhood or town. The colored man as yet makes no figure in Kansas. Here on the bottoms of the great streams are millions of bushels of corn; twelve bushels of it would bread a colored refugee for twelve months, at a cost of fifty cents a bushels—say one dollar and eighty cents a year. Still, with all this corn and all the sympathy they can muster, and with large providential openings for doing good, there is no ethusiasm in this direction. I have been talking of the good things in store for them in the exodus—the comforts, the service, the easily directed, not to say controlled, votes: it made no impression upon men who have been raised to help themselves."

A Letter from Oxford.

DEAR EDITOR — A protracted meeting of two weeks session closed with great success. We were made to rejoice over twenty-three souls converted to God. Juliet Wiley, an old lady who for the last thirty years has felt the heavy burden of sin, and has been seeking for restoration, was happily converted to Christ.

At the close of our meeting an invitation was offered to those who wished to join our church. Twenty-two came forward, which made us feel that our labor was not in vain. We are glad to say our last spring converts are still striving for the kingdom of heaven. We have about thirty of them to receive in full fellowship. Ten of them came from a Baptist meeting which was held at this place. We have eight full members who came from other churches. Our Sabbath-school is doing splendidly, and we had a Sabbath-school picnic and a concert in July, which was largely attended. The day passed off quietly, and was enjoyed by all. Times are very hard here, and have been all the summer, but we are striving to bring up our yearly collections. A large number of citizens of this county are preparing to go to Kansas; several have already gone. Our congregation is improving.

Yours fraternally,

SAM'L A. COWAN.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

LOUISIANA.

Rev. F. Christian preached last week in the Sixth Street M. E. Church. His text was taken from the 39th chapter of Job, 18th verse. He preached partly in the African tongue (Morocco) which greatly pleased his hearers.

S. Evans, Morgan City: "We are getting along very well here. The church is on the increase, and the Sabbath school has 30 to 35 in attendance, organized as a missionary society. The fearful storm on the 1st destroyed 5 colored churches, on both sides of the bay, but one church was not injured. It is out of debt. Methodism is spreading here."

H. Green: "I was bred and born in Montgomery county, in the neighborhood of Rocksville, Maryland. At the age of 12 years I joined the M. E. Church, and have remained in it until now. I was about the age of thirteen, and was called to preach the Gospel, and have been working at it up to this day. I came to this State in 1830, and from that time to 1853 I served three masters, and they were all wealthy men of this State, had white wives and children by them, and colored women and children by them; and their sons had colored women also, and no one was killed about it. I see so much in the papers about abuse of persons of both races who marry, that I think the white race ought to set an example of purity that we might follow it. They should follow the Bible commands, and do unto others as they would have others do unto them."

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Rev. V. A. Bulkley, P. E. Columbia District, reports a good work in progress, giving statistics for the four months closing with Aug. 31. Number of adults baptized, 110; infants baptized, 265; received into full membership, 183; joined on probation, 782; joined by letter, 62; removed by letter, 4; deaths, 51; expelled, 27; conversions, 137. We have collected for self-support as follows: For support of pastors, $479 50; for building and improving churches, etc., $490 85; and for missions, $12 65. There have been four new churches dedicated and three nearly completed this quarter. The times are hard with us, but we are trying to do all we can towards keeping up the work and supporting the preachers. But the best of all is God is with us and souls are being born again. Our Sunday-school work is living and prospering in most places, and we are doing all we can to build it up."

MISSISSIPPI.

A. J. Thompson, Hazelhurst: "We had a glorious time at our twelve day's camp meeting, and 5 accessions and 7 converts."

H. Cawthorn, Brookville: "During protracted meeting there were 10 conversions, 11 adult baptisms Three Sunday-schools have 125 pupils in all."

C. W. Ivy, Shuqualak: "I have just closed a protracted meeting at this place, which resulted in one convert, and one backslider returned. Six joined on probation. The Baptist minister at this place labored with me three or four nights with much love. This is a hard place. Pray for us."

TEXAS.

J. C. Mays, Austin: "I am now going to school in this place."

Peter Thompson, Quitman circuit: "Have just completed our new church house at Quitman, 40x30. Opened meeting therein Aug. 30. Accessions to the church 16. We are still scattering the seed all through the circuit and praying God will bless the work."

P. Carmichael, Fayetteville: "At Smyrna I have about 55 members; at Fayetteville 13. They are doing well, notwithstanding much opposition from Baptists in the vicinity. My quarterly conference passed off nicely. Rev. E. E. Gates, of La Grange, presided. Some of our Baptist brethren partook with us."

TENNESSEE.

Rev. T. C. Carter, president of Tullahoma College, Tenn., will visit the North in the interests of that college and of education among Southern whites in connection with the M. E. Church. The McMinnville district conference heartily commend him to the lovers of Christian education in the North.

The ninth annual report of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, shows 2,172 auxiliaries, 55,560 members; increase of members for the year 4,683. Receipts for the year $66,842.76. Eleven missionaries sent out. The society is supporting forty day schools, four orphanages, three hospitals, five dispensaries, nine boarding schools, and 150 native teachers and assistants. The plans contemplate a strong advance movement at home and abroad. The Heather Woman's Friend is the monthly organ of the society.

New Orleans University.

The fall term of the New Orleans University will open the first Monday in October. The University is situated on the corner of Camp and Race streets, and being near the central part of the city, it offers better opportunities for attending than any other school of the kind. A full number of able and competent teachers have been employed, and all necessary arrangements made for thorough and efficient work. The coming school year is more promising of accomplishing great good than any other before. To all who have the interests of the educational work at heart, I make a most earnest appeal for prompt action in working for this school. Let no one delay in putting forth every exertion at once to secure a large attendance. To all former pupils, let me say, Lose not a day without speaking to some one upon this subject. See to it that no one who may be likely to attend fails to receive your attention. A personal visit, an earnest plea in behalf of education, explaining the great importance of the work may do worlds of good. Should you thus be able to secure the attendance of but one who otherwise would have remained away, that one may be the means of rescuing multitudes from a life of ruin and woe.

Let all pupils, both old and new, be present the first day of the term. One of the greatest difficulties in our work heretofore has been in commencing without a full attendance. By missing one week at the beginning, when classes in new studies are formed, a student falls behind his class, and thus meets with embarrassments which he is never able to overcome, the entire term becomes a drudge to him. He works very hard and accomplishes but little—sometimes merely nothing.

Ministers, speak of this subject to your congregations. Do not delay the matter. Preach upon the great importance of our educational work. In every sermon remind parents of their great duty to educate their children. Make frequent visits among your people, and insist upon it that they must accept the offers of an education while it is so fully extended to them, warning them of the great danger that God will hold them responsible for slighting this opportunity.

During the year—two years ago—in which I was connected with this school, I formed many and lasting friendships among the pupils. Now, let me invite you all to call at the University building and see me. I desire very much to talk to you concerning our approaching work. Come at once. Do not delay. I shall warmly greet you. We have a great and important work before us. I am fully aware of some difficulties in the way, but God is with us, and if we only trust to Him and unite our efforts, our labors must be rewarded with abundant success. "Work and pray." Let that be the watchword for every one. God does not hear the prayer of the indolent. It is only when we do our part—all that we can do—that he hears and answers our prayers. He has promised to do this, and if we are faithful to our trust, he is as certain to answer our petitions as he has promised to hear them Again I invite one and all to call at the University building and see me. I shall also take pleasure in answering any letters addressed to me at 188 Race street, giving all information sought.

A Baptist council is to meet in Donaldsonville, says the Chief, to investigate charges of misbehavior against Rev. Spencer Roberson. The New Orleans Evangelist, in relation to the affair, says some excellent things about lightly esteeming the work of ordaining men for the Christian ministry.

Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, New Orleans, has been visiting New York and Ocean Grove. He is to visit several Conferences in the interest of our Freedmen's Aid Society this month and next. His personal observations of our work in the South will be interesting.—Philadelphia Christian Standard.

Letter from Holly Springs.

DEAR EDITOR—The third quarterly conference for Asbury Chapel on the 15th inst. was one of the most pleasant ever held here. On Sunday morning, after the usual exercises in the classes were over, our superintendent, Bro. F. P. Hill, called upon the presiding elder, Rev. J. G. Johnson, to address the Sabbath-school, which he did in a speech of great beauty and eloquence, there being an unusually large number of both old and young present. His address was just what the people wanted to hear—a few words from the promised land, (Kansas.) His description of what he had seen in Kansas, his private interview with Gov. St. John, the great temperance camp-meeting at Denver Grove, where he met and was introduced by Mr. Murphy to an audience of more than 10,000 people, was listened to with marked attention.

At the 11 o'clock service a number of the probationers' time having expired, the list of names from the church record was called by the recording steward, Samuel Bolton. Thirty-one came forward and stood around the altar, renewed their solemn promise contained in the baptismal covenant ratifying and confirming the same, and acknowledging themselves bound faithfully to observe and keep that covenant. In testimony of our Christian affection and the cordiality with which we received them, the right hand of fellowship was extended amid shouts and praises to God. May they be faithful and useful members of the church militant till they are called to the fellowship of the church triumphant, which is "without fault before the throne of God."

The presiding elder preached at 3 o'clock p. m., from the text, "Thy will be done." The congregation pronounced the sermon his best effort ever made in Asbury. A handsome collection was taken up and the sacrament was administered to more than 200 communicants. Our quarterly love-feast on Monday afternoon was a refreshing outpouring of the Holy Spirit, upon the congregation from the presence of the Lord. On Tuesday morning the presiding elder left for Byhalia, being greatly pleased with the spirituality of our church. The old members say the church was never in better condition.

During the quarter one of our most honored and oldest members, Bro. Isaac Fogg, died September 4, 1879, in great peace, praising the name of Jesus. Bro. Fogg was loved by all who knew him. In his death the community has lost a worthy citizen and our church a faithful member. Age, 80 years.

Financial Plan of Visitation.

DEAR BRETHREN—I will visit your charges in the interest of our Conference School. I trust you will aid me in making it a blessing to yourselves and to your children. I intend to make my visits as evangelistic as possible. Many ladies and gentlemen have promised me $5 and $10 donations when I came around this fall. Please meet me with cash and I shall acknowledge the same in our friendly and interesting messenger, the SOUTHWESTERN. Our Conference School commenced the second Monday in September. Prof. G. C. Richardson and his able assistants are in fine spirits. Some pupils have already arrived from abroad and entered the School; others have notified us to spare space for them. This is our school, brethren. We sadly need it just where it is, etc. Our friends from abroad will please aid us by making liberal donations. A little timely aid will ensure success At present we are oppressed and depressed. Any aid sent to Rev. S. Gates, treasurer, glass box 220½; or to M. Henson, financial agent, glass box 275½, will be duly acknowledged and be rightly applied. We commence with Lockhart, Sept. 27-28; Luling, Oct. 4 5; Gonzales, Oct. 11-12; San Antonio, Oct. 18-19; Sequin, Oct. 22; Round Rock, Nov. 5; Georgetown, Nov. 6; Belton, Nov. 8-9; Port Sullivan, Nov. 12; Milam Grove, Nov. 13; Calvert Nov. 15-16; Bremond, Nov. 19; Milam and Big Creek, Nov. 21-23; Waco and Waco Mission, from Nov. 27 to Dec. 1. The Seaman's Bethel (up town), in charge of A. J. Witherspoon, has been greatly improved, and an addition completed and paid for. The two rooms, aggregating 141 feet in length, will accommodate a large audience. Services began on Sunday evening to 7:30. The reading room opened on Monday, and as the ships come in entertainments will be devised for sailors' evening amusement.

The City.

Judge Henry C. Dibble has instituted a suit for libel and $25,000 damages, against the Picayune newspaper, in the U. S. Circuit Court. The Picayune said that on the 14th of September Judge Dibble fired on and killed an unarmed, crippled reporter (J. M. West), from a window of the Customhouse. This is the libel upon the character of the Judge, which he resents in a highly appropriate manner. The prominence of Judge Dibble as a Republican, is the only explainable cause of a malicious use of this attack, often repeated by the city press, and it is hoped that it be may effectually silenced.

A very strong movement has begun to make Gen. Fred N Ogden commander of the White Leagne on Sept. 14, 1874, the next Governor of the State. The friends of Lieut. Gov. Wiltz are somewhat surprised at the sudden growth in popularity of the new candidate for Democratic honors, as the field seemed clear. When Mr. Wiltz was mayor of the city, his position in regard to the White Leagoe uprising was subjected to much Bourbon criticism, and his proclamation on Sept. 15th, the day after the fight, landing the men who had overthrown the government from which he had obtained his commission, created some merriment among the Ogden men on guard throughout the city. There are many who look upon Mr. Wiltz as the evil genius of Gov. Nicholl's administration. The canvass for the governorship they say begun immediately after his defeat in Baton Rouge, resulting in the convention agitation, and a new constitution to abridge Gov. Nicholls term of office. It would be a strange misadventure, therefore, if Gen. Ogden and his friends should carry off the prize so nearly within reach of Mr. Wiltz.

QUARTERLY REVIEW.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

The lessons of the quarter are of such an abstract and doctrinal character that many of its teachings have slipped out of the grasp of the memory of the scholars. Care and time should be spent in reviewing. The following scheme will be of great help in fixing the main points of the lessons in the memory, and contains the principal teachings. It would be well to take this scheme up at the very beginning of this month, so that the scholars may get the benefit of a few week's drill upon this plan before review day comes.

THE CHRISTIAN'S TRIUMPHS:

1. Over Sin: "Being justified by faith." Over Tribulations: "Glorying in tribulation." Over Wrath: "We shall be saved from wrath."

2. Over all Circumstances: "All things work together for good." Over all Enemies: "If God be for us, who—against us?" Over all Evils. "We are more than conquerors."

3. Over Discouragements: "Beareth all things," "believeth," "endureth." Over Imperfections: "Then face to face."

4. Over Corruption: "This corruption—put on incorruption." Over Death: "Death is swallowed up in victory."

THE CHRISTIAN'S DUTIES:

5. To Christ: Should live "unto him who dies for us." To the World: "We are embassadors for Christ."

6. In fruit-bearing: "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy," etc. Toward other Christians: "Bear ye one another's burdens." Toward Himself: "Let every man prove his own works." "He that soweth to his flesh," etc.

7. In Regard to Strength: "Be strong in the Lord." With Regard to Armor: "Put on the whole armor of God." With Relation to Prayer: "Praying always with all prayer."

8. In Regard to Each Other: "Be like-minded." "Let nothing be done through strife." In Relation to Christ. "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." In Relation to Self: "Work out your own salvation," etc.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE:

9. Based on Service: "Let the word of Christ dwell in you." "Do all in the name of the Lord." Based on Knowledge: "Knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of—inheritance."

10. For them who are Asleep: "Sorrow not even as others which have no hope." For the Lord's Coming: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven," etc. For the Living: "Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up, etc."

Strength and decision can live and make live where a moment's faltering will kill.

Foreign Missions.

CHINA.—Superintendent Lowry sends his Quarterly Report from Peking. Steady progres is manifest and a sign of striking instance in one case. The native Christians erect church and school accommodations at their own instance. During the quarter I have visited all our work except the Taiau circuit. There have been few accessions to the charges in the cities. In the southern city in Peking there are some signs of promise. The audiences have been good, and some names have been entered on probation. Miss Porter has had some encouragement in her work among the women. She has started a day school for girls, with a native woman of good ability for teacher. At the last meeting twenty-one pupils were present. The work on the Nanking circuit—the most unfruitful of our country circuits—has made some advancement. At the visit of Bro. Davis and myself three persons were baptized and received in the church, and three were taken on probation. The work on this circuit has suffered for want of efficient native help. The Tsang Chou circuit, under charge of Bro. Davis, is in a prosperous condition. He received twenty on probation while we were there. In one village the members have fitted up a small chapel or class-room at their own expense. The native helper had been invited to two new villages about ten miles distant, by some persons interested in the doctrine. I have not learned the result of his visit, but hope it will prove to be new openings for the Gospel. Wang Chungpei, from the Taian circuit, has been to Peking to escort his mother and sisters to their home. He reports interest at one or two points on the circuit. Two entire families, numbering altogether ten or twelve persons, are awaiting the visit of the missionary to enter the church. Bro. Chen has not been as energetic in prosecuting the work on the Tsunhua circuit as we hoped he would be, and yet has not been idle. Two new centers have been found, with every prospect of permanency. About thirty persons have been received on probation. Two adults and one child have been baptized. In one of the villages the most influential and wealthy man of the place is much interested in the truth, but is kept from uniting with the church by strong family and social opposition. He is very friendly to the Christians, and privately furnished the means for the entertainment of the preachers when there to conduct the services. The members of all the mission families are well. All except Bro. Pilcher's, and the young ladies are now at the Hills. Rain has fallen in abundance in this region, but other sections are still dry."

BULGARIA.—A young man, a Bulgarian, who spent several years in this country at our academies, and at Drew Seminary, is now in the Financial Department of the new government of his native country. He says in relation to the religious condition of the people: "They like to hear preaching and to examine our books, and they are becoming more friendly towards the protestants. The private secretaries of the prince here and at Sophia are young men educated in Robert College, and in the General Assembly at Tirnova there were not less than forty men educated in Robert College, which is considered as an American Missionary Institution."

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates.

Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D.

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price $1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics, delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly, forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workmen who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

THE ROBBINS
FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER
AGENTS WANTED.

We bespeak for this article the careful perusal of every intelligent person into whose hands this paper may fall. It should carry great weight with house-keepers and MEN WHO ARE LOOKING FOR A BUSINESS which will pay. To such the chance now offered is seldom equalled—never excelled.

In bringing this article before the public, it becomes necessary to take into consideration which is yet so imperfectly understood. Having had a lifelong experience in the laundry business, in connection with first-class hotels, public laundries, asylums, hospitals, etc., we know whereof we speak. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam wash boilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, viz: The saving of labor, the wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration; all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask all washerwomen and house-keepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow grease," or in other words, plenty of hard laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No; to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be the most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is a hundred per cent. greater.

READ WHAT OTHERS SAY.

From FRANK FLOWER, Eatontown, N. J., Jan. 30, 1878.

* * Your Robbins Washer has preserved my clothes from the remorseless washboard and the ruthless scrubbing and rubbing of the washerwoman fiend. No longer is washday the most dreaded of the week, as, thanks to the Robbins Washer, our washday is free from manual labor and unpleasantness incident thereto, and I hope your sales may extend until every household is blessed with the Robbins Washer. One thing I can assure you, that if she could not procure another, I do not think money could buy from my wife her washer. She has used it three years, and likes it better every washing day. Rest assured I shall always speak for my friend, the Washer, on each and every opportunity.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking and housework are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking while the housewife does her housework.

The following extract from a private letter written by a lady to her sister in this city, who had sent her a Washer:

* * * Mr. — is home, and he is about the garden just as he was last Summer, and works right up against his clothes just as father does. He dirties four shirts a week, as black as dirt. We never could get them clean in the world if it were not for the Washer. We did not wash yesterday, and this morning I have been doing up all kinds of chores, while the washing does itself. It is just wonderful!

Last Saturday morning I told Em. we would make our fire do double duty, so we put all the three-bere' sheets in the boiler, and after them seven long roller towels, and as many tea towels, and when we got our baking done they were all clean. You have not forgotten how dirty hired men make sheets and towels. I think everybody would have to have workmen's shirts, sheets and towels to appreciate it.

I told Em. I hoped no one would ask us to lend again, for what would we do if it gave out, I can't tell.

I now have a Washer in my kitchen that cost $45, but was laid aside because it was harder work to operate it than to do the washing with the washboard. If I could not get another of the Washers and Bleachers I could not afford to sell mine for $20. Every other kind of work goes on at the same time. * *

All who have tried steam wash boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water-force is what removes dirt from the fibres of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution, while steam will not remove dirt. It is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature, it causes the fabric to contract, which shuts in, or as our housewives say, "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings, and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER

embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which causes a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are three sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants, barber-shops, boarding-houses, etc.; No. 3, or steam power-washer, into which is conducted, through a ½-inch pipe, live steam from the steam boiler, from which is obtained the power for driving the water. This washer takes the place of machinery in pieces where steam power is used in the laundries.

The Washer is composed of metal, and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 lbs., and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide, and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge pipe is 13 inches high over that, and 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid unbroken stream at the rate of 10 to 12 gallons per minute. It will work in any family boiler. It takes only three or four ounces of soap to 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed and table linen a boiler full in ten to fifteen minutes, wearing apparel in from twenty to thirty minutes, and will remove all streaks without any rubbing; requires no previous preparation of clothes, such as soaking over night, etc. We take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets thoroughly at work, we fill the boiler as full as it will hold, by gently pressing them down with a stick. We use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard, it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

For LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

The No. 2, or small hotel size, will do the work in a boiler four times the size of the common family boiler, and wash of average pieces from 1,500 to 2,000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler. They will work in anything that has a flat bottom large enough for them to rest upon.

For hospitals this washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabric as pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics and scientific men generally it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics or water force ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics that has ever been known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER is this: We have five pounds of metal, which attains a much greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube; thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of the same prevent its flowing backward; and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus, we get a combination. First, we have the desired heat. Second, perfect chemical action of the soap. Third, force of water—all of which are required to thoroughly cleanse and purify any fabric.

THE IMPROVED WASHER.

The Improved Washer has a perfect fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting animal or vegetable matter or discoloration from the various fibres which constitute all our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solutions of chloride of lime; third, solutions of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water; then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now, the question arises, Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—Poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

We have endeavored to set forth as explicitly as possible the merits of our Washer and the mode of operating it. And as it is much easier to answer inquiries here, we transcribe a few of the more common

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q. What kind of boiler do you use?

Ans. Any kind of boiler that has a flat bottom 5½x8 inches will do.

Q. How can you have a flow of water at the rate of ten or twelve gallons per minute in a boiler holding only eight or ten gallons?

Ans. The same water is used over and over again; and in order to be thus used it must pass down through and through the fabric, and this with the soap and heat is what does the business.

Q. How can you use a large quantity of water in a boiler already full of clothes?

Ans. We first fill the boiler two-thirds full of water; as soon as the washer commences to work, we put in the clothes dry.

Q. Can you wash flannels and colored clothes?

Ans. We wash anything that can be washed. Flannels and colored clothes need but little soap and from five to ten minutes of the full operation of the Washer. Flannel should be rinsed in HOT water. It is the change from BOILING to COLD water that contracts the fibre, causing them to shrink. Any FULLER will tell you this is so. Fugitive prints will part with their colors by this or any other process, but fast colors will not be injured. It is not best, as every good housekeeper knows, to use strong soap or alkalies in washing colored goods. Many prints and other colored fabrics have some kind of ACID as a base, and if alkalies are used strong enough to destroy this acid, the fabric will part with its color. This is why English scarlets, which will not fade in the sun, or by ordinary washing, are ruined by STRONG soaps. These facts are worth remembering by the inexperienced housekeeper.

Q. Can you use the common soft soap of the farm-house?

Ans. Yes, if good.

Q. Is it not better to put very dirty clothes to soak over night? Ans. No.

Q. Will your machine remove the streaks from dirty wristbands and collars, such as farmers and mechanics wear, after having been worn a whole week, as they usually are? Will not these require extra care in rinsing? Ans. The Washer will cleanse the dirtiest clothing. Give the clothes a thorough rinsing.

Q. We sometimes find a whitish scum on top of the water. What is the cause of this? Ans. Your water is HARD. When soap is added to hard water a chemical change takes place. Certain substances in the water having an affinity for the alkali of the soap, unite with it, thus setting FREE other substances; these are PRECIPITATED and fall to the bottom, or rise to the surface in the form of a whitish scum, according as their specific gravity is greater or less than that of water. This is why it is impossible to cleanse fabrics with hard water. Hard water may be softened by the use of borax or sal-soda. Pure rain water is best for ANY method of washing.

Q. How can it be possible for so simple a thing to cleanse fabrics? Ans. If you will study the PHILOSOPHY of the Washer, carefully and intelligently, for a few moments, and consider what is required to remove dirt from clothing, you will ask, "How is it possible for it NOT to cleanse fabrics?" A gentleman writing to us upon this point, says: "I must own that when I first saw your Washer, I was utterly incredulous as to its cleansing powers. My family were still more so. In fact, they had no faith in washers of any kind; but being strongly urged by a friend who had used your machine successfully, I concluded to try one. We made the first trial with a good many misgivings. I fact, I could not see how so simple a thing COULD wash clothing. But when I saw the water pouring out from the discharge pipe at the rate of 10 or 12 gallons per minute, and when I reflected that this amount of water must pass through the clothes twenty or thirty times in the course of an ordinary wash, my doubts began to give way. I saw that there was both philosophy and common sense in the process, and that it was impossible that it should NOT prove effective. I am now a firm believer in the Washer, and trust it will find a place, as it deserves, in every household."

Q. Will you send a Washer C. O. D. to my address? Ans. We do not send Washers C. O. D. It only costs the sender 10 cents for a registered letter or money order, which can be sent at our risk.

We send sample Washers by express, and guarantee all packages to be delivered to our customers at their nearest express office. We pack securely in a strong box, and invariably send notice of shipment.

WILL YOUR WASHER DO ALL YOU CLAIM FOR IT?

(This Question Comes to Us Oftener than Any Other.) Answer—Stop and think, and you will readily see that we must sell more than Sample Washers in order to make our business profitable to us. Consider the cost of manufacture, rents, printing and office expenses, and prepaying expressage on Samples, and this fact is derived. We must depend entirely for our profits upon the sales made by those who first send for a Sample Washer, and after trying it and convincing themselves, become our Agents. If it were not "All We Claim For It," could we sell more than a sample to a person?

INDISPUTABLE EVIDENCE.

WELLS RIVER, Orange Co., Vt., Mch. 21, '79. Messrs. Bissell Manufacturing Company, 42 Murray street, New York:

I enclose $3.50, for which please send me, express paid, one of your No. 1 Washers, per your ad. in N. Y. Weekly Witness of March 20. I propose to give it a thorough trial, and if it is all you claim for it, which I have no reason to doubt, I think seriously of taking a general agency for several counties in this vicinity.

GENTLEMEN: Sample Washer received Gives good satisfaction in my family. Trust I may be able to send you an order for a dozen soon, and take general agency for a county. Hastily, A. W. JONES.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 12, 1879.

Bissell Manufacturing Company, New York.

GENTLEMEN: I trust you will excuse me for troubling you with the first difficulty which arises with me in undertaking to introduce your Washer in this place. I wrote you a week ago, saying that it gave good satisfaction, and now say more. The third time using it to-day in my family, having become conversant with it, we could do anything we chose almost, and in most satisfactory manner, washing flannels and all. But to-day (later) a lady has used it who says (the clothes being very dirty, the collars, etc., having been saturated with sweat) that the clothes have yellow streaks in them, and that she believes that the continued use of the Washer will cause the clothes to become yellow beyond reparation. I cannot find but that she used the Washer according to directions. Can you not give me some testimonials which touch directly upon that point, and a list of names of some who have used the machine a year or more, to whom I may write in regard to the matter? My only excuse for writing this is that I am interested to have the Washer proved to be what I myself believe it to be—"a success." Very respectfully,

A. W. JONES, Wells River, Orange Co.

P. S.—Have seen the lady again, and she admits the clothes had become yellow by a careless servant and hard water. Would like the testimonials just the same however. The letters asked for were sent.

Hope I may get the above dozen by last of the week by express. Hastily,

GENTLEMEN: I return to you herewith letters of testimonial sent me in yours of the 15th instant, for which please accept my thanks. Having explained the correct theory of cleaning fabrics, and shown by our description, and the testimony of people who are using, that the principle of the Washer and Bleacher embodies the above theory, we ask you to take particular notice of

THE INDUCEMENTS WE OFFER.

We want a Local Agent in every town in the United States. We know from past and present experience that reliable, energetic men can make money selling the Washer and Bleacher in any community.

We want first-class men as GENERAL AGENTS; men capable of managing one or more Counties.

To such men we give a duly executed LICENSE.

We furnish descriptive circulars for distribution among families. Also large posters for advertising in public places.

We also furnish INSTRUCTIONS TO GENERAL AGENTS which enable them to handle their territory to the best advantage.

The retail price of the No Washer is $3 50; No. 2 Washer, $5; No. 3, or Power Washer, $50. Special terms to Agents for No. 3 Washer.

TERMS TO GENERAL AGENTS.

No. 1, $24 per dozen; No. 2, $36 per dozen. For $50 we will send twenty-seven No. 1 Washers. For $100 we will send fifty-five No. 1 Washers. These large orders enable General Agents to save on freights.

SAMPLE WASHERS.

In States east of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, also in Kansas and Nebraska, we will deliver at your nearest Railway Express office, CHARGES PREPAID. Sample No. 1 Washer, $3.50. Sample No. 2 Washer, $5. We will deliver prepaid a No. 1 Washer in Dakota, at Bismarck or Yankton, for $3.50; in Wyoming, at Cheyenne, for $3.50; in Idaho, at Franklin City, for $4.50; in Colorado, at Denver or Pueblo, for $4; in New Mexico, at Santa Fe, $5; in Arizona, at Prescott, for $8 50; in Utah, at Ogden, for $4; in Nevada, at Virginia City, for $5; in Louisiana, at New Orleans, for $3.50; in Arkansas, at Little Rock, for $3 50; in Texas, at Corsicana, for $4.50; at Texarkana, Denison or Sherman, for $3.50. For the Pacific Coast we will deliver No. 1 at San Francisco, Sacramento, Marysville or San Jose for $4. Our reason for so doing is to induce people to investigate this matter, feeling sure that a trial will secure an Agent for us.

Any Agent who will place this Washer in families can sell one in almost every instance, upon a trial of it. The great saving in time, labor and material and the extreme low price of the Washer brings it within the reach of all. It cannot get out of order. It does the work rapidly and well. These points commend it to every one. Send for a sample; try it; show it to your friends; get their orders, and if you wish to secure a county or town, don't delay, but let us hear from you at once. Remember the old maxim, "First come, first served."

In territory where there are no Agencies established, to persons desiring a Washer for their own use, we will deliver the same, CHARGES PREPAID, on receipt of price as stated above. You can readily determine when there is an Agency established, as Posters will be put up in conspicuous places, and Circulars distributed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Before writing for further information read carefully the following:

The above contains all the information we can possibly impart to you. The principle and merits of the Washer, and testimony of those who are using it. All that our printed Circulars contain is here laid before you.

We do this to avoid the necessity of sending out circulars, or answering letters of inquiry. Those ordering direct from this advertisement will be dealt with strictly as stated above. We give to such, by prepaying Expressage upon their Washers, the full benefit of what we would otherwise expend in circulars, stationary, postage and labor, the cost of which in the aggregate is enormous.

As to the reliability of this Company, we refer you to the notice in another column of the Editor of this paper. Also to the MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK of this city, or to any Express Company in New York.

In ordering, write plainly your name, Post-office, County and State. Also the name of the Express office to which you wish the Washer forwarded. Strange as it may seem, some people who usually write a very good hand spell their names in Chinese, or some other language unknown to the average office clerk, and some even forget to write their names at all.

Cash must accompany all orders. Remit by Post-office Order or Registered Letter, at our risk. We insure the safe delivery of all Washers ordered as above. Money may also be sent by Draft on New York. Address BISSELL MAN'F'G CO., 50 Barclay St., New York.

When you order mention this paper.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

Rules of Evidence:

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 311 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

* * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

CHILDREN'S JOYS.

The children's world is full of sweet surprise;
Our common things are precious in their sight;
For them the stars shine, and the morning rises
To show new treasures of untold delight;

A dance of bluebells in the shady places;
A crimson flush of sunset in the west;
The cobwebs, delicate as fairy laces;
The sudden finding of a wood-bird's nest.

Their hearts and lips are full of simple praises
To Him who made the earth divinely sweet;
They dwell among the buttercups and daisies,
And find his blessings strewn about their feet.

But we, worn out by days of toil and sorrow,
And sick of pleasures that are false and vain,
Would freely give our golden hoards to borrow
One little hour of childhood's bliss again.

Yet He who sees their joy, beholds our sadness;
And in the wisdom of a Father's love
He keeps the secret of the heavenly gladness:
Our sweet surprises wait for us above.
—Sarah Doudney, in Sunday Magazine.

It Stings.

"How pretty," cried little Sam, as his little fat hand grasped a bunch of white lilac which grew near the gate of his father's mansion. The next moment the child's face grew red with terror, and he dashed the lilac to the ground, shrieking, "It stings! it stings!"

What made it sting? It was a bright, beautiful, and sweet smelling flower. How could it hurt the child's hand? I will tell you.

A little busy bee, in search of a dinner, had just pushed his nose in among the lilac blossoms, and was sucking the nectar from it most heartily when Sammy's fat hand disturbed him; so, being vexed with the child, he stung him. That is how Sammy's hand came to be stung.

NOTE.—We receive many letters asking for information about lost friends. All such letters will be published in this column. We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers to the SOUTHWESTERN. All others will please enclose fifty cents to pay for publishing the notices. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to get some information concerning my wife' father: his name, when I left him in Athens, Ga., was Gilbert Grant. Since that time (1864) I have not heard from him. Wife's name was then Harriet Burke and her mother's Annie Bird. She was sold from Mr. W. M. Bird to Mr. Charles J. Burke who lived within a mile and a quarter of Union Point. She was then sold to a speculator by the name of McRiley who brought her South, where she has been ever since. She has three sisters, one named Martha Lowry. She has found one, Eilie, who once belonged to the Birds. The other one is dead. If any one knows of such a person they will confer a favor by addressing me at Mayersville, Miss.

REV. SAMUEL BLACKWELL.

DEAR EDITOR—I am seeking the whereabouts of my relations—mother, father, six sisters and two brothers. Mother's name is Nellie Johnson, father's George Johnson. sisters' Eliza, Frances, Winnie, Sarah, Rhoda, Christie; brothers' Solomon and John Johnson. We are all from Anne Arundel Co., Maryland. We left sisters Rhoda and Christi and brother John there. They belonged to Mrs. Harriet Waters. The rest of us belonged to Dr. Granges Thong, who, at his death, willed us to his son, Ben Thong, and he brought us to Galveston and sold us separately. I was sold by myself: mother, father, sisters Eliza, Frances, Sarah and Winnie; and brother Solomon were sold to another man in Galveston, Texas, in 1855. My grandfather's name was Ned Huttin. Any information of the above will be gladly received. Address me at San Felipe, Texas, in care of Mr. W. H. Jackson.

WESLEY JOHNSON.

MR. EDITOR—I desire information concerning my uncles Gabriel Armstead, Henry Patrick. Father's name is Otis Armstead. Their mother's name is Millie Armstead. Otis is alive and he and Patrick came from Virginia to Kentucky. We belonged to Mr. Thomas Esquails, Franklin, Borden county. I took mother back to Virginia. Martin and Caleb brought Otis and Patrick to Tennessee, and sold Patrick to Mr. Elisah Herds, then Otis was sold to John Sweeny who left there in 1832. Also of my aunt, Eliza, who belonged to John Sweeny in Franklin, Williamson Co., Tenn. She was sold to Jack Wallage, who was a gin-wright in that county. She had two sisters, Emma and Esther, a brother, James; their mother, named Sophia, died at the Proughty's place. John Sweeny came to Texas in 1832, and lived in Brazoria Co. Any information of the above will be thankfully received. Address me at Columbia, Brazoria Co., Texas, in care of Rev. Jeremiah Wesley.

JAMES ARMSTEAD.

DEAR EDITOR—I am seeking the whereabouts of my uncle Jonah Hartley. Mr. Edwin A. Glover bought him from Capt. Hartley and many of Jonah's kinpeople and my mother, his sister, Leah. Mr. Glover brought Jonah to Texas, but being subject to the rheumatism was sent back to Mather county, Alabama. Mother says about a year before the emancipation she heard that Uncle Jonah was in New Orleans, La. He left his wife here. Her name is Mary Ann. My mother, Jonah's sister, has three children, two boys, Willis and Jeff Davis, and one girl, Joanna. My father's name is Frank Jackson. Any information leading to the above named person will be gladly received. Address me at San Felipe, Texas.

PREVENT

Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 31 13t

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic, and other poisonous minerals form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

[Successors to R. V. PIERCE, M. D.]

DR. R. V. PIERCE, having acquired a world-wide reputation in the treatment of Chronic Diseases, resulting in a professional business far exceeding his individual ability to conduct, some years ago induced several medical gentlemen to associate themselves with him, as the Faculty of the World's Dispensary, the Consulting Department of which has since been merged with the INVALIDS' HOTEL. The organization has been completed and incorporated under the name and style of World's Dispensary Medical Association, with the following officers:

Hon. R. V. PIERCE, Pres. F. D. PIERCE, V. Pres.
JNO. E. PIERCE, Sec. LESTER B. SMITH, Treas.

NINE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS of eminence and skill have been chosen as the Faculty.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms come within the province of our several specialties.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of practice is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases treated with the most successful results.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are our facilities of a superior order for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), Neuralgia, and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty.

NOT NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.—By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases as successfully without as with a personal consultation. For particulars see "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" (1,000 pages, sent post-paid for $1.50) or "Invalids' and Tourists' Guide Book" (100 pages, 10 cents post-paid).

SURGICAL CASES.—Among the operations which we are called upon most frequently to perform, are those for Nasal Polypus, Harelip, Tumors, Fistula in Ano, Piles, Hernia (Rupture), Hydrocele (Dropsy of the Scrotum), Varicocele, Ovarian and Uterine Tumors, Calculi (Stone in the Bladder), Stricture, etc., etc. We also treat successfully, by a new method without surgical operation, Cancers, Club-feet, Spinal Curvature, and other deformities. (See pamphlet entitled, "Motion as a Curative Agent," sent on receipt of 10 cents.)

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhea, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

hand has been manifest. If manacles are to be broken, the strength of her arm gives help to the falling blows. If evil is to be checked, and chains forged about the feet of rushing crime, her furnaces and smiths help weld and rivet the links. Wherever the voice of the world has united in the cry for a reform, Methodism has preceded the popular clamor by its alone demands. What has Methodism done? It has stood in the very forefront of every good thing. It has hurled its strength unflinchingly against every evil thing. What has Methodism not done?

But even these factors, added to her numerically expressed strength will not tell of the results of her life. We must add to our results the innumerable hosts that from our altars have crossed the floods. We must go down and stand by river's brink, and learn from the mystic ferryman how many of our saints—father and children—have been carried from our shores into the summer clime. They are gone, but they are still ours.

"One family we dwell in him,
One Church, above, beneath—
Though now divided by the stream—
The narrow stream of death.
* * * *
One army of the living God,
At his command we bow;
Part of the host have crossed the flood,
And part are crossing now."

Our fathers and mothers, our wives and little ones, who from our homes have been garnered, who had been fitted for that upper [illegible] through Methodist preaching, they are not to be forgotten in our reckoning of results. The great [illegible] of our church that help people heaven, that add their voices to the [illegible] of the triumphant [illegible] that cast their crowns before [illegible] of the Lamb—these, [illegible] guard, are to help [illegible] story of what our cause has [illegible].

igal-like," to the rock from whence we were hewn—a river cannot swallow an ocean—but upon the common principle of the fatherhood of God, and brotherhood of man standing, all, forgetting all else but one heritage of work and joy, go forth to gather the world's richest fruitage for our Master.

And that day shall come. Soon the toilers will be cheered with the gladsome shout of victory. The day-dawn is past, the sun has arisen and now speeds toward his zenith. Soon he will reach the meridian line and announce the high-noon for the world. Twelve o'clock, the zenith of the long-prayed-for day, will soon ring out its joyful message. Noontime of rest to the rich and to the poor. Twelve o'clock, the hour of maturity to the king upon his throne and the beggar in his hut; twelve o'clock to the trusting woman amid her washtubs, and to the queenly matron in ease awaiting his coming; twelve o'clock to the plodding scholar and the ignorant lad; twelve o'clock, the hour of liberty, to the freeman amid his possessions, and to the slave bearing galling chains of passion or of earthly master. Twelve o'clock, the hour of victory, is at hand. It shall be the reward for the toils, tears and sighs of God's united people. To that result all should be looking, for it all should be struggling; toward that last battlefield all God's hosts should be united in marching. And when to the final fray, in serried ranks, all creeds shall move; when all the true Christlike, Godward toiling sons of the earth shall march, who would deny the right to lead the army and to carry the flag to our Methodism? The strongest corps naturally are thrown to the front. And when that marching army, with its motto of "Holiness to the Lord," shall have met and vanquished the world's foe, Heaven shall re-echo earth's shout of victory. John, when amid Patmos, mysteries, beheld, upon the outer limits of the celestial realm, a lonely sentinel. With lonely eyes he ever gazed earthward, with attent ears he ever listened for the promised sound. The wings were folded about its person, wearied from their disuse through the long past. It was the watchman upon Heaven's outposts. He knew but one mission, he waited but one sound. And, as the shout of victory and the clank of riveting chains upon recreant ones rise above the mist and cloud; as the smoke of that final struggle rolls away, and the field of conflict is clearly seen by the waiting angel; as the result of the victory rises before this watchman's vision the face becomes illumined, the wings are lifted, and, with rapid strokings, the long-waiting messenger hurries to the throne of his Master and his God, and with voice of exaltation, and a cry as for his promised rest, cries out: The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ!—N. Y. Methodist.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Shall We Have One Methodism In the South?

The doctrine of One Methodism in the South has been frequently advocated by the leading men of the Southern Church. While we are in favor of and would rejoice to see all Methodists North, South, East and West, come together in organic union, yet we are opposed to one Methodism in the South. That is, we are opposed to being forced into the Church South. Such is evidently the desire and the aim of the Southern Methodist press and pulpit. They ask for one Methodist Church in the South, or rather demand that all come under the banner of the M. E. Church South. Now we have in the South thousands of Methodists who will never consent to be members of the Church South. A large majority of our Methodists would seek homes in other churches, before they would go to the Southern [illegible] people would gladly [illegible] organic union between [illegible] Methodist Episcopal [illegible] United States, but [illegible] [illegible] world." The founder of Methodism said, "The world is my parish." The Gospel is to be preached to every creature in the North and in the South. We might consent to go to Him in the Church South if we could hear anything of a Christ South—and of a heaven South—but as Christ is not sectional, as heaven is not sectional, and as the church should not be sectional, we prefer to stay in the old M. E. Church, that knows no North or South, but offers pardon and purity to all that will come to Christ.

2. The M. E. Church South has abolished the probationary rule, and hence lacks that much of being a Methodist Church. We do object to receiving unconverted persons into full communion with the church. The Church South having abolished probation, is yet seeking to increase their numbers as rapidly as possible. They have opened the door wide, and bid all saints and sinners to come in and enjoy all the privileges of full members of the church. They may gain numbers by this, but they will lose the life and power of religion by such actions. Too much bad material gets into the church when the doors are closely guarded, but how much more trash will be gathered into the church when its doors are open to the unconverted. I know that some deny that the Church South receives unconverted persons into full membership, but I know what I am saying. I have several friends who are members of the Southern Church who never claimed to be converted. When the Church South makes religion a test of membership, we might seek a home with them, but not until this is done can we go.

3. The M. E. Church South have virtually dispensed with class-meeting. They may have these meetings in several places, but I have my first Southern Methodist class-meeting to attend, and yet I have traveled constantly in Texas for six years, and have attended many of their meetings, but no class-meetings have I met among them. Believing, as we do, that class-meetings are the life of any Methodist Church, we will never go to a church that claims to be a Methodist Church where they never hold class-meetings.

4. The M. E. Church South does not want all the members of the M. E. Church. She would like to have those that leaned toward the South during the war, but no more.

1. They don't want our colored members. If they should seek a home in the M. E. Church South the door would be closed against them, and they would be informed that the Church South was for the white people, and if they wanted a home in the church they could go to the black man's church.

2. They don't want persons in their church who embrace the doctrines of extreme Northern men. They might admit them into their church, but there could be no communion or love for the "Yankee," or "nigger sympathizer," as Northern men are called.

Pray don't ask the members of the M. E. Church to join the Church South—since they don't want us. We will never live in a church where the majority hate us. What! ask us to go to the very people who abuse us and seek our ruin? No! We will never go there until they change. I would advise all Methodists coming from the North not to go to the Church South. You will do better in almost any other church. If you can't find the M. E. Church where you stop, seek a home in some other church, but not in the M. E. Church South, unless you are willing to hear the old M. E. Church, that perhaps you have long lived in, abused, and the men that under God led you to Christ and that you love as your fathers in the Gospel, called hard names and evil spoken of by persons who never saw them. If members of the M. E. Church can go and live among the persons who labor to condemn their church, then I say—go. But if you have any love for the Old Church and her noble ministers, then I advise you to seek church communion somewhere else than in the Southern Church. Having been raised in the South, I know whereof I speak. I have often heard both preachers and members abuse our church; our men, I shall say—our dead men are sometimes raised from the grave and abused.

We want peace and union, but we will never, no, never, be forced into a church where [illegible] regard is [illegible]. What I ask [illegible] the church of the world, and seek homes in a Southern Church, when the favored bourbon aristocracy can insult us at pleasure? How would the Methodist from the North and East receive such sayings as the following. A Southern Methodist of Travis county, a representative man, said to my father, "I would wallow in hell forever before I would live in a church with Gilbert Haven and his stripe." Another Southern Methodist, a school-teacher, said to me, "If I had a drop of Yankee blood in my veins, I would cut it out." A Southern Methodist preacher heard this remark, and laughed at the poor fellow's wit. However he laughed, I never once reproved him for his wickedness. Another, a lady, said, "If Northern Methodists go to heaven, I don't want to go there." I could multiply these quotations indefinitely if it was necessary, but these are enough to sicken the hearts of Christians—such sayings would not be very edifying to our brethren from the Northeast.

Oh, I long for the time to come when we shall be treated as Christians by the Church South—we have not been in the past. We want one Methodism for the world, and not one for the South only.

Bible Work.

DEAR EDITOR—The Southwestern Bible Society is, and has been for some time, besides operations in other portions of her territory, engaged in canvassing the parishes in lower Louisiana, contiguous to New Orleans. Miss J. P. Moore, assisted by helpers, reports having visited all the families in St. Bernard, St. Charles, Jefferson, Ascension, Assumption, a portion of St. James, St. John the Baptist, Terrebonne and Iberville; and all of Orleans outside of the city. There are 2503 white families; 1583, or 62 per cent. of which she found totally destitute of any portion of Scripture; 14,104 colored families, 9490, or over 66 per cent. of which were destitute. She has supplied 265 white, 3084 colored families, and 175 individuals. There has been distributed in this canvass $929 worth of Bibles and Testaments; $185 35 of which has been donated to the poor; $724 54 has been paid for colporting and expenses, leaving only $186 20 returned to the Depository, and sent on to the parent society, which has furnished the books for this work.

Our object in publishing these facts and figures is to direct the attention of the members of the society, the churches, and the benevolently disposed to our work. The above are specimens of the destitution in portions of our territory, and of the work we are performing.

We need money to carry on these operations. The Parent Society generously proposes to furnish us materials on condition we would show a disposition to help ourselves by doing what we can. Are we doing this? Nearly all the churches have pledged by resolutions in their conferences, presbyteries, etc., to present the claims of the society and take collections, and I am satisfied that there are numerous persons whose attention only needs to be called to this subject, and an opportunity afforded to contribute. Only consider the above facts, showing that more than half of the families living in our nearest neighboring parishes are totally destitute of the Word of Life! Is there a church in this city that will fail to help us? I suppose none fail to take missionary collections to send to heathens in other lands, but here are the heathens at our door, and shall they perish? J. A. IVY, Agent, S. W. Third Round—Navasota Dist.

SHERMAN, Texas, Sept. 17, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I closed my third round at Bryan and Brewers Hill on the 14th, and had pleasant meetings at both places. I consider that the church in Bryan is in a better condition, spiritually, than any part of the district. A fine revival influence prevails there; souls are being converted and sinners are deeply impressed. There is also a revival influence at Brewers Hill and a number have been converted lately. The church is in a good condition. Bros. Brown and Hamilton are esteemed very highly by their people. Bro. Sessum, on the Brazos circuit, is having a hard time—few members and no pay. We have made a grave mistake in the Texas conference by cutting up our work in small appointments. It is impossible for them to support a preacher and he must go to work to support his family, and the result is that no good is done. How can a man with a family of a wife and five or six children support them on $50 or $60, and do the work of God? It is expecting more than God expects of any man. I witnessed at Bryan, last week, a scene that I hope never to witness again. I was at the home of Mr. Brandon, now of Brandon, but formerly of Mississippi, whose wife has a little colored blood in her. She is the daughter of a wealthy planter of Memphis, and was raised well. Mr. Brandon was her father's overseer during the war, took this girl for a wife and had several children by her. After the war they moved to Texas. She was converted, and said to him that she would not live with him unless he married her. This he did four years ago. Last week the grand jury found a true bill against them for being unlawfully married, and they are on trial now. They will perhaps be sent to the penitentiary for five or ten years for doing what the law of God and man requires. They have four beautiful children and were trying to raise them up to fear God and make good citizens; but their hopes are suddenly blasted. How long, O God, how long! Mr. Editor, where are we drifting to? In a land said to be the home of the down-trodden and oppressed, families are broken up and imprisoned for no other crime than being lawfully married. It is no crime to live in adultery with a colored woman, but the sin is in making her your lawful wife.

Sunday-school and Theological Convention.

This Convention, which was appointed for San Antonio and Columbus districts in West Texas Conference, met at San Antonio Aug. 28, 1879. The Presiding Elders of both districts and a fair representation of ministers and Sunday-school superintendents were present at the opening. Many, however, were kept away by rumors of small pox in the city. The convention was opened at 9 a. m. with singing and prayer, by Elder Carper. Elder Richardson presided. R. H. Harbert, of Columbus, was chosen secretary. Prof. G. O. Richardson, of the West Texas College at Austin, Mrs. C. A. Richardson, teacher in the same institution, and Miss Jennie Milne, were present to conduct the Sunday-school work of the convention. The first session was occupied in organizing the convention into a model Sunday-school. It was thought that the Sunday-school workers could learn more about teachers' meetings, conducting recitations and a general review if they saw and took part in a regular Sunday-school each day. It was decided to occupy the forenoon of each day entirely with Sunday-school work, and the afternoon with the class in theology. The hours for the sessions were fixed from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 2 to 4 p. m. The teachers' meeting each day was to be from 4 to 5:30 p. m. Adjourned to meet at 2 p. m.

Afternoon Session.—The first topic, "The Fall of Man," was taken up and carefully discussed. The class was very much interested. At 4 o'clock Prof. Richardson had his teachers' meeting to show the Sunday-school workers how to get the lessons out of the Teacher's Journal. Adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

The convention was called to order by Elder Richardson. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. O. Sheely. The first exercise was the model Sunday-school and general review. Then followed the discussion of the topics in the published programme. Prof. Richardson led the discussion on "How to Organize." Elder Richardson on "How to Draw the Parents to the Sunday-school and Interest Them." They were followed by others in an animated discussion. Adjourned until 2 p. m.

Afternoon Session.—The class in theology were in their places and all took part in the discussions on "The Atonement." They all seemed to get a deeper insight into the wondrous love of God as manifested in the gift of His Son to die for our sins. The topic was so interesting that almost every eye was filled with tears.

THIRD DAY.

The convention met at its regular hour. A regular Sunday-school occupied an hour and thirty minutes. A committee on education, consisting of A. R. Norris, G. O. Richardson and I. Clayton, was elected. Also a committee on temperance, consisting of R. H. Harbert, Fannie Herman and W. H. Mosehy, was elected. Discussions on the Sunday-school topics continued until the hour for adjournment.

Afternoon Session.— The session was occupied by the discussion of "Justification by Faith." This lesson was full of interest.

FOURTH DAY.

This morning being Sunday, the regular Sunday-school for San Antonio and the convention Sunday school were conducted together by Prof. Richardson. Many useful lessons were carried away by the members of the convention. At 11 o'clock Prof. Richardson preached to the Sunday-school. At 3 o'clock the church was densely crowded. Elder Richardson gave a Bible reading on Holiness, in place of the usual sermon. The points proved by the reading were—1st, Holiness is commanded. 2d, We cannot enter heaven without it. 3d, It is provided for in the atonement. 4th, It is received of God by faith. 5th, It should be sought with intense desire and perseverence. 6th, It is retained by active faith. The effect of this reading was beyond description. The people were overwhelmed by the accumulation of precious truth on the subject of holiness, and they were deeply convinced that "without holiness no man shall see the Lord." There was scarcely a dry eye in the congregation. At the close of the reading the Elder asked how many would begin now, and earnestly seek to be made holy. Nearly every Christian in the house arose. Bible readings can be made a success among our people if properly conducted. This service was followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper. This was a season of universal interest.

FIFTH DAY.

The convention met at 9 o'clock. The committee on education presented the following report:

WHEREAS, We feel the importance of a good education, and,

WHEREAS, We have a Conference school at Austin, doing thorough work in all departments, therefore

Resolved, 1. That we will do all in our power to encourage public schools in our own localities.

2. We will urge all who wish a thorough preparation for the ministry, for teaching or for business, to attend the West Texas College at Austin, Texas.

3. We will contribute all we can toward building up said Conference school.

4. We will get our S. S. Journals, Lesson Tracts, and other helps into all our Sunday-schools. We will petition our S. S. Union to aid such schools as are too poor to buy, on account of failure in the crops.

A. R. NORRIS, Chairman.

The committee on temperance reported as follows:

WHEREAS, The use of intoxicating drinks is ruining the morals and blighting the prospects of many of our people for time and eternity, making their homes wretched and stamping disgrace and ignorance on their children. Therefore

Resolved 1, That we who compose this convention will keep ourselves wholly from this nefarious practice.

2. That all ministers of this conference should preach temperance sermons, and enforce the rules of the church against those who use intoxicating drinks as a beverage. The rules referred to are found in paragraphs 32 and 221 of the Methodist Discipline.

3. We will do all in our power to break up the drinking habit.

R. H. HARBERT, Chairman.

Topic 8, "Sunday-school Books and Helps," was discussed by R. H. Harbert and others. "How to Conduct Primary Classes" was well explained by Mrs. Richardson. It was clearly shown that the primary classes can take the regular Sunday-school lesson if the teacher has the skill to explain it in the language of a child. The catechism should be used in small portions at a time. W. H. Mosehy and others discussed the topic on Sunday-school missionary societies.

Afternoon Session.—The class in theology were very much interested in the lessons given by Rev. M. A. Dougherty, of Trinity M. E. Church on the subject of the Lord's supper and baptism, for which brother Dougherty has the thanks of the convention. After resolutions of thanks to the good people of San Antonio who had so generously entertained the delegates, the convention adjourned with the Doxology and benediction.

During the week of the convention Bro. A. R. Norris kept up a protracted meeting each night, which resulted in the conversion of many souls. Praise the Lord.

R. H. HARBERT, Secretary.

Salvation.

We are so accustomed to hear and use this word that we are apt to forget the length and breadth and depth and height of its meaning. To some it has reference only to the future blessedness of the soul in heaven; by others, it is used chiefly to represent the feeling of delight and enthusiasm which they have when under great religious excitement. To them salvation is merely something to be enjoyed, insomuch that if they are not all the time very happy they fear that they are not saved.

Now it is most emphatically true that salvation is a most blessed experience which makes every soul happy who has it. This is involved in the very meaning of the word, which implies that the soul has been in great danger, and is rescued from that danger. The peril of the unsaved soul no man can adequately describe, because no man knows all the terrible consequences of sin, nor can even conceive what are the eternal tortures of the lost in that place where the worm dieth not and the fire is never quenched. But we know enough to warrant the assertion that there is nothing else in the universe so dreadful as the miseries of a lost soul. Well may we be happy, then, if we know that we are delivered from this penalty of sin, and can say with the Apostle: "There is therefore now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus. For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

But there is no salvation from the penalty of sin, except by salvation from the sin itself. The Christian religion is not a system of insurance against the results of transgression by which a man can purchase immunity from the unpleasant consequences of the sins he is doing and intends to continue doing. This is so obvious a truth that it is unnecessary to state it, were it not for the fact that many act as if they had precisely this understanding of religion. They profess to be saved and to have a hope of heaven when they know that in their everyday lives they do not bring forth the fruits of the spirit. It is time such people learned that their professions of salvation are a hollow mockery, and that they have no love for Christ, and no assurance of his favor, unless they are doing his will. For he has said: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." The excellent custom of Methodists of allowing and urging every one who will to testify in class-meeting and love-feast is liable to this abuse, viz.: That [illegible] will make professions which are by no means justified by their practices. And this is all the more dangerous, because a man who has learned to tell a good story of himself is apt to continue doing so, when it is no longer true, and to be regarded by those who do not know his private life as being what he [illegible] himself to be. And so [illegible] a man takes the flattering [illegible] to his soul that because he [illegible] talk well, and make people [illegible] from his talk that he is a [illegible], he may, after all, be a [illegible] good sort of a man.

Salvation is not a thing of the [illegible], but of the life. Nor is [illegible] that if a man has once experienced it, he has it forever. The [illegible] "grow in grace," always in [illegible] is not true, for every intelligent Christian knows that he can [illegible] and not renounce his religion, and bring his soul into condemnation. Yet many a Methodist [illegible] this doctrine were true, [illegible] having once had a genuine [illegible] through sincere [illegible] and faith in Christ, he [illegible] not only to tell of that [illegible] is proper enough, [illegible] for his eternal [illegible] in point of fact it [illegible] the past with [illegible] present experience. Salvation to be [illegible] be a thing [illegible] is a present [illegible] will be more full and constant and rich than it can be here. But the same graces and tempers, the same peace and joy which we have in the Holy Ghost here, we will have in larger measure there, through uninterrupted vision and communion with God.

If, then, we would calculate our chances of heaven, we must take an inventory of our present spiritual possessions and attainments. Are we saved from sin now? Have we the fruits of that salvation in our characters and conduct—"love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, patience and faith?" Have we Christ formed within, the hope of glory, his spirit, his mind, his dispositions? If so, then we have that blessed foretaste and beginning of heaven in our souls which is the sure guarantee of eternal salvation. May God give us all this experience, and may we never rest satisfied till we have it.

The C. L. S. C.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent sends us the following: "The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle enters upon its second year with October, 1879. More than eight thousand persons were enrolled as members of the class of 1882, and large numbers are coming in with every mail to march under the banner of the class of 1883.

"It is the purpose of the C. L. S. C. to promote habits of reading and study, and during a course of four years to give the college student's outlook to the average man or woman whether young or old. It does not profess to be a substitute for the college course, but it does profess to give a broad view of the fields of science, literature and art.

"The course of study requires about forty minutes a day during the week days for nine months in the year, and students spending this much time for four years will be able to complete the course, and will receive a diploma or certificate testifying to the fact of having read the required books.

"An annual fee of fifty cents is required for the payment of clerk hire, postage, correspondence, printing, etc. No profits are sought or desired by the managers. The books, which are sold at the lowest figures, are sold by book dealers, especially by Phillips & Hunt, N. Y., and Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, O. Not a penny of profit is made by the managers of the C. L. S. C., upon books sold. The whole thing is a labor of love.

"Persons may become members of the C. L. S. C. by forwarding their names to Dr. Vincent, Plainfield, N. J. They will then receive a blank containing the questions concerning age, denomination, family, etc. On the return of this blank filled out, their names will be enrolled, tickets of membership and general directions for prosecuting the course of study forwarded.

"It is the design of the C. L. S. C. to promote a higher and worthier class of reading during the week, thus controlling in the interest of religious culture the educational and literary forces which are now so active, and which are too often used to antagonize the Christian faith."

A Sunday Liquor Law.

The police jury of Terrebonne parish, Louisiana, has ordained:

That from and after the first day of November 1879, no wholesale or retail groceries, no place of public resort, no coffee house or other place where liquors of any kind are kept to be sold, shall be opened on Sunday, and any person thus offending, or who shall be found selling or giving the same on Sunday, shall pay a fine of one hundred dollars for each and every offence one half of which shall go to the person informing, the other half to the Parish Treasurer to be placed to the General Fund account, said amount to be collected before any Court of competent jurisdiction of this parish on the suit of the parish.

This good result of active temperance work does not please the Terrebonne Independent. That paper says:

We do not think the people of this parish will let a Police Jury of eight or nine say whether you shall drink on Sunday or not.

The Dixon Matter Again.

Our neighbor, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, recently prefaced a communication as follows:

Rev. Dr. R. Abbey, writing from Yazoo City, Miss., to the St. Louis Christian Advocate about the Dixon affair, and concerning which the Northern brethren have made so much ado, says: etc.

Rev. Dr. Abbey attempted to prove that the affair was not a political but a private matter, but this statement of his reads suspiciously:

Secondly, The public trouble here was not party against party, but the "regular" Democratic party against one individual person. That man is now dead; he was shot in the street and killed about a week ago. He was a candidate for sheriff, but was not nominated by any party or persons.

And this is sufficient to arouse the interest of the reader:

Lastly, Without expressing any opinion at all, for I am only stating facts, some of the persons who sought to prevent Dixon from being a candidate were among our best citizens, as quiet, as peaceable, as law abiding, as prudent, yea, and as old and as religious as you and I would claim to be.

Those who did not know the amiable Dr. Abbey, without a word of caution, on reading the above, would suppose he was one of those who religiously attempted to persuade Dixon from being a candidate by shooting him down in the street a week or so before; but we do not believe it. The Yazoo Herald, and the testimony of Dr. Abbey, would remove any doubt, if any had previously existed in the public mind, that it was decidedly a political murder. Says the Herald:

The good people of Yazoo county are agreed upon one point, and that is that no man or set of men shall achieve official preferment by massing colored voters against the whites, especially if this has to be done by resorting to means which are pernicious in theory and dangerous in practice. The interests of any county can't afford to be jeopardized by any such means.

Samuel W. Winn writes us from Topeka, Kansas, (Sept. 22): "There are of the exodus to this place only two families taking refuge in the Barracks built for them, and they are working for $1 per diem, and have bought them lots and lumber, and will soon have quarters for winter. The people are expecting a large exodus this fall; a great demand for them out in Colorado, but none to supply the demand, and the money was sent back."

Letter from Jackson, La.

JACKSON, LA., Sept. 22, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Our third quarterly meeting was held here on the 7th and 8th. Elder Gould was present, and efficient in the discharge of his duties. On the Sabbath, at 11 a. m., Bro. Marshall Smith preached for us; and at 3 p. m. Elder Gould gave us an able sermon from 1st Cor. xv: 55. The elder is much beloved, and whenever it is known he is going to preach, crowds come. May he be spared many useful and profitable days in the Master's vineyard.

August 30 a Sabbath-school celebration was held here. A deep interest is felt in the school, and there is an attendance of about 60. At 10 a. m. children and parents assembled in Magnolia Church, and and at 11 the exercises began with prayer and singing. The children performed their parts well. N. W. Payne, Esq., and R. L. Perry delivered fine speeches. After these exercises we partook of a sumptuous dinner, which the good sisters and friends of the church had prepared. We enjoyed ourselves very much. To Miss Mary Ellen Lee, the assistant of our superintendent, we are much indebted for the efficiency of the school.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

MISSISSIPPI.

O. Gillespie, Ex Prairie circuit: "The people here are willing to support the gospel. At St. Michael church our missionary collection was $3.50."

M. Brown, Garlandsville: "My protracted meeting causes the church to rejoice; 80 joined in four weeks, 25 were baptized; 150 members have been added to this work in three years."

S. Williams, Louisville: "The presiding elder had to remain away on account of the yellow fever, but we had a good meeting; 36 converts, 20 joined on probation. Five dollars was taken up for the elder."

D. D. Goodwin, Vicksburg: "I have received in full membership 4, on probation 3, baptized 6. Our Sunday-school has increased fifty per cent. this year. We expect to send a delegate to the annual conference instructed to ask for a colored bishop, not for separate work, but to preside over any."

Samuel S. Harris, Minter City: "Since our last basket meeting we have so nearly completed our church, that we are now holding services in it. At third quarter Rev. James Ellis was with us, and the Lord's Supper was administered to 65. Our Sunday-school, an organized missionary society, numbers 75. R. W. Jackson, teacher of the day school, an excellent man, is our superintendent."

W. H. H. Gaillon, De Kalb: "On the 9th, 10th and 11th we were successful in removing the debt from the church. On opening our supper I delivered a lecture, followed by Rev. L. S. Bell, of Macon, who sold lemonade in a keg representing Rebecca at the well. White people joined with us, and say they will do all they can to help us in a good cause. The work is prospering; 72 additions this year. At the next conference will report on the dollar system, for there is a good spirit among the people for it."

TEXAS.

London Morris, Monthatlia: "The camp meeting on St. Mark's river got us 10 converts, 3 on probation, 6 baptisms. At Leesville camp meeting began on the fourth Thursday and ended on the 5th. Times are very hard."

A. Campbell, Seguin: "Protracted meeting just closed, resulting in 4 conversions. Bros. Carnes of Lockhart, and W. H. Davis of Nockenut were with us Sunday evening. Elder Carper held fourth quarterly last Saturday and Sunday."

J. E. Freeman, Hempstead: "We have 150 church members and 120 children in Sunday-school Rev. E. Lee is our preacher this year, and he is a clear warm-hearted lover of the children. We have sent on for an organ for the school and church. I am a member of the Legislature now, elected from the 37th district. There are 8 colored men, 10 greenbackers, and 75 Democrats in the House,—also two preachers of our church. B. F. Williams and Elias Mays."

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Hilton, Natchitoches: "I have received some 130 in the church this year. Times are very hard."

A. Martin, State Line: "I am happy to say we have built a church this year 30x40, and we held our quarterly meeting in it; also a parsonage, with two rooms, in which I am now living."

Revival Notes from West Texas.

A precious revival meeting was held by Bro. B. E. Brown, C. J. Forbes, of the C. P. Church, and myself on Middle Gabriel, in Burnett county, embracing the fourth Sabbath in August, which resulted in the conversion of 27 persons. The meeting closed with many still unsaved, but earnestly seeking the Savior. This meeting was a great success.

Bro. Clark, myself, and others held a meeting of great interest eight miles below Austin, on the Colorado river. Considering that there had not been a revival in that neighborhood for ten years, the results of the meeting are wonderful; 16 were hopefully converted and many were left seeking Christ when the meeting closed.

The Exodus.

DURANT, MISS., Sept. 22, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I ask a space in your valuable columns to say something concerning the Exodus. We are often asked the question by our late owners why we want to leave them and go to Kansas? We want to go there because we believe we will be free people there, for the governor of Kansas writes that all the rights of the law are guaranteed there. Now let me show you the spirit of one party that is in the South, and you know what party that is. I will show you that spirit in print and which cannot be denied. That is what is driving us from this State. The spirit referred to will be found in an extract from the American Citizen, printed in Canton, Miss. I thought I would have nothing to say about Kansas, but necessity compels me. I hope you will show this in the SOUTHWESTERN and let the world see, and if God has opened us a way to go to the land of Canaan let us go. There are a great many colored people who say: "How will I get to Kansas?" I don't suppose that wonder is as great as John's wonder was. We are going in the name of God, and we must emigrate.

H. HESLUP.

A PRIMER FOR POLITICAL TYROS.

LESSON I.

Do you see our gun? It is a good gun.

It has just fired a salute to the Democracy of Madison.

Next week it will fire a conical shell at the In-de-pend-ents.

After that, this gun will shoot only red-hot balls.

If these balls are aimed at you it is no use for you to dodge; for they will hit you sure.

If they are not aimed at you, and you see one lying around loose like, you had better not touch it.

If you do, it will burn you;
For the shot will all be red-hot.

Let the colored people beware of office-seekers who are endeavoring to array them against the great mass of the white people, in order that they may sail into office upon another sea of strife. They cannot forget the past. The colored people will in the end be the heaviest sufferers. The office-seekers will escape unharmed, in the smoke of the flames they have kindled, and leave them to take the consequences.—Clarion, Jackson, Miss.

Foreign Missions.

Rev. Superintendent Challis furnishes the Mission Rooms with a catalogue of the sacred Scriptures and other books on sale at the Bible House at Constantinople. They number 1032 different books in some 18 different languages.

An unprecedented event in the history of our Bulgarian Mission is reported by Superintendent Challis, Aug.: "I made a missionary address to my congregation after which I proceeded to take up a collection and receive just $22 from a company of 15 persons."

Miss Gertrude Howe will leave San Francisco on the steamer of Oct. 4th for Shanghai, China. Her field is in Kiu Kiang.

The City.

The Sunday-school Union meets in Union Chapel, on Monday next at 7 p. m.

A literary and musical entertainment for the benefit of Ames M. E. Church, will be given at the church, corner of St Charles and Calliope streets, on the evening of October 8. Admission price is fixed at ten cents. A large attendance is expected, and all preparations have been made for an enjoyable affair.

The Medical and Surgical Association unanimously resolved that the board of health be requested to urge the press not to publish the causes of death, with the names of deceased persons, because of annoyance to relatives, etc. The City Item, which was the first newspaper to start the custom, contends that the publication of the causes of death is in the interest of public morality, and we believe its opinion is entirely correct.

Wm. O. Rogers, city superintendent of public schools, told an interviewer of the Times that he considered that the new constitution, if adopted, would virtually destroy the present system, which was about as complete a one as could be devised. The schools at present could not be maintained at an expense of less than $300,000 per annum. Under the new constitution the fund applicable to city schools will only reach about one-half that sum, or $150,000. Concessions were made to the country at the city's expense.

Religious Items.

Joseph Meyer, a native of New Orleans, born of Jewish parents, was converted to Christianity, and went to England and became a member of the Protestant monks under the care of "Father Benson," who once on a time visited Boston. "Father Joseph" went out to India as a missionary, returned to England, read Catholic books, quarrelled with "Father Benson," who excommunicated him, and went straight to Mons. Capel, who has led so many ritualists into the Catholic church, and is now a hopeful convert of that faith.

Roman Catholics view with great concern the advance of Protestantism in Rome. Since 1870 no less than fourteen Protestant churches have been built in the Eternal City, and Protestant schools and asylums are springing up, while Protestant literature is being extensively circulated. More schools and churches are to be built, the Waldensians having some $60,000 or $65,000 in hand ready to purchase a site for a new edifice. The Catholics say, however, that, though the Protestant missionaries are numerous enough and active enough almost to convert the whole nation, not many converts are really won; but they suppose enormous [illegible] money for these [illegible] is [illegible].—*N. October 5, 1879—OUR GREAT HIGH PRIEST.

SCRIPTURE.—Heb. 4: 14-16; 5: 1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them."—7: 25.

TOPIC.—Access to God through our Great High Priest.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Prefatory.—The key-note of the Epistle to the Hebrews is "Christ the great high priest." Familiar as the Jews were with the temple and its services, the supremely imposing figure of which was the high priest, no presentation of Christ would be so likely to impress them as one in which he was held up as the great high priest. Aaron was only the figure of the true high priest that was to come. He, and all the other high priests who followed him in lineal succession, were but the heralds that told that a greater one than they was drawing near. His Official Location. "That is passed into the heavens." Rather, "through the heavens." He passed through them into the inner holy of holies, where God resides, just as the high priest passed through the vail into the place where God made manifest his presence in his taberancle upon earth. But into the holy of holies of the tabernacle and the temple the high priest entered only once a year to intercede for the people, and his stay there was but a very transient one. He went into its profound darkness with awe, and with fear and trembling, and, knowing his own demerits, perhaps with a lack of confidence in his own pleading. But Christ has gone into the holy of holies where no darkness shrouds the face of his Father from view. He is there permanently—"is set down at the right hand of God." He pleads with him face to face, with no consciousness of guilt to impair his confidence in his intercessions. "Jesus the Son of God," is more than high priest. He is human and yet divine—human so that he can sympathize with our infirmities, and divine so that he can secure our full pardon and acceptance. "Let us hold fast our profession." Many make a profession of Christ who hardly ever confess him. They join the church, and that is the last that ever is heard of them. They never speak in prayer-meeting, never teach a Sunday-school class, never try to point any one to the way of life, never even have family worship at home. Why should we hold fast to our confession of him? 1. Because he is the true high priest. 2. Because he has passed through the heavens. 3. Because he is the Son of God. But the apostle has not exhausted the reasons for holding fast our confession. Indeed, the most touching are. 1. Because he is pitiful. 2. Because he has been tempted. 3. Because he is sinless. The Exhortation. "Let us, therefore, come boldly unto the throne of grace," etc. There is nothing there to fear. Instead of condemnation there will be a welcome.

An Eternal High Priest (1-6)—Every high priest, so the apostle says, had to have two qualifications. 1. He was "taken from among men." 2. "Who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for he himself is compassed with infirmity." He who knows his own heart will be lenient in his judgement of others. The second qualification was, that the high priest must be called of God. Aaron was chosen by the Lord for his office. No man had a right to take this honor unto himself. "Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest." He stooped to take this honor—he did not ascend to it. The path to it lay through dark Gethsemane, over the hill of Calvary, and down through the portals of the tomb. In relation to this he prayed that the cup might pass from him, but resignedly said, "Thy will, not mine, be done." He became our great high priest—through the sacrifice of himself. To show that he really was called of God, two quotations are referred to. 1. "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee." Ps. 2: 7. 2. "Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." Ps. 110: 4. How much there is in this lesson to encourage sinners and to strengthen saints!

THE SHADOW OF THE ROCK.

RAY PALMER.

"A hiding place from the winds and a cover from the tempest; as rivers and waters in a dry place; as the shadow of a great Rock in a weary land."—Is. xxxii: 2.

In the Shadow of the Rock
Let me rest,
When I feel the tempest's shock
Thrill my breast;
All in vain the storm shall sweep,
While I bide,
And my tranquil station keep
By Thy side.

On the parched and desert way
Where I tread,
With the scorching noon-tide ray
O'er my head;
Let me find the welcome shade,
Cool and still,
And my weary steps be stayed
While I will.

I in peace will rest me there
Till I see
That the skies again are fair
Over me;
That the burning heats are passed,
And the day
Bids the traveler at last
Go his way.

Then my pilgrim staff I'll take,
And once more,
I'll my onward journey make,
As before;
And with joyous heart and strong
I will raise
Unto Thee, O Rock, a song
Glad with praise!

—Sunday Afternoon.

A HUNDRED YEARS.

The following is an extract from the address of the Rev. George R. Bristor, D. D., of Ames's M. E. Church, New Orleans, substantially as it was delivered upon the recent occasion of the celebration of the hundreth anniversary of Methodism in St. Michaels, Maryland:

If we would know of the actual condition of Methodism, we must view the results outside of our own bodies; we must note the leavening effects of our preaching and psalmody; we must estimate the permeating current setting from our life toward other streams. If we should know what Methodism has done, we must go forth and weigh the good done by those half-frozen ones who have been warmed into life and renewed strength by our camp-fires; we must follow the torches, blazing amid other scenes, whose wellnigh extinguished light was rekindled and revived at the flame of our watch-towers; we must count up the great array of helped and comforted ones outside our borders, who, cheered by the hymns of our people, have breasted trouble, borne sorrow, conquered death; we must, in our casting of accounts, remember those in huts of poverty and prairie homes have been through Methodist leaven kept "faithful to the end." We must measure the enlightened conscience, the quickened preaching, the awakened thought and study, the renewed consecration among sister communions.

What has Methodism done? It has taken the poor as its especial heritage. It has, while neglecting none, especially loved and striven for the outcast. It has preached to the "spirits in prison," it has, with tender touch and pleading voice, carefully walked over the field of carnage; it has watched beside the wards of the hospitals it has gone down through the portals of contagion and awaiting death. What has Methodism done? It has searched the world over for one soul that knew not the presence and cheer of its Leader. It has counted no journey too long, no weariness insufferable, no cost too high, that it might hear the cry [illegible] love from the single [illegible] to help its temples in [illegible] It has [illegible] band has been manifest. If manacles are to be broken, the strength of her arm gives help to the falling blows. If evil is to be checked, and chains forged about the feet of rushing crime, her furnaces and smiths help weld and rivet the links. Wherever the voice of the world has united in the cry for a reform, Methodism has preceded the popular clamor by its alone demands. What has Methodism done? It has stood in the very forefront of every good thing. It has hurled its strength unflinchingly against every evil thing. What has Methodism not done?

But even these factors, added to her numerically expressed strength will not tell of the results of her life. We must add to our results the innumerable hosts that from our altars have crossed the floods. We must go down and stand by river's brink, and learn from the mystic ferryman how many of our saints—father and children—have been carried from our shores into the summer clime. They are gone, but they are still ours.

"One family we dwell in him,
One Church, above, beneath—
Though now divided h the stream—
The narrow stream of death.

* * * * *

One arm of the living God,
At his command we bow;
Part of the host have crossed the flood,
And part are crossing now."

Our fathers and mothers, our wives and little ones, who from our homes have been garnered, who had been fitted for that upper clime through Methodist preaching, they are not to be forgotten in our reckoning of results. The great hosts of our church that help people heaven, that add their voices to the shouts of the triumphant ones, that cast their crowns before the throne of the Lamb—these, our advance guard, are to help tell the story of what our cause has wrought.

And now a word as to its future. What shall be the hereafter sequence of this impulse? Still let the church "hold fast to its profession;" still let it with waiting ear watch for calls into advanced work; still let it with lean hands—seperate from all rancor, clamor and venom of minor strifes—cling to the work set before it, and its "candlestick" shall not "be removed out of its place," but, "as an army with banners," go forth to large conquests. Besides her old-time, still-to-be-continued work there presses her another duty. The presses and voices of our land no longer are busy with differences of creed or sect. The time was when, as arrayed hosts, each of the diverging branchs of the common vine faced all of the other with angry and condemning words. That clamor has died away. A common foe unites the most opposite. Sharply defined has evil arisen, and the hosts of God's militant armies are forgeting their varied names, their petty prejudices, their distinctive shibboleths, in the pressing needs of a serried column and of a sure victory. God seems to be calling his children nearer together. To our Methodism, the most hardy, most prosperous, most active, the strongest child, seems to be God-given—and reasonably—the task of reconciliation. When estranged children are brought nigh enough together to shake friendly hands, soon the arm must go about the neck; and the kiss, telling of forgetfulness of the past and of hopes for the future, will fall upon the lips and brow. Honest fraternity must result in something more. The high barriers which keep apart brothers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and within the Methodist Protestant Church, and within our own borders, have been broken down so far that not only do we across the line see each other's face, but soon over the debris will the reunion be. When the children of Methodism shall have again gathered about the altar, united in the old family service, and taken up the united march, its militant power will surprise the earth and make hell to quake. No is this the limit of our fraternal work. All others will in the same direction be help. When saints meet in the upper kingdom none will be known save as Christians:—Episcopalianism, Methodism and the kindred sects shall be merged there into that unity which becometh saints. The nearer we get to heaven in any manner, the better for us. If we can but quicken brotherly love, break "down the middle wall of partition" between all of God's friends, we are prospering our common cause. This will [illegible] by subscription: not by [illegible] of returning, "prodigal-like," to the rock from whence we were hewn—a river cannot swallow an ocean—but upon the common principle of the fatherhood of God, and brotherhood of man standing, all, forgetting all else but one heritage of work and joy, go forth to gather the world's richest fruitage for our Master.

And that day shall come. Soon the toilers will be cheered with the gladsome shout of victory. The day-dawn is past, the sun has arisen and now speeds toward his zenith. Soon he will reach the meridian line and announce the high-noon for the world. Twelve o'clock, the zenith of the long-prayed-for day, will soon ring out its joyful message. Noontime of rest to the rich and to the poor. Twelve o'clock, the hour of maturity to the king upon his throne and the beggar in his hut; twelve o'clock to the trusting woman amid her washtubs, and to the queenly matron in ease awaiting his coming; twelve o'clock to the plodding scholar and the ignorant lad; twelve o'clock, the hour of liberty, to the freeman amid his possessions, and to the slave bearing galling chains of passion or of earthly master. Twelve o'clock, the hour of victory, is at hand. It shall be the reward for the toils, tears and sighs of God's united people. To that result all should be looking, for it all should be struggling; toward that last battlefield all God's hosts should be united in marching. And when to the final fray, in serried ranks, all creeds shall move; when all the true Christlike, Godward toiling sons of the earth shall march, who would deny the right to lead the army and to carry the flag to our Methodism? The strongest corps naturally are thrown to the front. And when that marching army, with its motto of "Holiness to the Lord," shall have met and vanquished the world's foe, Heaven shall re-echo earth's shout of victory. John, when amid Patmos, mysteries, beheld, upon the outer limits of the celestial realm, a lonely sentinel. With lonely eyes he ever gazed earthward, with attent ears he ever listened for the promised sound. The wings were folded about its person, wearied from their disuse through the long past. It was the watchman upon Heaven's outposts. He knew but one mission, he waited but one sound. And, as the shout of victory and the clank of riveting chains upon recreant ones rise above the mist and clo as the smoke of that final str e rolls away, and the field of conflict is clearly seen by the waiting angel; as the result of the victory rises before this watchman's vision the face becomes illumined, the wings are lifted, and, with rapid, strokings, the long-waiting messenger hurries to the throne of his Master and his God, and with voice of exaltation, and a cry as for his promised rest, cries out: The kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ!—N. Y. Methodist.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Shall We Have One Methodism In the South?

The doctrine of One Methodism In the South has been frequently advocated by the leading men of the Southern Church. While we are in favor of and would rejoice to see all Methodists North, South, East and West, come together in organic union, yet we are opposed to one Methodism in the South. That is, we are opposed to being forced into the Church South. Such is evidently the desire and the aim of the Southern Methodist press and pulpit. They ask for one Methodist Church in the South, or rather demand that all come under the banner of the M. E. Church South. Now we have in the South thousands of Methodists who will never consent to be members of the Church South. A large majority of these Methodists would seek homes in other churches before they would go to the Southern Church. Our people would gladly consent to organic union between the two Methodist Episcopal Churches in the United States, but as this cannot be affected soon, if ever, we do protest against being compelled to go to the Church South for the following reasons:

1st. The M. E. Church South is a sectional church. This church belongs in the South, and cannot consistently go anywhere else. We can never go to that church until that tail, "South," is cut off. We do object to the word South being stuck on to the name of any church, as Christ said, "Go ye into all the world." The founder of Methodism said, "The world is my parish." The Gospel is to be preached to every creature in the North and in the South. We might consent to go to Him in the Church South if we could hear anything of a Christ South—and of a heaven South—but as Christ is not sectional, as heaven is not sectional, and as the church should not be sectional, we prefer to stay in the old M. E. Church, that knows no North or South, but offers pardon and purity to all that will come to Christ.

2. The M. E. Church South has abolished the probationary rule, and hence lacks that much of being a Methodist Church. We do object to receiving unconverted persons into full communion with the church. The Church South having abolished probation, is yet seeking to increase their numbers as rapidly as possible. They have opened the door wide, and bid all saints and sinners to come in and enjoy all the privileges of full members of the church. They may gain numbers by this, but they will lose the life and power of religion by such actions. Too much bad material gets into the church when the doors are closely guarded, but how much more trash will be gathered into the church when its doors are open to the unconverted. I know that some deny that the Church South receives unconverted persons into full membership, but I know what I am saying. I have several friends who are members of the Southern Church who never claimed to be converted. When the Church South makes religion a test of membership, we might seek a home with them, but not until this is done can we go.

3. The M. E. Church South have virtually dispensed with class-meeting. They may have these meetings in several places, but I have my first Southern Methodist class-meeting to attend, and yet I have traveled constantly in Texas for six years, and have attended many of their meetings, but no class-meetings have I met among them. Believing, as we do, that class-meetings are the life of any Methodist Church, we will never go to a church that claims to be a Methodist Church where they never hold class-meetings.

4. The M. E. Church South does not want all the members of the M. E. Church. She would like to have those that leaned toward the South during the war, but no more.

1. They don't want our colored members. If they should seek a home in the M. E. Church South the door would be closed against them, and they would be informed that the Church South was for the white people, and if they wanted a home in the church they could go to the black man's church.

2. They don't want persons in their church who embrace the doctrines of extreme Northern men. They might admit them into their church, but there could be no communion or love for the "Yankee," or "nigger sympathizer," as Northern men are called.

Pray don't ask the members of the M. E. Church to join the Church South—since they don't want us. We will never live in a church where the majority hate us. What I ask us to go to the very people who abuse us and seek our ruin? No! We will never go there until they change. I would advise all Methodists coming from the North not to go to the Church South. You will do better in almost any other church. If you can't find the M. E. Church where you stop, seek a home in some other church, but not in the M. E. Church South, unless you are willing to hear the old M. E. Church, that perhaps you have long lived in, abused, and the men that under God led you to Christ and that you love as your fathers in the Gospel, called hard names and evil spoken of by persons who never saw them. If members of the M. E. Church can go and live among the persons who labor to condemn their church, then I say—go. But if you have any love for the Old Church and her noble ministers, then I advise you to seek church communion somewhere else than in the Southern Church. Having been raised in the South, I know whereof I speak. I have often heard both preachers and members abuse our church; our men, I shall say—our dead men are sometimes raised from the grave and abused.

We want peace and union, but we will never, no, never, be forced into a church where no regard is paid to our feelings. What I ask is to seek the church of the world, and seek homes in a Southern Church, when the favored bourbon aristocracy can insult us at pleasure! How would the Methodist from the North and East receive such sayings as the following. A Southern Methodist of Travis county, a representative man, said to my father, "I would wallow in hell forever before I would live in a church with Gilbert Haven and his stripe." Another Southern Methodist, a school-teacher, said to me, "If I had a drop of Yankee blood in my veins, I would cut it out." A Southern Methodist preacher heard this remark, and laughed at the poor fellow's wit. However he laughed, I never once reproved him for his wickedness. Another, a lady, said, "If Northern Methodists go to heaven, I don't want to go there." I could multiply these quotations indefinitely if it was necessary, but these are enough to sicken the hearts of Christians—such sayings would not be very edifying to our brethren from the Northeast.

Oh, I long for the time to come when we shall be treated as Christians by the Church South—we have not been in the past. We want one Methodism for the world, and not one for the South only.

Bible Work.

DEAR EDITOR—The Southwestern Bible Society is, and has been for some time, besides operations in other portions of her territory, engaged in canvassing the parishes in lower Louisiana, contiguous to New Orleans. Miss J. P. Moore, assisted by helpers, reports having visited all the families in St. Bernard, St. Charles, Jefferson, Ascension, Assumption, a portion of St. James, Jt. John the Baptist, Terrebonne and Iberville; and all of Orleans outside of the city. There are 2503 white families; 1533, or 62 per cent. of which she found totally destitute of any portion of Scripture; 14,104 colored families, 9490, or over 66 per cent. of which were destitute. She has supplied 265 white, 3084 colored families, and 175 individuals. There has been distributed in this canvass $929 worth of Bibles and Testaments; $185 35 of which has been donated to the poor; $724 54 has been paid for colporting and expenses, leaving only $186 20 returned to the Depository, and sent on to the parent society, which has furnished the books for this work.

Our object in publishing these facts and figures is to direct the attention of the members of the society, the churches, and the benevolently disposed to our work. The above are specimens of the destitution in portions of our territory, and of the work we are performing.

We need money to carry on these operations. The Parent Society generously proposes to furnish us materials on condition we would show a disposition to help ourselves by doing what we can. Are we doing this? Nearly all the churches have pledged by resolutions in their conferences, presbyteries, etc., to present the claims of the society and take collections, and I am satisfied that there are numerous persons whose attention only needs to be called to this subject, and an opportunity afforded to contribute. Only consider the above facts, showing that more than half of the families living in our nearest neighboring parishes are totally destitute of the Word of Life! Is there a church in this city that will fail to help us? I suppose none fail to take missionary collections to send to heathens in other lands, but here are the heathens at our door, and shall they perish? J. A. IVY, Agent,

Third Round—Navasota Dist.

SHERMAN, TEXAS, Sept. 17, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I closed my third round at Bryan and Brewers Hill on the 14th, and had pleasant meetings at both places. I consider that the church in Bryan is in a better condition, spiritually, than any part of the district. A fine revival influence prevails there; souls are being converted and sinners are deeply impressed. There is also a revival influence at Brewers Hill and a number have been converted lately. The church is in a good condition. Bros. Brown and Hamilton are esteemed very highly by their people. Bro. Sessum, on the Brazos circuit, is having a hard time—few members and no pay. We have made a grave mistake in the Texas conference by cutting up our work in small appointments. It is impossible for them to support a preacher and he must go to work to support his family, and the result is that no good is done. How can a man with a family of a wife and five or six children support them on $50 or $60, and do the work of God? It is expecting more than God expects of any man. I witnessed at Bryan, last week, a scene that I hope never to witness again. I was at the home of Mr. Brandon, now of Brandon, but formerly of Mississippi, whose wife has a little colored blood in her. She is the daughter of a wealthy planter of Memphis, and was raised well. Mr. Brandon was her father's overseer during the war, took this girl for a wife and had several children by her. After the war they moved to Texas. She was converted, and said to him that she would not live with him unless he married her. This he did four years ago. Last week the grand jury found a true bill against them for being unlawfully married, and they are on trial now. They will perhaps be sent to the penitentiary for five or ten years for doing what the law of God and man requires. They have four beautiful children and were trying to raise them up to fear God and make good citizens; but their hopes are suddenly blasted. How long, O God, how long! Mr. Editor, where are we drifting to? In a land said to be the home of the down-trodden and oppressed, families are broken up and imprisoned for no other crime than being lawfully married. It is no crime to live in adultery with a colored woman, but the sin is in making her your lawful wife.

Sunday-school and Theological Convention.

This Convention, which was appointed for San Antonio and Columbus districts in West Texas Conference, met at San Antonio Aug. 28, 1879. The Presiding Elders of both districts and a fair representation of ministers and Sunday-school superintendents were present at the opening. Many, however, were kept away by rumors of small pox in the city. The convention was opened at 9 a. m. with singing and prayer, by Elder Carper. Elder Richardson presided. R. H. Harbert, of Columbus, was chosen secretary. Prof. G. O. Richardson, of the West Texas College at Austin, Mrs. C. A. Richardson, teacher in the same institution, and Miss Jennie Milne, were present to conduct the Sunday-school work of the convention. The first session was occupied in organizing the convention into a model Sunday-school. It was thought that the Sunday-school workers could learn more about teachers' meetings, conducting recitations and a general review if they saw and took part in a regular Sunday-school each day. It was decided to occupy the forenoon of each day entirely with Sunday-school work, and the afternoon with the class in theology. The hours for the sessions were fixed from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 2 to 4 p. m. The teachers' meeting each day was to be from 4 to 5:30 p. m. Adjourned to meet at 2 p. m.

Afternoon Session.—The first topic, "The Fall of Man," was taken up and carefully discussed. The class was very much interested. At 4 o'clock Prof. Richardson had his teachers' meeting to show the Sunday-school workers how to get the lessons out of the Teacher's Journal. Adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

The convention was called to order by Elder Richardson. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. O. Sheely. The first exercise was the model Sunday-school and general review. Then followed the discussion of the topics in the published programme. Prof. Richardson led the discussion on "How to Organize." Elder Richardson on "How to Draw the Parents to the Sunday-school and Interest Them." They were followed by others in an animated discussion. Adjourned until 2 p. m.

Afternoon Session.—The class in theology were in their places and all took part in the discussions on "The Atonement." They all seemed to get a deeper insight into the wondrous love of God as manifested in the gift of His Son to die for our sins. The topic was so interesting that almost every eye was filled with tears.

THIRD DAY.

The convention met at its regular hour. A regular Sunday-school occupied an hour and thirty minutes. A committee on education, consisting of A. R. Norris, G. O. Richardson and I. Clayton, was elected. Also a committee on temperance, consisting of R. H. Harbert, Fannie Herman and W. H. Moseby, was elected. Discussions on the Sunday-school topics continued until the hour for adjournment.

Afternoon Session.—The session was occupied by the discussion of "Justification by Faith." This lesson was full of interest.

FOURTH DAY.

This morning being Sunday, the regular Sunday-school for San Antonio and the convention Sunday school were conducted together by Prof. Richardson. Many useful lessons were carried away by the members of the convention. At 11 o'clock Prof. Richardson preached to the Sunday-school. At 3 o'clock the church was densely crowded. Elder Richardson gave a Bible reading on Holiness, in place of the usual sermon. The points proved by the reading were—1st, Holiness is commanded. 2d, We cannot enter heaven without it. 3d, It is provided for in the atonement. 4th, It is received of God by faith. 5th, It should be sought with intense desire and perseverence. 6th, It is retained by active faith. The effect of this reading was beyond description. The people were overwhelmed by the accumulation of precious truth on the subject of holiness, and they were deeply convinced that "without holiness no man shall see the Lord." There was scarcely a dry eye in the congregation. At the close of the reading the Elder asked how many would begin now, and earnestly seek to be made holy. Nearly every Christian in the house arose. Bible readings can be made a success among our people if properly conducted. This service was followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper. This was a season of universal interest.

FIFTH DAY.

The convention met at 9 o'clock. The committee on education presented the following report:

WHEREAS, We feel the importance of a good education, and,

WHEREAS, We have a Conference school at Austin, doing thorough work in all departments, therefore

Resolved, 1. That we will do all in our power to encourage public schools in our own localities.

2. We will urge all who wish a thorough preparation for the ministry, for teaching or for business, to attend the West Texas College at Austin, Texas.

3. We will contribute all we can toward building up said Conference school.

4. We will get our S. S. Journals, Lesson Tracts, and other helps into all our Sunday-schools. We will petition our S. S. Union to aid such schools as are too poor to buy, on account of failure in the crops.

A. R. NORRIS, Chairman.

The committee on temperance reported as follows:

WHEREAS, The use of intoxicating drinks is ruining the morals and blighting the prospects of many of our people for time and eternity, making their homes wretched and stamping disgrace and ignorance on their children. Therefore

Resolved 1, That we who compose this convention will keep ourselves wholly from this nefarious practice.

2. That all ministers of this conference should preach temperance sermons, and enforce the rules of the church against those who use intoxicating drinks as a beverage. The rules referred to are found in paragraphs 32 and 221 of the Methodist Discipline.

3. We will do all in our power to break up the drinking habit.

R. H. HARBERT, Chairman.

Topic 8, "Sunday-school Books and Helps," was discussed by R. H. Harbert and others. "How to Conduct Primary Classes" was well explained by Mrs. Richardson. It was clearly shown that the primary classes can take the regular Sunday-school lesson if the teacher has the skill to explain it in the language of a child. The catechism should be used in small portions at a time. W. H. Moseby and others discussed the topic on Sunday-school missionary societies.

Afternoon Session.—The class in theology were very much interested in the lessons given by Rev. M. A. Dougherty, of Trinity M. E. Church on the subject of the Lord's supper and baptism, for which brother Dougherty has the thanks of the convention. After resolutions of thanks to the good people of San Antonio who had so generously entertained the delegates, the convention adjourned with the Doxology and benediction.

During the week of the convention Bro. A. R. Norris kept up a protracted meeting each night, which resulted in the conversion of many souls. Praise the Lord.

R. H. HARBERT, Secretary.

He had not returned to his native land during all that period. How he came by so large an amount of money is not told, but it is a well-known fact that many of the very wealthy in the Church of England are becoming more and more interested in the cause of missions. The gift meets the pressing needs of the Society, as it ran in debt last year $105,000, making its entire deficit the large sum of $144,000.

All who are indebted to this office on account of subscription or books, are respectfully requested to forward to us either the whole amounts due, or as much thereof as possible, within the next few days. Remit by registered letter, postoffice money order, or by express. Do not delay it, but do the best you can, and report at once.

Rev. C. P. Wellman has been appointed by Dr. Hunt to take charge of Haven Normal School, at Waynesboro, Ga.

It has been complained for several years past that Louisiana fails to provide for the housing and treatment of all the insane persons, for whom admission is applied for at the State Asylum.

Rev. I. N. Failor, President of New Orleans University, arrived last week, and began at once preparations for the opening of the University, which is fixed for Oct. 6. He looks hearty and vigorous, well prepared for a winter campaign.

The New York Advocate of the 18th says: "Rev. Dr. Hunt, one of our Book Agents, was summoned to Western New York last week on account of the death of his mother. She was born in Sussex county, N. J., in 1792. She had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church seventy-two years. Her husband, Noah Hunt, died 10 years ago, aged 80. The house of the mother of Mrs. Hunt was one of the preaching-places of Bishop Asbury."

Congressman E. John Ellis, the "silver-tongued Democratic orator," whose long experience and high standing at the national capital, warrants him in so speaking, told a reporter of the Picayune newspaper last week these truths: "Louisiana suffers in the eyes of her sister States from the imputation that she is a lawless State, that life and liberty and property are not secure. This injures us by keeping away emigration, capital, enterprise, and it also injures the Democracy in the North. Chisolm massacres and Yazoo intolerance are the strongest, nay the only arguments, used by Northern Republicans. Ewing is now struggling against them in Ohio. If he is defeated, these arguments will defeat him."

The New York Methodist having remarked, relative to church members of African descent, that "for the [illegible] management and the best [illegible] that section of our [illegible] a bishop of the same [illegible] the Baltimore Methodist comments: "This, of course, would require a change in our Church constitution, viz: The repeal or modification of the plan of itinerant general superintendency by a two-thirds vote of the General Conference, and the approval, by a concurrent vote of three-fourths, of each Annual Conference. Would the devotion of our people to the equal and itinerant Episcopacy of the Church allow this? And would this satisfy the colored people themselves?" We add, in reply to the last question, that the colored people do not desire a bishop on the color line, and it would not be good policy to meet their petition in that spirit. They simply desire [illegible] of African descent for the church's sake.

Salvation.

We are so accustomed to hear and use this word that we are apt to forget the length and breadth and depth and heighth of its meaning. To some it has reference only to the future blessedness of the soul in heaven; by others, it is used chiefly to represent the feeling of delight and enthusiasm which they have when under great religious excitement. To them salvation is merely something to be enjoyed, insomuch that if they are not all the time very happy they fear that they are not saved.

Now it is most emphatically true that salvation is a most blessed experience which makes every soul happy who has it. This is involved in the very meaning of the word, which implies that the soul has been in great danger, and is rescued from that danger. The peril of the unsaved soul no man can adequately describe, because no man knows all the terrible consequences of sin, or can even conceive what are the eternal tortures of the lost in that place where the worm dieth not and the fire is never quenched. But we know enough to warrant the assertion that there is nothing else in the universe so dreadful as the miseries of a lost soul. Well may we be happy, then, if we know that we are delivered from this penalty of sin, and can say with the Apostle: "There is therefore now no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus. For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

But there is no salvation from the penalty of sin, except by salvation from the sin itself. The Christian religion is not a system of insurance against the results of transgression by which a man can purchase immunity from the unpleasant consequences of the sins he is doing and intends to continue doing. This is so obvious a truth that it is unnecessary to state it, were it not for the fact that many act as if they had precisely this understanding of religion. They profess to be saved and to have a hope of heaven when they know that in their everyday lives they do not bring forth the fruits of the spirit. It is time such people learned that their professions of salvation are a hollow mockery, and that they have no love for Christ, and no assurance of his favor, unless they are doing his will. For he has said: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me". The excellent custom of Methodists of allowing and urging every one who will to testify in class-meeting and love feast is liable to this abuse, viz: That some will make professions which are by no means justified by their practices. And this is all the more dangerous, because a man who has learned to tell a good story of himself is apt to continue doing so, when it is no longer true, and to be regarded by those who do not know his private life, as being what he represents himself to be. And so many a man takes the flattering unction to his soul that because he can talk well, and make people think from his talk that he is a Christian, he may, after all, be a pretty good sort of a man.

Salvation is not a thing of the lip merely, but of the life. Nor is it such that if a man has once experienced it, he has it forever. The doctrine "once in grace, always in grace" is not true, for every intelligent Christian knows that he can by a single act renounce his religion and bring his soul into condemnation. Yet many a Methodist acts as if this doctrine were true, for having once had a genuine religious experience through sincere repentance and faith in Christ, he contrives not only to tell of that experience—which is proper enough, but to rely upon it for his eternal salvation, when in point of fact it is wholly a thing of the past with him, and he has no present experience of salvation. Salvation to be of any value to us, must be a thing of the present. It is a present, conscious deliverance from sin, which is proved, not by a set of pleasant, comfortable feelings, but by the fruits of a holy life. If a man knows that he has been able to resist the temptations which, before, overcame him, if he knows that he has ceased to do evil and learned to do well, and has in conjunction with that knowledge the inward witness of the spirit to his acceptance with God, he has a right to profess to be saved, but not otherwise.

And this consciousness of present salvation from sin is the best and only sure guarantee of eternal salvation in heaven. It is in fact the beginning and foretaste of heaven. For salvation is a state of holiness in which we enjoy the presence and [illegible] God and the inhabitation of his Spirit. [illegible] with only [illegible] experience [illegible] and promises there will be more full and constant and rich than it can be here. But the same graces and tempers, the same peace and joy which we have in the Holy Ghost here, we will have in larger measure there, through uninterrupted vision and communion with God.

If, then, we would calculate our chances of heaven, we must take an inventory of our present spiritual possessions and attainments. Are we saved from sin now? Have we the fruits of that salvation in our characters and conduct—"love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, patience and faith?" Have we Christ formed within, the hope of glory, his spirit, his mind, his dispositions? If so, then we have that blessed foretaste and beginning of heaven in our souls which is the sure guarantee of eternal salvation. May God give us all this experience, and may we never rest satisfied till we have it.

The C. L. S. C.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Vincent sends us the following: "The Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle enters upon its second year with October, 1879. More than eight thousand persons were enrolled as members of the class of 1882, and large numbers are coming in with every mail to march under the banner of the class of 1883.

"It is the purpose of the C. L. S. A. to promote habits of reading and study, and during a course of four years to give the college student's outlook to the average man or woman whether young or old. It does not profess to be a substitute for the college course, but it does profess to give a broad view of the fields of science, literature and art.

"The course of study requires about forty minutes a day during the week days for nine months in the year, and students spending this much time for four years will be able to complete the course, and will receive a diploma or certificate testifying to the fact of having read the required books.

"An annual fee of fifty cents is required for the payment of clerk hire, postage, correspondence, printing, etc. No profits are sought or desired by the managers. The books, which are sold at the lowest figures, are sold by book dealers, especially by Phillips & Hunt, N. Y., and Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, O. Not a penny of profit is made by the managers of the C. L. S. C., upon books sold. The whole thing is a labor of love.

"Persons may become members of the C. L. S. C. by forwarding their names to Dr. Vincent, Plainfield, N. J. They will then receive a blank containing the questions concerning age, denomination, family, etc. On the return of this blank filled out, their names will be enrolled, tickets of membership and general directions for prosecuting the course of study forwarded.

"It is the design of the C. L. S. C. to promote a higher and worthier class of reading during the week, thus controlling in the interest of religious culture the educational and literary forces which are now so active, and which are too often used to antagonize the Christian faith."

A Sunday Liquor Law.

The police jury of Terrebonne parish, Louisiana, has ordained:

That from and after the first day of November 1879, no wholesale or retail groceries, no place of public resort, no coffee house or other place where liquors of any kind are kept to be sold, shall be opened on Sunday, and any person thus offending, or who shall be found selling or giving the same on Sunday, shall pay a fine of one hundred dollars for each and every offence one half of which shall go to the person informing, the other half to the Parish Treasurer to be placed to the General Fund account, said amount to be collected before any Court of competent jurisdiction of this parish on the suit of the parish.

This good result of active temperance work does not please the Terrebonne Independent. That paper says:

We do not think the people of this parish will let a Police Jury of eight or nine say whether you shall drink on Sunday or not.

The New York Methodist says: "Rev. Geo. R. Bristor is making a vigorous and promising effort to pay off the $8,000 debt on the Ames Church, New Orleans. He has passed the middle of his race, and is nearing "the home stretch,"—lacking only about $3,000. Help him, brethren."

Thornton Hull, a Luling, Texas, boy, aged 15, writes us that an examination was held at that place July 18, and he received the prize in arithmetic and history. Some 300 people were present. We are glad to hear of his success.

Rev. J. H. Buckner writes us from Windsor, Ontario, that he thinks of going to Tennessee this fall.

The Dixon Matter Again.

Our neighbor, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, recently prefaced a communication as follows:

Rev. Dr. R. Abbey, writing from Yazoo City, Miss, to the St. Louis Christian Advocate about the Dixon affair, and concerning which the Northern brethren have made so much ado, says: etc.

Rev. Dr. Abbey attempted to prove that the affair was not a political but a private matter, but this statement of his reads suspiciously:

Secondly, The public trouble here was not party against party, but the "regular" Democratic party against one individual person. That man is now dead; he was shot in the street and killed about a week ago. He was a candidate for sheriff, but was not nominated by any party or persons.

And this is sufficient to arouse the interest of the reader:

Lastly, Without expressing any opinion at all, for I am only stating facts, some of the persons who sought to prevent Dixon from being a candidate were among our best citizens, as quiet, as peaceable, as law abiding, as prudent, yea, and as old and as religious as you and I would claim to be.

Those who did not know the amiable Dr. Abbey, without a word of caution, on reading the above, would suppose he was one of those who religiously attempted to persuade Dixon from being a candidate by shooting him down in the street a week or so before; but we do not believe it. The Yazoo Herald, and the testimony of Dr. Abbey, would remove any doubt, if any had previously existed in the public mind, that it was decidedly a political murder. Says the Herald:

The good people of Yazoo county are agreed upon one point, and that is that no man or set of men shall achieve official preferment by massing colored voters against the whites, especially if this has to be done by resorting to means which are pernicious in theory and dangerous in practice. The interests of any county can't afford to be jeopardized by any such means.

Samuel W. Winn writes us from Topeka, Kansas, (Sept. 22): "There are of the exodus to this place only two families taking refuge in the Barracks built for them, and they are working for $1 per diem, and have bought them lots and lumber, and will soon have quarters for winter. The people are expecting a large exodus this fall; a great demand for them out in Colorado, but none to supply the demand, and the money was sent back."

The new Bishop of Jerusalem, the Rev. Joseph Barclay, D. D., is an Irishman, and a graduate of the Dublin University, where he took the B. A. degree in 1854, and LL.D in 1865.

Letter from Jackson, La.

JACKSON, LA., Sept. 22, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Our third quarterly meeting was held here on the 7th and 8th. Elder Gould was present, and efficient in the discharge of his duties. On the Sabbath, at 11 a. m., Bro. Marshall Smith preached for us; and at 3 p. m. Elder Gould gave us an able sermon from 1st Cor. xv: 55. The elder is much beloved, and whenever it is known he is going to preach, crowds come. May he be spared many useful and profitable days in the Master's vineyard.

August 30 a Sabbath-school celebration was held here. A deep interest is felt in the school, and there is an attendance of about 60. At 10 a. m. children and parents assembled in Magnolia Church, and at 11 the exercises began with prayer and singing. The children performed their parts well. N. W. Payne, Esq., and R. L. Perry delivered fine speeches. After these exercises we partook of a sumptuous dinner, which the good sisters and friends of the church had prepared. We enjoyed ourselves very much. To Miss Mary Ellen Lee, the assistant of our superintendent, we are much indebted for the efficiency of the school.

GEO. LACEY,
Pastor Magnolia Church.

The New England Methodist says: "Slavery is not dead, though its brains have long since been knocked out. The legal bond by which the slave was held, has been broken; the diabolical animus remains, with the dominant class. The fight continues, but has been transferred to another part of the field. The conflict which raged thirty and forty years ago in Boston and New York, has moved down to Atlanta and New Orleans. The Methodist Advocate and the SOUTHWESTERN are resuming and supplementing the work of the Liberator and the Standard. If you wish to take a look into the hottest of the fight, read the bold and dashing articles of these papers. They are written on the field, and under the inspiration of a heavy cannonade."

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

MISSISSIPPI.

O Gillespie, Ex Prairie circuit: "The people here are willing to support the gospel. At St. Michael church our missionary collection was $3.50."

M. Brown, Garlandsville: "My protracted meeting causes the church to rejoice; 80 joined in four weeks, 25 were baptized; 150 members have been added to this work in three years."

S. Williams, Louisville: "The presiding elder had to remain away on account of the yellow fever, but we had a good meeting; 36 converts, 20 joined on probation. Five dollars was taken up for the elder."

D. D. Goodwin, Vicksburg: "I have received in full membership 4, on probation 3, baptized 6. Our Sunday-school has increased fifty per cent. this year. We expect to send a delegate to the annual conference instructed to ask for a colored bishop, not for separate work, but to preside over any."

Samuel S. Harris, Minter City: "Since our last basket meeting we have so nearly completed our church, that we are now holding services in it. At third quarter Rev. James Ellis was with us, and the Lord's Supper was administered to 65. Our Sunday-school, an organized missionary society, numbers 75. R. W. Jackson, teacher of the day school, an excellent man, is our superintendent."

W. H. H. Gallion, De Kalb: "On the 9th, 10th and 11th we were successful in removing the debt from the church. On opening our supper I delivered a lecture, followed by Rev. L. S. Bell, of Macon, who sold lemonade in a keg representing Rebecca at the well. White people joined with us, and say they will do all they can to help us in a good cause. The work is prospering; 72 additions this year. At the next conference will report on the dollar system, for there is a good spirit among the people for it."

TEXAS.

London Morris, Monthalia: "The camp meeting on St. Mark's river got us 10 converts, 3 on probation, 6 baptisms. At Leesville camp meeting began on the fourth Thursday and ended on the 5th. Times are very hard."

A. Campbell, Seguin: "Protracted meeting just closed, resulting in 4 conversions. Bros. Carnes of Lockhart, and W. H. Davis of Nockenut were with us Sunday evening. Elder Carper held fourth quarterly last Saturday and Sunday."

J. E. Freeman, Hempstead: "We have 150 church members and 120 children in Sunday-school. Rev. E. Lee is our preacher this year, and he is a clear warm-hearted lover of the children. We have sent on for an organ for the school and church. I am a member of the Legislature now, elected from the 37th district. There are 8 colored men, 10 greenbackers, and 75 Democrats in the House,—also two preachers of our church. B. F. Williams and Elias Mays."

LOUISIANA.

J. W. Hilton, Natchitoches: "I have received some 130 in the church this year. Times are very hard."

A. Martin, State Line: "I am happy to say we have built a church this year 30x40, and we held our quarterly meeting in it; also a parsonage, with two rooms, in which I am now living."

Revival Notes from West Texas.

A precious revival meeting was held by Bro. B. E. Brown, C. J. Forbes, of the C. P. Church, and myself on Middle Gabriel, in Burnett county, embracing the fourth Sabbath in August, which resulted in the conversion of 27 persons. The meeting closed with many still unsaved, but earnestly seeking the Savior. This meeting was a great success.

Bro. Clark, myself, and others held a meeting of great interest eight miles below Austin, on the Colorado river. Considering that there had not been a revival in that neighborhood for ten years, the results of the meeting are wonderful; 18 were hopefully converted and many were left seeking Christ when the meeting closed.

A meeting of some interest has just closed at Hopewell, in Burnett, conducted by the C. P. Church. I aided in the meeting five days; 11 were converted and 12 joined the C. P. Church. A general religious interest is manifested all over this country.

The Exodus.

DURANT, MISS., Sept. 22, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I ask a space in your valuable columns to say something concerning the Exodus. We are often asked the question by our late owners why we want to leave them and go to Kansas? We want to go there because we believe we will be free people there, for the governor of Kansas writes that all the rights of the law are guaranteed there. Now let me show you the spirit of one party that is in the South, and you know what party that is. I will show you that spirit in print and which cannot be denied. That is what is driving us from this State. The spirit referred to will be found in an extract from the American Citizen, printed in Canton, Miss. I thought I would have nothing to say about Kansas, but necessity compels me. I hope you will show this in the SOUTHWESTERN and let the world see, and if God has opened us a way to go to the land of Canaan let us go. There are a great many colored people who say: "How will I get to Kansas?" I don't suppose that wonder is as great as John's wonder was. We are going in the name of God, and we must emigrate.

H. HESLUP.

A PRIMER FOR POLITICAL TYROS.

LESSON I.

Do you see our gun? It is a good gun.

It has just fired a salute to the Democracy of Madison.

Next week it will fire a conical shell at the In-de-pend-ents.

After that, this gun will shoot only red-hot balls.

If these balls are aimed at you it is no use for you to dodge; for they will hit you sure.

If they are not aimed at you, and you see one lying around loose like, you had better not touch it.

If you do, it will burn you;
For the shot will all be red-hot.

Let the colored people beware of office-seekers who are endeavoring to array them against the great mass of the white people, in order that they may sail into office upon another sea of strife. They cannot forget the past. The colored people will in the end be the heaviest sufferers. The office-seekers will escape unharmed, in the smoke of the flames they have kindled, and leave them to take the consequences. —Clarion, Jackson, Miss.

Foreign Missions.

Rev. Superintendent Challis furnishes the Mission Rooms with a catalogue of the sacred Scriptures and other books on sale at the Bible House at Constantinople. They number 1032 different books in some 18 different languages.

An unprecedented event in the history of our Bulgarian Mission is reported by Superintendent Challis, Aug.: "I made a missionary address to my congregation after which I proceeded to take up a collection and receive just $22 from a company of 15 persons."

Miss Gertrude Howe will leave San Francisco on the steamer of Oct. 4th for Shanghai, China. Her field is in Kin Klang.

We have received from our friends in Sweden a beautiful photograph of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Stockholm.

A poor missionary is sadly in need of a Commentary, and asks if some one has not such a second hand work on hand to whom it would be a pleasure to meet the want? Address Mission Rooms, 805 Broadway, N. Y.

The City.

The Sunday-school Union meets in Union Chapel, on Monday next at 7 p. m.

A literary and musical entertainment for the benefit of Ames M. E. Church, will be given at the church, corner of St Charles and Calliope streets, on the evening of October 3. Admission price is fixed at ten cents. A large attendance is expected, and all preparations have been made for an enjoyable affair.

The Medical and Surgical Association unanimously resolved that the board of health be requested to urge the press not to publish the causes of death, with the names of deceased persons, because of annoyance to relatives, etc. The City Item, which was the first newspaper to start the custom, contends that the publication of the causes of death is in the interest of public morality, and we believe its opinion is entirely correct.

Wm. O. Rogers, city superintendent of public schools, told an interviewer of the Times that he considered that the new constitution, if adopted, would virtually destroy the present system, which was about as complete a one as could be devised. The schools at present could not be maintained at an expense of less than $300,000 per annum. Under the new constitution the fund applicable to city schools will only reach about one-half that sum, or $150,000. Concessions were made to the country at the city's expense.

Religious Items.

Joseph Meyer, a native of New Orleans, born of Jewish parents, was converted to Christianity, and went to England and became a member of the Protestant monks under the care of "Father Benson," who once on a time visited Boston. "Father Joseph" went out to India as a missionary, returned to England, read Catholic books, quarrelled with "Father Benson," who excommunicated him, and went straight to Mons. Capel, who has led so many ritualists into the Catholic church, and is now a hopeful convert of that faith.

Roman Catholics view with great concern the advance of Protestantism in Rome. Since 1870 no less than fourteen Protestant churches have been built in the Eternal City, and Protestant schools and asylums are springing up, while Protestant literature is being extensively circulated. More schools and churches are to be built, the Waldensians having some $60,000 or $65,000 in hand ready to purchase a site for a new edifice. The Catholics say, however, that, though the Protestant missionaries are numerous enough and active enough almost to convert the whole nation, not many converts are really won; but they express amazement that money for these missions is raised so easily.—N. Y. Independent.

In New York city the Roman Catholic church has privileges suitable to an established church. In particular, the prisons are given over to the priests. The chapel in the "Tombs" is fitted up for Romish worship and regularly occupied for that purpose, while a Protestant minister is compelled if he attempts to minister to convicts, to do so in a place where there are no conveniences for gathering hearers together, and without any assistance of the officers to preserve order. So at least we have been informed by those who ought to know.—Boston Watchman.

October 5, 1879—OUR GREAT HIGH PRIEST.

SCRIPTURE—Heb. 4: 14-16; 5: 1-6

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them."—7: 25.

TOPIC.—Access to God through our Great High Priest.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Prefatory.—The key-note of the Epistle to the Hebrews is "Christ the great high priest." Familiar as the Jews were with the temple and its services, the supremely imposing figure of which was the high priest, no presentation of Christ would be so likely to impress them as one in which he was held up as the great high priest. Aaron was only the figure of the true high priest that was to come. He, and all the other high priests who followed him in lineal succession, were but the heralds that told that a greater one than they was drawing near. His Official Location. "That is passed into the heavens." Rather, "through the heavens." He passed through them into the inner holy of holies, where God resides, just as the high priest passed through the vail into the place where God made manifest his presence in his tabernacle upon earth. But into the holy of holies of the tabernacle and the temple the high priest entered only once a year to intercede for the people, and his stay there was but a very transient one. He went into its profound darkness with awe, and with fear and trembling, and, knowing his own demerits, perhaps with a lack of confidence in his own pleading. But Christ has gone into the holy of holies where no darkness shrouds the face of his Father from view. He is there permanently—"is set down at the right hand of God." He pleads with him face to face, with no consciousness of guilt to impair his confidence in his intercessions. "Jesus the Son of God," is more than high priest. He is human and yet divine—human so that he can sympathize with our infirmities, and divine so that he can secure our full pardon and acceptance. "Let us hold fast our profession." Many make a profession of Christ who hardly ever confess him. They join the church, and that is the last that ever is heard of them. They never speak in prayer-meeting, never teach a Sunday-school class, never try to point any one to the way of life, never even have family worship at home. Why should we hold fast to our confession of him? 1. Because he is the true high priest. 2. Because he has passed through the heavens. 3. Because he is the Son of God. But the apostle has not exhausted the reasons for holding fast our confession. Indeed, the most touching are. 1. Because he is faithful. 2. Because he has been tempted. 3. Because he is sinless. The Exhortation. "Let us, therefore, come boldly unto the throne of grace," etc. There is nothing there to fear. Instead of condemnation there will be a welcome.

An Eternal High Priest (1-6)—Every high priest, so the apostle says, had to have two qualifications. 1. He was "taken from among men." 2. "Who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for he himself is compassed with infirmity." He who knows his own heart will be lenient in his judgement of others. The second qualification was, that the high priest must be called of God. Aaron was chosen by the Lord for his office. No man had a right to take this honor unto himself. "Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest." He stooped to take this honor—he did not ascend to it. The path to it lay through dark Gethsemane, over the hill of Calvary, and down through the portals of the tomb. In relation to this he prayed that the cup might pass from him, but resignedly said, "Thy will, not mine, be done." He became our great high priest—through the sacrifice of himself. To show that he really was called of God, two quotations are referred to. 1. "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee." Ps. 2: 7. 2. "Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." Ps. 110: 4. How much there is in this lesson to encourage sinners and to strengthen saints!

Dr. Book, of Leipsic, says the nervousness and peevishness of our times are chiefly attributable to tea and coffee. The digestive organs of confirmed coffee-drinkers are in a state of chronic derangement. Chocolate is natural in its physical effects and is really the most [illegible] of our fashionable drinks. Walter Baker & Co.'s preparations are undoubtedly the best, and may be had of grocers everywhere.

New Books.

Messrs. Lee and Shepard will immediately publish Jules Verne's last book, "The Tribulations of a Chinaman in China," which has just appeared in Paris. The book is intensely interesting and amusing, and many of the popular features of the day—such as the phonograph, Capt. Boyton in his rubber suit, life insurance companies, banking speculations, advertising schemes and [illegible] other eccentricities of the times—are woven into the narrative.

Those who read the SOUTHWESTERN every week should know [illegible] about the Robbins Washer. A letter to the manufacturers [illegible] bring them the fullest information, and should the Washer be admitted to their household necessities the drudgery of every-day life would be greatly lightened.

The Elevated Railroads of New York are described by Charles Barnard. "Noah's Ark Ashore," is the title of a well told narrative of a visit to a queer "Ark" on the Amazon river which a kind-hearted native had turned into a sort of asylum for beasts and birds of various kinds. And there are several funny pictures and verses scattered through the number.

In the North American Review for October Francis Parkman gives his views on "The Woman Question" in a way that will not please the suffrage advocates; Frederic Harrison, under the head of "Science and Humanity," criticises the system of thought and life propounded by Auguste Comte; Owen F. Aldis writes of "Louis Napoleon and the Southern Confederacy;" Robert Garrett on "The Railway Problem" gives some instructive facts at seasonable length; Prof. E. L. Youman's paper is on Spencer's Evolution Philosophy; Part III of "The Diary of a Public Man," and "Recent History and Biography" are of interest. New York: D. Appleton & Co.: $5 per year, single number 50 cents.

Wide Awake for October opens with a frontispiece which illustrates Rev. I. L. Beman's true story of "Hunting Deer." This is followed by an article from Mary Wager-Fisher on the "Philadelphia Reform School." Then comes a capital story about "Polly's Temptation," and Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney's "Trotting Song." Two other full-page illustrated poems are S. C. Stone's "How They Received the King," and "The Weed's Mission," by Margaret Eytinge. "Nip and Tuck" is a very funny story, with funny pictures, by Eleanor Kirk. Mr. Benjamin's "American Artists," Series No. X., relates to Wordsworth Thompson, the young historical painter. The October Scribner opens with a paper on "Ups and Downs in Leadville," by Ernest Ingersoll; text and pictures occupy 23 pages. "Field Sports in Minnesota" is written by Charles A. Zimmerman, a noted sportsman of St. Paul. An exquisitely beautiful engraving of Fortuny's "Piping Shepherd" accompanies a poem by Chas. de Kay. Under the title of "Edison's System of Fast Telegraphy" Edwin M. Fox describes the automatic telegraph which was in operation for a year between New York and Washington. A notable feature of this paper is a new portrait of Edison. The fifth paper in the Brazil series, by Herbert H. Smith, is "Rio de Janiero." Kiss Kate Field's sketch of W. S. Gilbert, in the September number, is succeeded in this by a similar account of Arthur Sullivan. Dr. Holland writes of "The Popular Wisdom" and "Good Talking."

The National Repository for October opens with Burns's celebrated poem the "Cotter's Saturday Night," handsomely illustrated. This is followed by "Moosehead Lake in October," by Mrs. H. G. Rowe. "Holman Hunt" is criticised, and a portrait given. "The Cliff-dwellers of the Far West" is full of antiquarian lore; and so is "In an Old Egyptian Library," a second paper by Prof. W. H. Larrabee. Rev. R. Wheatley gives a life sketch of "Mary Ruthford Garrettson," Rev. A. F. Bridges writes a notice of John Howard Bryant. Dr. B. Hawley treats of the connection between "Christianity and Art;" and "My Land of Beulah" is continued through two more chapters. The Editorial Miscellany is rich and varied, and contains many items of valuable information. The National Repository is published monthly at Three Dollars a Year, post-paid. Hitchcock & Walden, Cincinnati, Chicago, or St. Louis. Phillips & Hunt, New York.

"Laugh and Grow Fat."

This ancient bit of advice is well enough for "spare" people, but how about those that are already too fat? What is to become of them? Sit still, and I'll tell you. After many experiments, extending through months of patient investigation and toil, the celebrated analytical chemist, J. C. Allan, has perfected and given to the world Allan's Anti-Fat. Thus far in several hundred cases, this great remedy has never failed to reduce a corpulent person from three to six pounds per week. It is perfectly harmless and positively efficient. Sold by druggists.

Cured of Drinking.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor, that had so prostrated his system that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups, and I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS,

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

THE ROBBINS

FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER

AGENTS WANTED.

We bespeak for this article the careful perusal of every intelligent person into whose hands this paper may fall. It should carry great weight with house-keepers and MEN WHO ARE LOOKING FOR A BUSINESS which will pay. To such the chance now offered is seldom equalled—never excelled

In bringing this article before the public, it becomes necessary to take into consideration

which is yet so imperfectly understood. Having had a lifelong experience in the laundry business, in connection with first-class hotels, public laundries, asylums, hospitals, etc., we know whereof we speak. The unnerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam wash boilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, viz: The saving of labor, the wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration; all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask all washerwomen and housekeepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow grease," or in other words, plenty of hard laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No; to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be the most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is a hundred per cent. greater.

READ WHAT OTHERS SAY.

From FRANK FLOWER, Eatontown, N. J., Jan. 30, 1878.

• • Your Robbins Washer has preserved my clothes from the remorseless washboard and the ruthless scrubbing and rubbing of the washerwoman fiend. No longer is washday the most dreaded of the week, as, thanks to the Robbins Washer, our washday is free from manual labor and unpleasantness incident thereto, and I hope your sales may extend until every household is blessed with the Robbins Washer. One thing I can assure you, that if she could not procure another, I do not think money could buy from my wife her washer. She has used it three years, and likes it better every washing day. Rest assured I shall always speak for my friend, the Washer, on each and every opportunity.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking and housework are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking while the house-wife does her housework.

The following extract from a private letter written by a lady to her sister in this city, who had sent her a Washer:

• • • Mr. — is home, and he is about the garden just as he was last Summer, and works right up against his clothes just as father does. He dirties four shirts a week, as black as dirt. We never could get them clean in the world if it were not for the Washer. We did not wash yesterday, and this morning I have been digging up all kinds of chores, while the washing does itself. It is just wonderful!

Last Saturday morning I told Em. we would make our fire do double duty, so we put all the threshers' sheets in the boiler, and after them seven long roller towels, and as many tea towels, and when we got our baking done they were all clean. You have not forgotten how dirty hired men make sheets and towels. I think everybody would have to have workmen's shirts, sheets and towels to appreciate it.

I told Em. I hoped no one would ask us to lend again, for what would we do if it gave out, I can't tell.

I now have a Washer in my kitchen that cost $15, but was laid aside because it was harder work to operate it than to do the washing with the washboard. If I could not get another of the Washers and Bleachers I could not afford to sell mine for $20. Every other kind of work goes on at the same time. • •

All who have tried steam wash boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water-force is what removes dirt from the fibres of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution, while steam will not remove dirt. It is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature, it causes the fabric to contract, which shuts in, or as our housewives say, "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings, and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER

embodies all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fabric and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which causes a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are three sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants, barber-shops, boarding-houses, etc.; No. 3, or steam power-washer, into which is conducted, through a ½-inch pipe, live steam from the steam boiler, from which is obtained the power for driving the water. This washer takes the place of machinery in places where steam power is used in the laundries.

The Washer is composed of metal, and cannot get out of order.

The family size weighs about 5 lbs., and is only 8 inches long by 5 inches wide, and 1½ inches deep.

The discharge pipe is 13 inches high over that, and 1½ inches in diameter. It throws water in a solid unbroken stream at the rate of 10 to 12 gallons per minute. It will work in any family boiler. It takes only three or four ounces of soap to 10 or 12 gallons of water, and will wash bed and table linen a boiler full in ten to fifteen minutes, wearing apparel in from twenty to thirty minutes, and will remove all streaks without any rubbing; requires no previous preparation of clothes, such as soaking over night, etc. We take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets thoroughly at work, we fill the boiler as full as it will hold, by gently pressing them down with a stick. We use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard, it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

For LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

The No. 2, or small hotel size, will do the work in a boiler four times the size of the common family boiler, and wash of average pieces from 1,500 to 2,000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler. They will work in anything that has a flat bottom large enough for them to rest upon.

For hospitals this washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabric as pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics and scientific men generally it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics or water force ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics that has ever been known. It is the greatest bleacher extant, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER is this: We have five pounds of metal, which attains a much greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube; thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of the same prevent its flowing backward; and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus, we get a combination. First, we have the desired heat. Second, perfect chemical action of the soap. Third, force of water—all of which are required to thoroughly cleanse and purify any fabric.

THE IMPROVED WASHER.

The Improved Washer has a perfect fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting animal or vegetable matter or discoloration from the various fibres which constitute all our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solutions of chloride of lime; third, solutions of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water; then, last of all processes, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish for the market. Now, the question arises, Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—Poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt or "bleach the clothes." Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

We have endeavored to set forth as explicitly as possible the merits of our Washer and the mode of operating it. And as it is much easier to answer inquiries here, we transcribe a few of the more common

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q. What kind of boiler do you use?

Ans. Any kind of boiler that has a flat bottom 5½x8 inches will do.

Q. How can you have a flow of water at the rate of ten or twelve gallons per minute in a boiler holding only eight or ten gallons?

Ans. The same water is used over and over again; and in order to be thus used it must pass down through and through the fabric, and this with the soap and heat is what does the business.

Q. How can you use a large quantity of water in a boiler already full of clothes?

Ans. We first fill the boiler two-thirds full of water; as soon as the washer commences to work, we put in the clothes.

Q. Can you wash flannels and colored clothes?

Ans. We wash anything that can be washed Flannels and colored clothes need but little soap and from five to ten minutes of the full operation of the Washer. Flannel should be rinsed in HOT water. It is the change from BOILING to COLD water that contracts the fibre, causing them to shrink. Any FULLER will tell you this is so. Fugitive prints will part with their colors by this or any other process, but fast colors will not be injured. It is not best, as every good housekeeper knows, to use strong soap or alkalies in washing colored goods. Many prints and other colored fabrics have some kind of ACID as a base, and if alkalies are used strong enough to destroy this acid, the fabric will part with its color. This is why English scarlets, which will not fade in the sun, or by ordinary washing, are ruined by STRONG soaps. These facts are worth remembering by the inexperienced housekeeper.

Q. Can you use the common soft soap of the farm-house?

Ans. Yes, if good.

Q. Is it not better to put very dirty clothes to soak over night? Ans. No.

Q. Will your machine remove the streaks from dirty wristbands and collars, such as farmers and mechanics wear, after having been worn a whole week, as they usually are? Will not these require extra care in rinsing? Ans. The Washer will cleanse the dirtiest clothing. Give the clothes a thorough rinsing.

Q. We sometimes find a whitish scum on top of the water. What is the cause of this? Ans. Your water is HARD. When soap is added to hard water a chemical change takes place. Certain substances in the water having an affinity for the alkali of the soap, unite with it, thus setting FREE other substances; these are PRECIPITATED and fall to the bottom, or rise to the surface in the form of a whitish scum, according as their specific gravity is greater or less than that of water. This is why it is impossible to cleanse fabrics with hard water. Hard water may be softened by the use of borax or sal-soda. Pure rain water is best for ANY method of washing.

Q. How can it be possible for so simple a thing to cleanse fabrics? Ans. If you will study the PHILOSOPHY of the Washer, carefully and intelligently, for a few moments, and consider what is required to remove dirt from clothing, you will ask, "How is it possible for it NOT to cleanse fabrics?" A gentleman writing to us upon this point, says: "I must own that when I first saw your Washer, I was utterly incredulous as to its cleansing powers. My family were still more so. In fact, they had no faith in washers of any kind; but being strongly urged by a friend who had used your machine successfully, I concluded to try one. We made the first trial with a good many misgivings. I fact, I could not see how so simple a thing COULD wash clothing. But when I saw the water pouring out from the discharge pipe at the rate of 10 or 12 gallons per minute, and when I reflected that this amount of water must pass through the clothes twenty or thirty times in the course of an ordinary wash, my doubts began to give way. I saw that there was both philosophy and common sense in the process, and that it was impossible that it should NOT prove effective. I am now a firm believer in the Washer, and trust it will find a place, as it deserves, in every household."

Q. Will you send a Washer C. O. D. to my address? Ans. We do not send Washers C. O. D. It only costs the sender 10 cents for a registered letter or money order, which can be sent at our risk.

We send sample Washers by express, and guarantee all packages to be delivered to our customers at their nearest express office. We pack securely in a strong box, and invariably send notice of shipment.

WILL YOUR WASHER DO ALL YOU CLAIM FOR IT?

(This Question Comes to Us Oftener than Any Other.) Answer—Stop and think, and you will readily see that we must sell more than Sample Washers in order to make our business profitable to us. Consider the cost of manufacture, rents, printing and office expenses, and prepaying expressage on Samples, and this fact is derived. We must depend entirely for our profits upon the sales made by those who first send for a Sample Washer, and after trying it and convincing themselves, become our Agents. If it were not "All We Claim For It," could we sell more than a sample to a person?

INDISPUTABLE EVIDENCE.

WELLS RIVER, Orange Co., Vt., Mch. 21, '79.
Messrs. Bissell Manufacturing Company, 42 Murray street, New York:

I enclose $3.50, for which please send me, express paid, one of your No. 1 Washers, per your ad. in N. Y. Weekly Witness of March 20. I propose to give it a thorough trial, and if it is all you claim for it, which I have no reason to doubt, I think seriously of taking a general agency for several counties in this vicinity.

A. W. JONES, Wells River, Vt.

Washer to be sent to A. W. Jones, Wells River, Vt.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 5, 1879.
Bissell Manufacturing Company:

GENTLEMEN: Sample Washer received. Gives good satisfaction in my family. Trust I may be able to send you an order for a dozen soon, and take general agency for a county. Hastily, A. W. JONES.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 12, 1879.
Bissell Manufacturing Company, New York.

GENTLEMEN: I trust you will excuse me for troubling you with the first difficulty which arises with me in undertaking to introduce your Washer in this place. I wrote you a week ago, saying that it gave good satisfaction, and now say more. The third time using it to-day in my family, having become conversant with it, we could do anything we chose almost, and in most satisfactory manner, washing flannels and all. But to-day (later) a lady has used it who says (the clothes being very dirty, the collars, etc., having been saturated with sweat) that the clothes have yellow streaks in them, and that she believes that the continued use of the Washer will cause the clothes to become yellow beyond reparation. I cannot find but that she used the Washer according to directions. Can you not give me some testimonials which touch directly upon that point, and a list of names of some who have used the machine a year or more, to whom I may write in regard to the matter? My only excuse for writing this is that I am interested to have the Washer proved to be what I myself believe it to be—"a success." Very respectfully,

A. W. JONES, Wells River, Orange Co.

P. S.—Have seen the lady again, and she admits the clothes had become yellow by a careless servant and hard water. Would like the testimonials just the same however.

The letters asked for were sent.

BISSELL MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 11, 1879.
Messrs. Bissell Manufacturing Company.

GENTLEMEN: Inclosed please find check for $24, for which please send me one dozen No. 1 Washers, quick by express, and give me general agency for Orange County, Vt., and would like Caledonia County reserved for me. Took an order to-day from a lady who is considered the most particular in town about her washings. She tried the Washer, and was very much pleased with it. Hope I may get the above dozen by last of the week by express. Hastily,

A. W. JONES.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 22, 1879.
Bissell Manufacturing Company.

GENTLEMEN: I return to you herewith letters of testimonial sent me in yours of the 15th instant, for which please accept my thanks. I think that I have succeeded in convincing my customers that it is not a humbug, and the letters were just what I needed, so far as they went. Very respectfully,

A. W. JONES.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 23, 1879.

GENTLEMEN: Inclosed please find check for $52, for which please send, immediately on its receipt, by express, twenty-four No. 1 Washers and two No. 2 Washers, and give me Caledonia and Orleans Counties, in Vermont. Hastily,

A. W. JONES.

Having explained the correct theory of cleansing fabrics, and shown by our description, and the testimony of people who are using, that the principle of the Washer and Bleacher embodies the above theory, we ask you to take particular notice of

THE INDUCEMENTS WE OFFER.

We want first-class men as GENERAL AGENTS; men capable of managing one or more Counties.

To each man we give a duly executed LICENSE.

We furnish descriptive circulars for distribution among families. Also large posters for advertising in public places.

We also furnish INSTRUCTIONS TO GENERAL AGENTS which enable them to handle their territory to the best advantage.

Any Agent who will place this Washer in families can sell one in almost every instance, upon a trial of it. The great saving in time, labor and material and the extreme low price of the Washer brings it within the reach of all. It cannot get out of order. It does the work rapidly and well. These points commend it to every one. Send for a sample; try it; show it to your friends; get their orders, and if you wish to secure a county or town, don't delay, but let us hear from you at once. Remember the old maxim, "First come, first served."

In territory where there are no Agencies established, to persons desiring a Washer for their own use, we will deliver the same, CHARGES PREPAID, on receipt of price as stated above. You can readily determine when there is an Agency established, as Posters will be put up in conspicuous places, and Circulars distributed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Before writing for further information read carefully the following:

The above contains all the information we can possibly impart to you. The principle and merits of the Washer, and testimony of those who are using it. All that our printed Circulars contain is here laid before you.

We do this to avoid the necessity of sending out circulars, or answering letters of inquiry. Those ordering direct from this advertisement will be dealt with strictly as stated above. We give to such, by prepaying Expressage upon their Washers, the full benefit of what we would otherwise expend in circulars, stationery, postage and labor, the cost of which in the aggregate is enormous.

As to the reliability of this Company, we refer you to the notice in another column of the Editor of this paper. Also to the MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK of this city, or to any Express Company in New York.

In ordering, write plainly your name, Post-office, County and State. Also the name of the Express office to which you wish the Washer forwarded. Strange as it may seem, some people who usually write a very good hand spell their names in Chinese, or some other language unknown to the average office clerk, and some even forget to write their names at all.

Cash must accompany all orders. Remit by Post-office Order or Registered Letter, at our risk. We insure the safe delivery of all Washers ordered as above. Money may also be sent by Draft on New York. Address BISSELL MAN'F'G CO., 50 Barclay St., New York.

When you order mention this paper.

THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

Upon the mountains wild of life
The sheep are led astray,
And wander on o'er tracts of sand,
In blind uncertain way.

The floods of sin are deep and dark,
The midnight air is chill;
The wilderness is bleak and drear,
And far from Zion's hill.

No lamb is left unsought by Him—
The Shepherd of the sheep;
He calls his own by well-known name,
Tho' silence oft they keep.

O Shepherd, good and ever true!
Thy tender love is strong;
The shadow of thy staff is rest;
Thy voice is endless song.

O pastures green, and place of rest!
When will mine eyes behold
The Shepherd as he leads his flock
To everlasting fold?

The Kitten's Dinner.

Two little girls, the older not yet five years of age, had a present of a kitten the other day. It was the first time in all their little lives that a cat of any age had ever been in the house, and they were as delighted as possible, and as full of wonder over all its ways and doings as if it had been a rare animal from some foreign land.

"What shall kitty have for dinner, mamma?" asked Lulu, climbing down from her high chair when dinner was over.

"Oh, you can fix her up something on a plate," replied mamma, hastily, as she went into the sitting-room; for she was very busy with some sewing and forgot that her little girls knew nothing about feeding kittens. Five minutes later Bridget poked her head in at the door.

"Plase, mem, do jist come out and see the childer."

Mamma dropped her sewing and followed Bridget. On the floor beside the kitchen stove sat Lulu and Ellen, either side of a large dinner plate, by which stood the kitten, as if puzzled what to do with it. And what do you suppose those little dunces had put on the plate for that kitten to eat? Why, there was a large slice of bread and butter, a generous [illegible] of cider apple-sauce, a [illegible] and a huge plum-pudding [illegible] covered in sour sauce.

[illegible] laughed, kitty ran under [illegible] and the little girls both [illegible] because kitty would not eat [illegible] dinner they had fixed for her. But Bridget went and got a saucer of warm milk, and the child[ren] forgot all their trouble in seeing her lap it up.

You Can Never Rub It Out.

One pleasant afternoon a lady was sitting with her little son, a light-haired boy, five years of age. The mother was sick, and the child had left his play to stay with her, and was amusing himself in printing his name with a pencil on paper. Suddenly his busy fingers stopped. He had made a mistake, and, wetting his finger he tried again and again to rub out the mark as he had been accustomed to do on his slate.

"My son," said his mother, "do you know that God writes down all you do in a book? He writes every disobedient act, every time you indulge in temper and shake your shoulders or pout your lips, and my boy you can never rub it out."

The little boy's face grew red, and in a moment tears ran down his cheeks. His mother looked earnestly on him but said nothing more. At length he came softly to her side, threw his arms around her neck and whispered, "Can the blood of Jesus rub it out?"

Dear children, Christ's blood can rub out the record of your sins, for it is written in God's holy word, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin."—Exchange.

The Grateful Tiger.

A tiger had a live dog cruelly thrown into its cage one day. Not being very hungry, the unusually fierce creature did not touch the trembling little victim. This quietness gave the dog courage, and he began to lick the tiger's eyes, which were sore. This act seemed pleasant to the wild beast, and the dog continued it from time to time, till the eyes of the savage animal got well. The tiger from that time took his tiny four legged doctor under his patronage, looked upon him kindly, and allowed him to eat what he choose of the food thrown into his cage. Henceforth they lived like bosom friends.

Thus you see even a fierce tiger can be grateful for a little favor. How much more, then, should children learn to be grateful to their friends for the great favors they have received. When I see boys and girls unkind and insulting to their parents, who have done and suffered so much for them, I tell them the story of the tiger and the dog, and say: "Children, don't be less grateful to your kind parents than the tiger was to the little dog."

"Edward, what do I hear? that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you just now not to jump down these steps?" "Grandmother did not tell us not to, papa; she only came to the door and said, 'I wouldn't jump down those steps, boys;' and I shouldn't think she would—an old lady like her."

In a town in Missouri a lady teacher was exercising her class in mental arithmetic. She commenced the question, "If you buy a cow for $10"—when up came a little hand. "What is it Johnny?" "Why you can't buy no kind of a cow for $10. Father sold one for $60 the other day and she was a regular old scrub at that."

The Irishman had a correct appreciation of the fitness of things who, being asked by the Judge when he applied for a license to sell whisky, if he was of good moral character, replied: "Faith, yer honor, I don't see the necessity of a good moral character to sell whisky!"

Be Ye Like Foolish.

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more. I tried it, but my folly proved to be wisdom. Two bottles cured her, and she is now as well and strong as any man's wife, and it only cost me two dollars. Be ye like foolish."—H. W., Detroit, Mich.

[illegible] the weak. For[tified] with the Bitters, and it [illegible] like the virus of [illegible] of temperature which [illegible] of the feeble. There [illegible] vegetable stimulant and anti-bilious medicine [illegible] element among [illegible] Druggists and respectable [dealers] generally.

PREVENT Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 31 13t

Ecclesiastical Law

—AND—

Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

— BY —

HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,

—AND—

WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.

8 vo., 511 Pages.

Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases.

* * * * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations. —Author's Preface.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price

By its great and thorough blood-purifying properties, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, White Swellings, Goitre or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flushes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect and radical cures.

In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC.

SIZE OF PELLETS.

No use of taking the large, repulsive, nauseous pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients. These Pellets are scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. They operate without disturbance to the constitution, diet, or occupation. For Jaundice, Headache, Constipation, Impure Blood, Pain in the Shoulders, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations from the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious attacks, Pain in region of Kidneys, Internal Fever, Bloated feeling about Stomach, Rush of Blood to Head, take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Purgative Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may be said that their action upon the animal economy is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative impress. Age does not impair the properties of these Pellets. They are sugar-coated and inclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. This is not the case with those pills put up in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. For all diseases where a Laxative, Alterative, or Purgative, is indicated, these little Pellets will give the most perfect satisfaction. Sold by druggists.

CATARRH

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucous, purulent, offensive, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak, or inflamed eyes, stopping up, or obstruction, of the nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY

produces radical cures of the worst cases of Catarrh, no matter of how long standing. The liquid remedy may be snuffed, or better applied by the use of Dr. PIERCE'S Douche. This is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried HIGH UP and PERFECTLY APPLIED to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. Its use is pleasant and easily understood, from directions accompanying each instrument. Dr. SAGE'S Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications. It is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. Catarrh Remedy and Douche sold by druggists.

"My son," said his mother, "do you know that God writes down all you do in a book? He writes every disobedient act, every time you indulge in temper and shake your shoulders or pout your lips, and my boy you can never rub it out."

The little boy's face grew red, and in a moment tears ran down his cheeks. His mother looked earnestly on him but said nothing more. At length he came softly to her side, threw his arms around her neck and whispered, "Can the blood of Jesus rub it out?"

Dear children, Christ's blood can rub out the record of your sins, for it is written in God's holy word, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin."—Exchange.

The Grateful Tiger.

A tiger had a live dog cruelly thrown into its cage one day. Not being very hungry, the unusually fierce creature did not touch the trembling little victim. This quietness gave the dog courage, and he began to lick the tiger's eyes, which were sore. This act seemed pleasant to the wild beast, and the dog continued it from time to time, till the eyes of the savage animal got well. The tiger from that time took his tiny four-legged doctor under his patronage, looked upon him kindly, and allowed him to eat what he chose of the food thrown into his cage. Henceforth they lived like bosom friends.

Thus you see even a fierce tiger can be grateful for a little favor. How much more, then, should children learn to be grateful to their friends for the great favors they have received. When I see boys and girls unkind and insulting to their parents, who have done and suffered so much for them, I tell them the story of the tiger and the dog, and say: "Children, don't be less grateful to your kind parents than the tiger was to the little dog."

"Edward, what do I hear? that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you just now not to jump down these steps?" "Grandmother did not tell us not to, papa; she only came to the door and said, 'I wouldn't jump down those steps, boys;' and I shouldn't think she would—an old lady like her."

In admitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

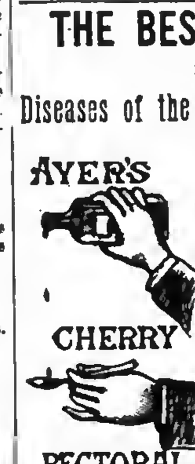
AYER'S



CHERRY PECTORAL.

Diseases of the pulmonary organs are so prevalent and fatal, that a safe and reliable remedy for them is invaluable to every community. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. THE NEGRO EXODUS.

BY REV. J. C. HARTZELL, D.D.

[illegible] October, 1879, Methodist [illegible] Review.]

[illegible] SLAVE EXODUS.

[illegible] Negroes from [illegible] of America [illegible]

illustrated in the hungry, fainting and dying fugitive, that the time for the destruction of that institution drew nigh. The fugitive slave exodus was the first voluntary negro exodus in this country, and it was God's chief method of awakening the American conscience toward slavery, which in the end demanded its destruction. The present exodus may prove to have an equally providential purpose, in completing the salvation of the Africo-American in our midst from the thralldom of a bondage to race prejudices and persecutions, scarcely less endurable in many parts of the land than was slavery itself.

GROWTH OF EXODUS SENTIMENT SINCE EMANCIPATION.

The growth of the exodus sentiment among the freedmen has been constant, in one or more of the Southern States, ever since emancipation. Not, however, till the early spring of the present year, 1879, did it develop into a stampede from several parishes of Louisiana and counties of Mississippi. Since then the movement has reached other States, and threatens to become general.*

Every freedman knew from the first that emancipation was accepted by the South as a necessity, and feared that in proportion as its old leaders should return to power, the effort would be made to re-establish permanently by law, in some form, the old relative positions between the whites and blacks. The next census will show a much larger negro population in all the Northern States than those who have not studied this subject suspect. Kansas had fifteen thousand before the present exodus began. Keokuk, Iowa, and Cairo, Illinois, had several hundred negro voters. Chicago, and every large northern city, had several hundred colored children in their public schools, most of whose parents have come from the South since the war. As a rule, these emigrants have done well. The parents have work, the children are in school, the men vote as they please, and homes of their own can be secured with reasonable effort.

These people have year after year communicated with their friends, and their improved condition, as compared with the vast majority left behind, has afforded a constant argument among those friends to leave the South.

ORGANIZATION.

As early as 1869 an organized movement began in Tennessee, among the freedmen, to colonize in northern and western States, and several colonies numbering from [illegible] to three hundred each, were, [illegible] last year, settled in the West. [illegible] movement has been operating in Kentucky. In 1874–1875, [illegible] of Louisiana were cursed [illegible] political mobs and persecutions, which spent their fury chiefly [illegible] voters. During these [illegible] the plantation labor- [illegible] a secret colonization [illegible] began in Caddo parish, [illegible] rapidly throughout the [illegible] of Louisiana, and into Texas and Arkansas. [illegible] in May, 1879, [illegible] men, women and children [illegible] years. Politicians [illegible] this organization, [illegible] fact that the [illegible] of the South [illegible] everywhere ig- [illegible] [illegible] nearly every [illegible] a convention of [illegible] has been held, and [illegible] State organi- [illegible] and pro- [illegible] The [illegible] among [illegible] that unless the [illegible] South affect [illegible] their only [illegible] during last July two hundred families left that city and vicinity. In the central and eastern South the movement is daily gaining in strength and importance. The secrecy of many exodus organizations often prevents the facts from being known to the Southern press, until there is some decided movement, which is then usually explained as the work of "land agents" or "emissarys" from the North. Many facts are known of the movement which are never published. Up to September seven thousand negroes had gone to Kansas, and perhaps as many more to other States, during the six months previous.*

NOT CAUSED BY OUTSIDE INFLUENCES.

The absurd attempt has been made to place the responsibility of this Negro Exodus upon influences from the North. The fugitive slave exodus was a chief promoter of abolitionism, and so now if the negroes of the South were satisfied with their situation and prospects no sort of outside efforts could induce them to leave the South. A committee of Kentuckians protested against the Emancipation Proclamation of Mr. Lincoln just before he issued it, on the ground that if free the negroes would run away and the South be ruined. The reply was that "they will not run away unless they have something to run for." Mr. Lincoln was right. Negroes are as other people. Contented populations do not migrate.

THE NORTH DOES NOT WANT THIS EXODUS.

There is no good reason why the North should desire any general exodus of colored people from the South. Practically the North is Republican and so are Negroes, and the South is Democratic. So it is not reasonable that the North should want to do any thing that would reduce the Republican vote of the South; much less if the movement was being directed by Republican leaders would they send the emigrants to States already overwhelmingly Republican. Another fact is, that there is race prejudice against the colored man in the North as well as in the South, and it is questionable whether any State north of the Ohio would, by a majority vote, welcome a large immigration of colored people. But there are positive reasons why the North should not desire any movement that would disturb the labor of the South. The North has a vast domestic trade with the South, for which the staple crops of that section assure reliable returns. The Western produce shipments last year to the South amounted to $26,812,404: This amount is small compared with the aggregate of manufactured goods of every kind and grade sent South every year from the eastern and central North. The cotton crop for 1878 was 4,811,265 bales, valued "in mixed gold and currency values," at $240,041,977; the sugar crop was worth $13,000,000; the rice crop was worth $3,000 000; making a total of $256,000,000, made almost entirely by negro labor. Drop out of American trade, only for a year or two, the bulk of this result of the present labor in the South, and the disastrous effects will be widespread. Cotton is our chief export, and the loss of a single crop would reverse the tide of our foreign trade, which, happily for us, is now in our favor. It is evident that self-interest would lead the whole country to desire nothing to transpire that would disturb the reliability of labor in the South.

THE NORTH WILL RECEIVE AND UTILIZE THE LABOR.

On the other hand, if there is to be a large emigration of the African population from the South, the North will utilize it to the best advantage. The new comers will be treated well, and, if in want, will be fed by the hand of charity, and all will be helped as rapidly as possible into conditions of self-support.

The North does not fear that the Negroes who may come will [illegible] materially to her pauper population. Gov. St. John, of Kansas, [illegible] August 9, 1879, of the seven [illegible] who had then gone to [illegible]

[illegible] refugees are as a rule very [illegible] sober, and well be- [illegible] not paupers, but [illegible] anything like a [illegible] opportunity, not [illegible] but [illegible] provide for themselves comfortable homes, and add wealth and prosperity to any State that will give them protection to life and property, coupled with such rights as the law guarantees to every good citizen.

United States Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, says that State will welcome one hundred thousand. General Raum, United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue, whose home is in Illinois, says several thousand families would be welcome in his State, and advises the emigrants to scatter through Indiana, Ohio, and Wisconsin. One railroad company asks for two thousand five hundred men at once, if they can be furnished, in place of Chinese help. General Fremont says that twenty thousand can be located in Arizona, and that they would become almost immediately self-supporting. A prominent ex-Confederate officer, who is building a railroad in the West, wants a large number of negro laborers. He knows that colored men built every railroad in the South from Norfolk to San Antonio, and are the best laborers in the world for such service. The vast mining regions of the West would give work to multitudes. Besides, farm labor has been attracted to the mines, and farmers are applying for home laborers. Gov. St. John's Relief Committee, in Topeka, Kansas, has had several hundred applications for farm laborers which could not be filled. The talk that negroes cannot live in the North has about as much truth in it as that they will not work unless urged by the overseer's whip. Free labor in the South has made better crops than slave labor did. Negroes can and do live, and are healthy, in every northern State and in Canada.*

CAUSES.

In seeking the causes of the Negro Exodus, due consideration must be given to that restlessness and desire for change which is always found among the ignorant and poor. The conditions for this restlessness are specially favorable among the colored people of the South, because the great mass are not only unattached to the soil, but have always been taught that they were never to be land owners. But if the ignorance and poverty of the mass of the Negroes would tend to make them want to leave the South, then as their condition improved they would not want to go. Now, whatever may be their condition to-day, it is certainly better than we emancipated, and yet the exodus sentiment has steadily grown and threatens now to be well nigh universal. Besides, it is not the most ignorant and poor which are migrating. The masses who collect on the river banks, without money or plans, represent the stampede element; but the strength of the movement is not with that element. The stampede period is past, and organization and consultation are now the order of the day, under the lead, in nearly every community, of as intelligent and thrifty colored men as that community affords. Admitting all the influences possible from poverty and ignorance and consequent results, these could all have been concentrated by the southern white people, had there been proper kindly and humane efforts by them to that end. On the contrary, it is a most significant fact, that, in proportion as the Southern white people came to the control of affairs, the exodus sentiment grew. The first organizations were in Kentucky and Tennessee, where there they at once returned to power after the war; and, now that the whole South is again in the hands of its former rulers, the Exodus threatens to be most serious.

The causes of the Negro Exodus may be grouped under a single head, namely: the conditions of financial, political and social distress, in which the Negroes in the South find themselves, after fifteen years of freedom; and the conviction that their former owners, who, with their allies, now control every Southern State, have in the past opposed their advancement, and do not now give sufficient evidence of good desire toward them to insure their present and future welfare.

ATTEMPT TO HOLD FREEDMEN IN PEONAGE.

To understand the real sentiments of the present Southern leaders toward the Negroes, we must recall what they did when left to themselves, under President Johnson, in the first efforts at reconstruction after the war. At that time the effort was made to continue by legal enactment as nearly as possible the old order of things; the whites to remain the land-owners, and the blacks to remain servants, with no right to vote or in any way participate in the management of affairs; they were to be held in a perpetual peonage. In this peonage or serfdom the Negroes could not be bought or sold as in slavery, but laws were so framed that nine tenths of them would be under the control of the owners of the soil as fully as in former times. A full code of these laws were passed in Louisiana, in an extra session of the first Democratic reconstruction legislature, in December, 1865. A few other laws were passed at this extra session—the regular session meeting a month later—it is probable that the purpose was to have "labor properly regulated," with which to begin the planting year in January. This Louisiana code was a specimen of others passed or determined upon in the other States. One law made it the duty of sheriff to report on the first Monday in January "all persons under the age of eighteen years if females, and twenty-one if males, who are orphans, or whose parent or parents, or tutor, have not the means, or refuse to provide for or maintain said minors." Another law provided for "apprenticing" these minors until they were of age. It was also enacted that any "vagrant"—"a person without visible means of support"—could upon the oath of any one be arrested and brought before a judge, and made to give bonds in such amount and with such security as that judge should approve, for good behavior for one year; and upon failure to give such bond, the one arrested was to be hired out for twelve months, or to work on roads or levees under such regulations as should be maded by municipal authorities. Now, let it be remembered that all these "sheriffs," and "judges," and "municipal authorities" believed that the Negroes ought to have remained in slavery; and also that when first made free comparatively few of the "minors" would have any one to care for them, and that those "without visible means of support" would be many, and their inability to give "bonds," and it is evident that these minor and vagrant laws would at once have practically re-enslaved fully half the freedmen. Those "apprenticed" would be no better off when of age, and would enter the "vagrant" class, and at the end of each twelve months vagrants would have no "visible means of support," and so must either give bond, which very seldom they could, or return to their unrequited toil.

But this is not all. In addition to the minor and vagrant laws there were others which bore equally heavy upon any freedmen who had intelligence and enterprise enough to "contract" with planters as laborers. One law made it a criminal offense for an employe to carry fire-arms without consent of the employer. Another imposed a fine of $100 upon any one who entered upon a plantation without permission of the owner or his agent. Still another imposed a fine of $500 on any person "who shall persuade or entice away, feed, harbor, or secrete any person who leaves his or her employer with whom he or she has contracted, or is assigned to live, or is living, or an apprentice, without permission of his or her employer." The laborers when unemployed were required to have "certificates" from their last employer that they had fulfilled their contracts or they were subject to arrest, and it was made an offense for any one else to employ them without such certificate. The planters would probably make the "contract" as to wages, etc., in the same spirit that these laws were passed. With these laws in force the owner of any plantation could as fully control "his labor" as before the war, without the large outlay of money required to own the men and women. All such Yankee innovations as the right to vote, public schools for the children, improved religious and moral instruction, formed no part of these laws, which illustrate the deliberate purpose of the whole South toward the freedmen immediately after emancipation. Fortunately the enfranchisement of the Negroes by Constitutional amendment and the wiping out of the abortive attempts at reconstruction, under President Johnson, made the laws of which the Louisiana code was a specimen of no effect.*

BAD TREATMENT OF NEGROES FINANCIALLY CONTINUES.

Fourteen years have passed, and during that time the same spirit which enacted the above laws has prevailed almost universally in the South against the Negroes. There are exceptions and the exceptions are increasing, but as yet in all matters of finance and labor and trade, these poor people are often victimized. At first men who would have sold land to Negroes were often warned that they would do so at their peril; and even now, outside of the towns, the neighborhoods are exceptional where colored people can buy homes with any expectation of being unmolested. This will change—it is changing—but enough of the old spirit remains, and will probably for years, to hinder these people financially.

Besides the sentiment still largely prevailing in the South against Negroes owning land, and that they ought still to be slaves, we must remember the perversity of human nature to cheat and overreach in trade as opportunity is afforded. The Negroes, as a rule, know but little of legal forms, and the majority of them could not read them if they did. They are easily imposed on, and are often charged enormous prices where land is sold. Sometimes the titles prove imperfect, and very frequently after making the first payment and raising a crop, which is generally mortgaged for the necessary provisions, stock, and farming implements, they cannot make the next payment, and pay the heavy interest on balance of purchase price, and, as a consequence, lose all.† I have personally learned of scores of such cases. One Mississippi land owner had sold to and driven three sets of colored purchasers from his land.

CONTRACT AND CREDIT SYSTEMS.

It must be remembered that the South is almost wholly an agricultural region, and that the labor is chiefly colored, so that under the head of plantation or farm laborers the great bulk of Negroes in the Southern States would be classed. The "contract system" prevails by which the Negroes have practically nothing to say as to their wages, etc. In the sugar regions the wages are fixed annually by a convention of planters; and are usually from fifty to sixty cents a day for men, and four pounds of pork and a peck of meal a week; and for women, where they can work, forty cents a day and find themselves. The laborers lose all rainy days, and all time between seasons. Often it requires two months to make one. Cabins are furnished in which to live. On the place is usually a store, owned by the planter, so that as a rule every planter is his own retail grocer. At these stores the prices are high, sometimes exorbitant, and in nearly every case bad whisky is sold at ten cents a drink. The sentiment prevails in the South largely, even among the ministry, that the climate demands stimulants; so the laborer is encouraged by precept and example to drink. This adds revenue to the "store"—is, in fact, one of its chief revenues. At one of the "stores," on a plantation owned and worked by a Northern millionaire, I learned that the whisky bills of the laborers ran from three to eight dollars a month and sometimes more. On a plantation there are from a few, to a hundred families, making from a score to five hundred people. As a rule the laborers either have nothing, or come out in debt to the store at the end of the year, and have to begin another year on the old contract. Only a few laborers in a neighborhood save any thing.

In the cotton regions the picture is the same in its general effect, differing only in details. Cotton lands can be bought for five to ten dollars an acre, and yet from five to ten dollars an acre is charged for rent, to be paid usually in cotton, which is the same as cash. Besides the renter has to pay from three to five dollars a bale for having his cotton ginned, generally to the man he rents from, and has also to buy his provisions from the inevitable "store" at high rates, which may or may not be owned by the renter. In addition the colored renter is poor, and most have seed and mules and implements, which the renter advances at high prices, charging interest on the money until returned. To secure payment for rent, ginning, provisions, mules, and implements a cut-throat mortgage is inserted in every lease in the following words: "The said lessee hereby gives and grants a lien prior to all liens on all the crops produced on said lands and all the personal property of said lessee; and all rights under any exemption law of this State are hereby expressly waived." "Any improvements made by the said lessee shall belong to the said lessor." To make the power of the planter absolute the lease says: "Any violation of any of the terms of this agreement on the part of the lessee creates a forfeiture of all the rights and interests vested in him by it, and the lessor may enter and take possession of the said land and the crops growing or grown thereon." The merchants and courts and the lawyers are all in sympathy with the planters, and the "contract" is so drawn that when the planter, for any whim, even if the crop be growing, declares the lease forfeited, the negro has no alternative but to leave everything, including such personal property as he may have brought on the place, and go on poorer than ever. As a further effort to "regulate labor," on the Southern plan to prevent the negroes from leaving, an article is being inserted in some leases binding the laborers to work the same ground next year or forfeit this year's crop.*

These contract and credit systems in the sugar and cotton regions, if not readjusted so as to protect laborers as well as planters, dooms the mass of Negroes in those regions of the South to years of, if not perpetual, poverty. Besides the planters proper, there are since the war in all rural districts, at every important road crossing and steamboat landing "country merchants" who, as a class, deserve no such respectable title. Every one of these stores is a whisky shop These "merchants" are often Jews and generally men of the Shylock type. Their customers are the small farmers or renters, mostly Negroes, who cannot go or send to the larger towns to trade with the more respectable merchants, and so must trade with these cross-road cormorants in human shape. They advance "supplies" at ruinous prices and take liens on everything their customers have. They curse both whites and blacks, but chiefly the latter, because of their numbers and ignorance. I have personally known and learned of many instances where families had year after year been stripped of every thing, even to their pigs and chickens and household goods.

EXCEPTIONS.

Among the planters there are noble exceptions in every parish and county; and there are those not planters who speak of, and regret and sometimes protest against, the treatment of the laborer; but these will, I fear, continue for years to be exceptions to the rule. The sentiment "that these used to be our slaves, and ought never to have been taken from us," prevails; and it is considered that negroes have "their rights" financially, if they get barely enough to live. It is also to be said that the acquisition of property by the Negroes since emancipation has gone forward more or less in every State. This in the aggregate makes a creditable showing; but still the masses are poor, and after fifteen years of freedom the outlook is gloomy, and multitudes are discouraged.

* On the reported return South of many exodus negroes, the following from Gov. St. John, of Kansas, August 9, 1879, is in place: "Gentlemen were sent to this place in the interest of the planters of the South, who used every effort in their power to induce the refugees to return, and after spending two or three weeks here, being among the refugees almost daily, failed to succeed in inducing any to go South. Some three months ago there was a boat-load of refugees landed at Wyandotte and Kansas City, and I have been informed that a few of the number returned South; but none have returned who have come into the interior of the State. Up to the present time [illegible] thousand refugees have come [illegible] and with the exception of about [illegible] through our [illegible] are self-supporting. This [illegible] of the [illegible] of [illegible] a large [illegible] otherwise they would [illegible] self-supporting."

* The full text of these laws is in Ray's "Revised Statutes of Louisiana."

† The habit of mortgaging crops in advance is one of the bad things in the credit system of the South. It was the chief drawback to planters before the war. The fact that after fifteen years of freedom, with few exceptions, the negroes have to mortgage their labor or crops in advance for what they eat and wear, shows the poverty of the mass.

*At first after freedom in the cotton regions wages were paid; but this "made the niggers too impudent." Then renting on the shares came into vogue, by which the land owners furnished every thing and took half the crop. This divided the responsibility and risk, but required money or credit by the land owners. Now the contract system is almost universal. In this all risks are practically by the laborer, the land owner's only real risk being crop failure. If one renter proves worthless, another can be substituted. (1.) The negro contracts to pay from eighty to one hundred pounds of lint cotton an acre for the rent of land that will produce from two to four hundred pounds. This is an average of about one third of all he raises. (2.) The laborer needs provisions for himself and family to eat and wear during the year. For these there are two prices, "cash" and "credit." The former is high enough, but the latter is from fifty to one hundred per cent. higher. Of course with only rare exceptions the negro must pay "credit" prices, so that he pays two prices for every thing he and his family eat and wear. (3.) Rarely laborers have mules and plows, so these also must be advanced. (4.) These "contract negroes" often hire others to help them whose wages form a fourth claim on their expected crops. Whether the landlord furnishes all the first three items or they are furnished by him and one or two other parties, mortgages are taken covering every thing to secure payment. Besides the laborer must pay for ginning. Thus the negro begins the year with his personal property and his labor for a year and all he expects to make for a year mortgaged. At the end he must turn over everything, pay interest, commissions for selling, etc. If not in debt it will be strange, even if he has worked diligently. Even under this system the landlords are not, as a rule, prosperous, because (1.) They do nothing themselves. (2.) Only a portion of their land is worked, and that grows poorer each year; and (3.) Injustice to one large class of a community always curses the whole.

The New Birth.

The Scriptures teach not only that men are sinners, but that they are "dead in trespasses and in sins," and therefore can never save themselves, but "must be born again," "quickened into newness of life" by the Spirit of God, or be lost forever.

Men are generally ready to admit that they are sinners. They see that sin exists in themselves and in others; but they do not realize its exceeding sinfulness, that it is a deep seated, malignant disease which is incurable by human medication. Hence they are ever trying to cure themselves by superficial remedies which cannot reach the seat of the malady. All their efforts are directed against the outward symptoms of the disease. They try to purify the streams of corruption which are ever issuing from the corrupt fountains of the human heart. They endeavor to make good fruit grow upon a corrupt tree; to make grapes grow upon thorns and figs upon thistles.

Directly opposite to this is the work of the Spirit in the regeneration of the soul. He strikes at the very root and seat of the disease at once. He cleanses the bitter fountain, that its waters may be sweet; he makes the tree good, in order that the fruit may be good. He renews and purifies the heart, and dwells in it, so that all its thoughts, imagination, and purposes are inspired by him, and hence the conduct which is the outward manifestation of the inward life is also holy.

The first work of the Spirit in the soul is to convince him of sin, of the exceeding sinfulness and fearful consequences of sin. The Spirit so reveals his condition to him that he sees and feels his lost and undone state with all the weight of his unpardoned sins upon his soul, and with the terrible vengeance of God hanging over his unsheltered head. He beholds himself held in the most abject bondage to sin, and bowed under a burden too intolerable to be borne, insomuch that he cries out: "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

Where there is this deep conviction of sin by the Spirit, there will always be true repentance—a godly sorrow for sin which worketh a repentance not to be repented of. The soul will be made to loathe its sins, and ready to renounce them forever. And when he tries to do that, and learns how utterly vain all his efforts are to keep the holy law of God, he will then feel his need of the help which God has provided in Jesus Christ for his salvation. He will turn to him as his only hope for pardon and deliverance from the bondage of sin. And in answer to his faith in the merits of Christ, God for Christ's sake forgives his sins and sends the Holy Spirit to assure him that he is pardoned and adopted into the family of God. He receives the Spirit of adoption whereby he cries "Abba, Father," and the Spirit beareth witness with his spirit that he is a child of God.

This is the new birth for the [illegible] who witnessed to his pardon, [illegible] the same time, [illegible] to righteousness and true holiness [illegible] makes him a new creature in Christ Jesus, insomuch that [illegible] old things have passed away [illegible] the bondage and con[illegible] All things [illegible] new [illegible] purposes, new de[illegible] in a word, he [illegible] which after God [illegible] in righteousness and true holiness [illegible] the fruits of the [illegible] the love of God which is [illegible] in the heart by the [illegible] is given unto [illegible] peace with God [illegible] Jesus Christ—a [illegible] all understanding [illegible] of the [illegible] filled his [illegible] joy in the Holy [illegible] that his [illegible] and that he is a [illegible] but produce [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] nature cannot do it; philosophy cannot do it. The most highly educated men the world has ever seen, have been the greatest sinners. There is no other way given under heaven and among men whereby they can be saved, but the name of Jesus. All our efforts to reform and keep the law of God are failures without his help. For however good we may be in our own estimation and in the estimation of this world of superficial standards and judgments, our righteousness is as "filthy rags" in the sight of God. And every man who is truly saved is compelled to say with the Apostle: "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost."

The vital question is: Are we thus saved? Have we been born again of water and of the Spirit? And have we now the witness of it in our heart, and lives? If not may God help us to see how great is our peril and to lay hold on the hope set before us in the Gospel.

The Exodus—Advice.

A national conference will be held in Philadelphia, Oct. 15. Drs. J. P. Newman and C. H. Fowler of New York and other prominent church leaders, will participate. The purpose is to furnish accurate information, and to protect the colored people who emigrate from political enemies and sharpers. We are satisfied that an organization of the trusted friends of the colored people, of the kind suggested, will be welcomed by them; and that it cannot proceed to active work a day too soon. From the reports of travelers, and letters received at this office, we judge that the exodus will daily increase. The colored people are unanimous in the expression that they prefer to have hardships in a free State, acquiring homes, than to remain in a condition of peonage among the whites of the South.

The following letter from a person in the interior of Mississippi directed to us, alike proves the desire and the necessity for reliable information, and the feeling of the masses on the exodus.

——, Miss., Sept. 28, 1879.

Joseph C. Hartzell, D. D.

DEAR SIR—Will you be so kind as to give me some information. I am very anxious to go West. I have a small farm worth about $900. I would like to find out whether the government will allow a man anything if he can't sell his land. We have a club of about 200 who want to get away, but are at a loss what to do. We appointed a committee to investigate for us, but it seems as if they are afraid to come together. I would be glad for any light on the subject that you would be pleased to give me. The reason why I write to you is that I find by reading the SOUTHWESTERN that you have some correspondence with the Governor of Kansas. You will greatly oblige me by answering this as soon as you can. Very respectfully, ——.

As to the inquiry concerning the government, no assistance can be expected by the emigrant from it. It does not buy lands, but will sell lands at a very moderate price to those able to purchase and make their homes upon them. Emigrants to any part of the country should only go with the means of supporting themselves for a few months, to purchase a new home, or on a guarantee of good labor obtained in advance. They should not go as paupers dependent upon the charity of the North, or sacrifice the homes they now possess. The inquirer in the present case has a farm worth $900. If it cannot be sold at a fair price, hold on to it. If you have the means to emigrate, select a well-known friend of good business standing to act as your agent in renting or selling the property to advantage at some future time. Ascertain where to go before you start, by correspondence with friends, or by advice of an agent known to you as a reliable person.

The following letter from another Mississippi county is highly suggestive of the mental decision of the blacks:

——, Miss., Sept. 18, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—My friends often ask me what I think of the colored people emigrating to Kansas, and as this question is constantly asked, I shall print my views on the subject and ask any man to correct me, if I look at it in a false light. The negro exodus is the wisest and best thing that ever happened. It is the best proof of the quiet and peaceful nature of the negro, that the world could possibly ascertain. If you remember, dear editor, how the negroes were whipped and murdered from the appearance of the [illegible] '78 up to about the [illegible] of these loyalty [illegible] party? Do you [illegible] and in [illegible] since [illegible] occupation to a seat in the first Congress in the United States, was sitting in his parlor one day after having received the highest honors. A roguish student in a room close by held a looking-glass in such a position as to pour the rays of the sun directly in Mr. Sherman's face. He moved his chair and the thing was repeated. A third time the chair was moved, but the looking-glass still reflected the rays of the sun in Mr. Sherman's eyes. He laid his book aside, went to the window, and many witnesses of the impudence expected to hear the ungentlemanly student severely reprimanded. He raised the window gently and then shut the blind. Now, my dear sir, during all the murder, fraud and abuse that the colored people have received since the Democratic party has been in power, they have gently raised the windows and closed the blinds of their hearts without offering any resistence to the injury done them. Is not this an indisputable evidence of the quiet, humble and God like spirit that our people possess? The Anglo-Saxon and Indian races fight, but the Negro race conciliates. If the white men or Indians were treated as we are, they would do battle to death. But we don't care to do this. We want to quietly and peacefully move west, where we can be among white people that God made and where we can be under our "vine and fig tree;" free from the Democratic shot gun—"where the wicked cease from troubling, and where the weary be at rest." Then there will be a chance for the shot guns and repeating rifles of this and other Southern States to be beaten into plow shares. I asked a man the other day if he thought is was possible for the Southern whites to ever live together any more peacefully. "Only on this ground," was his prompt reply, "If a white man curse a black man curse him back, if he strike him, strike him back, if he shoot one, shoot him again."

Now, sir, when I yield to my weaker impulses I give ear to just such talk; but this is against our strong principles. We, as a race, don't want to fight because our skin is dark. It is because our skin is dark that the Southern whites treat us as they do. Let the most tidy dressed refined lady or gentleman of the colored race go in a first-class car on the V. & M. R. R. in this State, and he will very soon receive an invitation to go out, and if he don't go out he is forced out, if it takes a thousand bull-dozers to put him out. On the other hand, the basest of the base white men or women can go abroad and be treated very friendly indeed. Thus you see it is not a man's principles nor attainments that make him an inferior to another man—not at all. It is his skin. All white men and women are socially equal in the Southern States. I take this opportunity to say that no man is my superior because of his fair complexion. A man is only my superior when he has a better earning than I have or when he is more God-like in his Christian attainments; and I take special pains to make this known to every white man with whom I have dealings. The white people of the South seem to forget that it was for the black man that President Lincoln died, and they seem to forget that it was for the black man that John Brown so freely gave his life. What Mr. Lincoln did while he was president, and what white men through the North by the score approve of, is no little proof of the importance of the colored man's rights. Now, sir, I shall take every opportunity to urge the colored people to go North and West, not that I have a personal ambition to gratify, but because I want to see my people protected in their rights and have homes in which they can be protected and be comfortable. I don't write this letter because I have been bull dozed, but because my race has been done so and is being done so now. A race with which my whole interest is identified. I love my rights and liberty too well to have to grieve over the loss of them. We will be deprived of a great privilege when we leave this cotton country. But we will risk it if we perish. In conclusion to all I have said let me predict that just as soon as the colored people as a race are educated to the point where they can feel their oppression as I feel it, and see it in the same light that I do, they will have a change if it be by force.

Fraternally yours, ——.

Letter from Houston.

MR. EDITOR—Men that write for the SOUTHWESTERN ought to be persons of good memories. Not long since my dear Bro. Malloy gave us his convictions as to the near future of the colored people of Texas. And then as in his communication of Sept. 4, he became very enthusiastic over his theme; but then he pictured them as the future land-owners, and as the real lords of this Empire State, and gave no less than four reasons for his conclusions. Now he tells us "They must always be hewers of wood and drawers of water in this country." These two letters of my much esteemed brother do perplex me. I am not a little bewildered. When shall I rest? It is pleasing to find men who are in this world not to be ministered unto, but to minister; who are never selfish, who never seek personal comfort and happiness, who go about doing good. Selfishness we are told is the "mother of many sorrows," and that "those who are on the stretch to secure personal aims are exposed to failure." I am thankful that my dear brother has reached this high moral attitude where he has so completely lost all sight of self. For this reason men who are anxious only for the cause and are seeking only to be expended in the best way for its promotion, have no anxious care when thrusts are made at self, they know that through eternity they will have the best of the argument, so they can afford to wait.

Upon the Houston district there is no "Kansas fever." Our people propose to occupy this land, and make freedom and union its universal law. To all of their brethren in Mississippi and Louisiana who are thinking of going to Kansas, they say: Turn your eyes to this highly favored land. Texas is as much better as it is greater than Kansas. The National Farmers' Association has already more than a thousand applications for farms from as many families who desire to make Texas their home. In Fort Bend county, on the Bernard, a colony numbering nearly one hundred families has been organized. There the trustees of the M. E Church have secured one of the most charming sites I ever saw, and will soon have them a church 25x35. If there are men within the bounds of the Navasota District who cannot "lift their voices in defense of their wives and children" they need not go to Kansas. Let them write to Rev. B. F. Williams, P. O. East Bernard, Texas, and he will tell them where industrious and frugal men can secure themselves farms and homes, and worship God under their own vine and fig-tree, and none daring to molest or make them afraid. I find fourteen years after emancipation, within the bounds of Houston district, quite a number of land and cattle owners, one family of four brothers, all members of the M. E. Church, have this year one hundred and thirty acres of cotton and corn. I know of men in Wharton Fort Bend, Brazoria, Matagorda, and Harris counties owning from ten to two hundred and fifty acres of land, with from thirty to one hundred and fifty head of cattle. These are samples, and they tell us what "the men who have been so cruelly despoiled and maltreated by their white brothers and fathers" may become if they will be frugal, industrious and temperate.

The preachers on the Houston district, like most Methodist preachers, are favorably inclined toward the religion of Jesus Christ. They are not speculators, nor dabblers in winning stocks or wild lands; but they are religious after the manner that leads some people to say they are "beside themselves," and others that they are "filled with new wine." They believe that heaven and hell are realities, that souls are precious and time too short for them to engage in any issue that divides, and thus calls the attention of the people from the one great question. In nearly all the churches there has been during the summer and is now a blessed revival influence. Some of the pastors have received nearly a hundred on probation, some new churches have been completed, and some six others are in progress of erection. One of our bishops writes me: "I will do all that I can to help your work of church building. It is of the first importance. Count me in for $10 for every church that costs $100 and is paid for." Two new parsonages have been erected, and will be paid for before conference. The one at the East Church, Galveston, is a perfect gem. The preachers have paid special attention to the Sunday-school work, and as one of the immediate results, the old schools have been greatly enlarged, and a number of new ones organized. One old apartment has been in part reconstructed, and will ask the bishop to send them a preacher next year. Oak Hill, on the Bernard, will also ask that some good man be sent to preach Christ's Gospel to them. At Caney, in Montgomery county, and along the line of the East Narrow Gauge R. R, there is opening up a new and very promising field for real Christian work. Here we shall soon have a nice church 20x30, erected and paid for. The bishop will be called upon by these people for a preacher who will be constantly among them, leading them on with rejoicing valor to charge the strong holds of Satan and his angels. Let "the heathen rage," the throne of the universe is not on rockers, the seething pot may boil and bubble, but the Lord God Almighty has opened this land for those who have been so cruelly despoiled and maltreated. In some places the struggle may be fierce, but it cannot be long. The right over many shall prevail, and men, Mr. Editor, who have for twenty or thirty years fought with beasts at Ephesus ought not to be afraid of any Texas catamount.

OUR SOUTHERN METHODISM

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Lockman, Mayersville: "Our meeting was successful. Previous to it we had 15 members, we have now a total of 48—15 converts, 18 probationers."

L Bradford, presiding elder of Greenwood district, has been sick and confined to his bed for three weeks, we regret to learn. See notice of his third round.

G. Wiar, Mashulaville: "We had a Sunday-school celebration Aug 23. Perry Lloyd, Charity Cistrunk, Walter Goodwin, Miss Alice Williams, Butler Lloyd, Aggie Lloyd, Eliza Grimult and Hattie Johnson recited verses."

A. W. Wright, Okolona: "On Sept. 4th we closed a successful meeting with 23 converts and 6 reclaimed. During the glorious revival 35 were added to the church. Bro. Ben Giles of the A. M. E. Church, assisted us, and we were glad to have his help."

J P. Freeman, Holly Grove district: "We have just closed a very successful protracted meeting, which lasted four weeks. Our pastor, Rev. A. Lemun, having been ill ever since the meeting, has failed to send in the report. Our Sunday-school is doing good work."

A R. Saunders, Benton: "Last Sunday Wesley Chapel was crowded to its utmost. Elder Walden preached a fine sermon. Many partook of the Lord's Supper. The Sabbath-school is progressing under the guidance of Miss M. A. Exum, and we cannot speak too highly of the young lady. She came here about nine months ago from Shaw University, to teach our public school. She is a fine teacher, a true Christian, and a useful worker in the Sabbath-school. If Shaw has any more like Miss Exum that they could spare, we would like to have them down here. The people are well to do."

LOUISIANA.

B. J. Donnell, Franklin: "The friends of Rev. James Hayward have raised $7 05, which I have forwarded to him by registered letter. I read to the people here the notice written by R. B. G., and asked them to help Bro. Hayward. This is a good people."

F. Christian, Shady Grove: "At Wilson's Chapel, September 28, I preached to a large congregation from the 16th of Isaiah. The people came out as though they were strangers to the gospel. After the sermon eleven children were offered for baptism to the kingdom of God. The congregation is increasing in the new church. Sabbath school has about 45 in attendance, all working for the banner of faith, hope and charity."

TEXAS.

Rev James Shackelford has been changed from Wallisville and placed in charge at Orange.

J. M. Holland, Navasota: "The stewards in many of our churches should stir themselves to secure the pastor's salary. I recommend a personal visitation of members. Get the missionary money in by the next quarter, so your pastor may make a good report at district conference."

TENNESSEE.

George Babers, Galloway: "Up to Sept. 16 in meeting we had 26 conversions, and 20 added to the church. Rev. Mr. Battle preached three sermons for me."

Foreign Missions.

The Misses Woolston are to leave for China on the first steamer from San Francisco in September. Miss Russell leaves on the first steamer in October for Japan.

Rev. G. S. Umpleby will leave for Mexico so soon as we are assured of the disappearance of yellow fever from Vera Cruz.

The Free Church of Scotland intends holding a semi-centennial or Jubilee Meeting this year in memory of the organization of their first missionary society in 1829 and the outgoing of their first missionary in the person of Dr. Duff. It will be the occasion for the raising of a jubilee fund of $125,000 by the gifts of sixpences from each member of their church.

Send for cards, books and slips for missionary collection direct to the Missionary Secretaries, 805 Broadway, N. Y. They are sent gratuitously. We have a card before us saying: "Send to Rev. —— cards at 2 cents each, cards at 4 cents each and books at 8 cents each." This comes from some merchant or stationer. We know no agents but our pastors.

The editor of the missionary department in the Northern Christian Advocate calls attention to the suggestive fact that great and special efforts to secure large and numerous gifts for Christ have been made in times of greatest financial distress, as witness the extraordinary Thanksgiving Fund now being raised by the Wesleyan Methodists.

A Lady Missionary At Work

COLUMBUS, Miss., Sept. 20, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Enclosed is an extract from a letter I wrote to the American Tract Society, published in the September number of the American Messenger. You published in your paper, in July, an article I wrote, in which was stated how much more order there was here in the Methodist colored Church than formerly, and so many were converted at home without excitement, etc. The article was read to a colored Sunday-school 12 miles from here by the superintendent. He took occasion to tell them that it was true, and told them all about his conversion years ago—what wrong ideas he had. He imagined he was hanging over hell, and Satan with all his imps were tormenting him, and the louder he prayed the worse he felt, until he fell over insensible. He told them that the true way was to go to Jesus with all their sins and confess them to Him and He would pardon them. This talk from one of their own color did more good than all we can possibly say ourselves; yet we can and must instruct them. Your paper is taken here and read—a great deal of good instruction can be given them through its columns. I have held the mothers' meeting for 4 months, never missing but one, although they are held a mile from where I live. We often have 20 and among them children. I read to them yesterday a little book published by the American Tract Society called "Knowledge Respecting the Treatment of My Children." It was loaned to me by Miss Forrester, an earnest Christian worker among the colored people, who has for years taught them in Sunday and day-school. Few know the good she has done. The mothers often come to me and tell me how much good my talks do them and how encouraged they are. I am now trying to get my Sunday-school class to come promptly at the hour. I have 25 adults in the Baptist Church. We meet at 1:30 o'clock. I told them that it was all a habit and if I could walk a mile in the hot sun at my age, over 50, and be in time, they could; that I often left my dinner when I was half through, not eating my dessert, which I was as fond of as they were. The next Sunday every one was there in time. When one comes late I tell them they have lost the best part—that I give them the cream first. I work all the week in some way to help them; we must do it if we expect to do them good. I received a note from one yesterday saying she was going to earn an honest living in the country, as she is fatherless, and asking me to pray for her. I was struck by the word honest, as I had so often told them to work their very fingers off rather than take the wages of sin! I take great pains to show them the dreadful guilt of living in sin and shame. It is time to cry out. We talk about it among ourselves, but we forget to tell our colored people. We are verily guilty in not warning them. We seem to think that it is of no use. We dishonor our God. "All things are possible with Him."

Before I close I must tell you about my class in the Presbyterian Sunday-school. I have now 26 colored children—begun with 5. I have now a separate room, and when I enter I find nearly all seated in perfect order, and in concert they say: "Good morning, Mrs. Merrill." I never told them to say this. Not one leaves his seat for water during the hour and a half I keep them. Every child has a separate lesson in the catechism. Two girls 12 years old are nearly through the "Shorter Cut," repeating two pages at a lesson, not missing a single word. It is pretty tough to repeat the long answers to such questions as "What is Effectual Calling?" I confess it would go hard with me. I vary the exercises, sing often, tell them stories and make them tell me what I related last Sunday. They are familiar with "Nuel Iverson," who was drowned rather than steal, and such like. I love to teach them because they listen. It is the same in the adult class: I have their fixed attention the whole time. I tell them I can't talk unless they look at me. Having spent a year in the Kindergarten in New York, it has fitted me to do this grand work for Jesus.

S. B. MERRILL.

A voluntary laborer in Mississippi, a member of one of our city churches, to whom grants have several times been made, says:

"I have distributed your tracts, and I do know their full value. I came here a year ago to visit relatives, and I determined to engage in mission work here as I had done in my former home. I met with a little opposition at first, and was accused of distributing papers and other reading of questionable sentiments that ought to be looked into. I was grieved and hurt; but I made all allowance and quietly went on the even tenor of my way. Now I have precious friends in all the churches, especially among the colored. I am going to organize a mother's meeting in the Colored Methodist Church, by special request of the pastor, who is a well-educated man. He came to me for tracts and told me how discouraged he was at times because his people were so ignorant and disorderly. It is wonderful what a change has been wrought among them within a single year.

"A few blessed women here are interested in this work. We need the prayers of God's dear people.

"I have received the last package of tracts which I found to be just what I needed, coarse print and simple language, suitable for the colored people."—American Messenger.

Public Education — The Old and New Constitutions Compared.

BY EMERSON BENTLEY.

The constitution of 1868 requires the General Assembly to establish at least one free public school in every parish and provide for its support by taxation or otherwise. It says, (Art. 135):

> "All children between the ages of 6 and 21 shall be admitted to the public schools or other institutions of learning sustained or established by the state, in common, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition. There shall be no separate schools or institutions of learning established exclusively for any race by the state of Louisiana."

The specifications of this article are in accord with the constitution of the United States, the principles on which a republican form of government is founded, and the practice of all civilized and semi-civilized governments of the world. The intent is to foster concord among the people by removing from the domain of the State the perpetuation of class or race prejudice, injurious to its welfare. In the administration of Article 135, as a general rule, the colored citizens of Louisiana, in deference to the sincere convictions of their white fellow citizens on the subject of mixed schools, were content to yield to the desire for separate schools. The right of common attendance being acknowledged in the fundamental law, the concession was not regarded as the surrender of a principle, but holding it in abeyance until time, obliterating prejudice, made way for its undisputed rule. Star cars had disappeared from city railroads, citizens rights had been conceded, and there was reason to believe that all Louisianians would at some future day exercise harmoniously all public relations in common—in the school room, the jury box, at the polls, in the militia, and in civil offices. The educational reports and testimony of school officials show that mixed schools have existed without opposition or detriment at several points in the State. The mixing of schools should not be considered as strictly a race question; it is an eminently practical one, involving the existence of schools in thinly settled parts of the State. For example, where twenty children or less, of both races, reside so remotely as to make attendance an impossibility at separate schools in an adjoining neighborhood, where numbers may justify their establishment, the union of these children would secure a school for all, and the plan of separation defeat it. The citizens of the neighborhood would be deprived of the benefits of a system they are taxed to support, and the children often allowed to grow up in ignorance and become a burden instead of a blessing to the State. Impartial men should view this side of the question, and know that herein lies the greatest impediment to public instruction in Louisiana.

The proposed constitution does not guarantee common attendance in schools. It contains one mandatory provision in that regard. Article 226 reads:

> "The General Assembly shall also establish in the city of New Orleans a university for the education of persons of color, provide for its proper government, and shall make an annual appropriation of not less than five thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars for its maintainance and support."

This is sufficient to indicate the purpose of the framers of the new constitution, and is the forerunner of the separation of the races in the schools by subsequent legislation, against which no appeal to the constitution will avail, at least while its friends are in power. It will be a reversal of over ten years of progress toward the pacification of the races, if the Democratic party carries the new constitution and installs an Executive and Legislature thereunder. Republicans cannot consistently vote to that end. The school age is restricted to eighteen years, or three less than the age of citizenship.

The constitution of 1868, Article 136, says:

> "The general exercises in the public schools shall be conducted in the English language."

The new constitution retains these words and proceeds—

> "And the elementary branches taught therein; provided that these elementary branches may also be taught in the French language in those parts of the State where the French language predominates, if no additional expense is incurred thereby."

This article may be interpreted

... away with public high schools ... using the limit of education to the "elementary branches." With reference to the policy of maintaining high schools at the State's expense, there has been some discussion even among public school advocates; nevertheless a majority of the leading States do approve and support them, and have demonstrated that all ways to education are ways of economy. The needs of the people from the true criterion on the subject. Louisiana has a woeful amount of ignorance within her borders, and it makes her administration of the laws very expensive; beside, the position of the State relative to a great valley and prospective foreign trade should be an additional argument for the retention of high schools and their generous support. The provision authorizing the teaching of the elementary branches in the French language where it predominates ... The language and ... of the country are English ... a homogeneous people ... of intelligent citizens ... should accept ... language. The government ... not assist in maintaining a division almost as wide as ... itself, between its citizens. And why should the French ... special favor? There ... and Italians, in some ... several points, to ... bounty, yet our law ... to deny them of it. ... to the measure ... in the ... will be lost ... are pursuing ... that virtually ... who are as ... a French ... instruction. ... generous ... ... Art.

stitution of 1868, (Art. 137,) it is expressly provided:

"He shall have the supervision and control of all public schools throughout the State."

Says the new constitution:

"His duties shall be prescribed by law."

This vague provision renders the State Superintendent subject to the caprice, intelligence, mercy or malice of every succeeding Legislature. That officer may be a director, in fact or in name, of the school system, as may be determined for the time being. In other words, the school system may be headless or not, as its friends may be in or out of power. To those familiar with the habitual neglect and indifference of legislators, even when they be professedly friends of public education, this is not an encouraging outlook.

The change of constitutions will introduce vague, mischievous openings for deadly assaults on the public school system, in place of the sound, clear mandates now on the statutes. But if the new constitution be adopted, let us hope that the women over twenty-one years of age, who will then be eligible to all school offices, will press forward to the defense of the system with all the power and glory of their sex. Until then, Republican voters of Louisiana, you will not fail to take note of the impending movement to degrade that system which it was your pride to have first established in the free State of Louisiana.—Donaldsonville Chief.

Oct. 12, 1879.—THE TYPES EXPLAINED. SCRIPTURE, Heb. 9: 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For by one offering he hath perfected forever them that are sanctified."—10:14.

TOPIC—Access to God through the Blood of Christ.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

The Connection.—The apostle is making a comparison between the old and the new convenants for the purpose of showing that the new is much the better. In chapter 8 it is declared the new covenant is superior to the old because it is "established upon better promises." 1. "I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in (on) their hearts." 2. "And they shall not teach every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest." 3. "I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." Christ made a sacrifice ... all—one sacrifice for ...." errors of the people." It was the great day of atonement. He could not approach that sacred apartment until he was free from every ceremonial defilement, and was permitted to enter it only as he brought with him the atoning blood of the animal slain specially in expiation for his own sins, and afterwards with the blood of the bullock slain for the sins of the people. And all the while that he was in its awful precincts the people were without, praying for his safety and for his acceptance with God, that he might not be stricken down for appearing before God unworthily.

The Types Explained (8–10)—The gifts and the sacrifices of those days were a figure of the expiation that was made upon Calvary, and, as we have learned in our lesson, the high priest was only a type of the true high priest who has entered into the inner heaven for us. Now the conscience is entirely satisfied. It no more troubles the true believer in Christ. "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." He surpassed the high priests of the temple in the respect that he is a high priest of those good things that we look for beyond this life. He is preparing mansions in heaven for those who believe upon his name. He is fitting heaven for them, as well as fitting them for heaven. There are glories that they are to share with him, that excel anything of which here they dream, and delights of which they have no conception—of these he is the high priest. "Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood, he entered once into the place, having obtained eternal redemption for us." They were of avail only as they were emblematical of the blood of "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." We were redeemed, not with corruptible things, as silver and gold, "but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a Lamb without blemish and without spot." "Eternal redemption" is the boon that is proffered to every one in bondage now to sin. Will that be accepted? The anxiety of Christians should relate to their growth in grace—not to their acceptance with God. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life."

Her last words were, she was ready to die, she had done her Master's work, her pains and labors had passed away, and she was going to a land of rest, to suffer, to toil, to labor no more. She said good by at 2:30 p. m., Tuesday, Sept. 23d, and our beloved sister took her departure from the earth, leaving a mother and sister, who are also members of the same church. She is a great loss to the church, for her usefulness in the choir and Sunday school. MR. PHILLIPS' GOINGS-ON. By James M. Bailey. Boston: Lee & Shephard. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich, 130 Canal street. Price, 50 c.; paper.

"The Danbury News Man," has written two or three books, which have had a fair sale. Their contents are partly humorous. The title of this book suggests the state of the hero of a novel in an advanced stage of love making. It is a story of humble life, with some pathetic touches, and probably as the author hopes, it will sell well.

An Important Geological Fact

Geology has shown us that nature accomplishes her greatest revolutions in the earth's surface conformation slowly. Every year the river makes its channel deeper, the glacier wears a deeper gorge in the Alpine rock, and the ocean tide deposits the sand it has crumbled from the rocks upon which it breaks. We note the earthquake and the devastating hurricane; but these changes are so gradual man seldom observes them until the channel has become overhanging ... or a mountain has disappeared before the icy stream, or the ocean has given us a Florida. Thus it is in disease. Our attention is attracted by acute diseases, fevers, cholera, etc, while chronic diseases (often the most dangerous in result), being slow in their development, are seldom noticed until they have made an almost ineffaceable impression upon the system. Persons believing themselves comparatively healthful are often times the victims of these diseases, and only become aware of their presence when relief is almost impossible. Diseases of the liver and stomach are the commonest of these chronic affections. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are never-failing remedies for these diseases. They produce a healthful secretion of the bile, prevent indigestion by regulating the bowels, and impart a vigorous tone to the whole system.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISAYA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates, Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c.

Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

Lectures on Preaching

Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D.

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price..................$1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly, forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workmen who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

A LITTLE WHILE.

What is th's that He saith?
"It is but a little while,"
And trouble and pain and death
Shall vanish before His smile.

"A little while," and the load
Shall drop at the pilgrim's feet,
Where the steep and the rugged road
Doth merge in the golden street.

But what is this that He saith?
"A little while," and the day
Of the servant that laboreth
Shall be done forever and aye.

O the truth that is yet untold!
O the songs that are yet unsung!
O the sufferings manifold,
And the sorrows that have no tongue.

O the helpless hands held out,
And the wayward feet that stray
In the desolate paths of doubt
And the sinner's downward way!

For a silence soon will fall
On the lips that burn for speech;
And the needy and poor that call
Will forever be out of reach.

"For the work that ye must do
Before the coming of death
There remaineth, O faithful few,
But a little while," He saith.

PREVENT Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they stimulate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 33 13t

Ecclesiastical Law
—AND—
Rules of Evidence:

With Special Reference to the Jurisprudence of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

—BY—
HON. WILLIAM J. HENRY,
—AND—
WILLIAM L. HARRIS, D.D., LL.D.
8 vo., 311 Pages.
Cloth, $3; Law Sheep, $4.50.

In the first organization of the Church the rules for its government were few and simple; but as the Church grew and multiplied, and the conditions and circumstances of its members as well as of society about them, were changed, the rules necessary for its proper relation and government became more numerous and complex, so that now it often becomes a difficult matter to determine what proceedings should be instituted in a case, and under what particular rules and regulations. This book has been written with the hope that it may assist the administration in such cases. * * * * *

In submitting these rules we have aimed to do more than afford guides to judicial investigations before the tribunals of the Church. We believe they will be found valuable for such purposes, but we have endeavored to show in addition that the authenticity of the Holy Scriptures can be vindicated and their genuineness maintained by the well recognized and established rules of evidence received and acted upon in our courts of justice and in our different governmental relations.—Author's Preface.

The New Hymnal.

The Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences at their late sessions, made it the duty of every preacher having charge of a station or circuit to see that their pulpits were supplied with a New Hymnal, and all were to use their influence in having the people supply themselves with Hymnals and to use them in the public congregation and in social meetings.

We are now prepared to supply the following styles of the Hymnal at the prices named. Our terms are cash before sending, or we will send by express C. O. D. Specimen copies sent by mail on receipt of price.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health. It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.

(Successors to R. V. PIERCE, M. D.)

DR. R. V. PIERCE, having acquired a world-wide reputation in the treatment of Chronic Diseases, resulting in a professional business far exceeding his individual ability to conduct, some years ago induced several medical gentlemen to associate themselves with him, as the Faculty of the World's Dispensary, the Consulting Department of which has since been merged with the INVALIDS' HOTEL. The organization has been completed and incorporated under the name and style of World's Dispensary Medical Association, with the following officers:

Hon. R. V. PIERCE, Pres. F. D. PIERCE, V. Pres.
JNO. E. PIERCE, Sec. LESTER B. SMITH, Treas.

NINE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS of eminence and skill have been chosen as the Faculty.

CHRONIC DISEASES of all forms come within the province of our several specialties.

LUNG DISEASES.—This division of practice is very ably managed by a gentleman of mature judgment and skill. Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases treated with the most successful results.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—Especially are our facilities of a superior order for the cure of all those chronic diseases peculiar to females.

NERVOUS DISEASES.—Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Epilepsy (Fits), Chorea (St. Vitus's Dance), Neuralgia, and other nervous affections, receive the attention of an expert in this specialty.

NOT NECESSARY TO SEE PATIENTS.—By our original system of diagnosis, we can treat many chronic diseases as successfully without as with a personal consultation. For particulars see "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" (1,000 pages, sent post-paid for $1.50) or "Invalids' and Tourists' Guide Book" (100 pages, 10 cents post-paid).

SURGICAL CASES.—Among the operations which we are called upon most frequently to perform, are those for Nasal Polypus, Harelip, Tumors, Fistula in Ano, Piles, Hernia (Rupture), Hydrocele (Dropsy of the Scrotum), Varicocele, Ovarian and Uterine Tumors, Calculi (Stone in the Bladder), Stricture, etc., etc. We also treat successfully, by a new method without surgical operation, Cancers, Club-feet, Spinal Curvature, and other deformities. (See pamphlet entitled, "Motion as a Curative Agent," sent on receipt of 10 cents.)

WOMAN

By an immense practice at the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, having treated many thousand cases of those diseases peculiar to woman, I have been enabled to perfect a most potent and positive remedy for these diseases.

To designate this natural specific, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

The term, however, is but a feeble expression of my high appreciation of its value, based upon personal observation. I have, while witnessing its positive results in the special diseases incident to the organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical career. On its merits, as a positive, safe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will, at all times and under all circumstances, act kindly, I am willing to stake my reputation as a physician; and so confident am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalid lady who uses it for any of the ailments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE GUARANTEE. (For conditions, see pamphlet wrapping bottle.)

The following are among those diseases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures, as if by magic, and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Leucorrhœa, Excessive Flowing, Painful Monthly Periods, Suppressions when from unnatural causes, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or Falling of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing-down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nervous Depression, Debility, Despondency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, Inflammation and Ulceration of the Uterus, Impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, and Female Weakness. I do not extol this medicine as a "cure-all," but it admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm, in any state or condition.

Those who desire further information on these subjects can obtain it in THE PEOPLE'S COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, a book of over 900 pages, sent, post-paid, on receipt of $1.50. It treats minutely of those diseases peculiar to Females, and gives much valuable advice in regard to the management of those affections.

either owns or by contract controls everything on his place until the supplies are paid for. Before the war the merchants' sales were limited to what the planter thought best for his "niggers" to have; but now both classes are interested—for each makes a profit—in having the laborers buy whatever their needs or fancy suggest. Put in the whisky and tobacco bills, and I dare say that the larger share of money due for wages on the sugar and cotton plantations go for things valueless or injurious; and these are the supplies on which merchants and planters make the best profits. It is estimated that the freedmen spend $80,000,000 more a year for themselves than their masters spent for them. This vast sum goes into the hands of planters through their stores and the merchants, and is largely spent for things on which there is an enormous profit; so that perhaps, half of it is so much clear gain, over and above what those classes could make before the war. Add to this that the negro labor of the South made last year nearly all of $256,000,000 in crops, without the investment of the vast capital required to own slaves, and it is evident why, from a selfish standpoint, the South does not want slavery back, while she can "control and regulate" free negro labor on the present contract and credit systems.

POLITICAL OPPRESSIONS AND PERSECUTORS.

Another class of the causes of the Negro Exodus comes from political oppressions and persecutions.

The ballot was given the Negroes by amendments to the Constitution of the United States, against the conviction and bitter protests of the Southern white people. Chiefly because of this for years they refused to participate in State or National politics. This made necessary what are known as [illegible] bag governments in the South. The few union men in the Southern States united with those [illegible] remained from the federal [illegible] or came South as citizens [illegible] the North; and these, with [illegible] newly enfranchised Negroes formed a party which for a time [illegible] every Southern State. Of [illegible] governments it is popular [illegible] to speak disparagingly, but [illegible] impartial historian will [illegible] speak of them. They were a [illegible] in that transition period, [illegible] in the midst of tremen[dous] [illegible] difficulties, growing largely [illegible] inexperienced and ignor[ant] [illegible] behind them, but chiefly [illegible] bitter and vindictive [illegible] against them by the [illegible] ruling classes in every [illegible] governments gave [illegible] State a loyal con[stitution] [illegible] inaugurated universal [illegible] provided in each State [illegible] for a common school [illegible] made possible the [illegible] every State of educa[tional] [illegible] ecclesiastical, social and [illegible] which remain and [illegible] to represent and [illegible] civilization of freedom, [illegible] if not chiefly to [illegible] and better South [illegible] and perfection. Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, there were 1,464,236 voters, of which 672,651 were Negroes. This vast vote has been almost entirely suppressed. The South elects 31 of the 74 United States Senators, and 109 of the 292 Representatives, and notwithstanding her immense Republican vote, not one of these represents that vote, except Senators Kellogg, of Louisiana, and Bruce, of Mississippi, and they will soon be displaced. Neither in the State offices of all the South, nor in the controlling element of a single State legislative branch, can there be found any trace of the 887,348 negro voters of this section. In localities where Negroes and their political allies were in the minority they could vote; but, except in rare cases, where there was any hope of their success in electing candidates, whatever violence was necessary to defeat them was used and justified. In the accounts given to the country of political persecutions and oppressions suffered by Negro voters in the Southern States during the past years, there have, no doubt been some exaggerated statements, but half the truth has not been told. Simply for being Republicans, in almost every neighborhood, Negroes and their friends have suffered every sort of abuse, from social ostracism to murder. Secular papers opposed to sentiment as at present represented by the Southern State governments cannot be supported in the South, except by moneyed contributions of friends. Business men who are wealthy and independent will not advertise in them, and such as are anxious for trade dare not, because it would injure their trade.

The same influences used to suppress the negro vote of the South, and to make any organized political movement against the Democracy of the South impossible, are still used to keep that vote suppressed. Mississippi has a Republican majority of from twenty to thirty thousand, which, by the celebrated "Mississippi plan," was effectually overcome in 1875-76. At present an "independent" movement is being attempted in that State by which the conservative Democrats who are opposed to bulldozing in politics propose uniting with native Republicans and form a party. This movement commends itself to good men, in the abstract, but is made impossible by the determined and violent opposition of the party in power. An election occurs this fall, and up to August 20, in several counties, the independent candidates have been by armed men compelled to withdraw from the canvass. Captain H. M. Dixon, "independent" candidate for Sheriff, in Yazoo county, was, July 25, made to withdraw, and afterward, refusing to abide by this forced pledge, was murdered on the public street of the town by an opposing candidate.*

FAILURE OF PRESENT GOVERNMENTS TO PROTECT NEGROES.

The present Democratic State Governments in the South promised protection to the Negroes in their political rights, but have failed to fulfill these promises, except where their votes were too few to control offices. Govenor Nicholls, of Louisiana, in a late message to his legislature, enumerated several cases of gross outrage upon colored voters, in different parishes of this State, but regretted that there were no legal methods to punish the guilty, until the public sentiment of those communities demanded such punishment. Governor Stone, of Mississippi, has frequently expressed the same views and regrets. Granting that these men are honest in their views and regrets, and others in places of power in the South who have said the same things, their admissions prove all that is necessary to show that Negroes are the victims of political oppression and persecution. A public sentiment as yet overwhelming in the South, forbids to Negroes their political rights, wherever the exercise of those rights endangers the claims of the present white leaders, to hold all the offices, and to control absolutely every election, State, county and municipal.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT FAILS TO PROTECT.

The last hope of the Negroes in the South, for the present at least, for protection in their political rights, rested in the United States Government, but that, too, has failed. It is utterly impossible to enforce a law in any community, by any ordinary process, where the laws themselves are considered unconstitutional, and where the class the law seeks to protect, is under ban of public sentiment. The political sentiment which now rules every Southern States, pronounces United States laws, which seek to superintend any election, or to protect any voter in the exercise of his franchise in any State, as an infringement upon the rights of that State; and hence unconstitutional and to be resisted. Add to this the vicious sentiment of the South toward the Negroes, and it is evident that by no ordinary process of law can the United States protect him in that section in the exercise of his political rights.

The history of the late political trials in South Carolina, Mississippi, and Louisiana, proves this beyond a doubt. Take the trials in the last-named State. A large number of arrests were made in the worst bulldozed parishes, where during the last election Republicans were whipped and shot and hung. The cases susceptible of the clearest proof were selected and brought to trial, before Judge Woods of the United States Circuit Court, a man of sterling character and a just judge. As the trials progressed the prisoners were the recipients of every possible attention from the elite of New Orleans. Their bills were paid at the best hotels, and every morning, columns of editorials in the city papers would tell of their good characters, and of the outrage being perpetrated upon them, in being dragged from their homes to answer trumped up charges against them by "niggers and carpet-baggers." As could only be expected in the presence of such a public sentiment no convictions were made in these first cases, and the whole prosecution was abandoned. The acquitted were escorted to the wharf by a multitude, canons boomed, and for three hundred miles they were greeted at every landing on the river as heroes. On the boat carrying them, was what served as a cannon as to noise, and, as its roar at every landing went echoing through villages and over plantations, is it strange that the Negroes, whose friends and representatives these very heroes and their friends had whipped and driven from the polls, should distrust the power or willingness of even the United States to protect them? Once at home, some of these "heroes" are installed in the principal Parish offices, and others are returned to New Orleans as members of the Convention to make a new Constitution for the State. Look now at the Negroes, who had been the victims of outrage, and their frends, who had been summoned with them to testify for the United States. Not one of them dare return to their homes unless to die. Some of them have valuable property, others are parish officers, and many are small planters and renters whose all has gone to waste by neglect. Two hundred of this class, I am told, are now in New Orleans. Some I know personally to be men of means and good character. Some are not professional politicians, and came to testify unwillingly. The Teller Senate Committee took a large amount of testimony upon these cases, which were tried in New Orleans; and the two Democratic Senators on that committee admitted to a personal friend of mine, that they were astonished and horrified at what they saw and heard; and have not to this day published a word of disclaimer against the [illegible] report given to the country by Senators Teller, Cameron and Howe.

Until there is a change in the sentiment and conditions surrounding the Negro voter in the South, he has no alternative but to withdraw from all participation in the management of political affairs and give to his political enemies the benefit of counting him in representation, or fight, or migrate. Fortunately, he is now, as before the war, patient and not revengeful, and seeks rather to follow providential indications than to take matters in his own hand. Just now to multitudes the finger of Providence points northward.

DIFFICULTIES.

I fully appreciate the difficulties in the South surrounding the question of Universal Suffrage. But one thing is sure, the present course of the South toward the negro voter is such as to drive from it the sympathy of all philanthropists. In one fell swoop, the vote and political influence of nearly a million citizens, representing the interests and welfare of over four millions of Americal people, are wiped out, in State and national affairs; and that, too, very largely by violence and fraud. When the nation denounces the proceeding, the cry of "bloody shirt" is raised, and in congressional halls that cry is supplemented by the demand that these representatives of that fraud and violence shall be received as national law-makers, and that, as a means of "conciliation," Congress shall enthrone the doctrine of "State Sovereignty," by which the nation could give no protection to a voter in any State, even in an election for its own senators and representatives.

Other influences contribute to the Negro Exodus besides such as are financial and political. I can do but little more than mention some of these in the remaining space allotted to this article.

LACK OF EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES.

For years all over the South there was persistent and violent opposition to all educational facilities for the Negroes; and while of late there has been improvement in this respect, still there is no such public sentiment now as guarantees such facilities in the near future. In large cities and towns Negroes generally have schools, but beyond this the schools for them are rare, except private ones, and those of an inferior grade. Public schools are not popular in the South. Their establishment was one of the standing arguments against the carpet-bag governments. Having once been established, as a matter of political policy the succeeding governments have not abolished them; but in nearly every State they have been crippled by failure to provide money, and loading them with impracticable methods.

In the late Constitutional Convention in Louisiana it required a desperate fight to retain in the Constitution the semblance of a public school system; and now no high schools can be established and the provisions for money are inadequate.

The real question on this matter in most of the South is not, how efficient public schools can be made, but whether there shall be any efficient ones at all or not. This is so as applied to all classes, much more so as applied to the Negroes. The latter are now, even in the poor facilities given, except in cities and towns and occasional rural neighborhoods ruled against in the matters of school-houses, funds, and teachers.

SOUTHERN CHURCHES SLOW TO ACT.

If we turn to the Churches in the South their leaders are behind the politicians in the work of demanding and providing educational facilities for the colored people. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has not one such school to my knowledge. The reply that the colored people of this Church have been put in an organization to themselves will not cover the case, until that organization is helped to one such school worthy the name. The southern Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Baptists altogether have, within two or three years, established three or four small schools. In neither nor all these Churches is there as yet a sentiment worthy the name in favor of educating ministers and teachers for the Negroes. Some grand men are advocating this and good resolutions have been passed, but as yet practically nothing has been done. The Methodist Episcopal Church and the northern Baptist, Presbyterian, and Congregational Churches have planted in the various Southern States thirty-nine schools and colleges for the education of colored youth, chiefly as teachers and preachers and in those schools are every year over 5,000 students. While this grand work has been going forward the religious press of the South has, for fourteen years, opposed, ridiculed, or "damned with faint praise," that work, as various stages of Southern sentiment would seem to suggest.

LACK OF MORAL AND RELIGIOUS EFFORTS TO SAVE THE NEGROES.

Another source of uneasiness among thoughtful Negroes all over the South is the moral and religious condition of the great mass of their people. In ante-bellum times all the churches did more or less missionary work among the slaves, but since the war, outside of what Northern benevolence has done, and what the colored people have done for themselves, almost nothing has been accomplished to save the masses of the Negroes from the moral degradation into which two hundred years of slavery have brought them. The poor excuse that "others have undertaken this work, and alienated the negroes from us," even if accepted, does not change the fact or relieve it of its sadness. Much less does that poor excuse palliate the tirade of abuse heaped upon the devoted men and women, who, from the North, in every Southern State, have given themselves to the Christlike work of saving the colored people. For purposes of gain or political favor Negroes in the South are associated with, saloons and gambling hells are open for them day and night, and no cry of "social equality" is raised against the men, who, to victimize them, sit beside them at the card table, or drink with them at the public bar, and the keeping of "colored mistresses" goes on among the "oldest and best," as well as the youngest and worst. The churches which should be first in securing their confidence and respect, that they may save them from their sins, if we are to judge by what they have done during the past fourteen years, care the least for that confidence and respect. In Louisiana, for example, in a Negro population of 400,000, half the people in the State, the combined religious effort among that population, of all the Southern Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Episcopalian Churches have resulted in two or three small churches, lately established, a Sunday-school or two, and occasional sermons to colored congregations.

The following from a paper adopted at a late Exodus meeting in New Orleans, and at which several thousand were present, gives a fair expression from the thoughtful and best Negroes respecting the chances of their people's educational and religious facilities in the South:

We are not unmindful of the improvidence of a large class of our people, nor of the difficulties involved in harmonizing and adjusting the relations of the races since emancipation. We have no harsh words for those in office, neither do we here doubt their sincerity for our people; but it is a deplorable fact that outside of a few cities and towns, public schools are almost unknown among our people, and in not a few cases there yet remains some of the spirit, which a few years ago burned our school-houses and drove away our teachers. It has required fifteen years for the great Christian Churches of Southern sentiment to resolve that our people must be educated and Christianized; but as yet little or nothing has been done by them. The generous North has built colleges and schools for our people in every State, and continues to do largely for our elevation. We do not undervalue the good resolutions of our Southern white educational and church friends; but if it has required fifteen years to make good resolutions, we fear that our children will grow up in ignorance before any adequate system of education and moral training will be put in practice, and whatever demoralizations are now among them, threatening their greater future depravity will not be remedied.

NEGROES RULED AGAINST IN ADMINISTRATION OF LAW.

In the administration of law, especially in the rural districts—which comprise nearly all the South—the Negroes have but little show of justice. This is sadly true in respect to minor offenses, for which penalties are, as a rule, greater than the merits of the case demand. I saw a white man and a colored man going to the Louisiana Penitentiary together, and the former was going for one year for attempting to kill a man, and the latter was going two years for stealing an armful of corn. The wretched system of hiring out the convicts in the penitentiary to contractors for the benefit of the State prevails to a large extent; and if half the statements made respecting the treatment of convicts in Texas and Georgia, for example, under the present administration, be true, it is difficult to resist the belief that a great many colored men are sent to the penitentiary in these States, not only to punish them, but to secure public revenue. The treatment of convicts under sub-contractors, as they are worked under overseers, is often cruel indeed. The laws themselves may make no distinction as to race, but in the administration of the laws, is where the vicious public sentiment against the negro becomes evident.

A SPECIMEN LAW.

Laws are now in force in several States which it would seem were intended to place a special grip on the colored people, who make up the mass of the poor and laboring classes. Such a law was passed in Mississippi in March, 1878, under the innocent title of "An Act to reduce the Judiciary Expenses of the State." The act provides that "all persons convicted and committed to the jail of the county, except those committed for contempt of court, and except those sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, shall be delivered to a contractor, to be by him kept and worked under the provisions of this act; and all persons committed to jail except those entitled to bail, may also, with their consent, be committed to said contractor." Another section provides how the "consent" may be secured, by enacting that if a prisoner does not consent his daily diet shall be "six ounces of bacon or ten ounces of beef and a pound of bread and water." This section also provides that not consenting to work for a contractor before his conviction without compensation, the prisoner must, if convicted, "work under said contractor a sufficient term to pay all costs of prosecution, including jail fees for keeping and feeding him." Section four provides that in working out his fine the prisoner shall be worked "at the rate of twenty-five cents a day, not including Sundays and days in which said convict shall be unable to labor, or for any cause by his consent shall not labor;" and also "that said convict shall work two days for every one lost by sickness, one of which days shall be for compensation for keeping him during a day on which he was sick." He must not only thus work out the fine, but all costs of prosecution and jail fees. This statute puts the power into the hands of any one who cares to use it upon any trivial offense to have "contracted" to him a laborer; or if his laborers become dissatisfied, to prevent them from leaving him by threats of the "contractors' chain-gang." Under this law a Negro in Noxubee county for some petty offense was fined $250 and costs. This would require several years to work out. A glance at the provisions of this and similar laws makes it evident that their penalties must fall on the poor and friendless offenders, which would generally mean the Negroes.

SPIRIT OF MURDER.

The last cause of the Exodus I shall mention is the spirit of murder which so largely prevails in the Southern States. Among "gentlemen" the barbarous "code of honor" is still in vogue, and it is only occasionally that a gentleman of social standing is brave enough to refuse to be a murderer and suicide, to prove his manhood by refusing to consent when the rules of that "code" would require him to take the "field." Murder has been openly justified to secure political success in every Southern State. There is a large class in the rural districts which regards it as a small offense to shoot or help hang "an impudent nigger." The late tragedy in Yazoo City, Mississippi, is but one of the many where political opponents have been gotten rid of by shooting them. The better class do not approve these violent acts, but politically are willing to accept the benefits of them, and, in matters outside of politics, they have no power seemingly to prvent them.

A few leading secular papers have admitted and denounced this murderous spirit, but it yet exists, and the Negroes are most often its victims. Speaking of this, the Meridian, Miss., Mercury says:—

The cause of such frequent and horrible murders must be sought in the diseased state of public sentiment. Juries who acquit murderers in the face of law and fact only obey the public opinion prevalent in the community around them. Juries never fail in enforcing the law against theft, etc., simply because public sentiment backs them up in this case, and a like result would follow in case public opinion rebuked and condemned murder as sternly as it does theft. We suggest that every preacher of every denomination in our State shall set apart two Sundays in the year for sermons on the text, "Thou shalt do no murder," and that they display it plainly and forcibly. We suggest that the Churches try and expel all who take human life, except in actual defense. Society should also set the seal of reprobation and outlawry upon ruffianism and barbarism, by slamming its doors in the faces of murderers and ruffians. Stamp murder as ungentlemanly and it will be properly punished by the courts; but to attain this point the people must be educated to regard murder with horror.

But even this paper, which preaches so well in the abstract, and unwittingly gives so vivid a picture of how murder is regarded in his State, could not demand that the murderers of the Chisolm family, whose deeds so shocked the nation, should be punished. Of them this paper said, "they will never be punished, because they simply obeyed the sentiment of the community in doing what they did."

CONCLUSION.

To what this Exodus will grow will depend upon whether the causes which have started it are removed or not. I have mentioned the chief causes operating against the Negroes in the South. Others coming from the defects and weaknesses in the negro character are operating among the more ignorant and shiftless masses, but these could effect but little if the ones named were removed, or at once and effectually mitigated.

The hand of Providence is to me evident in this Exodus. To the Negroes it is the awakening of a new life and independence. Those who go will be surrounded by the best civilization of the age, and their children will grow up in the schools to be intelligent, independent, and aggressive; and the white people of the South, it is to be hoped, feeling their loss in those who have gone, will care for, protect, and help the better those who remain. The nation will, by the Exodus, have its heart stirred toward those who so lately were in bondage; and the publication of facts, as to their present condition, will prevent the nation from forgetting its duty to them.

To the Southern States this movement means much more than it does to the Negroes or the Nation. It is God's last if not final appeal to the wealth and intelligence of this section to do right by the Negro populations in their midst. If this Exodus becomes general the South is ruined financially, and her political prestige is forever gone. The white people of the South can alone stop this Exodus. The land tenure and credit system must be changed for better ones; bulldozing must stop, and heroic efforts for the religion and educational welfare of all classes must be inaugurated. To talk about immigration to the South while the causes now operating to produce this Exodus remain, is idle. To talk about importing Chinese labor to take the place of the Negroes is equally idle. The South must do right toward the Negro or perish. The difficulties are great, but the God-appointed appliances of this age are greater.

Hope to the soul is as an anchor to a ship in a dark night on an unknown coast, and amid a boisterous ocean. It is the most eminent of all the advantages which religion now confers, as it is the universal comforter; and indeed if it were entertained with that full persuasion which faith demands, it would banish discontent, extinguish grief, and render life much more pleasant than it generally is.—Dr. Blair.

The Petersburg (Va.) Index-Appeal says that the praises of such a man as Garrison would have "defiled" the Capitol of Georgia, and that "people living in the South who would want to pay any public marks of respect to the memory of the evil-hearted old man ought to be regarded as enemies of their neighbors and of their kind."

* Captain Dixon was an ex-confederate officer, had an estimable family, was a prominent Democratic leader in the party in 1875, and for his services in that campaign received a handsome silver present, inscribed: "To Captain H. M. Dixon, the bravest of the brave." The vilest abuse has been heaped upon him, since his murder, by his former political admirers. The following, from his wife to her mother, who resides in Washington, D. C., dated July 29, 1879, speaks for itself:

"But my heaviest trouble, to which the burial of all my little ones would be nothing, is about Henry. SCRIPTURE.—Heb. 11: 1-10

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For he endured as seeing him who is invisible."—11: 27.

TOPIC.—Access to God through Faith.

(Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.)

Introductory.—God is faithful to the promises, but man is apt to be unfaithful to his duties. New Books.

We have received the October numbers of the Sunday School Memory Chart, size 32x44 inches, published weekly by E. F. Hobart & Co., St. Louis, and commend them.

BOOKS FOR OUR BABIES. American Tract Society, 150 Nassau St. New York. Presbyterian Depository: New Orleans. Price $1.

Ten little books with cuts, in a neat box, suggestive of a holiday present to little folks. Choice Christian reading.

THE CONQUEST OF PLASSANS. By Emile Zola. Philadelphia: T. B. Peterson & Bros. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich. Price, 75 cents.

This book is said to be more artistic than any of Zola's works. It has two characters, original in conception and execution, Abbe Faujas and his mother. A tale of provincial life, free of immoral thought, it will have many readers.

THE VALUE OF LIFE. A Reply to Mr. Mallock's Essay "Is Life Worth Living?" New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich. Price 1.50.

This is a vigorous criticism upon the assault of Mallock, English essayist, upon the Positivism of the age. The amount of thought conveyed, and its character make it a profitable book to read, if one is following the theological contests of the day. Objections will be found as the views of sectarians may be intruded upon. The author believes that the "Tree of Life grows forever by the Tree of Knowledge."

The highest authority in New England, the State Assayer of Massachusetts, after a careful analysis of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer certified that it is the best preparation for its intended purpose that has been exhibited for examination, that its constituents are pure and carefully selected for excellent quality, and that it forms an efficient preparation for promoting the growth of the hair and restoring the original color. the whole of "A Little Story" by Claud Templar. A New Volume, printed from New Type, begins with the first number in October. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (more than 3 000 pages a year), the subscription price is ($8). Littell & Co., Boston, publishers.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for November is another exceedingly brilliant number. The title might convey the impression that it is of a sombre character; on the contrary—it is bright in literature. "The Religion of Shakespeare," by Rev. John Bayley, is profusely illustrated, making the reader familiar with the fact that but for the Bible and Shakespeare's faith in religion, he never would have been what he is now acknowledged to be. Rev. Dr. Rankin gives his opinion of Luther as a lyric writer. A pleasing paper is Rev. Dr. Palmer's "Recollections of my pets." Mrs. Richmond has an admirable sketch of Luther's wife. Mr. Hudson's "Pompeii of Vesuvius" is finely illustrated. In fiction the serial "A Thorny Path," is continued, and among the notable stories are "Horse-Chestnut Blooms," "A True Heart," "Out of the Depths," "Katy's Avenal," etc. The poems are Miss Hatton's "Out of the Depths of God's Twilight," "After," by Miss Matthews; "The Maiden's Yacht," by Mrs. Kidder, and Mrs. Skinner's "Can it Be?" There is an excellent sermon by the editor, "Night and Morning," "The Popular Exegesis," "At Home and Abroad," "Editor's Portfolio," etc. The "Litany Hymn," with music, composed by the late Charles Edward Horsley, is now published for the first time. Each number contains 128 pages, quarto, and nearly 100 engravings. The annual subscription is $3; single copies 25 cents; sent postpaid. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, N. Y.

A Wise Legislator.

He is successful because he has the manly courage to rise above all personal motives or interests and cast his vote and influence on the side of measures which will contribute to the well-being of his fellow-men. The good of the many, even though it proves injurious to the interests of the few, is the maxim of the wise legislator. But certain men will never admit the wisdom of this doctrine any more than some selfish private practitioners will admit the superlative value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets, because these remedies have injured their practice. Of course, no man in his right senses will pay a physician $5 00 for a consultation, a bottle of bitters, a few powders, and a prescription, when one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and a bottle of his Pleasant Purgative Pellets, both costing but $1 25, will accomplish the same result, viz: cleanse the liver and blood, regulate and tone the stomach, and impart a healthful action to the bowels and kidneys.

"The Complete Home."

By Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, is without doubt the most successful book of the season. Every reader is enthusiastic in its praise, and it is creating such a furor that agents find no trouble in selling it. The press universally commend it in the strongest terms as being just the book for the times. Those wishing to act as agents should apply at once. See advertisement.

Those who wish to purchase a Piano or Cabinet Organ should not fail to send to Hon. Daniel F. Beatty, of Washington, New Jersey, for his latest circular. See his advertisement.

Dr. Harter's IRON TONIC

Is a Preparation of IRON and CALISATA BARK, in combination with the Phosphates. Endorsed by the Medical Profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, &c., &c. Manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Co., No. 213 N. Main Street, St. Louis.

The following is one of the very many testimonials we are receiving daily:

Gentlemen:—Some three months ago I began the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, upon the advice of many friends who knew its virtues. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the TONIC. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the TONIC has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. Most gratefully yours,

45 Years Before the Public. THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

Quarterly Conferences.

To the Preachers on the Greenwood District.

DEAR BRETHREN—I wish to call your attention to some matters which I intended to present when making my third round on the district, but sickness, which confined me to my bed for three weeks and left me very much reduced in strength, prevented my third round, except some three or four appointments. It is customary on this district to take the Presiding Elder's collection the day he is present. I desire this changed to the fourth round. I want you to take the collection before I reach you, and have it all ready to pay over in the quarterly conference. You can easily do this by taking part at each appointment on the charges. My reason for this change is that I desire to present the missionary cause at each appointment and assist you to take the missionary collection. Will you announce, when you give out my appointment, that I will preach a missionary sermon and take the missionary collection, and that I want everybody to be present and give something for the cause of missions? I am satisfied that with this co-operation we can largely increase our benevolent collections and consequently secure the blessing of God upon ourselves and the people. I trust none of you will forget the resolution passed in the last annual conference: 'That each preacher take the collection for Shaw University on the third Sunday in November,' the amount of which you will have to report when your names are called in conference. Brethren, let us work faithfully on till conference, and may God bless our labors.

Lectures on Preaching

Delivered before the Theological Students of Yale College.

By Rev. Matthew Simpson, D.D. LL.D.

(One of the Bishops of the M. E. Church.)

Cloth, 12mo. Price.........................$1.50

These admirable Lectures embrace the following topics delivered in the order here stated:

Lecture I. The Nature and Work of the Christian Ministry.
Lecture II. The Call to the Ministry.
Lecture III. The Preacher Personally.
Lecture IV. Indirect Preparation for the Pulpit.
Lecture V. The Preparation of a Sermon.
Lecture VI. The Delivery of a Sermon.
Lecture VII. Ministerial Power.
Lecture VIII. The Influence of the Pastorate on the Pulpit.
Lecture IX. Collateral and Miscellaneous Work.
Lecture X. Is the Modern Pulpit a Failure?

It is needless to say that these topics are treated in a masterly manner—clearly, forcibly, practically; as becomes both the gravity and importance of the subjects discussed, and the reputation of their author as a "workmen who needeth not to be ashamed." No minister should be without them, as none can carefully and thoughtfully read them without profit. In them there is nothing showy, but they present the ripe fruit of the matured thought of a long period of ministerial usefulness and oversight. They are weighty, well-considered teachings.

This book will be sent by mail on receipt of price. Address,

Watching.

A General, after gaining a great victory, was encamping with his army for the night. He ordered sentinels to be stationed all round the camp as usual. One of the sentinels, as he went to his station, grumbled to himself, and said, "Why could not the General let us have a quiet night's rest for once, after beating the enemy? I'm sure there's nothing to be afraid of."

The man then went to his station, and stood for some time looking about him. It was a bright Summer's night, with a harvest moon, but he could see nothing anywhere: so he said, "I am terribly tired. I shall sleep for just five minutes, out of the moonlight, under the shadow of this tree." So he lay down.

Presently he started up, dreaming that some one had pushed a lantern before his eyes, and he found that the moon was shining brightly down on him through a hole in the branches of the tree above him. The next minute an arrow whizzed past his ear, and the whole field before him seemed alive with soldiers in dark green coats, who sprang up from the ground where they had been silently creeping onward, and rushed towards him.

Fortunately the arrow had missed him; so he shouted aloud to give the alarm; and ran back to some other sentinels. The army was thus saved; and the soldier said. "I shall never forget, as long as I live, that when one is at war one must watch."

Our whole life is a war with Evil. Just after we have conquered it, it sometimes attacks us when we least expect it. For example, when we have resisted the temptation to be cross and pettish or disobedient, sometimes when we are thinking "how good we have been!" comes another sudden temptation, and we are not on our guard, and do not resist it. Jesus says to us, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation."

THE ROBBINS
FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER
AGENTS WANTED.

We bespeak for this article the careful perusal of every intelligent person into whose hands this paper may fall. It should carry great weight with house-keepers and MEN WHO ARE LOOKING FOR A BUSINESS which will pay. To such the chance now offered is seldom equalled—never excelled. In bringing this article before the public, it becomes necessary to take into consideration which is yet so imperfectly understood. Having had a lifelong experience in the laundry business, in connection with first-class hotels, public laundries, asylums, hospitals, etc., we know whereof we speak. The numerous devices of friction rollers, pounders, squeezers, dashers, agitators, steam wash boilers, etc., have all failed in one or more of the three essential points, viz: The saving of labor, the wear and tear of clothes, or in perfectly extracting the dirt and discoloration; all of which are accomplished by the ROBBINS FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER.

THE ART OF CLEANSING FABRICS,

WHAT IS IT REMOVES THE DIRT?

You may ask all washerwomen and house-keepers, and your answer from nine out of ten will be, "Plenty of elbow grease," or in other words, plenty of hard laborious rubbing upon the washboard. And such is the case, for you first rub soap upon the cloth, and then you have to rub it in to make the dirt soluble; but does that remove it? No; to do that you must dip it in the water and rub repeatedly to force water through the fabric again and again. That is what removes dirt after having been softened by the chemical action of the soap.

The way in which this could be the most economically accomplished has been developed in the FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER, which embodies all the above points.

It is harder work to operate these mechanical devices than to use the common washboard. They are constantly getting out of order, and wear out in a short time. They wear out clothes faster than the rubbing-board, because the friction is a hundred per cent. greater.

READ WHAT OTHERS SAY.

From FRANK FLOWER, Eatontown, N. J., Jan. 30, 1878.

"Your Robbins Washer has preserved my clothes from the remorseless washboard and the ruthless scrubbing and rubbing of the washerwoman fiend. No longer is washday the most dreaded of the week, as, thanks to the Robbins Washer, our washday is free from manual labor and unpleasantness incident thereto, and I hope your sales may extend until every household is blessed with the Robbins Washer. One thing I can assure you, that if she could not procure another, I do not think money could buy from my wife her washer. She has used it three years, and likes it better every washing day. Rest assured I shall always speak for my friend, the Washer, on each and every opportunity.

Mechanical devices take the entire time of a person during the whole wash, and will not remove streaks from clothes. With the Washer and Bleacher, washing, baking and housework are contemporaneous operations—the fire doing the washing and baking while the housewife does her housework.

The following extract from a private letter written by a lady to her sister in this city, who had sent her a Washer:

"Mr. — is home, and he is about the garden just as he was last Summer, and works right up against his clothes just as father does. He dirties four shirts a week, as black as dirt. We never could get them clean in the world if it were not for the Washer. We did not wash yesterday, and this morning I have been doing up all kinds of chores, while the washing does itself. It is just wonderful!

Last Saturday morning I told Em. we would make our fire do double duty, so we put all the three beds' sheets in the boiler, and after them seven long roller towels, and as many tea towels, and when we got our ironing done they were all clean. You have not forgotten how dirty hired men make sheets and towels. I think everybody would have to have workmen's shirts, sheets and towels to appreciate it.

I told Em. I hoped no one would ask us to lend again, for what would we do if it gave out, I can't tell.

I now have a Washer in my kitchen that cost $45, but was laid aside because it was harder work to operate it than to do the washing with the washboard. If I could not get another of the Washers and Bleachers I could not afford to sell mine for $20. Every other kind of work goes on at the same time."

All who have tried steam wash boilers will unite with us in saying: They do not give satisfaction.

WE WILL EXPLAIN WHY.

As stated, water-force is what removes dirt from the fibres of the cloth. A large body of water is required to hold in solution a comparatively small amount of dirt. Steam wash-boilers cannot accomplish the desired result. They do not contain enough water to hold the dirt in solution, while steam will not remove dirt. It is a powerful agent to assist in cleansing, because it expands the fabric, and causes the discharge of dirt and impurities from the cloth that cannot be forced out in any other way unless by the application of heat and force of water combined.

In order to remove dirt from steamed clothes, they must be washed out in water at nearly boiling heat, for if you use water at a lower temperature, it causes the fabric to contract, which shuts in, or as our housewives say, "sets the dirt," thus causing the clothes to turn yellow. An essential thing to be mentioned is the rotting of clothes by steam wash-boilers, because of the small quantity of water used.

Everybody knows that a large quantity of soap dissolved in a small body of water must necessarily form an exceedingly strong alkali, which after the clothes are packed in the steam wash-boiler, is converted into steam, every moment becoming more concentrated till the clothes are removed. A few such washings, and what is the result? Simply this: Your clothes fall to pieces of their own weight, and you pronounce steam wash-boilers (as they are) a failure.

THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER

[illegible] all the essential points. First, we have the desired heat, which expands the fibre and causes it to discharge the dirt. Second, we obtain a powerful suction beneath the clothes, which causes a rapid downward current or water force, through and through them, thereby removing the dirt. Third, we use a large body of water, which holds the dirt in solution. Fourth, we use but a small quantity of soap. Fifth, the washing is done by water, and not by steam. This process cannot injure fabrics. It cleanses thoroughly, rinsing the clothes being all that is required to complete the operation.

THE CAPACITY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER.

There are three sizes: No. 1, the family size; No. 2, suitable for small hotels, restaurants, barber-shops, boarding-houses, etc.; No. 3, or steam power-washer, into which is conducted, through a ½-inch pipe, the steam from the steam boiler, from which is obtained the power for driving the water. [illegible] takes the place of machinery [illegible] where steam power is used in the [illegible]

[illegible] Washer is composed of metal, and [illegible] out of order. [illegible]

etc. We take the clothes dry, and when the Washer gets thoroughly at work, we fill the boiler as full as it will hold, by gently pressing them down with a stick. We use no chemicals, only good soap and soft water. If the water is hard, it may be softened by a small piece of borax, which is harmless.

For LACE CURTAINS this Washer is invaluable. It cleanses them as no other process can, and without the slightest danger of injury.

The No. 2, or small hotel size, will do the work in a boiler four times the size of the common family boiler, and wash of average pieces from 1,500 to 2,000 per day; or it may be used in any smaller boiler. They will work in anything that has a flat bottom large enough for them to rest upon.

For hospitals this washer is pronounced by the medical faculty invaluable, being the most powerful disinfector known, leaving the fabric as pure as when new. By engineers, mechanics and scientific men generally it is pronounced one of the most wonderful discoveries in the principle of hydraulics or water force ever brought to light. By bleachers and chemists it is said to be the most powerful method of removing dirt and vegetable matter from fabrics that has ever been known. It is the greatest bleacher extent, and for that alone is worth ten times the price.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE WASHER AND BLEACHER is this: We have five pounds of metal, which attains a much greater degree of heat than the water surrounding it, consequently the water underneath the Washer becomes hotter and more expansive than in any other part of the boiler, and is thereby thrown to the surface through the tube; thus tending to produce a vacuum underneath the Washer at the bottom of the boiler, into which the water is rapidly drawn.

As it passes along the channels of the Washer, the curved and contracted throats of the same prevent its flowing backward; and being held in contact with the hot metal, it becomes hotter and hotter, consequently more expansive and more forcible until thrown to the surface, thus producing a powerful suction beneath the clothes, through which the water must pass in a rapid downward current, thereby obtaining a water force which cannot be obtained by any other method known in cleansing fabrics. Thus, we get a combination. First, we have the desired heat. Second, perfect chemical action of the soap. Third, force of water—all of which are required to thoroughly cleanse and purify any fabric.

THE IMPROVED WASHER.

The Improved Washer has perfect fitting pipe, and is a combination of metals which does not become sticky or dirty. It comes out of the boiler as bright as new.

A WORD ABOUT BLEACHING.

There are few professional bleachers in the United States. The word "bleaching" implies the art of extracting animal or vegetable matter or discoloration from the various fibres which constitute all our different fabrics. This is done by a regular chemical process, consisting, first, of alkaline boilings; second, immersions in solutions of chloride of lime; third, solutions of acids. After each process the goods receive a thorough rinsing in clear water; then, last of all process, to thoroughly extract all injurious matter, comes that of boiling in good soap and water. This leaves the goods pure and white as snow, ready to finish or the market. Now, the question arises, Can those fabrics again absorb and fix all their natural discolorations? We answer, No; impossible. Then why is it (asks the housewife) my clothes become yellow and discolored? There are many reasons—Poor soap, hard water, careless servants, not having strength to rub out the dirt yourselves, and not being able to use water by hand hot enough to keep the fabric expanded to the extent which is absolutely requisite to thoroughly extract the dirt or bleach the clothes. Clothes should never be bleached but once, but thoroughly washed, and they will always be white. THE FAMILY WASHER AND BLEACHER will do it for you every time.

We have endeavored to set forth as explicitly as possible the merits of our Washer and the mode of operating it. And as it is much easier to answer inquiries here, we transcribe a few of the more common

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q. What kind of boiler do you use?
Ans. Any kind of boiler that has a flat bottom 5½x8 inches will do.

Q. How can you have a flow of water at the rate of ten or twelve gallons per minute in a boiler holding only eight or ten gallons?
Ans. The same water is used over and over again; and in order to be thus used it must pass down through and through the fabric, and this with the soap and heat is what does the business.

Q. How can you use a large quantity of water in a boiler already full of clothes?
Ans. We first fill the boiler two-thirds full of water; as soon as the washer commences to work, we put in the clothes dry.

Q. Can you wash flannels and colored clothes?
Ans. We wash anything that can be washed. Flannels and colored clothes need but little soap and from five to ten minutes of the full operation of the Washer. Flannel should be rinsed in HOT water. It is the change from BOILING to COLD water that contracts the fibre, causing them to shrink. Any FULLER will tell you this is so. Fugitive prints will part with their colors by this or any other process, but fast colors will not be injured. It is not best, as every good housekeeper knows, to use strong soap or alkalies in washing colored goods. Many prints and other colored fabrics have some kind of ACID as a base, and if alkalies are used strong enough to destroy this acid, the fabric will part with its color. This is why English prints, which will not fade in the sun, or by ordinary washing, are ruined by STRONG soaps. These facts are worth remembering by the inexperienced housekeeper.

Q. Can you use the common soft soap of the farm-house?
Ans. Yes, if good.

Q. Is it not better to put very dirty clothes to soak over night? Ans. No.

Q. Will your machine remove the streaks from dirty wristbands and collars, such as farmers and mechanics wear, after having been worn a whole week, as they usually are? Will not these require extra care in rinsing? Ans. The Washer will cleanse the dirtiest clothing. Give the clothes a thorough rinsing.

Q. We sometimes find a whitish scum on top of the water. What is the cause of this? Ans. Your water is HARD. When soap is added to hard water a chemical change takes place. Certain substances in the water having an affinity for the alkali of the soap, unite with it, thus setting FREE other substances; these are PRECIPITATED and fall to the bottom, or rise to the surface in the form of a whitish scum, according as their specific gravity is greater or less than that of water. This is why it is impossible to cleanse fabrics with hard water. Hard water may be softened by the use of borax or sal-soda. Pure rain water is best for ANY method of washing.

Q. How can it be possible for so simple a thing to cleanse fabrics? Ans. If you will study the PHILOSOPHY of the Washer, carefully and intelligently, for a few moments, and consider what is required to remove dirt from clothing, you will ask, "How is it possible for it NOT to cleanse fabrics?" A gentleman writing to us upon this point, says: "I must own that when I first saw your Washer, I was utterly incredulous as to its cleansing powers. My family were still more so. In fact, they had no faith in washers of any kind; but being strongly urged by a friend who had used your machine successfully, I concluded to try one. We made the first trial with a good many misgivings. In fact, I could not see how so simple a thing could wash clothing. But when I saw the water pouring out from the discharge pipe at the rate of 10 or 12 gallons per minute, and when I reflected that this amount of water must pass through the clothes twenty or thirty times in the course of an ordinary wash, my doubts began to give way. I saw the thing was both philosophical and [illegible] in the process, and that it was impossible that it should not prove effective. I am now a firm believer in the Washer, and trust it will find a place, as it deserves, in every household."

Q. Will you send a Washer C. O. D. to my address? Ans. We do not send Washers C. O. D. It only costs the sender 10 cents for a registered letter or money order, which can be sent at our risk.

We send sample Washers by express, and guarantee all packages to be delivered to our customers at their nearest express office. We pack securely in a strong box, and invariably send notice of shipment.

WILL YOUR WASHER DO ALL YOU CLAIM FOR IT?

(This Question Comes to Us Oftener than Any Other.) Answer—Stop and think, and you will readily see that we must sell more than Sample Washers in order to make our business profitable to us. Consider the cost of manufacture, rents, printing and office expenses, and prepaying expressage on Samples, and this fact is derived. We must depend entirely for our profits upon the sales made by those who first send for a Sample Washer, and after trying it and convincing themselves, become our Agents. If it were not "All We Claim For It," could we sell more than a sample to a person?

Messrs. Bissell Manufacturing Company, 42 Murray street, New York:
I enclose $3.50, for which please send me, express paid, one of your No. 1 Washers, per your ad. in N. Y. Weekly Witness of March 20. I propose to give it a thorough trial, and if it is all you claim for it, which I have no reason to doubt, I think seriously of taking a general agency for several counties in this vicinity.

WELLS RIVER, Vt., April 12, 1879.
Bissell Manufacturing Company, New York.
GENTLEMEN: I trust you will excuse me for troubling you with the first difficulty which arises with me in undertaking to introduce your Washer in this place. I wrote you a week ago, saying that it gave good satisfaction, and now say more. The third time using it to-day in my family, having become conversant with it, we could do anything we chose almost, and in most satisfactory manner, washing flannels and all. But to-day (later) a lady has used it who says (the clothes being very dirty, the collars, etc., having been saturated with sweat) that the clothes have yellow streaks in them, and that she believes that the continued use of the Washer will cause the clothes to become yellow beyond reparation. I cannot find but that she used the Washer according to directions. Can you not give me some testimonials which touch directly upon that point, and a list of names of some who have used the machine a year or more, to whom I may write in regard to the matter? My only excuse for writing this is that I am interested to have the Washer proved to be what I myself believe it to be—"a success." Very respectfully,
A. W. JONES, Wells River, Orange Co.
P. S.—Have seen the lady again, and she admits the clothes had become yellow by a careless servant and hard water. Would like the testimonials just the same however.
The letters asked for were sent.

GENTLEMEN: I return to you herewith letters of testimonial sent me in yours of the 15th instant, for which please accept my thanks. I think that I have succeeded in convincing my customers that it is not a humbug, and the letters were just what I needed, so far as they went. Very respectfully,

Having explained the correct theory of cleaning fabrics, and shown by our description, and the testimony of people who are using, that the principle of the Washer and Bleacher embodies the above theory, we ask you to take particular notice of

THE INDUCEMENTS WE OFFER.

We want a Local Agent in every town in the United States. We know from past and present experience that reliable, energetic men can make money selling the Washer and Bleacher in any community.

We want first-class men as GENERAL AGENTS; men capable of managing one or more Counties.

To such men we give a duly executed LICENSE.

We furnish descriptive circulars for distribution among families. Also large posters for advertising in public places.

We also furnish INSTRUCTIONS TO GENERAL AGENTS which enable them to handle their territory to the best advantage.

In States east of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers, also in Kansas and Nebraska, we will deliver at your nearest Railway Express office, CHARGES PREPAID. Sample No. 1 Washer, $3.50. Sample No. 2 Washer, $5. Any Agent who will place this Washer in families can sell one in almost every instance, upon a trial of it. The great saving in time, labor and material and the extreme low price of the Washer brings it within the reach of ALL. It cannot get out of order. It does the work rapidly and well. These points commend it to every one. Send for a sample; try it; show it to your friends; get their orders, and if you wish to secure a county or town, don't delay, but let us hear from you at once. Remember the old maxim, "First come, first served."

In territory where there are no Agencies established, to persons desiring a Washer for their own use, we will deliver the same, CHARGES PREPAID, on receipt of price as stated above. You can readily determine when there is an Agency established, as Posters will be put up in conspicuous places, and Circulars distributed.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Before writing for further information read carefully the following:

The above contains all the information we can possibly impart to you. The principle and merits of the Washer, and testimony of those who are using it. All that our printed Circulars contain is here laid before you.

We do this to avoid the necessity of sending out circulars, or answering letters of inquiry. Those ordering direct from this advertisement will be dealt with strictly as stated above. We give to such, by prepaying Expressage upon their Washers, the full benefit of what we would otherwise expend in circulars, stationery, postage and labor, the cost of which in the aggregate is enormous.

As to the reliability of this Company, we refer you to the notice in another column of the Editor of this paper. Also to the MERCANTILE NATIONAL BANK of this city, or to any Express Company in New York.

In ordering, write plainly your name, Post-office, County and State. Also the name of the Express office to which you wish the Washer forwarded. Strange as it may seem, some people who usually write a very good hand spell their names in Chinese, or some other language unknown to the average office clerk, and some even forget to write their names at all.

Cash must accompany all orders. Remit by Post-office Order or Registered Letter, at our risk. We insure the safe delivery of all Washers ordered as above. Money may also be sent by Draft on New York. Address BISSELL MAN'F'G CO., 50 Barclay St., New York.

When you order mention this paper.

of the Baton Rouge District Conference, when we return to our charges, will do all in our power to advance the cause of education among our people; and,

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves, on the third Sabbath in November, to preach to our congregations on the importance and necessity of sending students to the New Orleans University.

Under the head of miscellaneous business the following resolutions were offered in regard to the further organization of the District Conference, by Rev. Z. T. Gayden, and adopted by the conference:

WHEREAS, This is the first meeting in the form of a District Conference that has been held in the Louisiana Conference; and, whereas, we regard it as a good step in the right direction, both for the traveling and local preachers; and, Whereas, we regard it as being advantageous to the entire district; be it Resolved, That all the business of the District Conference, heretofore transacted in the Quarterly Conference, be, and is hereby referred to the District Conference; and be it further resolved that our next District Conference be held as specified in the Discipline.

Resolutions were adopted complimentary to Bro. Aaron Smith, a blind local preacher, and the brethren pledged themselves to assist Bro. Smith in gaining a livelihood.

The subject of a colored bishop was discussed, and the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, We, the members of the Louisiana Conference, Baton Rouge District, feeling that the time has come when the colored element of our great Methodism should be represented in our Board of Bishops; therefore,

Resolved, That we request the ensuing general conference to elect a colored bishop, provided a colored preacher of sufficient piety, ability, and culture worthy of said office can be found in the church.

The question, "How can we better support our wornout preachers?" was discussed by Bro. C. Thompson, followed by several of the brethren. A committee of five was appointed to devise and prepare a plan of support for the worn out preachers, said committee to report at next session.

At 3 p. m. Rev. Andrew Jackson preached from the text "Worthy is the Lamb." He showed that Jesus [illegible] was the Lamb of God, and [illegible] death made an atonement for the sins of the world; and thus [illegible] the adoration and praises [illegible] angels and of men. His discourse was spirited and powerful. [illegible] was followed by the [illegible] of the Lord's Supper, [illegible] the presiding elder, [illegible] Gould.

the letters that are sent to him it would take nearly all the time he can spare from sleep, besides taking nearly all his salary to buy paper and pay postage. Bro. Lynch is too self-sacrificing to speak of this, and yet it is too great a burden for him to bear. He is willing to answer the special letters as far as his time will permit, but you will let me say for him, please send two or three stamps. You will be glad to do it, I am sure, and it will not be such a burden then to him, financially. I must say a word about this "exodus" movement before I close. Those of your people who have come are doing well. They think this is God's own country. They are heartily welcomed by two great bodies at least—The Republican party and the M. E. Church. There is room for thousands here to get themselves homes out on these grand fertile prairies. Come, then, I say with our noble governor, and get yourselves homes. Bring all your stock. Bring everything you will need after you get here. It will take you a little longer to drive your stock and move your goods, but you will enjoy it, and it will pay. Thousands of whites come in this way from the East, and it is the best way you can come. Let six or ten families band together and prepare yourselves for all emergencies, and you will enjoy the journey, and have more money when you get here. Yours truly, WM. M. COOBY.

Letter from Thibodaux, La.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me space enough in your valuable paper to give the numerous readers an account of the charge at Thibodeaux, La., and what is being done in the M. E. Calvary Church, to which I was appointed January last, 1879. When I received my commission I went to the charge with a light heart, and the prospect of a useful future brightening before me, believing that much can be accomplished by assiduous labor, and untiring zeal. The church at this point is in a prosperous condition, spiritually and financially. I have endeavored to urge the members to see the necessity of performing all the duty incumbent upon them in the Temple of Virtue, in order that they may claim the reward in the Temple of Honor. The members of the church love to do their duty and do it willingly, and they always act in harmony with the pastor and officers, when anything or any project is laid before them for the benefit of their beloved Zion.

Our much esteemed and beloved presiding elder, Rev. Emperor Williams often cheers us with his presence. His last visit to our church was both gratifying and encouraging, for we regard him as the Apostolic church regarded John; as a father, a brother, an orator. His sermons are instructive and orthordox, his reasoning clear and syllogistical. Long may he live to do as much in the future as in the past.

Pray that God may signally pour out his spirit upon us. Yours in Christ, WM. DAVIS.
Pastor in Charge.

Letter from La Teche.

LA TECHE, LA., Sept. 17, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to speak of our good work in this part of the land. The pastor appointed by the conference, Bro. Shallowhorne, left us March 1st, and did not return; consequently, I was appointed by our presiding elder, Bro. Matlock, to take charge of the Master's work. Our church is in good standing. We have three converts this quarter, received six on probation and one by letter, and collected $64. The storm that occurred here on the 1st inst. wrecked nearly all the buildings in our community. Our church was damaged but little. The young men in this vicinity met a few weeks ago and re-organized the Smith Literary Society, and elected the following named gentlemen as officers: J. F. Patty, pres't.; Guy [illegible], vice pres't.; Gustave Fran[illegible]; M. S. Alexander, ass. sec.; [illegible], treas.; J. E. L. Hos[illegible] manager; E. E. [illegible]; S. M. The Austin District.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23, 1879.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to say something in the columns of the SOUTHWESTERN with regard to the Austin district. Times have been extremely hard this conference year, and bid fair to continue so from the continuation of drought. Many who planted large crops of corn and cotton this spring will not average one-third of a crop. Notwithstanding this the work of the district is going on finely. Many of the preachers have not received anything like a support, but they are standing by their circuits and stations manfully and bravely, and are willing to continue. After my district conference I have been tenting on the ground, visiting several points in my district, commencing with La Grange circuit, E. E. Cooper's work, Aug. 2d, who had in progress a glorious protracted meeting, resulting in 7 converts, which were baptized in the church by pouring, Aug. 3d, at 4 p. m. Next point visited was Fayetteville. On Friday night, the 8th, a heavy rain fell, which the farmers needed and rejoiced over. The rain slacked up long enough for me to reach Fayetteville, P. M. Carmichael's work, on Saturday. Here I found Bro. Carmichael at his post. However the rain set in again, and continued until 4 o'clock Sunday evening. Thus you see we had no chance to hold his quarter; but he had his report all right, which furnished me with valuable information. Since the second quarter he has increased his congregation from 35 to 60 or more. I left the pastor to hold his own quarterly conference. From there I returned to Austin. Bro. Hartzell, I forgot to say that I left my family at La Grange to recuperate, with my brother, A. Foster, who has a mineral well on his place. My wife's health has been bad for the last eight months. She has returned home much improved. I next visited Bastrop work, W. J. Mitchell pastor. His quarter was appointed for the 16th of August, but when I arrived he was not there, but informed me that he was not ready. My next point was Simpson Tabernacle, which we held here on the 23d. I found Bro. M. Henson commencing a protracted meeting. The quarterly conference passed off finely—the members of the quarterly conference turned out in full force on Sunday at 3 p.m. We enjoyed a glorious outpouring of the Holy Spirit; 53 met us at the spread table of the Lord's. I assisted him in his protracted meeting five days. The house was crowded every night, and the altar was crowded with seekers. The congregation is small, but of good material. Wesley Chapel had assisted them in giving a festival to raise means for the pastor's support. I find the congregation not able to give anything like a support. If the conference would add $200 to support the preacher, in a few years this would be a grand congregation, and would soon be self-supporting. The next was held at Mount Salem, Aug. 30. I could not reach that point, but had Bro. Henson to hold the quarterly conference for me. He reports that Bro. I. Smith and his Board of stewards, superintendents, and trustees were on hand, and seemed to be in a prosperous condition. Bro. Smith is doing a good work. The elder's collection was $4.10. First Saturday and Sunday in September the quarterly conference at West Point was held. Bro. C. Hart was at his post doing good battle for the Master. Next quarterly conference was appointed at Piney Grove, Sep. 13 and 14, but I could not reach this point, but informed the pastor to hold the conference, being called away on special business at Waco, to be there on the 10th. So I held Bro. J. W. Robinson's quarterly conference. We had a good time. I find the church edifice here too small to accommodate the congregation. Its present capacity is 350. They have insured for two-thirds of its value, $750. Bro. Robinson is doing a grand work in the congregation, and also the Sunday-school is a good one. The next was held at Port Sullivan. Bro. D. Sapp was at his post doing a good work on the 20th and 21st of September. On my return to Austin I found Bro. D. Gregory amidst a grand protracted meeting. Up to this time 27 converts, and the good work goes on still, and considerable revival spirit is broad-spread over the entire community.

Letters from Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Colorado County, Texas, October 2nd, 1877.

DEAR EDITOR—Up to this time we have been mute to a remarkable degree (for want of something of interest to dilate on) in communicating with your well spoken of paper. As we are men of limited education, when we say excuse our bad composition, you will understand us to intimate that we are aware this will not bear criticism.

Mr. Editor, we think a brief statement about the church is the best topic to open this communication with. Our members are growing in grace and we think the membership is on the increase, nothwithstanding occasionally a bad sheep deserts the fold. But that is the way the converts of Satan will do. Times have been quite hard, but since cotton and corn are being gathered a change for the better is noticeable. We are members of a society entitled the Single Star Benevolent, and in its interest we write you. The society was organized the 26th of last October, its membership, like all other good ones, has grown rapidly and is doing noble work. We expect to parade in our regalia on the 19th Nov., at night. We purpose having one of the most extensive suppers ever given by a society of our age in organization. Mr. Editor, you will discover it is going to be something elaborate, when we say we will charge each child under 12 years old 25 cents and each adult 50 cents. We are so sure there will not be enough of our own resident people to attend (thereby ensuing the disposal of all refreshments prepared) that we extend our cordial invitation through your columns to strangers everywhere who are friends of good society, and may be passing this way at the time to join us. Peace and harmony reign about this part of the State.

Please excuse us if we have said too much in behalf of our society. We close with a hope for your future success in business, temporal and spiritual. Very respectfully

W. D. DAVIS, President
S. H. TANNER, Secretary.

Meharry Medical College.

BY R. S. RUST, D. D.

The Freedman's Aid Society is erecting at Nashville a plain brick edifice, of three stories, with Mansard roof, for the Medical Department of the Central Tennessee College. The walls are up, and it is expected that the building will be placed under cover during the present week. It is located on a beautiful and elevated site, commanding a delightful view of the surrounding country. It is built on the most approved plan, combining all the requisites of a medical college. The institution bears the honored name of Meharry, and will be an enduring monument of the philanthropy and liberality of the Meharry brothers. Dr. Meharry, in his last visit to Nashville, promised me $1,000 for the enterprise, and since his decease his benevolent widow has increased the promised sum to $1,700, and has paid the same. Samuel Meharry has given $2,000 towards the building, and David has donated a large tract of land, which can not be sold to advantage now. Jesse has not forgotten us, and Hugh has endowed a professorship by the gift of a farm, estimated at $10,000. A few thousand dollars more are now greatly needed to complete the edifice. It is the first building erected by the Freedmen's Aid Society for medical students in the South, and the only one of any importance in the Mississippi Valley in which young colored men can have a fair chance to acquire a through education in medical science. Already it has graduated several classes, which have become distinguished for their profession and success in their practice of medicine. Dr. Hubbard, the dean of the college, has determinde that no one shall receive a diploma without the ability and knowledge to reflect honor upon the degree and the institution that confers it. During the past two sessions, when the South was stricken with the deadly plague, several of the students and graduates hastened to the scenes of peril, rendered efficient assistance in nursing the sick and the dying, and saved many valuable lives.

The Central Tennessee College, under the judicious management of Rev. Dr. Braden, takes high rank, and is exerting wide-spread influence for good. It opens the present year with more than a hundred pupils farther advanced in study than any that ever entered before. The students are well classified and thoroughly taught by good and faithful teachers. The Biblical Department is large and promising, and the young ministers greatly enjoy the instructions and lectures of Dr. Braden, who devotes especial attention to those preparing to enter the Christion ministry. We commend this institution to our people, for all things considered, it is not surpassed by any in the South.—Western Advocate.

The Beverage Brewed for Man.

The following apostrophe to water, by Mr. Gough is both striking and eloquent, and ought to carry conviction to many a heart not lost to the beautiful and sublime: Look at that ye thirsty ones of earth! Behold it! See its purity! How it glitters, as if a mass of liquid gem! It is a beverage that was brewed by the Almighty himself! Not in simmering still or smoking fires, choked with poisonous gases, and surrounded by the stench of sickening odors and rank corruption, doth our Father in heaven prepare the precious essence of life, the pure cold water; but in the green glade and grassy dell, where the red deer wanders and the child loves to play; there God brews it, and down, down in the deepest valleys, where the fountains murmur and the rills sing; and high upon the tall mountain tops, where the storm clouds brood and the thunders crash; and away far out on the wide sea, where the hurricanes howl music and the big waves roar the chorus, sweeping the march of God—there he brews it—that beverage of life—health giving water! And everywhere it is a thing of beauty; glimmering in the dew drop, singing in the ice gem—till the trees all seem turned into living jewels—spreading a golden veil over the setting sun or a white gause around the midnight moon, sporting in the cataract, sleeping in the glaciers, dancing in the hail shower—folding its bright curtain softly about the wintry world and weaving the many colored iris—that seraph's zone of the sky, whose woof is the sunbeam of heaven, all checkered over with the celestial flowers by the mystic hand of refraction—still always it is beautiful, that blessed life water! No poison bubbles on the brink; its foam brings no sadness or murder, no blood stains its limpid glass; broken-hearted wives, pale widows and starving orphans shed no tears in its depths. No drunkard's shrieking ghost, from the grave, curses it in words of eternal despair; beautiful, pure, blessed and glorious, give me forever the sparkling, pure cold water.

The census of Greece has recently been taken, and as a rapid increase in population is almost always, in civilized countries, an indication of the material wellbeing of the inhabitants, it is satisfactory to know that this little Kingdom has grown in numbers at quite a remarkable rate, for its population is now 1,679,775, or just about twice what it was in 1838, when the first national census was taken. The increase at and around the capital, Athens, is even more marked than in the country at large. Athens, forty years ago, was little better than a village, the effect of Turkish rule being to keep down the size of the provincial towns. At that time there were no people who could properly be said to represent the Piræus. Ten years ago, however, Athens had 48,000 inhabitants, and the port of Piræus had 11,000. Now the capital city has a population of 74,000, and its maritime adjunct claims 22,000. In the census returns taken during the early days of the country under its present government, little attempt was made to determine the national wealth; but it seems to be beyond dispute that property has increased in amount and value at a much faster rate than the growth in population.

A Good Showing.

Dr. Hartzell, the accomplished editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, published in New Orleans, is doing a grand work for the Church in his able management of that paper. The circulation has increased to nearly four thousand, and his receipts almost fifty per cent. more than in former years. We regard the paper as one of our best exchanges, and receive information through it that can hardly be obtained from any other source. Success to it.—Church Herald.

"If I Only had Capital."

"If I only had capital," we heard a young man say, as he puffed away at a ten cent cigar, "I would do something."

"If I only had capital," said another, as he walked away from a dram-shop where he had just paid ten cents for a drink, "I would go into business."

The same remark might have been heard from the young man loafing on the street corner. Young man with the cigar, you are smoking away your capital. You from the dram-shop are drinking yours, and destroying your body at the same time, and you upon the street-corner are waiting yours in idleness and forming bad habits. Dimes makes dollars. Time is money. Don't wait for fortune to begin with. If you had $10,000 a year, and spent it all, you would be poor still. Our men of power and influence did not start with fortunes. You, too, can make your mark, if you will. But you must stop spending your money for what you don't need, and squandering your time in idleness.

Of what special use is the ballot the in hands of men who enforce it by the bullet? Republican governments can only live so long as law lives. If we are to be governed by a despotism of bullies and assassins, we might as well give up the ship of State. The fact is, we have pushed the States'-rights doctrine too far. If a State can so far lapse into a condition of barbarism as to refuse to bring murderers to justice, educate her children, and pay her lawful debts, she has no right to be recognized as a member of a civilized government. But what shall be done? Can she be permitted to secede? This is impossible, for patriotism and religion have a right to say what a State shall do. In populous counties in New Mexico there are no teachers; the people do not want them, and furthermore they will not sustain public schools. If it comes to be an admitted doctrine that ignorance, polygamy, and brutality may safely be corner-stones of States in the American Union, then we have nothing to say; but so long as it is acknowledged that in education, chastity, honesty, and law is our only hope, we must insist on the general government making the States march in the line of law and order.—N. E. Journal of Education.

Of all the signs accompanying the new revival of trade, none are healthier than the short credit and actual cash system being adopted by large business houses in several of the principal trading marts of this country. It is a system which has grown out of the financial failures of the past few years; and it finds encouragement in the liberal discounts which the seller offers the buyer as an inducement to pay cash. Should a strictly no credit system prevail among the commercial men of the United States there would be no need of any more panics and "hard times."—Western Christian Advocate.

St. Matt. vii 1-5.—When a man talks much about the faults of others, he is sure not to have much acquaintance with his own. If he knows his own heart and its sinful misery, he has no time to observe the faults of others, nor indeed has he the inclination or courage to do it. * * The words "see clearly," in verse 5, are very significant. If you must speak to a brother about a sin or a fault, see clearly how you are to do it. Consider well over it, cast about in your mind in the spirit of charity how you can best speak to him, and how it will be most useful to him.—Werner.

Always when men are in earnest about religion, it will appear as a visible controlling influence in their daily habits. Men who have a real, genuine belief in God,—men to whom God is not a name, but an awful, ever-present reality,—think naturally before all other things how they best can please Him; how they can make His law the law of their own existance. This is the meaning of saving faith. A faith that is alive, a faith that is a faith in deed and in fact, issues necessarily in a life of holiness.—Froude.

The Western States now contain a Catholic population of 2,576,000, while the Middle States escape with 1,968,000; the Eastern States retain 861,000; and the Southern States keep less than 800,000.

Rev. John W. Butler, writing from the City of Mexico, Sept. 22, says: "You will be sorry to learn of another Protestant massacre which took place last Tuesday in Toluca. Toluca is the capital of the State of Mexico, and about 60 miles from the City of Mexico. Said massacre took place in the Presbyterian Mission, of which S. Procopio Diaz is pastor. He is the same man who was in charge at Acapulco some four years ago, when several were murdered. I have not yet learned how many were killed in Toluca, but one poor fellow was terribly cut and then dragged through the streets, after which he was hung up to a tree, where his body remained all night. SUNDAY SCHOOL.

October 26, 1879.—FAITH AND WORKS.

SCRIPTURE.—Jas. 2: 14-26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also."—26.

TOPIC.—Access to God through Faith and Works.

[Condensed from the National S. S. Teacher.]

Preliminary.—The doctrine of salvation by faith may be carried too far. A man is saved by faith only—but his faith must make itself manifest in upright living. Paul's perfect man is one of unwavering faith; James' one of unceasing works—and the two are indentical.

Faith Without Works (14-17).—"What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works?" It is of no value to others; for it has no way of being of service to them. It is of no value to one's self; for it does not contribute to the growth of the soul. In two verses are given the strongest sort of an illustration that such a faith as that is altogether profitless. Those who are members together of Christ's body are under peculiar and sacred obligations to be sympathetic and helpful toward each other. There is altogether too much such dead faith even in the present day. There are a vast number of people who give a ready assent to all of the cardinal principles of the gospel. Faith with them bears no sweet fruit that is reviving to a perishing neighbor.

Faith With Works (18-26.—"Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works." If the whole church were to adopt that as its motto, what an added power and increased respect it would have before the world. The faith of man without works is set side by side with the belief of devils in order to show that merely assenting faith is not saving faith. "Thou believest that there is one God"—or "that God is one." That was the fundamental article in the creed of both Jews and Christians. By it the Jews were distinguished from the heathen round about. Such an article of faith is good so far as it goes. But it is not necessarily worship, nor saving faith. "The [illegible] also believe, and tremble"—[illegible] "shudder." To show that [illegible] possible for every one to know [illegible] this matter, the apostle [illegible] two instances from sacred history to enforce his point. He might have cited others. Abraham is the most upright of men—Rahab an abandoned woman. "Was not Abraham, our father justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar?" The Lord swore "because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son, that in blessing I will bless thee," etc. [illegible] 22: 16, 17. He could not have done it with an unfaltering [illegible] unless he had had the most [illegible] faith in God. Rahab. [illegible] justifying work was the reception of the spies of the Jewish [illegible], hiding them from the search of the officers sent to arrest them, [illegible] sending them forth to a place [illegible]. She believed in the God of Israel, and that by means of his [illegible] the land would be given into the hands of Israel, and therefore [illegible] gave aid and succor to these [illegible]. It was a belief against all [illegible] probabilities that the ill-[illegible] few would conquer the well-[illegible] many. But her faith would not [illegible] amounted to anything if she [illegible] no risks and suffered these [illegible] of the Lord to have been [illegible] and slain. Her works pro[illegible] the reality of her faith. [illegible] rescued men were her [illegible]. They testified to her [illegible] her works testified to [illegible]. A tree that produces [illegible] neither leaves, nor flowers, [illegible] a dead tree—and a faith [illegible] of all results also [illegible] and is fit only to [illegible] and cast into the [illegible] lesson oft repeated [illegible] "Faith Without [illegible]"

DEATHS.

Mr. S. Threlkeld died on the 8th inst. He was a member of the Baptist Church, and in his 64th year. He was loved by all good people who knew him and died in full triumph. B. T.

Lafayette Springs, Miss.

Sister Matilda Thompson died Oct. 6, 1879, aged 100 years. She was a faithful member of the M. E. Church for 45 years, and always doing the good work of Christ. She died in full triumph of faith. Her last words were: "Thank Jesus, I am going to live with Him." The Church was very much grieved to see her go. But her pilgrimage is ended here. REV. A. MOORE.

Algiers, La.

Sister Nellie Beane departed this life about two weeks ago: through Christ she lives on. She was converted through my ministration about 8 years ago, and it pleased the Lord I suppose to send me back to my field of labor to do my work, and a part of it was to bury her. She was a dear sister, and a devoted Christian. She suffered much and long, but her trials are all over. She leaves one dear little boy about three years old. The Church came to her relief and gave her a creditable funeral. D. GREGORY.

Austin, Texas, Oct. 9, 1879.

I am called upon to speak of the dying testimony of another of our sainted members in the person of sister Alice Tolbott. It was a source of comfort to hear her last words. Among many other cheering and pleasant things, she said: "Don't be uneasy about me; I am just waiting for the Lord. It is all bright; there is not a cloud between me and my Savior. Tell all the brothers and sisters good bye." She had become very much attached to the presiding elder. Speaking of him, she said; "I would like to see Bro. Matlock, but as he cannot get here now, tell him to meet me in Heaven." She is now in that bright world where we expect to go and see her. J. F. M.

Pastor M. E. Church, Alexandria.

Alexandria, La., Oct. 9, 1879.

William Honeycut was born Aug. 7, 1852, and died of consumption March 27, 1879. He put off the great subject of his soul's salvation until he was on his death-bed, but he had been the subject of a Christian mother's prayers for long years, and also of a consecrated sister's prayers, who is the wife of Rev. S. Johnson, pastor of our church at Hot Springs. About a month before his death he found peace in believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, joined the old M. E. Church, and from that time until he passed away he was able to rejoice in the hope of eternal life.

Giles, infant son of Anderson and Isabella Henderson, both members of our church at this place, died Oct. 5, 1879. This is the third child that brother and sister Henderson have lost within eighteen months, but they find hope and consolation in putting their trust in him who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

New Books.

The Earl of Mayfield has had a remarkable success. Its publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, of Philadelphia, have already issued the fourth edition. The leading papers speak of it in terms of the highest praise, and it has all the appreciation that the most sanguine expectations of the author could have anticipated. It is a decidedly popular romance. For sale by all booksellers.

PLAIN TALK TO THE SICK; with Directions for Homoeopathic Treatment and General Rules for Preservation of Health, also an Appendix on the diseases of women, containing an Expose of the Impositions practiced upon Innocent Sufferers by Men in High Places. By Adam Miller M. D. Author of "Life in other Worlds." "A New Theory of Solar Heat." Chicago.

This book contains over two hundred pages, and speaks in the language of the common people, of the principal diseases, and gives remedies for their prevention and cure. The book is especially valuable for general distribution in the South, in the yellow fever district. Dr. W. J. Murrell of Mobile, Ala., contributes an exhaustive article on the yellow fever, giving the latest data gathered from prevalence and treatment of that disease in the terrible epidemic of 1878. Dr. Miller is a graduate of the old school of medicine, but is now an ardent advocate of the Homoeopathic system of medical practice. He is a liberalist in medicine, and has had many years of successful practice. In his discussion of the treatment of women Dr. Miller is terribly severe in his denunciations of the practice of some eminent physicians. The price of the book is $1.10 and will be sent post paid [illegible] address for that amount, [illegible] be in many homes. [illegible] Dr. Adam Miller, 55 Ellis [illegible] Chicago, Ills.

Harper's Magazine for November is an attractive and varied number. All but two of its contributions are illustrated. Mr. Benjamin completes his review of American Art. The leading paper, by W. H. Rideing, is devoted to a subject of curious interest—the old National Pike between the East and West across the Alleghanies. An equally novel subject, and of great present interest, is Mr. A. A. Hayes, Jr.'s, article on the "Cattle Ranches of Colorado," which contains full information as to the methods and risks of cattle-raising. The engravings which illustrate Mr. J. C. Beard's paper, "The Mimicry of Nature," are beautiful. Prof. H. W. Elliott's paper, "The Sparrow War," will be read with gusto by every American farmer. Mrs. Georgiana S. Hull contributes a thrilling story, "A Legend of All-Hallow-Eve." An anonymous story of travel, "A Night on the Tete Noire," is full of humorous situations. The serial novels, "White Wings," by William Black, and "Mary Anerley," by R. D. Blackmore, are continued, and there is an installment of Miss Mulock's "Young Mrs. Jardine." The November number closes the fifty-ninth volume, and the publishers offer to send to new annual subscribers beginning with December, the four previous numbers containing the early chapters of "White Wings" and "Mary Anerley."

A Hint to Workingmen.

The honest workingmen of the country, many of whom have large and increasing families to support, have been the chief sufferers from the great financial pressure under which we have labored for the past few years. Diminished wages have not been attended by a corresponding diminution in price of everything which the workingman needs. Rents, fuel, food and clothing are cheaper, but these do not constitute all his necessities. It is sometimes necessary for him to employ a lawyer or a physician, yet the fee rates of physicians and lawyers are as high as they were in "flush" times. Yet cheap medicines are as necessary as cheap rents or fuel. Cheap medicines are not necessarily poor medicines. It must be obvious to every intelligent person that medicines, compounded and put up at wholesale, can be sold at much lower rates than when retailed from the doctor's pill bags. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets have completely restored persons who had spent hundreds of dollars in vainly seeking relief from private practitioners, and all at a very slight expenditure.

The Audiphone.

A scientific gentleman of Cincinnati has invented an instrument by which the deaf can hear through the medium of the teeth. "The Audiphone," as it is called, is, in shape, very much like an old fashioned silver watch, and weighs about one ounce and a half. It is found that the deaf and partially deaf can readily hear anything said in the room in an ordinary tone of voice. It has been tested in the offices of the Herald and Presbyter, Christian Standard and American Christian Review, and is constantly on exhibition on exhibition at the offices of the American Audiphone Co., No. 278 Vine street. PREVENT Yellow Fever.

It has been well proved that prevention is better than cure. A very simple and effective preventive for Yellow Fever and other fevers has been found in BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. They were used during the last season in New Orleans very successfully, the common method of using them was to apply them over the stomach, changing them every week. They are one OF THE MOST ACTIVE ANTISEPTICS and seem to destroy the poison. One reason why they are of special value is that they eliminate the digestion and thus enable to system to overcome the influence of the malarial poison. They are a cheap and almost certain preventive. Ask your physician about them. Benson's Capcine Plasters are a sure preventive and cure for chills and fever if worn as above. Price 25 cents. 33 13t
